NORWICH AND VICINITY.

City Court—Kellogg, Judge.

The continued case of Philip Davidson, charged with assaulting David Smith and breaking his leg, was called for trial in the city court Thursday morning. The case was again continued until September 7.

The continued cases against John Bloom and Kiver Lahn, accused of breach of the peace, were re-continued until August 8, under bonds of $100.

Timothy Hagerty was found guilty of theft, fined $35 and costs, and sentenced to sixty days' imprisonment. Hagerty appealed and furnished a bond of $200.

Jennie Adams was found guilty of violating the liquor law, and fined $25 and costs, $12.34. Paid. Sheriff Story raided Miss Adams' residence Wednesday night, and secured convicting evidence.

Dr. Robinson on the Rev. Mr. Adams.

The Rev. Dr. Robinson of the Roman Catholic church in Chicopee, Mass., who is well known in this city, where he has several relatives, thinks that the Rev. Henry A. Adams is much abused, and he particularly finds fault with Bishop Ryan of Buffalo because he takes Adams to task "for speaking honestly, if not prudently, of that venerable humbug, the vestry system in the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States of America;" and also with The Boston Pilot, which, he declares "lives and thrives in an atmosphere of milk-and water catholicity," because it agrees with Bishop Ryan. Dr. Robinson thinks that in view of such a reception, "one is not surprised that so few of the clergy of the Protestant churches have the courage of their convictions, or dare to publish them; but one is surprised that any one of them dares to become a Catholic, and to give the reasons why."

Walter L. Main's Circus.

The Walter L. Main circus will exhibit at Norwich, on the Preston lot, on the afternoon and evening of the 11th inst. The Ottawa (Ill.) Journal says:

The verdict of the people who attended Walter L. Main's circus yesterday afternoon and evening, pronounces it to be one of the best ring shows ever given by any new aspirant for favors in the sawdust arena. The crowd both afternoon and evening was very large, the applause frequent and loud. The group of performing elephants was good. The trained dog "Shepherd," was simply a marvel. The Fisher brothers have no superiors as gymnastic artists. The performing horse introduced by Jos. Berries elicited marked applause. Other features worthy of personal mention were the riding of Chas. Fish, the acrobatic feats of the Reno brothers and Waltoe and the two-horse act by Cooke were productions of high character. Walter L. Main's circus is deserving of patronage on its merits.

MR. SLATER'S NEW YACHT.

A Boston Paper's Graceful Comment on the Awarding of the Contract.

We are glad to see that the Bath Iron Works is winning, not only fame, but profit out of the brilliant part which it has played in the reconstruction of the navy. It is announced by The Bath Times that the establishment has been given a contract for a large steam yacht, larger than some of the warships, and equal, in point of luxurious accommodations, to anything afloat, for Mr. W. A. Slater, a wealthy manufacturer of Norwich, Conn. The new vessel will be 220 feet long over all and 28 feet beam, and will represent, it is said, an expenditure of $300,000. It is a good sign that our millionaires are creating so many of these floating palaces. It helps American shipbuilding and gives the owners of these swift and beautiful crafts the means for a most wholesome and manly form of [illegible].—[Boston Journal.

THE CITY OF LOWELL.

The Norwich & New York Transportation Company's New Swift and Palatial Steamer.

The Norwich & New York Transportation company have received a picture of their new twin-screw passenger steamer, the City of Lowell, which is being built by the Bath (Me.) Iron Works, and was designed by A. Carey Smith of New York. She is a handsomely modelled craft, expected to make about twenty miles an hour, and will surpass in elegance of interior furnishings and convenient appointments any steamer now on the sound.

The general dimensions of the City of Lowell will be as follows:

Length on water line	[illegible] feet
Length over all	[illegible] feet
Beam moulded	[illegible] feet
Beam over guards	[illegible] feet
Draught loaded, about	[illegible] feet

The dining-room, kitchen and smoking room will be on the gallery deck, also thirty-five double berth staterooms on same deck.

On the saloon deck there will be sixty-one double berth staterooms and twenty-five rooms with brass bedsteads.

On the after main deck is a commodious social hall, aft of which is situated the ladies' cabin containing six double berth staterooms and twenty-seven free berths.

About two hundred feet of the main deck is devoted exclusively to freight and is entirely separated from the living spaces in all respects.

The lower decks forward and aft are devoted entirely to free berth accommodations, there being ninety forward and one hundred and two aft.

The electric plant will consist of two large dynamos, each capable of lighting the entire ship, there being over 700 lights, also a search light of the most approved pattern on the pilot house.

The furnishing and painting throughout will be in the latest approved and most artistic style, making the boat the finest on the sound. She will be fitted with two triple expansion engines of about 4,500 indicated horse power, with cylinders 36 inches x 40 inches and 44 inches respectively, and 36 inches stroke.

There will be six Scotch return tubular boilers, 12 feet 6 inches diameter, 11 feet 6 inches long, and a steam pressure of 165 pounds.

It is expected that the City of Lowell will be completed and placed on the route between New London and New York early in 1894.

BUSHY POINT.

The New Watering Place an Inviting Spot—173 Excursionists from Norwich.

By a coincidence of dates the Baptists of Greeneville and the Methodists of Bean Hill went to Bushy Point for their annual outings on Thursday. The steamer Summer Girl—Mr. Dennis, manager—took the parties down and a representative of THE BULLETIN went with them.

On account of the illness of the captain the Summer Girl did not reach Norwich until the other boats had left their wharves, starting at 9 o'clock and reaching the point at 11.30. She is licensed to carry 230 passengers, and had about 200 on board Thursday morning. Wind and tide were against her, which accounted for the time occupied on the trip; but the crowd was good natured, and with music and song made the most of each moment. The boat is cool, clean and commodious, her open upper deck making her a favorite with moonlight parties. She leaves New London at 9, 10 30, 12 a. m., 1 30, 3 and 4 30 p. m., making the round trip in one and a half hours.

Bushy Point is fitted in every respect to be the people's pleasure ground. Its shade trees alone are worth a fortune to its proprietor, and its mile and an eighth of beach is so wide and rambling that eight hundred people make no show of crowding it. There is an open, airy pavilion where good shore dinners are furnished by Mr. F. G. Luffy, formerly manager at Fishers and Mystic Islands; there are seesaws, flying horses, swings, a tennis court, etc. The bathing beach is excellent and the water warm and still, or rougher, as one chooses the Pequonock river or the ocean side. It is a fine site for crabbing, and boats are to be had for fishing, blackfish, bass, and cunners running abundantly off shore. An artesian well has been sunk forty feet. The westerly end of the point is being rented by tenting parties, among them the family of the Rev. E. T. Miller of Groton. Tables for picnic parties are provided in the grove, light refreshments are obtainable, and the attendants are uniformly courteous and attentive. Piano music and a fine dancing floor add to the attractions.

The 5 p. m. trip of the Summer Girl from the Point gives ample time to take the steamer Ella for home.

Matron Brown took nine of the children from the county home to Bushy Point, with the Greeneville Baptist party and they were given free passage by the manager of the boat.

AT POINT OF DEATH.

Benjamin C. Horsford's Wife Lies at Gloucester.

FIVE BULLET HOLES IN HER BODY.

Her Husband the Assailant and Probable Murderer.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 3.—There seems to be a narrow margin this morning between Benjamin C. Horsford, assailant, and Benjamin C. Horsford, murderer. His victim, who is his wife, lies at the point of death with five bullet holes in her body. One of these is in her chin, one in her neck, one in her back and one in her hand.

Dr. Morrow had just come from the woman when he was seen about 10 o'clock, and he said that she was remarkably comfortable considering her wounds. He refused to predict her chances of recovery.

Horsford came before the police court this morning, charged with assault with intent to kill.

He Pleaded Not Guilty.

The case was continued until Aug. 24, and the prisoner's bail was fixed at $20,000. The story he tells of the shooting is substantially the same as that told by others.

The cause of all the trouble between Mr. and Mrs. Horsford seems to have been the same which is given in so many cases of the kind. He claims infidelity on her part, and her people say that he was a drunkard and probably opinions will always be divided as to which is right.

In an interview at the police station today he said he was 48 years old, and was born in Glasgow, Howard county, Mo., where, in boyhood, he attended the public schools. On reaching manhood he went to sea, sailing in ships from New York to all parts of the world for nine years. Afterwards he learned the trade of a paperhanger, which he has followed ever since.

Nearly four years ago he met Miss McPherson at Westfield, Mass., she being a table girl at one of the hotels. After a few months' courtship they were married July 7, 1890, by Rev. Mr. Lockwood of that town, and went to housekeeping. He worked for George Webb at 8 School street. After two months of housekeeping they broke up and went to Waterbury Conn., where they again kept house for six months.

His Wife Accused Him of Drinking and nothing seemed to satisfy her, as she had a disposition for the company of other men and wanted to be continually moving.

The next move was to Providence, where she had a sister living at 86 Chester street by the name of Victoria Auldridge. With her they boarded for six weeks. The house she kept did not suit him, although his wife was quite pleased with it.

From there he went to Worcester, where he worked at his trade. They took a house in Lincoln square and remained about six months, when his wife became dissatisfied and they broke up. She went to their former location in Providence. After a little he induced his wife to return to Worcester, where they remained two months, he working at his trade and his wife in a corset factory on Front street.

Leaving there they took up a residence at New Haven, where they remained six months, keeping house in Whitneyville. From there they again went to Westfield, where they boarded with Mr. Moody. About two weeks ago his wife left and came to Gloucester, and through a letter sent to his mother in Hartford, Conn., by some one from this city, he learned that she was here.

MANCHESTER'S BANKS.

Receiver of Derryfield Savings Looking Up Doubtful Paper.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 3.—Hon. David A. Taggart, whom the supreme court of the state appointed receiver for Derryfield Savings bank, said this morning: "I have not receipted for the charge consigned to my hands as yet, although I am virtually in charge of the affairs of the bank.

"I shall proceed slowly, and it is my determination to realize every dollar possible for the stockholders. To this end I have already sent Treasurer Willis to different points out of the city for the purpose of realizing on the doubtful paper held by the bank, or of obtaining additional security on the same.

"It is my purpose to delay until the last tackling the real estate investments, which are paying the bank 6 per cent interest."

This course on the part of the receiver will bring him to immediate contact with the notes of the missing treasurer and the ex-president of the bank.

BLOUNT GETS ANGRY.

Objects to Having His Name Used by Hawaiian Royalists.

HONOLULU, July 26, via San Francisco, Aug. 3.—Minister Blount's equanimity was seriously disturbed by an incident which occurred just below the steamer Australia left port, when a prearranged scheme of presenting a cane to Claus Spreckels was carried out.

It was inscribed with a list of names headed by those of Liliuokalani and James H. Blount, and at the time of presentation the Royalists took occasion to assert that Minister Blount allowed the use of his name to show its appreciation of Spreckels and the ex queen's cause.

When Minister Blount heard of this he denounced the matter in an excited manner as an outrage, and wrote the provisional government a note calling their attention to it.

Charles Creighton, who made the presentation speech, was called upon for an apology for the use of Minister Blount's name on the cane, and left his reply at the foreign office. It contained an attempted explanation of the use of Mr. Blount's name and expressed the regret of the four royalists participating that offence had been given.

The matter was considered in cabinet meeting, and the ministers refused to accept the apology. Creighton's letter was returned him, and the government will decide on further action after consulting Minister Blount.

CARLISLE AT GRAY GABLES.

Nothing Can Be Learned of the Contents of President's Message.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 3.—Hon. John G. Carlisle, secretary of the treasury, arrived here at 7:50 this morning on the boat train from Fall River. He was dressed in a light summer suit, with a white high hat, and his appearance bore out his answer to an inquiry that he is in excellent health.

He was met at the station by Mrs. Cleveland, who had her little daughter in the carriage with her, and was driven to Gray Gables. The president was at the door to meet his distinguished guest, and with a hearty hand shake, expressed his gratification at seeing the secretary at his summer home.

This is not Mr. Carlisle's first visit here. Last season, accompanied by his wife, he spent several days here.

On the subject of most vital interest to the country at this time—namely the contents of the president's message—there is no information here; not a word that can be regarded as reliable has leaked out. There are plenty of rumors as to what the president will say in the document, but not one of them is entitled to the slightest credence.

The fact is that the president has kept his own counsel. It is doubtful if a single individual, with the exception of Secretary Lamont, of all those who have seen the president since he has been here, have been taken into his confidence on this subject. Before the arrival of Secretary Carlisle, several prominent men who have called at Gray Gables have said, after coming away, that the president did not give the slightest hint as to his purposes. In fact, he flatly refused to discuss public matters of far less consequence than the contents of his message.

The president has taken the ground that it would be highly improper for him to disclose his intentions in advance of the sending of the message to congress.

As long as he remains here his secret can be easily guarded, as the very few persons who have any knowledge of the recommendations he will make to relieve the prevailing financial distress are too discreet to communicate this information to the public.

CHINA AND JAPAN

Mourn the Depreciation of Silver—Business at a Standstill.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—The Pacific Mail steamship Rio Janeiro arrived last evening from the Orient. The Hong Kong papers are filled with long editorials and local articles on the depreciation of silver, which has brought all business to a stand still.

Much excitement was caused by a cable message saying that Mexico was to suspend silver coinage. In this event China would establish a national coinage as she has a mint at Canton fully equipped for issuing dollars.

In Japan the result has been equally disastrous. The government has lost over $3,500,000 on orders on war ships alone.

Stopped Work for a Few Weeks.

DANIELSONVILLE, Ct., Aug. 3.—The woolen mills of C. D. Chase & Co., and of the Hopkins Manufacturing company at Simville have stopped work for a few weeks. E. H. Jacobs & Co. have also shut down for a few weeks. The Aspinock knitting mill, which assigned recently to George H. Sias of Boston, will shut down for an indefinite time. The cause in each instance is the depressed state of business.

Has Plenty of Work.

NORWALK, Conn., Aug. 3.—The published statement that the Norwalk Iron company will decrease its output, owing to business depression, is pronounced untrue. It is stated that the company, which makes an air compressor for the government, has all the work it can do.

Bicycle Flyers.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Interest in the great international bicycle races, to be held here next week, is intensifying, as each train arriving bring noted cracks from all parts of the country. Today Zimmerman, the Jersey wonder, and Sanger, the Milwaukee giant, arrived.

Cholera Growing Worse.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Surgeon General Wyman this morning received a cable message from Surgeon G. B. Young of the Marine Hospital service stationed at Naples stating that the condition of affairs in that city in regard to cholera is growing worse.

Child Fatally Burned.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—There was a small blaze in the tenement house No. 266 Harris street, East Boston, this morning. There was no damage to the building, but a little son of Michael J. Hankard, who resides in the basement, was so badly burned that he will die. The little fellow who is about 1 year and 7 months, was playing with the fire in the stove, and pulled out a red hot coal which set fire to his clothing.

Demented Son Disappears.

FITCHBURG, Mass., Aug. 3.—Reno T., son of T. J. Sanderson, Pearl hill, who is demented, has not been seen for a week. He wandered from his home wearing a light suit of clothes, straw hat and light shoes. He is about 30 years of age, weighs about 150 pounds, has full beard, and stands about 5 feet 10 inches.

No Friday Fast at Naples.

ROME, Aug. 3.—The Pope has directed the Catholic inhabitants of Naples not to fast on Friday as long as the cholera prevails. His holiness holds that the physical weakness engendered by fasting might cause the people to be more susceptible to the disease.

Cow Taking Jamaica Ginger.

DANVERS, Mass., Aug. 3.—A cow owned by James Dale ate yesterday 30 cucumbers, two bushels of potatoes, two dozen ears of corn and one-half bushel of butter beans. Today the cow is drinking Jamaica ginger by order of a physician.

Gates Will Be Open Every Day.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—The opinion is unanimous among lawyers that the gates of the World's fair will be opened every day in the week from now until they are finally closed next October.

Appointed by the Governor.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—Governor Russell today appointed Edward J. Flynn fire marshal. His excellency also made the following appointments: Edward P. Loring, comptroller of county accounts; Charles H. Howland of Plymouth, harbor and land commissioner; Richard Warner, member of the state board of arbitration. Howland and Loring were immediately confirmed. Lawrence S. James was nominated as assistant inspector of gas and meters.

Bringing Back Their Cash.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 3.—Savings bank depositors are gradually recovering from the feeling of alarm which has been manifested so generally during the last two or three days, and a tour of the principal banks this morning showed not only the rush had been very greatly diminished, but that a large number of depositors were bringing back the money they had already drawn out and asking the banks to take care of it for them.

Two Yellow Fever Cases.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Surgeon General Wyman of the marine hospital service yesterday received a telegram from Surgeon Hargis at Pensacola, Fla., stating that the Spanish steamer Leonora, which arrived at the quarantine station there on the 2d of July from Cuban ports, brought two sick seamen, who were admitted to the quarantine hospital. Their disease developed into yellow fever.

Railroads Reducing Expenses.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Aug. 3.—The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul has ordered another general reduction of the forces in its commercial department, offices, etc., as well as a large reduction of the operating force. The Illinois Central is to reduce the expenses of its Iowa lines, and will do it by discharging employes and reducing the train service.

Nine monster meetings at which the enormous aggregate of $220,000 will be disbursed in premium payments are to be the record for the grand circuit this season.

Breeding, conformation, speed—these three are to be desired, but the greatest of these is speed when you go out for the money these days, says Turf, Field and Farm.

The late Senator Stanford's instructions against overdriving were positive. He said stop when the colt manifested signs of exhaustion, and speed always came rapidly and without injury to the animal.

THE PROPER CAPER.

Eulalie hats, bonnets, slippers, jackets and capes are now temptingly set forth.

Satin ribbons are this season preferred to velvet for gowns of zephyr, gingham and chambray.

Lawn, batiste and dimity, linen duck and pique are the most favored gowns for daily wear at the various summer resorts.

Notwithstanding the great rage for tinted shot and shaded summer textiles white toilets are still classed among the choicest gowns of the season. They are worn alike by matron and maiden.

A flounce of lace at the foot of a grenadine, crepon or summer silk skirt is finished at the top with an inch wide ruching of the dress material taken double and gathered once through the middle.

Rough straw hats known as "nutmeg" straw, in pale violet shades with low crowns and projecting brims, are trimmed with ecru guipure lace, empire loops of bebe ribbon in mauve shades and a high cluster of Parma violets.

Very stylish costumes of pale yellow linen duck with tiny dots are made with skirts rather full and untrimmed, completed by Eton jackets turned back with revers that are finished with rows of very narrow black velvet ribbon, which appears also on the deep collar and close portions of the bishop sleeves.—New York Evening Post.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

Out of the past he strayed
In silver armor clad,

To battle as of old.

Lo! the dull world passed by,
Nor listened to his cry.

But one who sat alone,
Weary and sick at heart,
Leaned from her desolate throne
High o'er the crowded mart
And sighed: Methinks I hear
A voice stilled long ago,
The homage dear, so dear!
I nevermore shall know.

But the blind world passed by,
Nor heard the lady's sigh.
—Harriet Monroe in New Peterson.

A WAR TRAGEDY.

In the mountain regions of Tennessee more than at any other point along the border line between the hostile forces the tragic elements of the civil war were brought close to the people. Elsewhere there were places made vacant by the struggle, other regions suffered more from cannon and the devastation of marching armies, but up in the mountains civilized warfare gave place to the strife of savages, and instead of a war of states there raged battles between neighbors and relatives. A well known citizen of this city recently talking over those times related this story of the passions engendered by guerrilla warfare, which, except for the use of fictitious names, he vouches for as being absolutely true:

When the war broke out, there lived in one of the interior counties of the state a well to do farmer named Jackson. His family consisted of his wife, several sons and a daughter 18 years old. He was an intelligent, upright man, was held in high esteem by his neighbors. His children received a good education, and his daughter, Nellie, was a lovable, gentle girl and the belle of the neighborhood. She was a strong country girl, of a fearless nature, and an expert shot with both the rifle and revolver.

About this time there settled in the country village nearby a young physician from a northern state. Dr. Gordon was an alert, active young man of commanding presence. He soon won the respect of those who became his patients and was meeting with a flattering degree of success in his profession. Among those he attended was Mrs. Jackson, and he of course became acquainted with the daughter. The young people soon manifested a preference for each other's society, and in a short time friendship ripened into love. The parents readily gave their consent to the union, which was to take place as soon as the young physician's practice became lucrative enough to warrant him in marrying. Thanks to his increasing success in his calling, they felt that in a few short months they would start out in life together.

The mutterings of the great struggle which had been going on for two years or more at that time began to grow louder as the scene of conflict drew nearer to this retired part of the country. The wilder and rougher element among the people became members of a guerrilla band which established a reign of terror throughout the surrounding country. The property of those who were suspected of sympathizing with the Union was destroyed, their cattle and horses stolen, their buildings burned to the ground, and the men warned to join the southern army at once on pain of death.

Dr. Gordon was known as an outspoken Union man, and he received notice time and again that his life would be forfeited if he did not enlist in the cause of the south, but he went on his way undaunted. One day while calling upon a patient who lived some distance beyond Mr. Jackson's he was arrested by a squad of Confederate soldiers in command of a lieutenant, who at once started for the camp with their prisoner. They had to pass the Jackson place on their way and stopped for supper, which was readily served for them. Mr. Jackson called the lieutenant in command to one side and told him that the prisoner was soon to become his son-in-law and asked for his release, promising him that the doctor would take no part in the war, but would leave the country within 24 hours and would not return until the conflict had ended.

After a little hesitation the officer consented, for he was a near neighbor and knew that Mr. Jackson was to be trusted, and besides he himself was under deep obligations to the the prisoner, who had been his family physician for some time. Dr. Gordon was informed that he could have 24 hours in which to leave the state. For the sake of his promised wife, who was present and added her tearful entreaties to the requests of her father, he consented to go. The Confederates departed when they had finished their meal, and after an hour or two spent in forming his plans for departure the doctor bade his sweetheart farewell and went to his boarding place. He at once began his preparations for departure.

He had just given the last instructions to his host and was about bidding the family farewell when there came a knock at the door, and in walked three of the most noted guerrillas of the band that infested the neighborhood. They were aware of the doctor's arrest and parole on condition of his leaving the place. They appeared friendly and stated that their errand was to get some medicine from the doctor for the child of one of their number. As the unsuspecting physician turned to get his medicine case from the table three revolvers were drawn, and their reports rang out simultaneously.

Every shot took effect in the doctor's body, but no vital spot was touched. He wheeled and ran from the room, followed by another fusillade from the desperadoes. Running around the house the wounded man made his way cautiously in again at the back door, crept up stairs to his room and crawled upon his bed. Here he was found shortly after by one of the members of the family, who went for a physician, leaving the sufferer alone.

The three murderers, who had been searching for their victim, entered the room while the house was empty. One of them walked up to the side of the bed, and placing his revolver against his victim's temple blew his brains out. Word of the tragedy was sent to the Jacksons. Mr. Jackson and Nellie, who would not be left behind, came at once to the bedside of the murdered man. Throwing herself upon the form of her lifeless lover, Nellie clasped her arms around it and gave way to a torrent of tears. After the first outburst she rose, drying her eyes. Then deliberately laying her hand upon the heart of the dead man and looking upward, she said distinctly and solemnly:

"Here, over the body of my murdered love I swear not to rest until I have wreaked my revenge upon the three cowards who have taken his life. I will have their miserable lives in payment for my blighted life. I call upon all present to witness my oath. God help me to fulfill it."

The body of the physician was buried, and then Nellie at once set about carrying out her oath of vengeance. Two of the guerrillas lost their lives in a clash with the Federal troops before she had an opportunity of reaching them, much to her sorrow, for she felt that she had been cheated out of a part of her mission. The third one, and the one who had fired the last shot into the doctor's head, took good care to keep out of her way. Under cover of night he came stealing back home at last on a visit.

The next day Nellie, who was unaware of his return, rode over to his house, some two miles and a half from her home, thinking perhaps she could learn something of his whereabouts. Finding no one at home, she sat down to await the return of some member of the family. While waiting a man came to the door and inquired if the man she was waiting for was in, saying he heard he had returned the night before and he wished to see him. Upon Nellie's informing him of the absence of the family, he said he thought they must have gone over to the house of the man's sister-in-law, who lived about half a mile beyond, and that he would go over and see. After he had been gone a short time, Nellie mounted her horse and followed him, fearing that he would give warning to the object of her search. On the way she carefully inspected her revolver to make sure it was in good condition.

Arriving at the house, she found a number of people gathered there, among them the wife, father and mother of the man she sought. They nearly all rose to go as she entered. Not seeing the one she was after, she inquired if he was there and was told that he was not. Glancing toward the gate, she saw him slinking stealthily toward it, trying to escape her notice. Running out quickly, she came up within a short distance of him and called upon him to stop. He turned with an oath, but seeing a revolver pointed at him wheeled and started to run.

Nellie fired at a distance of 15 paces, the shot taking effect in the back of his head. Before he fell she fired again, and he fell upon his face and knees. Three more shots were fired at a distance of five paces, two of which struck him in the back and side. Then walking coolly up to her victim's side she watched till his struggles ceased and he lay dead. She then turned and walked deliberately toward the house, but before reaching it met the wife of her victim, who came rushing out demanding why Nellie had shot her husband. Drawing herself up proudly, Nellie answered:

"You know what that man did on Dec. 18. He brutally murdered my promised husband. I have been determined to do this deed ever since, and I never shall regret it."

They threatened her with vengeance for her act, but paying no heed to them she reloaded her revolver and mounting her horse she turned and said:

"If the cowardly band wish to add to their infamy by murdering a woman, I suppose they will do so. Death would be welcome to me now that my beloved is avenged. I shall stay at home or leave, as I please, undismayed by any threats you may make." Then she departed unmolested.—New York Tribune.

Horses With Four White Feet.

In France, and I believe in European countries, it is a most ominous sign for a rider, and especially a soldier, to want a horse with four white feet. The famous general, Lasalle, who was very superstitious upon this point, never knowingly mounted such a horse. The day of his death, after several ominous events which had happened to him that day, such as a broken mirror, a broken pipe, the picture of his wife broken at the very moment when he went to look at it for the last time, he mounted a horse not his own without glancing at the feet. The horse had the unlucky signs. Mounted upon this horse, he was struck by a shot fired at a moment when fighting had ceased by a Croat among the prisoners just taken at the battle of Wagram.

On the other hand, these four white feet are a mark and token of consideration with the orientals, who do not fail to mention the fact in the pedigrees of their horses.—L'Artiste.

Nurses' Weakness For Tea.

A paying patient in a London hospital, while bearing testimony to the kindness, attention and self denial of the nurses, remarks on the one weakness they all appear to possess. And this is intemperance—not indeed in alcoholic liquors, but in tea. In season and out of season, morning, noon and night, was the cup of tea resorted to. It seemed to be quite as much the correct thing when two nurses met for one to invite the other to come and have a cup of tea as in some circles it is for a city clerk to invite his friend to come and have a drink. This excessive tea drinking is no doubt due to the long hours and harassing work of the nurses.

Inclosing a Stamp.

When you buy a sheet of postage stamps, do not tear off the blank edge. Instead leave it attached, and when you inclose stamps in a letter turn back a part of the blank paper, moisten it and stick it to the head of your letter. This act will call down blessings upon your head from the editor who is accustomed to receive his stamps loose and fluttering, or, what is worse, irrevocably stuck to the letter.—Writer.

Proof Positive.

"Do you think that marriage is a lottery?"

"Certainly not. Are not love letters allowed in the mails?"—Truth.

AN EARTHLY PARADISE.

If We Would but Look Around, We Would Find It at Our Doors.

That this earth of ours is becoming a flat and uninteresting sort of place is a fallacy born of indigestion and a weak imagination.

There is a considerable portion of humanity who measure their happiness by what they can kill. And still for these the rogue elephant tramps down the tea plants in Ceylon and the man eating tiger figures in the Indian jungles. The South American possibilities in the hunting way are barely explored.

Frank B. Sanborn reports that Albania is a splendid hunting ground for the wild boar, a quarry more dangerous than any in this country except the grizzly bear. The African continent still swarms with game, and except in the equatorial belt is not too unhealthful to visit. In many of our states we have reached the time when the enactment of game laws is necessary, but there is sport enough yet in Idaho, Montana, the vast lake region of northern Minnesota, the Maine woods, the tarpon's and alligator's haunts in Florida, and especially the wild regions of British Columbia. The bison has vanished, but there was never much "sport" in his senseless slaughter.

Quieter minds find pleasure in the study of men and customs—past and present. In our own land there is material for the archaeologists to study for many years. Whether among the wonderful ruins of the cliff dwellers' villages or in the relics of the mound builders there is work to be done rivaling Schliemann's in the Troad, Layard's at the N[illegible] or Champollion's in Egypt. There are the living as well as the dead—the African dwarfs, the Patagonian giants, the Melanesian cannibals, the Dyaks of Borneo. There are the north African potentates who will obligingly kill the amateur photographer, and Kaffirs who will feed him fat on juicy confections of grasshoppers and snake pie.

There are those who seek neither beasts to kill nor men to study, but pleasant places to hide where winds blow soft. These there are and always will be, so sturdily does earth resist its despoilers. The most tourist infested spot in the world, Switzerland, is full of unvisited nooks, while railroads into the heart of central Asia and over the Caucasus and through Bosnia, and the Danubian states take one to fresh fields and homes. In British Columbia are glaciers finer than the Swiss, and off the coast are balmy islands where, lolling on his veranda in the air of June, one can look landward see towering peaks tipped with eternal snow.

For that matter, one doesn't have to leave New York to find places where only the green of spring is needed to make a paradise. Where are wilder and nobler crags than the Palisades, fairer ranges of low mountains than the Highlands and Shawangunks? The Golden Horn is not more beautiful than the Narrows, the Bosporus than our Hudson, on whose western bank almost opposite New York the rattlesnake still sounds his alarm, strange birds flit at dawn and mountain laurel and [illegible] grow in profusion.

Come, sirs, a truce to melancholy! The world is fair. Needs but to see it so the artist eye, the poet soul, the gift of imagination. With these one may grip firm his commutation ticket and cry to all black blasphemy of pessimism an answer stout, "The earthly paradise is here!"—New York Recorder.

Old Forms of Sport in England.

Dogfighting continues. I remember some years ago walking on the sands along a certain line of coast on a Sunday morning and passing half a dozen rings where they were conducting the dog fights with the liveliest animation and the strongest language. Baiting in all its branches I believe to be quite dead, yet 60 years ago badger baiting could be, and was, secretly enjoyed by badger and dog and onlooker in a certain back garden of a certain university town. A good, tough badger afforded very fine sport, I believe. Bear baiting in a mild form I have seen in the south of France, and bullfighting also in a mild form in the amphitheater of Arles. The only old form of sport which is really dead is the ancient Good Friday pastime of throwing at cocks. Nothing else is dead—only for a time in eclipse.—Walter Besant in London Queen.

Courting in Spain.

"Making the bear," and "feathering the turkey" still survive in provincial Spanish courtship. In old times and still in the country the lover walks up and down before the window of his sweetheart for hours daily for a year or more before matters are at all advanced. An English commercial traveler recently had a strange experience in a little town in Andalusia. Walking into a dark street at night, he was halted and told to go back. "The street is mine," cried a voice, and he went back. He had only disturbed a swain "making the bear" under his inamorata's window, but prudence was necessary under the circumstances.—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Extraordinary Story.

A story from the west is to the following effect: A chicken rancher of the state of Washington was almost ruined by the numerous snakes which resorted in his neighborhood and swallowed the eggs and young chickens as they appeared. All his plans to save his stock proved unavailing until a happy thought struck him, and he bought a quantity of porcelain nest eggs and scattered them about in the hens' nests. The snakes swallowed the imitation eggs with avidity and fatal results.—New York Evening Sun.

The Instincts of Birds.

It is certain that all creatures on the desert show remarkable intelligence, and how they acquire their information is decidedly a puzzle. Suppose, for example alfalfa seed is sown. The place may not have a bird about the day before the seed is put in, but next day a cloud of them will descend upon the spot and faithfully eat every seed. They do their work thoroughly and with praiseworthy industry. Poisoned wheat will check the entire removal of the seed, but the sparrow is never deterred by death, though there are some who affirm a few dead sparrows will have a chastening influence upon the rest. The sparrows with whom I have had personal relations despise death.—Exchange.

UITS AGAINST A CITY

OPLE WHO GO TO LAW FOR DAMAGES RECEIVED FROM FALLS.

City of New York Defends Hundreds These Personal Claims Every Year. w of Them Are Successful and Then ly For Small Sums.

he city appears in the courts at least ce a week as defendant in damage s brought by its citizens. Time was n the city paid out in such damages ny thousands annually. The corpo- counsel systematized the work of office a few years ago and placed damage suits in the care of a single tant. Since that time the special wledge in the corporation counsel's has been considerable and increas- so that the office has a minute acintance with the methods of those yers that bring damage suits against city.

he result of specializing the work of corporation counsel's office has been arked decrease in the annual judgnts against the city as the outcome of ts for damages. The whole amount of mages paid by the city in the past four rs has been less than $25,000. There ve been many hundred suits brought that time, and the aggregate of dam- claimed has reached $5,000,000. ly a small percentage of these suits successful, and in few or none do the intiffs recover the amount claimed. e city fights nearly every case that is ught and seldom compromises a suit less the justice of the plaintiff's case is the plainest character.

There are many lawyers who make it ir business to seek out persons who et with accidents and urge them to ing suits for damages. It is believed the corporation counsel's office that re has not yet developed a class of wyers who make a specialty of such its against the city, though such specialization is a tendency of the present ne. When an accident of sufficient portance to get into the newspapers curs, the victim or victims received most immediately communications mewhat in this fashion:

"We have learned of the painful and rious accident that befell you yesterday, and we write to assure you of our mpathy in your affliction and to say t we are ready to do all in our power aid you in recovering damages from e responsible parties for the wrong you ve undoubtedly suffered."

The signature is that of a lawyer or a rm of lawyers making a specialty of ccident cases. Surprisingly respectable ames are attached to such letters, and many instances the victim of the accint seeks the advice of some one of the wyers that send such communications. y way of making all things sure, some wyers have in their pay nurses and her attendants in hospitals to which rsons suffering from the results of accidents are usually taken.

In a recent case 30 or 40 agents of acident lawyers applied to see a patient t a hospital on the day following his ishap. Many hundreds of such suits re brought against the city every year, nd perhaps half of those instituted come trial. The city seldom loses on first ial, and when it does usually appeals e case. The office of the corporation ounsel is extremely skeptical as to the stice of such claims, and there is a rong suspicion that litigation of the ind is incited by lawyers who hope to rofit by it, and that many cases are rought with full knowledge on the part f claimant and counsel that the claim groundless. The counsel in many instances discontinued the cases when aimants are unable or unwilling to advance money to meet preliminary expenses. Nearly all such cases are undertaken upon contingent fees, and the hare of the lawyer is commonly half of he amount recovered.

Many cases arise every winter from injuries received by persons who fall upon icy pavements. The Brooklyn bridge was long the fruitful source of damage suits against the two cities, until the legislature passed last year a law making the bridge trustees responsible for such damages. The most conspicuous case of late years was that of Margharita Meineke, who asked $50,000 damages for injuries received on the bridge. She received a verdict for the full amount, but on appeal this verdict was reversed. One Page received a verdict of $15,000 for injuries in an accident to a bridge train. This was cut down to $10,000 on appeal, and the city finally paid him something less.

A common ground of action is accidents caused by inequality in the flagging or pavements. The climate of New York makes such inequalities unavoidable, and the city solicitor's office confidently expects a considerable number of such suits every year. Many other cases grow out of broken pavements and crosswalks. It is not unusual for suits to be instituted by persons who slip upon banana peels and the like. The effort of the counsel in such cases is to prove that the pavement at the scene of the accident was defective. The corporation counsel's office, however, usually manages to find some one who was present at the scene of the accident and is able to show that there was no defect in the pavement. The office keeps a watch upon such accidents as are likely to result in damage suits, and as soon as a suit is begun the office sends out an agent to look up the facts in the case and especially to examine the scene of the accident. The assistant who is to represent the corporation counsel at the trial usually visits the scene of the accident and makes himself thoroughly acquainted with the conditions then prevailing.—New York Sun.

Effect of a Tropical Climate.

"The laziest fellers I ever see, not barrin Thompsons there even," said the man with the ginger beard, "was down in Central America. Tell you what I see once. I wandered into a little saloon that one of the greasers kep', and what should I see but a lot of fellers settin round a table with a lot of dice on it, an all of 'em watchin them dice as if they s'pected them to turn over of theirselves, which, sure enough, they did in a minute. Then I got onto their game. You see, about every three or four minutes they is a earthquake in that country, and them lazy half breeds was lettin the earthquake do the shakin of the box for 'em. Now, what do you think of that?"—Indianapolis Journal.

Farming One Hundred Years Hence.

Should our population increase as rapidly during the coming 100 years as in the last 50 it will be not less than 400,000,000. I am, however, inclined to think it will not so increase. For one thing, we will not have the same inducements to offer to immigrants. When the price of land goes up, as it is bound to do, and its acquisition requires more money; when more capital is required to undertake farming, except on the smallest scale, and truck farms near cities bring a high rent and call for the greatest intelligence as well as industry on the part of the farmer—one of the chief inducements to foreigners seeking our shores—namely, the acquisition of farms of their own—will disappear. At the same time the liberal tendencies of all civilized countries, even under monarchial governments, will lessen the number of those who leave the older countries for the sake of greater political freedom.

Emigration to the United States will consist more and more of a few comparatively well to do persons seeking opportunities for the profitable investment of a small capital, and who, possessing some education and training in the art of self government, will readily amalgamate with our own people, or of the poorest classes well content to serve for a time in the ranks of labor, provided the rate of wages is high enough to reward their frugality with moderate savings.—Ex-Secretary Rusk in North American Review.

A Remarkable Bedstead From Bombay.

A Bombay man has constructed a bedstead priced at 10,000 rupees. It is thus described: "It has at its four corners four full sized, gaudily dressed Grecian damsels—those at the head holding banjos, while those on the right and left foot hold fans. Beneath the cot is a musical box which extends the whole length of the cot and is capable of playing 12 charming airs. The music begins the moment the least pressure has been brought to bear from the top, which is created by one sleeping or sitting, and ceases the moment the individual rises. While the music is in progress the lady banjoists at the head manipulate the strings with their fingers and move their heads, while the two Grecian damsels at the bottom fan the sleeper to sleep."

CONFIDENCE IN SAVINGS BANKS

The merchants of "the Elm city" after the New Haven savings banks had voted on Tuesday afternoon to enforce the sixty day rule for the withdrawal of deposits, assured depositors that their bank books are just as good as gold, and that they would be accepted as security for any goods that they might want to purchase.

This manifestation of confidence in the savings banks by the most prominent merchants in New Haven, must have had a quieting effect upon the nerves of small depositors whose fears have been unnecessarily aroused by the condition of the country and the dullness of business.

While the banks are enforcing rules which might at any time be made operative in the interest of prudential reasons, there is everywhere expressions of the utmost confidence in these institutions.

In Boston this week one debtor offered to pay interest upon a loan of fifty thousand dollars that was not due; and one man deposited one thousand dollars in gold. The deposits there are about equaling the withdrawals. The only panicky people at the "Hub" seem to be German Jews, and they are getting their money just as fast as they demand it. The intelligent depositor is too well acquainted with business methods and the laws which govern savings institutions to get excited.

Governor Morris, who is president of a New Haven bank, said the other day: "We do not want to deceive the people. In my judgment there is not a savings bank in Connecticut that is not in a solvent condition."

This is true, and the bank books of depositors in any of these institutions will be as good as gold in any mercantile transactions in this state. The merchants and the people know that they are conducted on safe principles and are as sound as the Bank of England.

THE COUNTRY SCHOOL.

The country school with its short terms and its long vacations is never selected as the model school of the day, and yet there is no doubt that it turns out as large a per cent. of professional men and capable citizens as the lauded graded schools of the cities. Albert Shaw in a sketch of Leland Stanford university, written for the August Review of Reviews, takes occasion to say:

"Nor are the district schools so inferior, though their quality varies much from year to year. With a good teacher in charge, the country district school is better than the city graded school, because it is more free from mere machinery and better adapted to develop the individuality of pupils. Hundreds of men and women of high standing and wide experience today are thankful for the little wooden country schoolhouse of their childhood days, in which the educational methods pursued were infinitely more scientific and valuable than those now followed in many of our city schools."

We do not agree with Mr. Shaw in his conclusion that the country school is better than the city graded school, but there is no doubt the pupils of the country schools are taught to rely more upon themselves than upon the teacher, and that the self-reliance acquired is an important factor in the success of the country school pupil in after life. A larger per cent. of the pupils acquire habits of industry in the country than in the city, and from lack of outside attractions, reading becomes a constant source of entertainment, as well as instruction, and just as long as they live this edifying habit keeps them well-informed and among the most intelligent members of the community in which they reside.

THE WORLD'S FAIR DIRECTORS FINED.

The directors of the World's fair are not having a pleasant time, although it is said that the net receipts show that the exposition will prove profitable regardless of all hitches and declared boycotts. It did not pay to open the fair on Sundays, and as a matter of economy it was decided to shut the fair on the first day of the week, after the petitions of the Sabbatarians had been disregarded, the opinions of the attorney general of the United States brushed aside, and an order issued by a United States supreme court judge to keep the fair open had been in force for some time. Now the directors find they cannot legally keep the fair closed on Sunday. They have been individually found guilty of contempt of court, and five of them have been fined $1,000 each, and two $100 and $250. Since they showed so much contempt for the people and for the authorities in Washington, they will not receive much sympathy. The directors have appealed from the decision of the court. The directors now find themselves enjoined by the court to keep open on Sundays, but forced by circumstances to close the fair on Sundays. They cannot do both, and it is probable that by November they may find out whether they are running an open or a closed fair on Sundays. The managers seem to be in a peck of trouble; but their dilemma amuses the people.

HIGH SALARIED PENSIONERS DEFENDED.

The democrats have at last attempted to defend the payment of pensions to Gen. Black and Secretary Gresham, by statements telegraphed straight from Washington. They claim as a fact, that Gen. Black received his pension direct from congress, which passed a special act soon after he came out of the war, and when both of his arms were practically useless and his whole nervous system seemed shattered for life, granting him a stipend of $100 a month. And Secretary Gresham draws his $30 a month on account of a gunshot wound which has always given him trouble, and is likely to do so for many years to come. These are satisfactory reasons for granting pensions to these high salaried democratic pensioners.

Neither of them has lost an arm, but Judge Long of Michigan, a pensioner who was suspended, has lost his hand, was shot through both thighs, having a running wound which has to be dressed several times a day, and a nurse has to be kept to attend to it, because he cannot do it himself, but his stipend of $72 a month is about $40 too much, if Hoke Smith is right in his judgment. Pensioner King, the wounded, deaf and blind veteran of Cambridge, must prove his right to a pension, and show he was not a fraud. New William McDermott, a union veteran of North Carolina, objects to being rated as an imposter, and refuses to go before an examining board because he regards the whole proceeding an insult. He says:

I am in my 78th year, nearly blind. I am the only survivor of the battle of Okechobee, fought in Florida, December 25, 1837, having served in Company K, Sixth United States infantry. In the fight the Sixth did almost the entire work, losing our colonel (Thompson.) In fact, only three were fit for duty. The women of St. Louis presented a flag to us and congress voted us thanks, a medal (which we never got) and two months' extra pay. In the late war I had three sons, now all dead—one killed in 1863 in Virginia, one dying from wounds in 1866, and the third boy in the naval hospital in 1872. Although I was somewhat advanced in years during the late war, I enlisted and did duty in the Second regiment, New Jersey cavalry, and was honorably discharged in June, 1865.

These men are among the defamed and persecuted. The department can never justify the enforcement of a rule which is making paupers of thousands of the nation's defenders. The democratic secretary, who has proudly declared "he would have been a confederate soldier had he been old enough," has a confederate's regard for the brave men who drove the men he sympathizes with and the cause they defended, "to the last ditch."

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Lost, strayed or stolen, the New York democratic club's proposed tariff act for revenue only.

The "whereases" of the silver convention's resolutions resemble a cluster of flies about the base of a cow's horn. They attract attention if they are of no particular use.

The man who tried to corner pork in July couldn't do it. They ought to have borne in mind the fact that pork usually runs down, if given half a chance, at midsummer!

Gov. Waite of Colorado was not given the freedom of Chicago, but the newspapers invited him to visit the stock-yards, where he could wade in gore clear up to his whiskers!

Two New York journals have new editors. Gen. Robert P. Porter resumes his place after completing the census of 1890 upon The Press, and Col. Charles H. Jones of St. Louis has assumed the editorship of The World.

Gov. Flower of New York thinks the McKinley tariff should be let alone. Most of the workingmen who voted for the democratic party will think so, if "the robber tariff assertions" of the Chicago platform are lived up to!

Today the president will leave Gray Gables for Washington. It is said he will confine his message entirely to the financial situation, and that he will recommend the issuing of $500,000,000 in bonds to offset the present financial stringency.

VOICE OF THE PRESS.

Holman Against Smith.

Congressman Holman is a good deal of an economist himself, but he frankly characterizes Secretary Hoke Smith's suspension of veterans' pensions as "a piece of blamed idiocy."—[Boston Journal.

Reed Expects to Enjoy It.

Ex-Speaker Reed says that he expects to enjoy this congress. There is no reason why he shouldn't. The adoption of the rules which he was denounced as a "Czar" for enforcing gives the democratic majority its only chance of disentangling itself.—[Boston Journal.

Confidence the Watchword.

Confidence is the watchword of the hour. As against the world we have nothing to fear. This August sun is ripening on the fields of four and forty states millions and millions of wealth. We can feed ourselves, and we can feed the world.

The tide has turned!
The worst is over!
Let us all pull together!—[New York Recorder.

The Strong Vaults.

It is well for depositors to remember that a savings bank scare is the opportunity of thieves and rascals. When people draw their savings from the bank, to keep them in their own possession, they can make certain that dishonest men are always on the alert to rob them. Their money is never so safe as when it is in the strong vaults of a bank.—[New York World.

An Assertion.

If the republican party had remained in power these calamities would not have happened. The Press knows whereof it speaks when it asserts that Benjamin Harrison would have maintained public credit if he had been compelled to issue five hundred of millions of dollars in bonds to do it. Grover Cleveland possessed the same power to do this. His miserable failure to perform his duty and his panic-breeding appeals to the people to "be calm" have cost the nation more than two thousand millions of dollars.—[New York Press.

For the Benefit of All.

The savings banks were never before so strong as they are now. There has been no real estate boom to give false values to property, on which loans are made, and our very conservative laws restrict the other investments to gilt edge securities. If the property they hold could be divided up into parts proportioned to the deposits, each depositor would get back what is worth a great deal more than his deposit. But if there comes a sudden loud call for cash then the assets must be sacrificed, and, if the bank loses, the depositors lose, for they are the banks. Hence the requirement by local banks Wednesday of due notice before withdrawing money was both wise and fair.

Our savings banks are mutual. Nobody but the depositors has any interest in them. They are not money-making agencies for outsiders, but merely represent the combined savings of industrious and thrifty people. If the managers let a part of these people through nervousness draw out all the ready cash and force the sale at heavy loss of choice assets, they would be injuring all the rest of the depositors. The action taken is to protect all and in the end every one of them will be the gainer by it.

This racket is not going to last forever. Just remember that.—[Hartford Courant.

The North American Review for August contains, as leading features, papers on the financial situation by the comptroller of the currency and by the governor of Oregon; "Anglo-Saxon Unity," a response to Mr. Carnegie, by Prof. Goldwin Smith; "The Coming Extra Session of Congress," by Vest, democrat, and Dolph, republican. Other timely articles are: "The Lesson of the Victoria Disaster," "How Cholera can be Stamped Out," "The American Hotel of Today," "The Issue of the German Elections," and the "Possibilities of Prayer." Published at 3 East Fourteenth street, New York.

An Undisputed Test of Merit.

A medicine that has been a household remedy for over fifty years and used in that time by more than 150,000,000 persons must have great merit. Such a medicine is found in Brandreth's Pills. This fact demonstrates the value of these pills better than any statement of the proprietors. It will be observed that the dose required to cure is small. One or two pills taken every night for ten or twenty days will cure dyspepsia, costiveness, rheumatism, liver complaint, biliousness, or any disease arising from an impure state of the blood.

Sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

Constipation is positively cured by Carter's Little Liver Pills. Not by purging and weakening the bowels, but by regulating and strengthening them. This is done by improving the digestion and stimulating the liver to proper secretion of bile, when the bowels will perform their customary functions in an easy and natural manner. Purgative pills must be avoided. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Price 25 cents.

A Retired Business Woman

A Page From Her History.

The important experiences of others are interesting. The following is no exception: "I had been troubled with heart disease 25 years, much of that time very seriously. For five years I was treated by one physician continuously. I was in business, but obliged to retire on account of my health. A physician told my friends that I could not live a month. My feet and limbs were badly swollen, and I was indeed in a serious condition when a gentleman directed my attention to Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and said that his sister, who had been afflicted with heart disease, had been cured by the remedy, and was again a strong healthy woman. I purchased a bottle of the Heart Cure, and in less than an hour after taking the first dose I could feel a decided improvement in the circulation of my blood. When I had taken three doses I could move my ankles, something I had not done for months, and my limbs had been swollen so long that they seemed almost petrified. Before I had taken one bottle of the New Heart Cure the swelling had all gone down, and I was so much better that I did my own work. On my recommendation six others are taking this valuable remedy."—Mrs. Morgan, 589 W. Harrison St., Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, a discovery of an eminent specialist in heart disease, is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from all opiates or dangerous drugs.

WIND WAS TOO HIGH.

Navahoe Disabled and Withdrawn from the Race.

IS NOT A ROUGH WEATHER BOAT.

American Yacht Nearly Capsized Off the Isle of Wight.

COWES, Eng., Aug. 3.—There was plenty of wind today for the race here for the town prize. In fact, there was a trifle too much wind, and reefs had to be tied down on all the boats. The starters were the Valkyrie, Satanita, Calluna and the American yacht Navahoe.

The starting gun was fired at 10 o'clock, and all the boats were close to the line when the signal was given. Cranfield berthed the Valkyrie in grand style and sent her away in the lead, but young Bert had the Navahoe close behind him as they got away.

The Valkyrie was evidently prepared for a good stiff breeze, for she had her topmast housed, while all the others were standing. The Satanita was the third over the line, and the Fife boat Calluna was last.

The wind did not seem at all to the Navahoe's liking, and soon after she crossed the line her mainsail came down, some of the rigging aloft, probably the throat halliard block carrying away. She was brought into the wind, and after the sail had slatted awhile in the strong breeze the crew succeeded in repairing the break and getting it up again.

She Gave Up the Contest

and under double reefs she ran back to Southampton.

The Calluna lost her gaff and had to withdraw also from the race. This left only the Satanita and Valkyrie to battle it out and much of the interest in the race was lost. The Satanita could not have had a better day and the breeze was just to her liking. With her big sail spread, and extra length in the strong breeze, she was more than a match for the Valkyrie, which is essentially a light weather boat.

From the very start the Soper boat walked away from the Valkyrie, and at 11:47 o'clock she lead the Dunraven boat by 5m. 6s. At the end of the first round she still held her lead. The boats then laid their course for Cowes roads, and even in the close stretch the Satanita Kept on Increasing Her Lead.

She had opened up on the Valkyrie steadily, and in Cowes roads was 5 minutes and 60 seconds ahead of her.

The race was now hopelessly lost to the Valkyrie, and the big Satanita, standing up under the strong reefing breeze, fairly tore through the water. She dropped the Valkyrie, as if she were anchored, and crossed the finish line a winner by eight minutes.

The accident to the Navahoe is to be regretted, as the conditions were just what English yachtsmen would have liked to have seen the American boat racing under.

They believe her to be fast in light and moderate breezes, but do not think that she can beat either the Britannia or Satanita in strong breezes, such as existed today.

The race proved that the Satanita is very fast in strong breezes, and it is doubtful if her equal can be found on this side.

REDUCING THE FORCE.

Union Pacific Railroad Summarily Discharges Clerks and Others.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 3.—Oliver W. Mink vice-president and auditor of the Union Pacific system, arrived in the city yesterday morning, and, in the absence of President Clark, called a meeting of all the heads of departments at the Union Pacific headquarters.

He explained that, while reductions in the working force of the company had been made, it was not sufficient to guarantee expenses during the present hard times. He gave instructions accordingly, and 100 clerks and other subordinates were immediately dismissed.

Mr. Mink said that the Union Pacific was in the same condition with all the western roads, and, while he did not anticipate the appointment of a receiver, traffic was very dull at present.

REPEAL WILL BE HARMFUL.

Ex-Senator Thurman's Views on the Present Financial Situation.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The World has a special from Columbus, O., giving an interview with ex-Senator Allen G. Thurman on the financial stringency and its remedy.

Mr. Thurman said: "It is ridiculous to say that this [illegible] is caused by the government policy. Every nation of Europe and Asia is suffering from the same causes. I think the extra session of congress that begins next week will last about six or eight weeks, and I do not see how congress is to help the situation at all."

"Do you think congress will repeal the Sherman silver purchase act?"

"It will not be without a hard fight, but I am inclined to believe that it will be ultimately repealed. It is my opinion, however, that such legislation would be harmful under the present conditions, rather than beneficial. I cannot see how a lack of money can be immediately relieved by cutting out a part of that which we already have. People are not hoarding any particular kind of money now. They are hoarding all kinds of it. There is no gold in daily circulation here now. I have not received any in exchange for many months. They won't ask gold to take the place of silver if they do strike silver from coinage."

"Don't you think it would be dangerous policy for the government to go on coining silver dollars that are really worth, as compared with the gold dollar, not much more than 50 cents?"

"I do not see it so. I know that is the gold bug cry, but I cannot believe that the danger of possible loss from this source seems threatening enough to the average business man to cause him to fear to accept the silver dollar. I expect to see the business world slowly emerge from its financial trouble. Perhaps no one thing will bring better times, as no one thing has produced the present unfortunate condition. No doubt an enormous stretching of credits—a thing that is likely to happen to a prosperous people—has had a great deal to do with starting this scare. It will pass, and the damage will not be great. There is just as much money in the country as ever, or practically so. It has simply gone into hiding. As soon as the uneasy feeling can be allayed the financial stringency will be at an end, for the money will come out again. After the financial crises through which this country has passed in my recollection it has taken usually three or four years to completely restore confidence. The present panic differs from those I have experienced in that it extends over the world. I hope it will more quickly subside. I fear, however, that the reverse will be true."

READY FOR EXTRA SESSION.

Senate Chamber and Representatives Hall Thoroughly Renovated.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—So far as the chamber of the senate and the house of representatives are concerned, congress could meet tomorrow.

In the senate, under the orders of the new sergeant-at-arms, Colonel Bright, the floor has been covered with matting, and has the appearance of a delightfully cool and inviting chamber. The ventilation has been greatly improved, and all through the building new pipes have been run that connect with the fans in the basement and force air through the chamber to the roof [illegible].

In the house the same class of work has been carried on, and the plumbing has been thoroughly overhauled and changed.

The next house will consist of 356 members, an increase of 25 over the Fifty-second congress. In order to accommodate these, 25 new seats have been provided, and at the same time the wants of the future have been anticipated by providing eight additional seats.

ATTACKED WHILE BERRYING.

Twelve Year Old Daughter of David Brough Severely Handled.

WHITMAN, Mass., Aug. 3.—Ella, the 12-year-old daughter of David Brough, was attacked while berrying near High street yesterday afternoon, by a man who suddenly came out of the woods.

He tried to choke and gag her, but her screams and those of another girl who was with her frightened him away. The child's face and neck were badly bruised by the severe handling she received, and her clothing was much torn.

The police got a good description of the man from the girls, and say they are close to his track.

Clergymen Out of Business.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—A Topeka (Kan.) special says that on account of the financial stringency the members of the seven religious denominations at Ashland have agreed to sit in one church, listen to one minister and drop their mites into one box. This will add six clergymen to the great army of the unemployed. Other drought stricken communities will adopt the same plan.

Female Swindler.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 3.—The summer residents at Clifton Heights were imposed upon yesterday by a woman who claimed that she had lost her husband and wanted to collect enough money to get to her home in the west. She had recommendations from Mrs. John L. Egbert of Marblehead. This was forged. She collected [illegible].

Postoffice Robbed.

PLYMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 3.—This town was visited by safe robbers early this morning. The postoffice was entered by breaking a glass panel of the door. The safe was drilled in four places and blown open. About $600 was obtained, $75 in cash and the remainder in stamps, money orders and registered mail.

Confederate Veterans' Reunion.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 3.—General J. B. Gordon has issued an order fixing the date for holding the United Confederate Veteran reunion at Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 2 and 3, and the unveiling of the Confederate monument at Chicago on Oct. 7.

TREATY OF PEACE.

Nicaraguans Enjoy General Amnesty and Junta Government.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The Herald's special from Nicaragua says that under the new treaty of peace signed by Leon and Granada, the Leon party will assume complete control of the government of Nicaragua, and the term of general Zavala, who was elected provisional president by the Granada party after Machado had been shut up in Leon, has come to a close.

The treaty provides that the junta government organized by the Leon party shall be recognized as the national government.

By the terms of the treaty a general amnesty has been declared. All the expenses of the war contracted by each side are to be paid by the successful government.

None of the troops have as yet been disbanded. Each army still occupies the position held when the negotiations for a treaty of peace was begun.

The situation is therefore still serious, and no one would be much surprised if hostilities should be reopened.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 3.—The managers of the Waltham Emery Wheel company have decided to close their factory three days a week until further notice. The company employs about 60 men.

Miss Jeannette Gilder is said to be the author of the remark that New York men divide all women into two classes, fools and rogues, and that they prefer the rogues, although they marry the fools.

To Mrs. Lucy Hall Fake of Chicago, who was for awhile secretary to George M. Pullman, is largely due the credit for the admirable quality of the library at Pullman, Ills. She made an exhaustive study of public libraries and then designed and equipped the Pullman building, which now holds the library of her selection.

COMPROMISE MEASURE OPPOSED

Silver Declared Not to Be Wholly t

Blame for Present Conditions.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The Republica senators and representatives who have ar rived here talk very freely on the cours they should pursue on the financial ques tion. They do not believe that the caus of the present disturbed condition of th finances and trade of the country is wholl attributable to the Sherman act. They propose, how ever, to await developments and ascerta what the Democratic majority in bot houses of congress and the executive i tend to do. THE STOCK MARKET.

Dealings In Leading Securities In Boston and New York.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—In the outside market call money is quoted at 8 to 10 per cent, and time money is nominally 6 per cent.

The stock market opened this morning somewhat irregular. So sharp was the rally of yesterday that this was not unexpected, especially in view of the reduced short interest. London came somewhat stronger for all except Lake Shore and St. Paul, but showed a disposition to sell rather than buy. The same tendency to realize profits was manifest here, and New Yorkers to cover their transactions did considerable selling this morning through the Boston exchange.

But the general situation is unchanged, the factors which started the rally being as operative today as yesterday. The increasing engagements for gold, the arrangements for swelling the volume of bank notes in circulation and the freer movement of provisions and grain to the seaboard for export are the important ones. Total gold engagements for this week will foot up to near $[illegible].

At the same time the situation is not such for one to build too lofty castles on the present rally in stocks. When the city of Boston can get only a single bid on a 4 per cent. loan it shows conclusively the stress of wealthy men and usual investors. Nothing is safer or nothing snapped at quicker in ordinary times, and it would be no fear of shrinkage that held investors.

At the opening the tendency was still upward, but reaction more or less generally followed. Atchison started off ⅛ stronger at 15⅛ but slid to 14⅝, rallying again to 15. Chicago, Burlington and Quincy was ¼ up at 78⅛, while Mexican Central opening ¼ up at 6, advanced ⅛ to 6⅛. West End Railway opened ¼ better at 50¼ and New England ½ better at 20¾, though subsequently losing the fraction. The same was true of Union Pacific, though the fraction was ⅜ instead of ½. Sugar and General Electric, however, were the most active stocks the orders from New York to sell swelling the volume of transactions here. Sugar common opened ¾ down at 72, weakened to 71¼, rallied to 72¼ and slid again to 72. The preferred opened ¼ up at 72¼, rose to 73¼ and declined to 74. General Electric opened ½ up at 42, advanced irregularly to 43¼, and then weakened to 40¼.

The foundation of the new Norwich Savings society building on the "bank corner" will be entirely in place, it is expected, in a week. "Snap Shots," among its social notes says: "The engagement has been announced of Miss Elizabeth Kenyon Wilcox of Norwich Town to Mr. Frank [illegible] Haley, a former teacher in the academy. Miss Wilcox was a member of the class of '88 N. F. A., a student at Abbott Academy and Smith college, and by her marriage Norwich will lose one of its brightest and most popular young ladies."

Impartial observers remark on the seeming lameness of the New London newspapers in crediting the enamelling of Norwich bicycles to a desire to distinguish them from wheels owned at the mouth of the Thames. There is a delicious grace, and skill and dash about Rose of New England riders which transcends the best efforts of their New London brethren.

"Our Country Church," a weekly paper published in Buckland, Mass., and devoted to the interests of country churches in general, has been distributed among representative church workers in Norwich. It is a well-edited, sensible and attractive sheet, as and such must readily commend itself to that class for which it is designed.

J. H. Vail informs the Connecticut press from Chicago that letters intended for the Connecticut state building should not be addressed to the Connecticut house, Chicago. There is a hotel somewhere in Chicago by the latter name, and letters addressed to its care have been held there a full month. He Has Walked There Before.

The 80-year-old pedestrian, Ray Earl, who is walking from New London to Chicago, says he walked the distance about thirty years ago in forty-two days, and used to think nothing of pedestrianizing from Richmond, Va., to New London whenever he felt like it. Mr. Earl's diet while on the road consists of crackers and cheese, and he does most of his walking before and after the heat of the day.

Windham County State Attorneyship.

The contest for the state's attorneyship of Windham county warms up perceptibly as the expected time for the meeting of judges to make the selection draws near. Candidates on an active hunt for the place are bobbing up numerously and there are plenty more who "would serve if chosen." It seems to be recognized that the choice will undoubtedly be a democrat and while several eastern Windham lawyers have their lines out it seems probable that the appointment will come to Willimantic.

Prevalence of the Peach Yellows.

Deputy Commissioner Ezra C. May of Windham county finds the peach yellows very prevalent in Windham county. Acting under "the peach yellow law," on Thursday, July 27, he gave the owner of one peach orchard in Attawaugan orders to destroy 116 of his 126 trees, and another with 200 trees to destroy all but 15. The owners of these peach orchards have ten days allowed them in which to comply with the order or to appeal to the state board of agriculture if they believe their trees are not diseased.

Frank Lawrence's Life Experience.

Frank Lawrence, who is to speak at the Y. M. C. A. mass meeting for men on the steamboat wharf next Sunday, is the superintendent of the Wilson Memorial Mission, 454 West Forty-second street, near Tenth avenue, New York city. Mr. Lawrence was at one time a prosperous man and a member of the New York stock exchange. He became a helpless drunkard, lost his home and business and finally lived entirely in the streets and low groggeries of the fourth and sixth wards. On the night of October 6, 1885, being ragged, cold and wet to the skin, he went to the old Jerry McAuley mission to get warm, and has been an indefatigable worker for the cause since.

THE FATAL GRADE CROSSING.

Mrs. S. R. Hatch, Formerly of This City, Killed at Niagara Falls.

While Prof. Stephen R. Hatch of the New Bedford public schools, Mrs. Hatch, and her two daughters, Misses Bessie and [illegible] Mabbitt, were crossing the New York Central railroad Main street crossing at Niagara Falls yesterday afternoon, they were struck by a passenger train. The carriage was completely wrecked and Mrs. Hatch was almost instantly killed and the others were painfully bruised and cut. The crossing where the accident occurred is protected by guards, but the man in charge was unable to see the approaching train on account of another which had just passed going in the opposite direction. The party were returning from the World's fair.

Mrs. Hatch was a former highly esteemed resident of this city, living on lower Washington street. She was niece of Mrs. Lorenzo Blackstone. Mr. F. S. Camp left for Niagara Falls last night, immediately on receipt of the sad news. Besides those accompanying her, two daughters survive her, Miss Millie Mabbitt and Mrs. Walter Nichols of New Haven.

AN EXCURSION STEAMER SINKS.

Strikes a Sunken Pier on Lake George Thursday Night

NINE DROWNED.

Miss Lizzie Clark of Bridgeport, Conn., Among the Lost.

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., Aug. 4.—The steam yacht Rachel sunk last night with twenty-nine summer guests on board. Such was the startling news that went ringing through Lake George early this morning, and to it was added the information that nine had been drowned and twenty saved.

The little steamer Rachel was chartered by a party of guests of the Fourteen Mile Island hotel to convey them to the Hundred Island house, where a dance was in progress. Mr. Phillips, manager of the Pearl Point hotel, in whose charge the Rachel was, allowed Pilot Barber to go home in the afternoon, as he was ill. Claude Granger was ordered in charge of the boat by Mr. Phillips. He is not an experienced pilot, although familiar with that part of the lake.

The boat left Fourteen Mile Island at about nine o'clock in the evening. The night was very dark and piloting was unsafe except when aided by the trained eye of a well informed boatman. Granger got too far out of the channel when going past the old piers that supported the original dock south of the One Hundred Island house, struck the pier, and stove a large hole in the bottom of the boat. The Rachel sank in a few seconds. The passengers scarcely knew what had happened before the boat filled with water. The ladies on board were laughing and singing. Instantly the scene changed.

The boat sank so rapidly that no time was given to the ill-fated pleasure seekers to utter a prayer. Some of the passengers were caught under the shade deck and died quickly.

Nine persons were drowned, as follows: Miss Hattie L. Hall, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Miss Edith Harding, Hoboken, N. J.; Miss Bertha Benedict, Montclair, N. J.; Miss Henrietta M. Barton, Jersey City; Mrs. J. H. Mitchell, Burlington, Vt.; Frank O. Mitchell, 10 years old, son of Mrs. Mitchell; Miss Lizzie Cooley, Burlington, Vt.; Miss Clara Black, Burlington, Vt.; Miss Lizzie Clark, Bridgeport, Conn.

Young Mr. Benedict, son of the wealthy New York jeweler, who was on the boat, is an expert swimmer. He tried to save his sister and dived for her once.

Frank Mitchell lost his life trying to save his mother, who was also drowned.

The bodies of nine who perished were recovered. Among those who were rescued were J. H. Mitchell, F. H. Whitcomb, Samuel A. Manson and William Manson, all of Burlington, Vt.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 4.—Thomas Clark of 41 William street, this city, received a telegram this afternoon that his sister Lizzie, aged 19 years, was one of the victims of the Lake George disaster today. She had been visiting in Burlington during the past month. Her parents live in Waterbury. Mr. Clark left for Lake George tonight.

Currency Circulation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Since August 1, the comptroller of the currency has ordered currency printed for issue of the security of United States bonds for national bank circulation to the amount of $5,628,000, of which $1,468,000 was ordered today. The actual amount issued of bonds since the first of the month has been $3,164,160, of which $711,970 was issued today. The bonds deposited to secure circulation since August 1 amount to $3,068,500, of which $1,629,000 were deposited today.

Will Receive Their Wages in Checks.

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 4.—Two hundred and fifty employes of the Abbott Downing company will receive their usual wages tomorrow in checks. The company has on deposit in banks in this city, Boston and New York, funds sufficient to meet the pay roll and have a large surplus remaining, but neither of the banks can supply the requisite amount in currency or coin and payment by checks is the only alternative.

Failure of a Small Texas Bank.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Aug. 4.—The Texas National bank failed to open its doors this morning and is now in the hands of the United States bank examiner. It is the smallest bank in the city. Capital stock, $100,000. The closing caused no excitement and no runs on other banks.

Pilgrim Soon to Leave the Dry Dock.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—The Pilgrim is about ready to come out of the navy yard dry dock at Charlestown, but will be kept there as long as the limit of the New York rules allow. She will come out at 6 o'clock Sunday night and will at once be taken in tow for Vineyard Haven. From that point she will proceed under sail to Newport, and then await the arrival of the New York squadron. She should be in Newport Monday night.

Operatives Will Lose $30,000 Wages.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 4.—It was officially given out that the Pacific mills will close August 11 and will reopen August 28. The mill officials say that the reason is the continued stringency of the market. The closing is a severe blow to Lawrence as it was expected that the mills would run on. Tonight's action causes a great deal of surprise. The mill has 6,000 operatives who will lose wages amounting to $30,000 during their idleness.

Survivors of Chelsea Yacht Club Disaster.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 4.—The fortunate survivors of the disaster at the Chelsea Yacht club are nearly all doing "as well as could be expected" today. Three, however, and perhaps four, are in a serious condition, and time alone can develop the full extent of the injuries which they have sustained.

Disastrous Fire at Princeton, Mass.

PRINCETON, Mass., Aug. 4.—Fire this morning destroyed the First National bank building, an hotel and six business houses. Loss, $50,000; insurance only partial.

The Southington Cemetery Trouble—Ryan Fined.

SOUTHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The trial of Patrick Ryan for assault on John Mason, the sexton of St. Thomas cemetery, was held today. Ryan was fined $4 and costs. He appealed and his father went bonds for his appearance at the September term of the superior court in Hartford. The sentence caused some surprise among the spectators, many of whom regard the evidence presented as of a nature to warrant an acquittal.

New Haven Murderer Bound Over.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 4.—Louis LeFreniere, the French-Canadian charged with murder in the second degree for having killed his wife, was brought before Judge Cable in the city court this morning. Several witnesses were examined and the nature of their testimony was such in the opinion of the court and the prosecuting attorney as to show deliberate murder, and LeFreniere was bound over to the October term of the superior court without bail. Two weeks ago Tuesday the murdered woman was found dead on the floor of her apartments, and it was first thought that she had died from natural causes. Later the police were informed that LeFreniere was heard beating his wife, and later she was heard to fall to the floor, after which all was very quiet until morning. The hearing today occupied about three hours, and but a small part of the state's testimony was heard.

Knife Factory Destroyed by Fire at West Winsted.

WEST WINSTED, Conn., Aug. 4.—The main factory of the Empire Knife company was totally destroyed by fire at 7 o'clock tonight. The building was a hundred feet long, three stories high and occupied by machinery. The knife department has been shut down since July 1, laying off sixty men. The corkscrew department was running on full time with a dozen hands. A stock of knives were taken out and several thousand dollars worth of dies and tools that were stored in the fireproof vaults were also saved. Loss, $10,000; insurance, $6,500. The fire started in the grinding room. The concern is an incorporated stock company, owned principally by the J. A. Alvord estate.

Funeral of the Chelsea Accident Victims.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—The funerals of four of the victims of the Chelsea accident will be held on Sunday. The club was in ignorance to-night of the intentions of the coroner with regard to calling a hearing and clearing away the wreckage. Some comment has been heard on the failure of the club to act at once, but the directors explain that they did not deem this advisable until they had been officially informed.

Excitement over the accident has subsided and has given place to indignation at the criminal carelessness of the persons responsible for the faulty carpenter work. Hussey Brothers of Lynn were the contractors and Ricker Brothers of Boston the architects. Architects Ricker is reported tonight as saying that the club house was not built in accordance with the plans done by him. If it had been the accident would not have happened.

A Share of the Incoming Gold to Go to Savings Banks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—It is learned that a large share of the gold now coming to this country—probably $6,000,000 or $7,000,000—will find its way directly into the savings banks. The latter have sold bonds to dealers, who paid more than the national banks offered. The dealers in turn have sold the bonds at an advance to country banks who will issue circulating notes against them. Dealers who have agreed to pay for the bonds in gold, have bought at a small premium much of the yellow metal now afloat in order to fulfill the contract. It is also believed that some of the savings banks, hesitating to part with their bonds at present prices have borrowed gold in London.

Prepared to Furnish all the Small Currency Wanted.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Treasury officials state that the treasury is prepared to supply all the small currency wanted, and the lack of such currency in certain sections of the country is accounted for by the supposition, rather than that all money is scarce, that the banks have failed to procure of the treasury the small notes needed for home consumption. At no time in recent years has so much small money been sent to New York and the lack of small notes there cannot be accounted for here except on the theory that much of it is being hoarded by those who receive it. It is stated at the treasury that there is no likelihood of the resumption of the issue of gold issuance until the free gold stands from $7,500,000 to $5,000,000 above the reserve. The reserve is now $750,000.

Property Attached for Back Taxes.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 4.—William Hall, a butcher on Court street, has had two houses, [illegible] and other property attached by the town for taxes amounting to $1,760. The tax levy dates back to 1884.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 4.—Gus. Schneider, president of the Eastern Tinware Co., Portland, says that the factory will start on full time next Monday.

THREE FAVORITES WIN AT BUFFALO.

HAMLIN'S NIGHTINGALE

Proves a Great Disappointment to Her Many Admirers.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Three favorites won at the Buffalo track today. Ontonian captured the 2.20 pacing stake in straight heats, and Margaret was similarly fortunate in the 2.27 stake for three-year-old trotters.

Walter E. won the great for-all trot, but it required considerable manoeuvering and seven heats to decide the race. Bob Stewart owns Walter E., and John Stewart, his brother, owns Ryland T., and the plan was evidently to have Walter E. win the race and Ryland T. take second money. It was not accomplished until after a protracted struggle.

It was almost a certainty that Ryland T could not land the race and several times it looked as though Walter E was done for. But the latter has got staying powers. As the heats progressed the miles became slower, and one by one the great free-for-allers fell out. When the bell sounded for the seventh heat, Walter E, Ryland T, and Martha Wilkes were the only ones that remained. Walter landed the heat and the race after one of the hardest fought struggles ever seen on a race track.

Hamlin's Nightingale proved a severe disappointment to those who stuck to her until she was ruled out after the fifth heat for not showing in front once during the five. The other Nightingale captured the first heat and reduced her mark from 2 15¼ to 2 10¼, at no time after that was she considered a probable factor in the race.

Much enthusiasm was manifested by the 8,000 spectators. The weather was perfection and the track in the best condition.

Russian Fleet Leaves Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 4.—The Russian fleet sailed from here at 3 30 o'clock this afternoon for New York at which place stores and coal will be taken on board. On Tuesday the Nicholas I, Admiral Nazimoff and the Rynda will sail for Europe, leaving the Dmitri Donskoi in New York. The future movements are unknown. The admiral will transfer his flag to the Nicholas I. There was no demonstration of any sort. Several catboats and yachts went out to see them off. During the week's stay of the ships here Russia has risen greatly in the estimation of Newporters, both officers and men being a gentlemanly lot of men and their return is hoped for.

Coal-Laden Steamer Lost—Crew Rescued.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug 4.—The steamer Straits of Gibraltar from Glasgow for Montreal, coal laden, ran ashore in the straits of Belle Isle last Monday. She afterwards got off and headed for St. Johns, N. F., but after proceeding for eleven hours she sank. The crew took to the boats and were picked up by the steam yacht Fiona, in which Gov. O'Brien of New Foundland was cruising, and landed on the New Foundland coast. The crew are now at Tilt Cove and the captain at St. Johns. The lost vessel was in the regular trade between Montreal and Glasgow, and left Montreal on July 21. She was valued at $110,000, and this is covered by insurance in English companies. Her owners are McLean & Co.

Counterfeit $5 Bills in Circulation.

The Britannia Still in Dry Dock.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Prince of Wales' cutter Britannia, which sprung her mast yesterday, is still at the dry dock in Southampton awaiting a new mast. It is thought that the new spar will be shipped in time to enable her to take part in the race tomorrow. Emperor William asked G. L. Watson, the designer of the Valkyrie and Britannia, whether he would undertake to build a yacht faster than any now afloat. What Mr. Watson replied is not stated. There is a rumor current that a match is being arranged between the Valkyrie and Navahoe.

Bridging Dangerous Crossings.

LYME, Conn., Aug. 4.—The Consolidated Railroad company are making preparations to bridge two dangerous crossings in this town, on which work will be begun next week. The Slate crossing, which is just east of Black Hall, will be bridged, and the other crossing, near South Lyme, is to be tunneled. The Saybrook crossing, it is thought, will be completed by this time, and there will, therefore, be no more delay between New Haven and New London than at present.

The Elopement Fever Strikes the Colored Contingent.

NORWALK, Conn., Aug. 4.—The elopement fever which has for some time been prevalent in Norwalk among the "pale faces," has finally attacked the colored contingent. A man named Williams, black as ebony, and married, is reported as having eloped with a giddy young woman four shades lighter than himself. His wife does not seem to take the matter very much at heart, and is reported as saying: "I'se allwa's had a spicion of dat coon, and he's had a spicion of me. Let him go; the only thing I's afraid on is dat he'll come back agin."

No Disappointment in the Jubilee.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Commodore Smith, chairman of the cup committee of the New York yacht club, said today: "It is all fiction and made out of whole cloth, and poor material at that, to talk about the Jubilee and disappointing work. It is probably the idea of the Paines to give the Jubilee a thorough test, and they haven't the opportunities to do that as yet, before they determine upon filing the entry for the trial races. We should have had the Jubilee and the entry by August 1, but we do not propose to stick like adamant to that stipulation. We in fact would receive the Jubilee and entry up to the date almost of the trials."

Yachtsmen Amazed.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The performance of the Navahoe today was a source of amazement to yachtsmen and to other spectators who saw how she acted under the heavy winds. At times her canvas seemed to be lying almost flat on the water, yet she righted herself with ease. Her terrific heeling is a subject of much conversation in yachting circles.

Incendiary Fire at Little Haddam.

MOODUS, Conn., Aug 4.—The large barn on the William E. Nichols place at Little Haddam, about two miles south of here, was totally destroyed by fire early this morning. The barn contained a large amount of hay, also carriages, wagons, farming tools, etc., all of which were burned. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin.

Hauled Off for Repairs.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Schooner Lizzie Griffin, that ran ashore off Norman's Woe, had a hole stove in her bow and partially filled with water, and had to be hauled off and out on railway for repairs. She is insured in the Boston Marine for $10,000.

Badly Injured by a Fall.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 4.—Andrew Griffin of New Britain, a joiner employed on a house being built on Spring street, fell from the building today, sixteen feet, and was badly injured. He received a bad scalp wound and was also injured internally.

Work Plenty but Collections Slow.

BARRE, Vt., Aug.—C. E. Tayntor & Co., the largest dealers here, discharged thirty granite cutters last night, and it is reported that another large firm is about to discharge thirty cutters. Dealers say enough work can be had, but collections are poor.

Fell Twenty-five Feet.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 4.—Andrew Griffin, aged 60, while at work this morning on a building on Spring street, was overcome by the heat and fell a distance of twenty-five feet, receiving serious injuries to his head and spine.

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Bradstreets today reports 459 failures in the United States against 155 in the corresponding week a year ago, and 42 failures in Canada against 16 the same week last year.

Ocean Steamers.

NEW COUNTY TREASURER.

Attorney Thayer Succeeds Jabez S. Lathrop—A Preston School Problem.

The school committee of the First district, Preston, met the three county commissioners in the court house Friday morning, and in behalf of a majority of the taxpayers of the district urged that the inmates of the county home be provided with a separate and distinct place of instruction. An average of two dozen children from the home attend the district school, entailing an expense which the residents of that section do not think they should bear.

The question will be decided by the board of management of the county home, which is composed of the commissioners, and a member each of the state board of health and of charities.

At the conclusion of the discussion the board appointed Attorney Charles F. Thayer to succeed Mr. Jabez S. Lathrop as county treasurer. The new official's term of service begins September 1.

PENSION FRAUDS, BEWARE!

A Special Detective Looking Deep Into the Records of Beneficiaries.

A pension detective is visiting the various cities and towns in the state, and may soon reach here. Last week he was in Ansonia and Birmingham. The detective has been in that vicinity for the past few days, being in the employ of the government, running down so called pension frauds. This government detective or agent is a clever personage, a man well advanced in years, and himself a veteran of the late war and a member of the Grand Army. He is making inquiries in relation to several pensioners who are high up on the government lists, some claiming total and others partial disability from injuries received or illness contracted while fighting for their county.

The detective ascertains the wealth, position and standing of the pensioners whom he is slyly hounding, and he is now pretty well acquainted with the pensioners of a place, whether it be the old soldier himself, the widow or her children, and as familiar as they are to him to them he is an unknown personage. This is not his first trip to this state. He has been here of several occasions within the past six weeks, and his "work" may be heard from in a very short time.

A STUDENT'S BODY FOUND

In Long Island Sound—Supposed Case of Suicide.

MISSING SINCE JULY 26

Mind Was Affected by Too Close Attention to Studies.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 4.—The body found floating off Stratford light last night by Captain Lewis of the New York tug Richard Schambel, was today identified as that of C. D. Fuller, a Princeton college student. He was the son of C. D. Fuller, of Fuller Brothers & Co., manufacturers of nails at 150 Greenwich street, New York city. He left New Haven, July 26, on a New Haven line steamer for New York. It is thought that in a fit of temporary aberration he threw himself from the steamer.

Student Fuller was 21 years of age, and very industrious. His health became impaired while he was at college and it is said his mind was slightly affected. Mr. Tompkins, his father's partner, identified the remains and notified Mr. Fuller, who arrived here this afternoon. Mr. Fuller believes that his son premeditated suicide and that he picked up the five-pound iron bolt which was strapped about his waist, in New Haven. He said that he had his son leave college because his health had become impaired.

Mr. Fuller resides in Morristown, N. J., and the body will be taken there.

Interview With Herreshoff About the Navahoe.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 4.—Mr. J. B. Herreshoff, in an interview tonight concerning the adverse criticism of the yacht and the press of London upon the Navahoe, said that the critics in their eagerness to show the alleged inferiority of an American built boat forgot several factors that enter into the problem of sailing a yacht successfully. "The statement of The London Times that the Navahoe is unmanageable, not able to carry her outfit, and that her sails must be clipped, sounds absurd in view of the fact that the yacht was sailed across the Atlantic, 3,000 miles of rough water, in 16 days. At no time during, that trip across was she unmanageable. It is not likely that she will prove so, or has proved so in the sheltered waters where the English yachtsmen sail their races. In the royal yacht squadron today the Navahoe finished last is true, but according to the dispatches, she did so because her skipper made the two tacks while the other three boats made but one. The fault was certainly with the sailing ability of the captain, and not with the racing qualities of the boat.

NORWICH AND VICINITY.

National Guard Transportation.

The quartermaster-general has received from the various railroad companies the tickets for the transportation of the National Guard to Camp Morris, August 21. It takes about 3,600 to supply the National Guard, a large number in addition is required for the use of caterers, etc., and many are sold to friends of members. In all the quartermaster-general received about 4,400 tickets for distribution, many of which are returned unused.

Bible Conference at the Camp Grounds.

Beginning on Tuesday evening and continuing through Wednesday and Thursday a Bible conference will be held on the Willimantic Camp ground. Among the speakers outside of the district there will be the following: The Rev. W. R. Newhall, D.D., president of Wilbraham academy, who lectures on Tuesday evening; Dr. L. W. Bacon, who speaks Wednesday afternoon on "The Spiritual Value of Historical Details in Scripture." Wednesday evening there will be a lecture on Bible Lands, illustrated by stereopticon, by the Rev. J. W. Dearborn of Watertown. Thursday morning the Rev. Dr. G. M. Stone of Hartford gives an address on "The Spirit and the Word." There will also be lectures and addresses by ministers of the Norwich district, including one by Presiding Elder Tirrell.

Curtailing at Westerly.

The printing press works of C. B. Cottrell & Sons company of Westerly now furnish employment to only two-thirds of the regular number of employes. It was necessary in the early part of the week to notify the 100 men that their services would not be needed until Sunday, when it is probable that they will be informed of the company's plan of action during the period of dull trade. The foundry is operated only three days in the week.

The Rhode Island Granite works, one of the largest quarry concerns in the town, has discharged fifty men. At the other quarries business is not rushing. The William Clark thread mill, one of Westerly's new industries, is practically still, as also the large woolen mill on Main street, operated by Mr. Walker. The Westerly woolen mill, owned and operated by the Arnolds is also closed. About 500 persons have been thrown out of employment.

HARBOR OF REFUGE.

A Needed Work to be Begun at Point Judith.

Hughes Brothers and Bangs, the contractors who are to construct the breakwater at the harbor of refuge at Point Judith, will begin work on the breakwater as soon as Capt. Bixby of the United States engineering corps, who has the supervision of the work, inspects the fleet provided for the purpose. As the scows and tug that compose it are claimed to be fully equal to any similar fleet on the coast, the inspection is only a matter of form.

The fleet consists of three scows and a tug. The latter, which is named Col. John F. Gaylor, was built for the firm by Neafie & Levy of Philadelphia, at a cost of some $30,000. She is of steel, 100 feet in length, 21 foot beam and about 11 feet depth of hold. The screw which propels the craft is driven by an engine of 500 horse-power. She is also equipped with [illegible], and is schooner rigged, with a full complement of sails bent—ready to meet any emergency.

The vessel is made brilliant at night by an Edison electric light. There are accommodations for a crew of twelve, though the present one consists of seven. Two of the three scows are what is termed patent self-dumpers. They are, as well as the derrick scow, 110 feet long, 34 feet beam and 12 feet deep, with a carrying capacity of 700 tons each and are the largest of their kind ever yet constructed. These scows are divided by bulk-heads into seven sections to facilitate the working of the dumping apparatus. All the scows are provided with Providence capstans, fore and aft.

The third scow, called a derrick scow, is provided with a mast 36 inches in diameter and 54 feet high, the shrouds of which are of lead wire with steel springs for tightening, which are intended to stand a strain of ten tons each. The derrick is a double one with booms forward and aft 68 feet long. The hoisting power is furnished by one of the Ledgewood double-drum hoisting engines. This scow, unlike the two first mentioned, has a flush deck her entire length. The fleet will be in charge of Captain C. B. Moiles of Saginaw, Mich.

DIDN'T LIKE HIS SERMONS.

When Mr. Thomas Refused to Resign His Colored Congregation Dismissed Him.

Because he would not resign the pastorate of the Mount Olive colored Baptist church in Arlington street, Newark, the Rev. Henry P. Thomas was dismissed on Tuesday night at a meeting of the congregation.

Mr. Thomas took charge of the church last fall when the Rev. Mr. Crawley, the pastor, died. He is a native West Indian. No fault has been found with him except that his sermons were unattractive.

He became somewhat unpopular with his congregation because he introduced to them a young colored man who victimized them. The man claimed to be Borgeo Moshega, an African prince and son of King Cetewayo of Zululand. He performed wonderful feats at church entertainments, such as walking on broken glass in his bare feet. He received special homage and no end of dimes and quarters from those who were allowed to bow low before him when he was introduced. He left Newark hurriedly a few days ago; and when his belongings were seized to satisfy the demand of a local piano dealer for the use of an instrument at his entertainments they were found to consist of an empty trunk and several pairs of worn-out trousers.

Mr. Thomas had an intelligence office at No. 29 Clinton street, where he supplied colored help to brickyards and other places. He brought men from the south, placed them in a boarding house and kept them until he could find places of employment for them. This, his congregation believed, took up too much of his time and interfered with his clerical duties.

Mr. Thomas is well remembered in this city as the former pastor of the Mt. Calvary Baptist church on the West Side.

THE NEW BANKING HOUSE.

Fine Structure Being Erected by the Norwich Savings Society.

Work on the foundation of the new Norwich Savings Society is progressing rapidly under the able direction of Superintendent William Shumway. The plans provide for an imposing limestone structure three stories high, which will be one of the most perfectly appointed bank buildings in the state.

The entrance to the main floor will be at the southeast corner of the building. The treasurer's room is at the right of the vestibule, connecting with the committee room, and the space for customers, fronting the clerk's department, is ample and convenient. Upstairs will be the directors' room and three offices, besides several closets, a large ante-room and hall.

The building is to be completed and ready for occupation by March 31, 1894. The blue stone is to be of the best even grained stock, and the brick and granite of the finest quality. The entrance steps and landing are to be of the very finest selected blue stone in single pieces.

WILL BE NO DELAY.

Congress All Ready for Work Next Tuesday.

MESSAGE IS EXPECTED THAT DAY.

Committees May Not Be Named for Two Weeks.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The election of speaker and other officers of the house will be promptly carried to a finish on next Monday. A number of conferences of Democratic state delegations have been called for today, in order to arrange their slates for the election of the house officers. The positions of sergeant-at-arms and doorkeeper, having several candidates, are now running through a very spirited contest. The state delegations will dispose of these matters and will be prepared to act promptly at the general Democratic caucus on Saturday. In the house, therefore, on Monday, after the calling of the roll and the swearing in of members by Clerk Kerr, they will then proceed at once to the completion of the organization. This business, together with the drawing of the seats, having consumed all of Monday, the committee to notify the president of the organization of the two houses will not reach the executive mansion until late on Monday or on Tuesday.

The president's message will therefore not reach congress before Tuesday. It is understood that and ready for cabinet consideration. It has probably received its finishing touches at Gray Gables during the presence of Secretary Carlisle, and will be brought on by the president [illegible].

After the reading of the president's message in the two houses the speaker will ask for time to enable him to arrange his committees. He says he hopes to be able to have them completed in two weeks. It was suggested to him to announce the ways and means, banking and currency, coinage, weights and measures and appropriations committees within a few days, but Mr. Crisp prefers to arrange the entire list, as he thinks it will cause less friction than to announce them by installments. He intimates that nothing would be gained by simply announcing these four committees, as the house would work better under a complete list of committees, which could be perfecting business for the future consideration of the house.

The only two committees which could meet at once and proceed with the important business of financial legislation on silver and currency are the coinage and banking and currency committees. As it is now understood that until the regular session, or until financial legislation shall have been disposed of, the ways and means committee will have ample time for the preparation of its measure. In reference to the appropriations committee, its announcement would not expedite matters, as it cannot proceed with the consideration of the appropriations until the regular estimates are received from the secretary of the treasury, which would not be for some weeks, if indeed any were submitted at the extra session.

The conversations of the Democratic leaders as they arrive indicate that there will be thrown upon the house a perfect avalanche of schemes for the settlement of existing financial complications and the relief of the people. Some of these propositions have sufficient merit to have attracted attention, but the great mass of them are the emanations of demagogues seeking notoriety. Some of the authors of these schemes have submitted their plans to Secretary Carlisle, but he has refused to sanction any of them. He has informed all alike that the administration

Will Have No Fixed Plans to Suggest.

The president, he says, "will lay the facts before congress, with such conclusions as he has drawn from his sources of information concerning the situation."

The most important step to be taken, in the judgement of Secretary Carlisle and the administration, is the earliest repeal of the purchasing clause of the act of 1890. There is very little difference of opinion among the senators and representatives on both sides concerning the question of repeal. The stumbling block is the legislation to be substituted for this provision. It is apparent from the talk of the leaders on both sides that unless an agreement is reached beforehand as to the legislation to be substituted for the suspension of silver purchases, there will result a very especially in the senate. With Speaker Crisp favorable to the policy of the administration, the task of securing legislation will not be so difficult in the house. The president and secretary of the treasury are aware of this fact.

It is proposed, therefore, to direct the efforts of the administration towards the senate. The alarming condition of the country and general dullness of business will, in the judgment of the administration, have a marked effect upon the action of members of both houses of congress, and particularly in the senate. The president is anxious that the financial question shall not be treated from a partisan standpoint, but that all should join in an effort to restore the business interests of the country to their normal condition. This fact will be made prominent in his message."

Theodore Thomas Resigns.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Theodore Thomas, musical director, sent his resignation to the committee on liberal arts of the board of directors of the fair yesterday. The reason Mr. Thomas has for resigning is that his salary for July has not been paid. He has also been annoyed by the criticism of the musical features under his direction. The committee refused to accept Mr. Thomas' resignation.

Off For Washington.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 4.—Secretary Lamont arrived at Gray Gables this noon. The president met him at the station. Everything is in readiness for the start to Washington this afternoon. Beside the president, Secretaries Lamont and Carlisle and Attorney General Olney will be in the party.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Aug. 4.—Three indictments have been returned against T. C. Burlingame, president, and P. C. Newman, cashier of the National Bank of Commerce of this city. DeLesseps Visits His Wife.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Charles DeLesseps, escorted by three detectives, was taken from the prison on Wednesday and allowed to visit his wife, who is lying dangerously ill at her residence in the Rue Montaigne. After an interview of brief duration he was taken back to the prison hospital.

BLOCKADE STILL ON.

Orders Thought to Be Delayed to Enable France to Increase Demands.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—A dispatch from Bangkok, dated Thursday night says. Nothing has been done yet to carry out the presumed instructions to the French officials to raise the blockade. Residents are still very anxious.

The opinion is that Rear Admiral Humann is receiving orders through Saigon, where the forward party is delaying in the hope that events may enable France to increase her demands.

The Bangkok correspondent of The Times telegraphs as follows: By Admiral Humann's command the captain of the French gunboat Lion has made an unreserved apology to Captain McLeod of the British schooner Pallas, for having steamed down, with crew at quarters and guns out, upon the Pallas, which was lying outside the blockade line. Captain McLeod's prudence and coolness alone averted an armed conflict.

This and another similar instance of the Lion's conduct justified the Pallas in preparing to prevent being taken at a disadvantage.

BREAD RIOTS MAY OCCUR.

Army of Idle Men Likely to Soon Overrun the Metropolis.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The World prints a long article which indicates that the metropolis will soon be overrun by an army of idle men. Statistics from 37 trades in New York city are given to show that in these trades alone 85,000 men are out of work, and it is declared that this represents only a portion of the city's unemployed.

It is stated that thousands are coming here from the west in search of employment, and that immigrants are hurrying in New York because of business stagnation in western states. It is also pointed out that the host of idlers is being daily increased by the shutting down of factories, and the claim is made that manufacturers who do not close their mill doors are importing pauper labor.

Western cities feed and forward tramps to New York free of cost, and it is hinted that bread riots may occur in the near future.

COLOMBIA APOLOGIZES.

Advices from San Jose de Costa Rica announce that President Rodriguez is ill. Minister of War Yglesias is in temporary charge of the government. Yellow fever is again raging in Limon.

From La Libertad, Salvador, comes the advice of another unsuccessful revolutionary uprising. The leaders were discovered and shot, and many accomplices imprisoned.

BEHRING SEA MATTER.

Advices From Senator Morgan Indicate Case Still Unsettled.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Private advices, later and apparently more authentic than those received by the state department, as to the movement of the Behring sea arbitrators have reached this city.

Senator Morgan cables his son that it will be impossible for him to leave Paris before Aug. 19. This is a postponement of two weeks beyond the time originally set for his departure. From the language of his cablegram it seems that he is doubtful whether the arbitrators will have finished their duties, even upon the 19th.

DRUGGED IN THE CRADLE.

Nursery is Responsible for Much Inebriety.

Opium and Alcohol Frequently Given to Infants.

Neglect of a Baby's Diet Results in Awful Consequences.

The inebriety of later life is often the result of opium and alcohol given in some form to babies for trivial reasons. Nurses who have given children medicines for indigestion know how difficult it is to wean the child from the drugs.

The one great duty of parents to their children is, therefore, not to give them medicine, but to make sure that they get food, pure, ample and capable of supplying materials of healthy growth and development.

Where natural mother's milk is out of the question or insufficient for the enormous demands made by the rapidly growing child, lactated food is prescribed by physicians. It quickly makes shabby, rosy faced, lively babies, the delight of mothers, fat, happy and crowing.

Writes Mrs. Daniel Brown, 118 Cross St., Central Falls, R. I.:

"I have three of the most healthy little children in the state, and I must say that they owe their health to having been brought up on lactated food. One of the leading doctors in Pawtucket advised me to use it and I shall always feel glad that I followed his advice. My youngest child is 14 months old and is as healthy and cheery as any little boy could be, and I am sure that lactated food has a great deal to do with it. It has been a great blessing to our family, and I consider it my duty to recommend it to all my friends. They all have the same good word for it after they have tried it; it has only to be tried and the good results will be seen at once. I shall always feel grateful to the ones who placed lactated food within the reach of all, whether rich or poor."

Lactated food is in fact most economical, as it is most nourishing and healthful. aug6d

Another Life Saved—that Physicians Pronounced Hopeless.

Vienna, N. Y.—With no motive other than to do good, I write this letter with the hope that it may reach the eye of the sick and suffering one.

As my friends know, I was taken very sick about two years ago, our family physician said I was suffering from overflow of gall, another physician declared that I was suffering from ulcers of the liver. Their prescriptions failed to benefit me, for I gradually grew worse until finally after consultation I was told that I could not live.

At this critical period my mother persuaded me to try Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, which I did and I began to improve steadily, the physicians were dismissed, and I continued the use of Favorite Remedy until I was completely cured.

Today I weigh 140 pounds, and never enjoyed such good health as at present. I prize Favorite Remedy higher than gold.

Mother is 58 years old and has been kept alive for years by the use of this great medicine.

Mrs. Jennie Reeves.

In speaking of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, one of our local physicians said: "It's undoubtedly the best medicine we have for renovating the entire system; it eliminates all poisons from the blood, whether of scrofulous or malarial origin; for chronic dyspepsia, rheumatism, nervousness, or any urinary trouble, all of which arise from an excess of uric acid in the blood, it never fails to cure where a cure is possible. aug4waS

SISTER JONES' CONFESSION.

I thought the deacon liked me, yit
I warn't adzackly shore of it,
Fer, mind ye, time and time ag'in
When jiners 'ud be comin in
I'd seed him shakin hands as free
With all the sisters as with me!
But jurin last revival, where
He called on me to lead in prayer
An kneeled there with me, side by side,
A-whisper'n "he felt sanctified
Jes' tetchin of my garment's hem,"
That settled things as fur as them
Thare other wimmin was consarned!
And—well, I know I must 'a' turned
A dozen colors! Flurried!—La!
No mortal sinner never saw
A gladder widder than the one
A-kneelin there and wonderun
Who'd pray! So glad, upon my word,
I railly couldn't thank the Lord!

ONE DAY'S FISHING.

"Like a blooming idiot," said the major, "I agreed to take the colonel fishing.

"Well, the next afternoon, which was Saturday, he came around with a fishing rod that I gave him, and when I got into the cab blame me if he didn't have a trunk. 'Got my things in that,' said he, and may I eternally fry if there weren't things enough in that trunk to stock a pawnshop. By gad, he had everything from evening clothes to a patent bootjack. But he hasn't them any more," and the major chuckled.

"We started for Mud Run, out in Pennsylvania. I'd never been there before, but a man told me there was good fishing there. He was a liar, by the way.

"About the time we got started the colonel wanted to smoke, and by the hind hobs of Gehenna if he hadn't packed all the cigars in that bloody trunk. When I cussed, he tried to get up in the baggage car and was nearly killed. Then he got some bad cigars from the porter and growled for an hour steady. Pretty soon he wanted a drink, and the whisky was in that confounded trunk.

"The woman at the hotel where we got out said it was too late to get anything to eat, and the colonel got mad and called me a hurtling chump for dragging him out into the wilderness.

"When the boy waked us in the morning, the colonel kicked because he had to get up so early. He had the deuce of a time finding his things in that infernal trunk, and he kicked because I got impatient.

"The woman at the hotel looked queer when we got down. 'Going fishing?' says she. 'You'd better look out for the constable. It's against the law to fish round here Sundays.'

"Then the colonel got suspicious and said he didn't want to be locked up. I got him into the wagon, and the driver says: 'Better look out for the constable. It's against the law to fish round here Sundays.'

"'Say,' says the colonel, 'I'm not going to get locked up and bring eternal disgrace upon my family.' I choked him off finally, and we started. Then we met a farmer, and he 'lowed that we'd get in trouble if we fished on Sunday. The driver grinned and the colonel, like the eternal galoot he is, says, 'I told you so.' It took me about 10 minutes to choke him off, but he growled all the way to the stream.

"Say," continued the major, "did you ever see the colonel catch trout? No? Well, neither did anybody else. He couldn't catch a trout in a week of leap years. By gad, it was a sight to see him whip the stream. It was like driving balky mules over a broken bridge. He banged that river until half the fish in it were scared to death, and I guess he thought he could catch trout by knocking them stone dead with his rod. He lost about two dozen flies trying to cast half the length of his rod, and then he got his line all tangled up in the bushes. Did you ever hear the colonel swear? Well, buccaneers and river pirates aren't in it with the colonel. Talk about breaking the Sabbath! Why, the colonel swore enough to send an army to perdition for eternity.

"While the colonel was cussing everything in sight the driver came tearing down the road, waving his hands like a windmill in full sail.

"'Hi!' he yelled, 'the constable's coming, and he's after you too. You'd better get. Cut up through the woods there, and I'll meet you at the turn of the pike.'

"We didn't know where the turn of the pike was, but the colonel grabbed me by the arm and hustled up into the woods. When we got under cover, he was steaming like a soap factory and cussing me too.

"'What in the name of thunder did you ever bring me out here for? You want to get me arrested, do you?'

"I was that speechless that I couldn't answer. I just stood and looked at him. Pretty soon I recovered.

"'Brought you out here!' said I. 'You blooming bloc of idiocy, who brought you out here? You came yourself.'

"Then the colonel got madder than ever, and he wouldn't talk again. But that was a mercy.

"It was getting along toward dark when we got to the hotel. The colonel was prancing up to the front door when the man who drove the team came out of a barn.

"'Hey,' says he, 'the constable's waiting for you fellows. He's over to the hotel.'

"Maybe I and the colonel didn't run. We just lit out and hung around in the brush until it was plum dark. Then we crawled back to the hotel, but the constable was still sitting there.

"Then the colonel tried to make a bolt to the woods, and the constable saw him. With a whole pack in full cry after us, the colonel and I ran down the hill. I guess we outdistanced the constable and his crew. But after awhile they came after us with lanterns, and we had to run again. Up in the heavy brush they lost us, and when we got our wind we struck out for the railroad.

"The nearest station was 10 miles away, and the colonel was nearly dead before we got half way there. He sat down on a tie and swore that he was dying. He was wet through and about the most miserable man that ever cussed a streak of hard luck.

"The colonel got so bad that I got some chips and started a fire by the railroad track. He lay down beside it and tried to get dry. He was just beginning to grunt, when there was a roar down the road, and the train came puffing round the curve.

"The first thing the engineer saw I guess was our fire, and then you should have heard the racket. He just turned all his steam into his old whistle and tooted like a fiend possessed. The train came to a standstill by our fire, and then the conductor came racing up, swearing awfully. I got out. The colonel expostulated, but they were so mad they were going to thrash him. I got on the platform of the last car, and blow me if they would let the colonel get on. He prayed and pleaded, but the conductor said no, and the train started with the colonel doing more cussing.

"When the last car was abreast, however, the colonel grabbed the hand bar and hung on for his life. He took steps about four yards long, and when the train got going he just sailed out behind. I yanked and pulled till I got him aboard. My, I thought he was going to die. But he didn't. After awhile he began swearing again, and then I felt relieved.

"After we had gone about 10 miles we got up to get into the car. The colonel went first, but he hadn't taken two steps when he fell back with a gasp.

"'What's the matter?' says I.

"'Matter?' says he. 'The constable's in that car.'

"And sure enough he was. Then we went out on the steps and sat in the cold. The colonel shivered till he rocked the car, and he more than lit into me. Say, I've been swore at in 15 different languages, but the way the colonel sailed into me was art. I sat there and groaned, and for about 20 miles the train left a streak of blue behind.

"We rode on the tail of that car for 60 miles, and the colonel swore all the way. Every time we came to a station we got off and hid. And after every station the colonel was worse than ever.

"Finally it got so bad that I got desperate and went into the car. The constable was gone. I asked a red nosed man in the back seat where the constable was, and he told me that the constable had left the train an hour before. And there we two blooming chumps sat on that platform all that time.

"I let the colonel sit there for about an hour more before I went out and told him. And then you should have heard him curse. It was awful, and I had to leave him. I haven't seen him since."

Just then a limp figure came slouching around the corner. When it saw the major, there was a start of surprise. It made a vain attempt to escape discovery. The major saw, and with a dash he secured the cringing form. It was the colonel.

"Colonel," said the major, "let bygones be bygones."

"They are," said the colonel. "Let's take a drink."

And they did.—New York World.

A Quaint Custom.

A unique proceeding in connection with the distribution of the White Bread Meadow charity takes place annually during the first week in April at Bourne, Lincolnshire. By the will of Richard Clay, gentleman, dated July 3, 1770, some land was allotted to the inhabitants for the time being residing in the east portion of the town, the rent being every year laid out in bread and distributed to the householders and commoners. The letting of the meadow is attended by a large concourse of people, the bidding being regulated by the running of boys.

The auctioneer starts the boys to run a fixed distance, whereupon he requests bids for renting the property one year. If a bid is made during the time the boys are running, they are immediately started off again and again until no bid shall have been made during the time the boys are running, when the last bidder is declared the lessee. The public afterward adjourn to an inn, where a spread of spring onions, cheese and beer are supplied ad lib. to all who wish to partake, after which a committee for managing the charity for the following year is appointed.—Million.

Men and Bears.

A man named Conn went hunting for bear near Creede, Colo., the other day. He wanted to do a little killing just for fun. Presently he stirred up a she bear with two cubs, and he banged away at the cubs, wounding both. The mother resented this boisterous humor and chased Mr. Conn up a tree and dallied with him awhile herself. Mr. Conn was buried by his friends next day, a victim of his own superexuberant lust for fun.

The bear is a peaceable, inoffensive creature. It seeks a home remote from the haunts of humanity. It certainly seems to have some rights which mankind should respect. We have no sympathy with people who make a practice of going about slaughtering game in cold blood merely "for the fun of the thing." If man is so inhuman as not to enact and conserve laws for the protection of the bear, we certainly shall applaud the bear for protecting itself.—Chicago Record.

Curiosities About Observatories.

The first recorded observatory was on the top of the temple of Belus; the tomb of Osymandias in Egypt was the second. This last contained a golden astronomical circle 200 feet in diameter. Another at Benares, India, is believed to be almost as ancient as either of the other two. The first in Europe was erected at Cassell in 1561; that of Tycho Brahe at Uranienburg was built in 1576. The Paris observatory dates from 1667 and that of Greenwich is two years older. The one at Nuremberg was erected in 1678 and that at Berlin in 1711. The famous Bologna tower was built in 1714. The Stockholm, Utrecht, Copenhagen and Lisbon observatories were built in 1740, 1650, 1656 and 1728 respectively.—Philadelphia Press.

Homeward to Thee.

Never so fathomless a sea
But through its depths there reacheth me
His still supporting hand.
Never so drear can desert be
But there His love grows green for me
Amid the scorching sand.

For He who over sea and land
Doth homeward guide from farthest strand
The bird's unerring way
Can surely safe my pathway steer.
Then let me never yield to fear,
Nor once in darkness stray.

Though I am weak and wayward still,
Lord, do for me Thy chosen will;
But this my prayer shall be—
Wherever wings my wandering way,
Oh, steer it so at last it may
Safe homeward lead to Thee.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON VI, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 6.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xx, 22-35—Memory Verses, 31, 32—Golden Text, Heb. xiii, 7—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

22. "And now, behold, I go bound in the spirit unto Jerusalem, not knowing the things that shall befall me there." Last week we left Paul at Ephesus alone, his companions having gone to Macedonia. Then followed the uproar, after which Paul left for Macedonia, went as far as Greece, tarried there three months, then returned through Macedonia, and we now find him at Miletus on his way to Jerusalem, hastening to be there if possible by Pentecost (verse 16). Touching at Miletus on their homeward voyage, he sent to Ephesus to have the elders come down to him, and our lesson today is his farewell to them. He reminds them of his manner of life among them and of his teaching. Doing must precede teaching. See Math. v, 19; Acts i, 1; Mark vi, 30; Josh. i, 8; Ex. vii, 10.

23. "Save that the Holy Ghost witnesseth in every city, saying that bonds and afflictions abide me." While he did not know what particular events might befall him, he had a general knowledge that it would be as it had been, and even so to the end. It was in his commission that he should suffer (Acts ix, 16), and large foretastes had he already in the stoning at Lystra and the scourging and imprisonment at Philippi.

24. "But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy." The ambitions of this servant of Christ may be seen in such passages as this in connection with I Cor. ii, 2; II Cor. v, 9; Phil. i, 20; Gal. vi, 14. To make known the gospel of grace, to make Christ known through these bodies, to be in all things pleasing unto Him and have His service accepted of Him, these were His constant aim, and in these directions He exhorted His son Timothy (II Tim. ii, 3; iv, 15), and through His writings exhorts all believers.

25. "And now, behold, I know that ye all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, shall see my face no more." In some way He knew that He would not meet them again till He should meet them at the judgment seat of Christ, and therefore He would speak to them the more earnestly and waste no time on vain words. If when we speak to people, even in ordinary conversation, we felt that we might not meet them again in this world, we would be more apt to say something about Jesus and things eternal.

26. "Wherefore I take you to record this day that I am pure from the blood of all men," not only in the sense of having wronged, corrupted or defrauded no man (II Cor. vii, 2), but he had cleared himself of all responsibility in reference to their soul's salvation. If we, as the messengers of God, faithfully declare His message of salvation, then we are clear of the blood of those who hear, whether they believe or not. See Ezek. iii, 7-9; xxxiii, 17-19.

27. "For I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God." That which he had received of the Lord he had made known unto them without diminishing a word (I Cor. xv, 3; Jer. xxvi, 2). He had kept back nothing (verse 20) through fear of man. He believed in his heart that if his aim was to please men he was not worthy to be called a servant of Christ (Gal. i, 10). So he lived and labored not as pleasing men, but God, who trieth our hearts (I Thess. ii, 4). What a needful word this is, "He that hath my word, let him speak my word faithfully" (Jer. xxiii, 28).

28. "Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which He hath purchased with His own blood." One of the risen Christ's last words to Peter was a threefold exhortation to feed His sheep and lambs (John xxi, 15, 17), and Peter passes it on to us, saying, "Feed the flock of God which is among you" (I Pet. v, 2). Nothing can feed us but the word of God. The written word is full of Him who is the living Word, and He Himself said, "He that eateth me, even he shall live by me" (John vi, 57).

29. "For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock." It was Paul's delight to maintain himself by his own labor that he might have to give to the needy things temporal and spiritual. But there were and there are those who, professing to be shepherds, not only do not feed the flock, but take good care to live upon the flock—wolves in sheep's clothing (Math. vii, 15; x, 16).

30. "Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them." It is one thing for a man to be accused of drawing people after him, while his whole aim is to point them to Jesus (I Cor. iii, 4, 5). It is quite another matter for a man to live and labor for the sake of a following (Acts v, 36, 37).

31. "Therefore watch and remember that by the space of three years I ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears." Woe be unto the pastors that destroy and scatter the sheep of My pasture, saith the Lord (Jer. xxiii, 1). See also Ezek. xxxiv, 2. Prayerfully, tearfully and unceasingly had Paul labored for their souls' welfare, and as he foresaw the possibility of false teachers and souls ruined and lost his heart was grieved.

32. "And now, brethren, I commend you to God and to the word of His grace, which is able to build you up and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified." He knew that if they would only hold fast to the word of God they would not waver nor be led astray. The only safety then and now is "to the law and to the testimony. If they speak not according to this word, surely there is no morning for them" (Isa. viii, 20, R. V.).

33. "I have coveted no man's silver or gold or apparel." He was not seeking theirs, but them. He wanted nothing from them, but he had something to give them. Though he was poor, yet he made many rich; though he seemed to have nothing, yet he possessed all things (II Cor. vi, 10). When any gave him gifts, he was especially glad for them, because it was just so much added to their account in heaven.

34. "Yea, ye yourselves know that these hands have ministered unto my necessities and to them that were with me." Therefore, when the false teachers would come seeking theirs and not them, only wanting to make something out of them, not caring for their souls, they could say: "Thus did not Paul. He never asked us for anything for himself." See further instruction upon this point in II Thess. iii, 6-10.

35. "I have showed you all things, how that so laboring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how He said, It is more blessed to give than to receive." It is not recorded that Jesus ever said just these words, so that possibly Paul has here given us some of the unrecorded words of Jesus. The principle, however, was certainly in His teaching and very prominent (Luke vi, 38; xiv, 12, 14).

The Wesleyan society of Grosvenor Street chapel of Manchester has from time to time sent delegations to sing in the children's wards of one of the hospitals.

The San Jose Congregational society of California has from the first been identified with all parts of the church work. One of its gifts to the church has been a $500 piano.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 6. Comments by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—The blessedness of giving. Acts xx, 35; Luke vi, 38-38. "It is more blessed to give than to receive" (Acts xx, 35).

The blessedness of giving as well as the justice of giving may be questioned by some. It seems scarcely right for one who has toiled and labored in accumulating wealth to spend it on others, and that there should be pleasure or blessing in the spending seems even less probable. Yet it was the Divine Teacher Himself who had said to His disciples at some time unknown, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." In substantiation of these words we offer the following:

1. The blessedness of giving is affirmed by the Scriptures. We have not only the statement of Christ that there is a blessedness in giving, but the direct promise of God that the liberal shall be blessed, for in the reference from Luke we read, "Give, and it shall be given unto you, good measure, pressed down and shaken together and running over, shall men give unto your bosom, for with the same measure that you mete withal shall it be measured unto you." This is the promise of God, reiterated again and again in the Scriptures, and God is not man that He should lie. These promises teach us that not only will there be pleasure to those who give, but God will actually send blessings upon those who give liberally to the poor and needy and to all from whom they expect nothing in return.

2. The blessedness of giving is affirmed by all human experience. Christ spoke from experience. Paul could add his personal experience in corroboration of the words quoted. He had given himself to Christ and to humanity and was blessed abundantly in heavenly blessings. At a reunion in his native town George Peabody once said, "It is sometimes hard for one who has devoted the best part of his life to the accumulation of money to spend it on others, but practice it and keep on practicing it, and I assure you it comes to be a pleasure." It is also said that a favorite saying of Julius Caesar's was that no music was so charming in his ears as the requests of his friends and the supplications of those in need of his assistance. The experience of all men has been the same. There is joy in giving, in beholding the pleasure and happiness that beams from the faces of others because of something we have done for them. It is a pleasure of the purest and noblest character, for it is then we are most like the Master Himself, who gave His home for those who could not return His gift; who gave His life, not for His friends, but for His enemies. Let us therefore cultivate a spirit of liberality.

Bible References.—Deut. xv, 11, 14; Ex. xxxv, 21; Ps. xli, 1; Prov. xxv, 21; xxii, 9; Isa. xxxii, 8; Eccl. xi, 1; Math. vi, 1-4; Mark xii, 42-44; Acts ii, 45; iv, 34-37; II Cor. viii, 1-9; ix, 11-15; Phil. iv, 15; Jas. ii, 14-16.

Christian Endeavor Is a Science.

Our interest in Christian Endeavor and our efficiency in the work are likely to be proportionate to our intelligence in regard to it. It is well to know something of the history of Christian Endeavor and to keep ourselves informed in regard to the present progress of the work. But aside from this there is something to be learned in regard to the principles of Christian Endeavor and to the methods of Endeavor work.

Christian Endeavor is a science, and every Endeavorer should make this a study. He should inform himself in regard to the methods that have proved the most effective. He should profit by the experience and knowledge of those who have gone before him. This is essential not only to our intelligence and interest in the work, but also to our efficiency as Endeavorers.—National Presbyterian.

Growth of Christian Endeavor.

The net gain in number of local societies in 1882 was 6; 1883, 49; 1884, 100; 1885, 97; 1886, 597; 1887, 1,464; 1888, 2,365; 1889, 2,798; 1890, 3,841; 1891, 5,261; 1892, 4,806, and 5,276 is the forward step this last year. In other words, more societies have been organized since our New York convention than were organized during seven years of the society's early history.—Golden Rule.

Christian Endeavor Notes.

A Floating society of Christian Endeavor is in prospect in England, which will have ready to raise a C. E. flag as a signal to all Christian Endeavor mariners.

The Endeavorers of a Dartford (England) Baptist society have bought for their "open air band" of workers, chiefly made up from the society, an American organ.

During the absence of the sexton in July the Park Congregational society of Brooklyn assumed the responsibility of caring for the church.

The enterprising juniors of the Second Presbyterian church of Emporia, Kan., raised the money recently for the thorough cleaning of the church, including even the cleansing and turning of the church carpet.

Last November there were 11 societies, with 673 members, in Tasmania. Probably by this time there are many others.

Christian Endeavor in Ireland! The phrase is novel, but our great movement has lately obtained a footing in the Emerald Isle. Societies have recently been formed in two Dublin churches—Brighton Road and Sandy Mount Methodist—as well as in several others.

As a result of a county convention, a junior society of 46 members was organized recently in St. John's Reformed church, Red Lion, Pa.

A Christian Endeavor society has been formed in the penitentiary at Albany.

At a social of the Bridgewater (England) Baptist Endeavorers much interest was excited by the exhibition of a perfect model of the tabernacle in the wilderness cut out of wood by one of the members—a young lady.

The Congregational Endeavorers of Bow, England, have formed an "evangelistic band" and a "temperance band," each with a secretary and committee and each holding effective and regular services.

A small boy in Boothbay Harbor, Me., who has just happily recovered from a double affliction, has named his two pet kittens "Mumps" and "Measles."

A Cure For Stammering.

A gentleman who stammered from childhood almost up to manhood gives a very simple remedy for the misfortune: Go into a room where you will be quiet and alone, get some book that will interest but not excite you and sit down and read two hours aloud to yourself, keeping your teeth together. Do this every two or three days, or once a week if very tiresome, always taking care to read slowly and distinctly, moving the lips, but not the teeth. Then, when conversing with others, try to speak as slowly and distinctly as possible and make up your mind that you will not stammer.

Well, I tried this remedy, not having much faith in it, I must confess, but willing to do almost anything to cure myself of such an annoying difficulty. I read for two hours aloud with my teeth together. The first result was to make my tongue and jaws ache—that is, while I was reading—and the next to make me feel as if something had loosened my talking apparatus, for I could speak with less difficulty immediately. The change was so great that every one who knew me remarked it. I repeated this remedy every five or six days for a month, and then at longer intervals until cured.—Good Health.

An Insurance Curiosity.

"Did you ever stop to consider," asked Lemuel Hunter, "why it is that when a man is burned out he always overestimates his loss about 300 per cent? This is more particularly the case with fires in frame building towns, where the loss to the building is generally assessed at between three and four times what it cost to erect it. I raised this question not long since with a man who was burned out. He said the loss to his building was $3,000, but he proposed to rebuild at an expenditure of $1,300 and have a better building. When I questioned the logic of his calculation, he promptly corrected me by pointing out that the real estate on which the building stood was worth fully $2,000, and although he didn't pretend to argue that the site had been burned up he seemed to think himself perfectly justified in including the value of the 25 feet frontage in his estimate of loss. No one was injured by the calculation, and the good man was perfectly justified in making it if he desired, but if his idea is a general one it is not surprising that losses generally are greatly overestimated."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE SUMMER SESSION.

Congressmen have been gathering slowly in Washington for the extraordinary session of the fifty-third congress, not because it is hot there, but because they find their summer vacation broken up, and the prospect of more vacation uncertain, and they desire to rusticate until the last moment. While summer sessions are unusual, they are not unprecedented. In the early history of the country, when Washington was in a much poorer sanitary condition than it is now, summer sessions were held. The Forty-fourth and the Fiftieth congresses held summer sessions, and the members survived the ordeal. The congressmen are pouring into Washington now by scores, and probably most of the members will be in their seats by Tuesday or Wednesday.

The house of representatives will consist of 356 members, which is thirty-one in excess of the number established by the apportionment under the tenth census, and twenty-four in excess of the number constituting the house of representatives of the fifty-second congress. The addition of new states during the last congress added seven members to the house making the total number 356. In the present house are 214 democrats, 126 republicans, and 13 populists, with two vacancies.

In the senate there are 88 members, 45 of whom are democrats, 38 republicans, 3 people's and 2 doubtful. The youngest senator is Edward O. Wolcott of Denver, Col., now 45 years of age; and the oldest is Justin S. Morrill of Strafford, Vt., who is 83, and has been a member of congress for thirty-nine years.

There are 208 lawyers in the house and 51 in the senate, and 5 bankers in the house and 3 in the senate. Of the 444 members of congress, 359 are professional men. Of those elected last November 228 were members of the Fifty-second congress, of whom 141 are democrats, 86 republicans and 5 populists. Two members elect have died—Mutchler, democrat, of Pennsylvania, who has been succeeded by his son, Howard Mutchler, and Enochs, republican, of Ohio, whose seat still remains vacant.

REPUBLICAN CLUBS.

Thursday evening the Young Republican club of New Haven banqueted at Savin Rock, and "young republicans and old republicans" in large numbers were reported to be present. There was a good time, no clash, no visible line drawn except in this classifying of republicans for which there seems to be no good defense, any more than there would be for organizations of old masons and young masons, young ministers and old ministers, or old lawyers and young lawyers. A republican is a republican whether old or young, and for campaigning purposes the rule is and ever will be "the young men for war, and the old men for counsel."

The energy, activity and enthusiasm of the young republicans give zest to the campaign and count in the results. The young men are entitled to recognition, to praise and to a fair share of the honors; but they should stand in party line as the soldier stands in the ranks, youth shoulder to shoulder with age, resolved upon a single purpose—victory.

The tendency of such party divisions is toward an increased ambition for place and power among the young men, a clashing of claims and antagonistic conflicts for offices; but this is not always a result. So far as the New Haven club is concerned we believe it has escaped this pitfall which has wrecked some clubs.

A republican club should be a republican club for old and young, with one interest and one purpose, and the enthusiasm and push of the young men should reinvigorate the old men with energy, and the experience and wisdom of the old men should direct the young men in their work.

The glory of the republican party is in its intelligent, loyal and sincere young men. They are entitled to a place in party councils and among the leaders; to places of honor and places of power; but in the ranks they look best, side by side, working and counselling together, the young occupying their natural position, in which they give promise as valiant supporters of the standard of being future standard bearers.

Five hundred babies in carriages were wheeled in line at Asbury Park the other day. The Providence Journal remarks "Such a blithe picture of 'unbounded domesticity' is enough to melt the heart of the most confirmed of bachelors."

MUST ACT MODERATELY.

A leading republican of the western part of the state, writing a gentleman of this city who stands high in the councils of the republican party, says: "I do not think the silver question is responsible for anything like as much of the general distrust and distress as has been attributed to it. I think the uncertainty as to the policy of the democratic party with regard to the tariff and the industries of the country has more to do with these than silver. We shall know what the real trouble is when congress meets. If they repeal the purchasing clause of the Sherman act and improvement does not follow permanently, we shall know there is something beyond silver that causes the trouble, and when the democratic party take hold of the tariff question the result will be indicated by the stoppage and failure of manufactories and mills, unless the party acts much more moderately than its platform threatens."

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Some one is anxious to find out "If the rolling chair has come to stay?" That depends upon the rolling dollar.

Over in Europe inquiry is made through the press "If the cycling woman can be loved and cherished?" The opinion here is that she can if one can catch her!

Josiah Quincy, the Rajah Rajahgan of Boston, performed the greatest democratic feat of the year. In his haste he appointed a consular agent before he was confirmed himself.

The man who is idle and spending saved dollars is looking to see where he can secure goods cheapest, and if you advertise your goods you will get his trade if you are making it an object for cash customers to patronize you.

One thousand unemployed mechanics who have reached Chicago from Colorado say the voice of Waite busted Colorado. Those who have been suddenly awakened in the morning by the voice of an ass will not be surprised that panic followed the sound.

At the late elections in Germany the social democrats polled 1,700,000 votes, a gain of 380,000 over their previous vote. Emperor William carried the army bill in the reichstag; but he must be appalled at the rate at which socialism is making its way among his people.

John Stephenson, the inventor of the omnibus and the street car, has just passed to the "silent majority." These conveyances were not known sixty-five years ago. How much he added to the convenience and rapid transit of mankind cannot be estimated. He made a big fortune and lived to enjoy it.

Expectorating men are making such a nuisance of themselves in Oregon that The Oregonian is making war upon them. This repulsive class make a nuisance of themselves everywhere. The man who habitually squirts tobacco juice upon the pavements and the decks of excursion boats is too filthy to be tolerated.

A Boston philosopher has laid down four rules how to tell good ice: "First, all good ice is cold to the touch; second, all genuine ice is made of water; third, all healthy ice perspires; fourth, no good ice entertains insects, reptiles or other parasites." This expert has discovered the greatest "put" on ice that will be found until he is put there himself.

VOICES OF THE PRESS.

A Poor Sign of Prosperity.

Reductions in wages are a poor brand of democratic prosperity.—[New York Recorder.

A Victory of What?

The election of last November was a great and noble victory. But of what?—New York Tribune.

It's Loaded.

Even free trade newspapers are beginning to get scared on the tariff question.—[Philadelphia Press.

The Laborer Wind-Bagged.

In sand-bagging American [illegible] the free traders wind-bagged the American laborer.—[New York Press.

The Democratic Policy.

"We denounce a policy which fosters no industry so much as it does that of the sheriff."—[The republican platform.

It Can and Will.

"Tariff reform can wait," says the New York Times. Well, you just bet it can and will wait.—[Springfield Union.

He Should Change.

Governor Waite wears gold-bowed spectacles. He should change them for a silver-bowed pair.—[New York Recorder.

They Give It Up.

The silver men, or the wisest of them, have given up the Sherman law. They know and concede that it must be repealed.—[Springfield Republican.

The Rustic Dollar.

If the silver dollar were to remain of its present thickness and were to contain a dollar's worth of silver it would be two inches in diameter.—[Boston Journal.

Must Know the Worst.

Bad as the times may be, there are few who can afford to begin the day without knowing what has happened, what the news is, what the paper will show him.—[Hartford Courant.

The Ship of State.

To Uncle Sam: When you get tired of the wabbling free trade boat you will again find a welcome in the ship of protection, which is the American ship of state.—[Iowa State Register.

Not Yet Revealed.

The color of the hair of the man who is to succeed John I. Hutchinson as collector of internal revenue for this district has not yet been revealed to an anxious public.—[Waterbury Republican.

An Invitation to Surrender.

The silverites, so far as represented at Chicago, propose that if we will allow the free coinage of their metal on terms fixed by them they will consent to the repeal of the Sherman law. But this is not an offer of compromise; it is an invitation to surrender.—[Providence Journal.

A Fair Question.

Some of our democratic contemporaries propound the brilliant idea that a free coinage law is protective legislation—protective of the silver mining industry. Indeed! And will some of these iridescent geniuses kindly tell us why democratic congressmen, who denounce protection as unconstitutional, vote for this "protective legislation" with both hands?—[Boston Journal.

Wherever you find a fellow of that ilk, who pretends to be a democrat, he is a prevaricator, a prevaricating republican, a coward, who is afraid to claim his soul as his own, a hypocrite, who is ashamed of his opinions, and who, if tempted, would sell his Maker for half what Judas got and take his pay in Mexican dollars.—[Louisville Courier Journal.

NAVAHOE WAS LAST.

Badly Beaten in Royal Yacht Squadron Regatta.

THE COURSE ONE OF FIFTY MILES.

Satanita Won, With Valkyrie Second and Calluna Third.

RYDE, Eng., Aug. 4.—With another good fresh breeze, this time from the south southwest, and the Navahoe among the starters, there was plenty of interest in the race of the royal yacht squadron today.

After the exhibition the Navahoe made of herself in yesterday's race the interest was doubled in today's regatta, and all eyes were turned on the Yankee boat, to see what she will do under a little less [illegible].

The Britannia was not among the starters, and this fact seems to be greatly regretted, as many would like to see her pitted against the American boat in a good, strong, steady breeze.

The light weather Valkyrie seemed to do well in the blow of yesterday, and as the Britannia is a good all round boat the interest would have been greatly heightened if she were in. She is getting a new mast and will not be ready for racing for a day or two.

The starters in today's race were the Calluna, the Valkyrie, the Satanita and the Navahoe. The course was from Cowes, Isle of Wight, to and around the Warner lightship and return, twice around, 50 miles.

The starting gun was fired at 10 o'clock and the boats came for the line in good shape. There was some Clever Jockeying for the Start.

Hogarth of the Calluna berthed his boat well and sent her away in the lead, with Jay in the Satanita close astern of him. Cranfield sent the Valkyrie over third. The Navahoe got away last. There was just one minute between the first and last vessel at the start.

Soon after crossing the line the Satanita and the Valkyrie closed up on the Calluna and passed her. The Calluna was sailing a great race and at the end of 15 miles the Navahoe had not overhauled her.

At this point the Navahoe was 3 minutes 16 seconds astern of the Valkyrie. The Dunraven boat was holding her own with the big Soper boat.

The Satanita was sailing very fast, and maintained her lead at the end of the first round. She had four minutes of a lead on the Navahoe.

The Fife boat Calluna made a great fight with the Valkyrie and sailed one of the best races that she has yet been started in.

The order at the end of the first time over the course was: The Satanita, the Valkyrie, the Calluna and the Navahoe.

The Valkyrie continued to close up on the Satanita, and Both Boats Dropped the Navahoe.

Even the Calluna was too much for her in the strong breeze.

At 30 miles from the start the Navahoe was still last, and a good one and one-half mile astern of the Valkyrie.

From this point to the finish line the Navahoe was badly out of it. The Satanita steadily gained on her and crossed the finish line a winner by 7 minutes [illegible] seconds over the American boat. She beat the Valkyrie 2 minutes 10 seconds, and the Calluna 5 minutes 20 seconds.

The Scotchmen are happy, for the Calluna beat the American boat 3m. 15s. The timings at the finish were as follows: Satanita, 5h. 50m. 6s.; Valkyrie, 5h. 52m. 46s.; Navahoe, 5h. 58m. 15s.

As the Calluna gets about three minutes time allowance from the Navahoe, this will make her beat the Carroll boat nearly five minutes on corrected time.

The Satanita was given a rousing reception as she came sweeping proudly down to the finish line. The race finished at 5 o'clock. The Satanita saved her time on the Valkyrie by just four seconds. She has to allow the Dunraven boat over two minutes. The Calluna finished a good third.

The Navahoe finished on corrected time 8m. 20s. behind the winner.

NAVAHOE CRITICIZED.

Times Says Her Spars Will Have to Be Clipped For Safety.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Times, commenting on the Navahoe's performance yesterday, says:

Probably her spars will have to be clipped, as she cannot safely carry her present outfit. Yesterday she shaped worse than any yacht ever did that we can remember. With the first strong puff she fell down and filled her decks and ran off against her helm in a fearful and dangerous way. She came to just as wildly.

Her masthead was sprung, but the true cause of her giving up was that she had become unmanageable and was in a dangerous condition.

CHICAGO BANKERS KICK.

Say New York Banks Hold On to Money to Their Injury.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—A Chicago dispatch to The Herald says: Bankers of Chicago have been much annoyed, not to say embarrassed, by the fact that the bankers of New York have persistently refused to honor drafts with cash. New Yorkers offered clearing-house certificates, but as these are not cash they have been refused.

Chicago bankers have balances in New York, although not very large ones, it is understood, and they are very anxious to make a raid upon them, but this the New York bankers will not permit.

When the Chicago men refuse the certificates and demand cash the demands are quietly but effectively ignored, and that is all there is to it.

One Chicago banker, however, thinks he can get some money out of New York, and he put his scheme into operation yesterday. D. H. Tolman, president of the Chicago Trust and Savings bank, sent to New York by express yesterday a draft for $22,000 on the Western National bank of which ex-Treasurer Jordan is president. Mr. Tolman hopes that when the express messenger presents the draft he will get the money on it. He is sure the messenger will not accept the clearing house certificates, as they are not cash, and cash is what the express messenger is expected to get.

"I telegraphed the Western National bank day before yesterday for cash," said Mr. Tolman, "and they replied they would send me clearing house certificates. These are not what I want, because I cannot pay my depositors with them. They demand money, and money is what I am compelled to give them.

"If a demand for money was made upon a Chicago bank, and it was refused, people would think the bank was burst. These New York people want to hang on to their money, or rather the money of others. I want my money, and will get it if I can."

JUBILEE A FAILURE.

This Is What Is Said In New York of General Paine's Boat.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The Sun says: There was a startling rumor around town yesterday that the Paine boat Jubilee, designed by General Paine and his son, Charles J., for the defense of the America's cup, was a failure, and that she would not compete in the trial races next month. As yet the general has not entered the Jubilee in these races, although the entries were supposed to close on Aug. 1.

A well informed yachtsman in speaking of the matter yesterday, said that it had been common talk up at the New York Yacht club that the Jubilee was a failure, and that the reason she had not been entered in the trial races was because General Paine was disgusted with her showing against the Boston syndicate fin yacht Pilgrim in a recent trial near Marblehead.

Those who claim to know say that the Pilgrim can walk away from her in any sort of a breeze; and that the Jubilee is all power and no go, like the Albocak, the Paine 46-footer. Just what foundation there is in this talk of course cannot be learned until the Jubilee meets her fellow cup defenders in the Goelet cup races off Newport on Aug. 11.

General Paine was seen by a reporter today and was shown the Sun's statement. After reading it General Paine simply laughed and said it was useless to talk of any such gossip.

There is absolutely no truth in the statements published in the Sun concerning the Jubilee. Instead of the entries closing Aug. 1, as the Sun says, they don't close until the morning of the first race.

CANADA'S GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

At Aberdeen Banquet Pats the Canadians On the Back.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Some of the leading citizens of Aberdeen gave a banquet last evening to the Earl of Aberdeen, the new governor-general of Canada.

The earl, in a speech, dilated upon the energy with which the Canadians had built up their institutions. This energy was all the more creditable, he said, seeing that Canada's nearest neighbor was her powerful but friendly sister nation—the United States—a nation which had great wealth and a vast population, and which enjoyed special facilities for rapid progress.

Canada, he added, understood and would prove the advantage of a steady and safe, if gradual, advance. She also understood and appreciated the benefits arising from ample autonomy combined with a vital, but absolutely unhampered, connection with the British empire.

FAILURES NUMEROUS.

Central America Suffering From Condition of Silver Market.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—Mail advices from San Jose de Costa Rica, Central America, report a disastrous state of affairs there. Throughout the republic there is a financial panic caused by the condition of the silver market. Failures have been numerous, and more are expected.

Among the houses which have gone to the wall are the following: Juan I. de Jongh, Munoz & Viñalos, Jose Munoz, Jesus Pinto, Cubero & Co., Echandy & Co., Francisco Seler, Fernando Gvichegheo & Co., F. Farear, E. Saitala, Aguila Viquis. These firms are all prominent and their liabilities very large.

All business is very much depressed, and no change is looked for until some action is taken that will render the silver situation more stable.

The most significant occurrence in financial circles is the embarrassment of the Costa Rica bank, formerly and better known as the Banco de la Union. Its notes are no longer accepted in commercial circles.

The fact of its being in difficulty has been disseminated throughout the country by General Castura Carazo, and it is feared that the promulgation of its trouble will have a bad effect on other financial institutions.

Yellow fever is reported to be raging at Port Limon, on the Atlantic side, and with such fatal effect that half the population have fallen victims to the dread disease. Among the dead are three physicians who had been sent to Port Limon by the government to assist in checking the ravages of the epidemic.

GLADSTONE'S HOPEFUL.

Does Not Propose to Avert a Crisis He Does Not Expect to Occur.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—In the house of commons yesterday, Sir Ellis Ashmead Bartlett (Conservative) asked the government whether, since the stoppage of the free minting of silver in India, there had been, as stated, a depreciation in value of securities held in England to the amount of £130,000,000; whether the supply of gold was not insufficient to the monetary requirements of trade, and what measures the government proposed to take to avert a financial crisis.

Prime Minister Gladstone replied that he did not know how to ascertain the truth of the assertion that a decline to the amount referred to had taken place in the value of securities held in England. He did not believe that the supply of gold was insufficient for the trade requirements, and he could not announce measures to avert a crisis that he did not believe would occur.

FLEEING FROM NAPLES.

Residents by Thousands Seek to Avoid the Deadly Cholera.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Rome correspondent of The Central News says: Since the outbreak of cholera in Naples more than 100,000 residents have fled from that city. The official reports greatly understate the facts.

The report for Sunday last said there were 19 new cases and nine deaths. Reliable private advices declare that there were 89 new cases and 38 deaths on that day, and 49 new cases and 27 deaths on Monday.

The official figures for Tuesday are 15 new cases and six deaths. Several cases of cholera have occurred in Rome.

Another Veteran Gone.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 4.—Veteran soldiers and many others are pained at learning of the death of William Dunn, which occurred during the night. He had been a resident of Manchester since 1865, and was well and favorably known. He served in the war as a member of the Third New Hampshire volunteers, and since his return had been employed at the Manchester locomotive works. A wife, two sons and three daughters survive him.

Cruiser Olympia's Trial.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—The cruiser Olympia, now nearing completion at the Union Iron Works, has been put on the dry dock, where the final touches to the outside of the ship will be given her in preparation for her trial trip. The required speed for this newest of cruisers is 20 knots per hour. It is confidently expected that the cruiser will make 21 knots, which will net the contractors $300,000 in addition to the contract price.

Thinks This a Great Country.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Mgr Satolli, the papal legate, has returned to Washington from an extended tour through the west and northwest. He expressed himself as being much pleased with his trip. America, he said, was a great country, of which no study of maps could give a correct idea.

Cutting Rates to Chicago.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—The Canadian Pacific railroad has made another cut in passenger rates to Chicago, New York and Atlantic coast points. The charge for first-class passage from San Francisco to Chicago is $47.

OUTLOOK BRIGHTER.

If People Will Stop Croaking All Will Be Well.

OPINION OF LOWELL MILL AGENT.

Western Railroad Men More Hopeful—Crops Better Than Average.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 4.—In regard to the shutdown of the Merrimac mills Agent Ludlum says that, for reasons connected with the management of their chemicals, it is better to run six days steady in the print works and shut down for six days, rather than to start up for three days and then close for three days.

He says that if things continue to improve as they are now doing, he hopes that when he starts the full force of help a week from Monday, he will be able to continue on steady time.

He regards the outlook as ever so much brighter than it was a couple of weeks ago, and his mills would not shut down if the goods were such that they could be stored.

The action of the people in leaving their money in the savings banks, he says, is doing much to restore confidence, and he predicts that, in a short time, matters will be in fine shape. All the papers report a better outlook, and he says that if people stop croaking all will come out right.

HOPEFUL VIEWS.

Western Railroad Men Look For Better Times This Fall.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Western railroad men are inclined to take a hopeful view of the present situation. They look for good times, beginning in September or at the latest in October.

Said President Roswell Miller of the St. Paul yesterday: "Everything depends on the financial conditions. There are good crops in our territory—better than the average, taking all crops together. There is a reasonable prospect of good prices for the crops. The people at large are not poor, and the country is in such a state, as respects its resources, as will enable it to respond with reasonable promptness to improved financial conditions. I don't mean at a bound, but steadily and healthily."

The corn roads especially are becoming more and more encouraged every day. Nothing but good reports on corn products are received at Burlington and Atchison headquarters.

President Reinhardt of the Atchison said yesterday: "I have received complete reports of the tonnage prospects from every point on our system. It is within bounds to say that we never had such a tonnage in sight. The future is all favorable, and already our tonnage is increasing. The statement for last week is more favorable than we anticipated. I believe the worst of the trouble is over."

Happy Contrast.

READING, Pa., Aug. 4.—In contrast with the general tone of depression the Carpenter Steel company of this city announces that by reason of new contracts they will put in operation 12 new crucible furnaces on Monday next and give employment to many new hands. They also announce that this week's wages, amounting to $6,000, will be paid in gold.

Body Found Floating.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Superintendent Bolan of the Charles river drawbridge this forenoon found the badly decomposed body of an unknown man floating in the water near the draw. The dead man was about 35 years of age, 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighs 150 pounds, had dark hair and mustache and was dressed in a gray mixed cutaway coat and vest, dark mixed trousers, white shirt, congress shoes badly worn and white cotton stockings. He wore no collar.

Salem Banks All Right.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 4.—The Salem bank officials claim that they have plenty of money on hand and will pay demands just as soon as they are made from depositors. Treasurer J. S. Williams of the Five Cent Savings bank says: The reason for the scarcity of small bills is to be found in the fact that all the banks all over the country are hoarding up currency in anticipation of being asked for it by depositors.

Runaway Killed a Boy.

SANFORD, Me., Aug. 4.—The horses attached to the carriage of a traveling troupe of entertainers from Philadelphia were frightened at Springvale yesterday afternoon and ran away. The carriage was upset, and a heavy trunk fell on the head of an 8-year-old boy belonging to the company, killing him instantly.

Army Worm at Work.

CROOKSTON, Minn., Aug. 4.—The dreaded army worm has been at work on the grain fields of Polk, Kilbon and Marshall counties for the past ten days, and its ravages have been frightful. Hundreds of acres have been wholly ruined by the pest, and in others the yield will not exceed five bushels per acre.

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., Aug. 4.—From some of L. T. Michener's friends here it is learned that he has taken charge of the Harrison campaign for his nomination for president in 1896, and will work systematically from Washington. Clubs are now being formed all over the state with Harrison solely in view.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Dealings in Leading Securities in Boston and New York.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—In the outside market call money is quoted at 3 to 10 per cent, and time money is nominally 6 per cent.

The stock market has two well-defined sides now. This fact appeared in the irregular opening this morning and in the see-saw movement which marked the subsequent quotations. London came ½ to ¾ higher than our close, but was only a moderate buyer. The traders made a good deal of the poor bank statement which is expected tomorrow, while the elimination of the short interest in one or two specialties removed one important element of support.

For the present the engagements of gold for import seem to have reached the limit. Boston will receive about $600,000 of the metal direct, while Lawrence banks have arranged for $100,000 for shipment thither.

In the local market Sugar opened ¾ down at 70 but advanced to 73¼, while the preferred was likewise up ½ to 78½. General Electric, on the other hand, was weaker. The opening was 2 off at 48, and the advance up to noon was only ¼. Pullman opened ½ off at 145¼, but subsequently strengthened fractionally, while Chicago Junction was down ½ to 84. Atchison manifests considerable strength, starting off at 14¼ and selling up to 15¼, while Chicago, Burlington and Quincy rose to 77. In local railroad shares, Boston and Maine started off 2 down at 140, New England ½ down at 18¼, and Fitchburg preferred ½ up at 71.

NORWICH AND VICINITY

CITY NEWS.

Misses Etta Knobler and Chris Reiss are spending a week at Block Island.

Mr. William Clark and James Lathrop and party are in camp at Massapeag.

Sunday at 9 a. m. the steamer Ella will make an excursion to Watch Hill.

Disastrous storms in the next thirty days is the weather prediction of Horace Johnson.

The annual repairs are being made upon the Preston school house, which is receiving new steps, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Bingham and Mr. L. W. Beach and family are at Eastern Point for the summer.

Mr. Duncan and David McConnell of Vineland, N. J., are making a short stay with relatives in Greeneville.

The Rev. George R. Martin of the First Presbyterian church, St. Louis, is visiting his parents on Williams street.

Friday The Boston Herald published a cut of the new sound steamer City of Lowell, and a description of the vessel.

A towering derrick, 65 feet high, was skilfully erected on the bank corner lot Friday. The boom will be 43 feet long.

Messrs. Strong and Session of the New London Croquet club practiced all day Friday on the grounds of the local organization.

Miss Daisy H. Bronson left the city Friday to spend the remainder of the summer with relatives in Providence and Fall River.

The baggage-tosser in the New London station eases his conscience by displaying in the station window the card, "Trunk straps for sale."

The race committee of the Rose of New England Wheel club met last evening and concluded necessary details for the Labor day meet at the Fair grounds.

Five quarts of huckleberries as large as small cherries, picked upon the farm of Charles Williams in southern Salem, were received by friends in this city.

Louis Lincoln of Willimantic rode on his bicycle to this city Friday, and took the boat to Fishers Island, where he will spend the summer at his father's cottage.

Mr. Cornelius McNamara went to Oakland Beach, R. I., Friday to secure a summer cottage for his family. Mr. McNamara contemplates a trip abroad this fall.

P. T. Sheehan, formerly of the French cable office in Dayville, has been appointed lineman for the local Postal Telegraph office, of which Mr. John Mulcahy is manager.

Lucas Brothers are clapboarding and repairing the old post office building at Poquetanuck, so that that ancient landmark retains but few of its familiar characteristics.

The Rev. C. C. Frost preaches regularly in the Baptist church at Whitehall, N. Y. His congregation has sold the old church building and built a new house of worship.

Ex-Captain W. H. Sexton, Jr., of the Pequot Wheel club of New London, who attended the Third regiment, C. N. G., meeting last evening, was the guest of the local wheel club while in town.

A single steer, driven in a go cart wherein sat a Ledyard farmer, was a novel sight on the Poquetanuck road yesterday. The steer seemed easy bitted, and trotted briskly through the mud.

By an addition to the statute law of the state justices of the peace and police court judges are empowered to impose a fine of 60 days' imprisonment on all vagrants and common drunkards for the first conviction, 240 on the second and 360 on the third.

A man made a dive from the raft off Ocean beach Thursday evening, but the water was pretty low at the time and he brought up on the bottom instead of rising gracefully as expected. He was considerably strained about the head and shoulders.

The Whipple family, of Quaburtown, for the past few years have devoted considerable attention to raising peaches. At the present time they have over four hundred trees, loaded down with the choicest varieties of this succulent fruit.

So many have recently frequented the Thames river bridge for fishing purposes that there has been several narrow escapes from fatal accidents. Capt. Getchell has therefore considered it best for their safety to prohibit people from gathering on the bridge hereafter.

New Haven officers have arrested a deaf mute who was selling furniture polish, glove cleaner and toilet preparations in that city. He has a circular letter of recommendation signed by "Mrs. E. M. Childs, Am. Charities of Norwich." The fellow is evidently a fraud.

The excursion steamer City of Richmond will leave New London for New York and Coney Island immediately after the arrival of the special train from Norwich at 10.30 p. m. tonight. Only a limited number of tickets will be sold, and the best of order will be the rule.

Oraan Babcock has accepted a position in the Windham National bank as bookkeeper. Mr. Babcock has been engaged as teacher for some time in the Snell Business college at Norwich and formerly had charge of the Willimantic Business college.

The Rev. Philip A. Nordell, D. D., of the Divinity school of the University of Chicago, will occupy the pulpit of the Central Baptist church tomorrow. He will preach in the morning on "Spiritual Religion," and in the evening on "The Ultimate Ground of Religious Certainty."

The captain of the City of Richmond reports to the collector of customs at New London that he observed a spar in the water about five miles E. N. E. from Watch Hill light, as he was on his way to Block Island, and noted the spar again on his return. The fact that it remained in the same place is evidence that it is attached to a wreck and is dangerous to navigation.

Mr. George H. Rice, proprietor of the Aspinock Knitting mill of Danielsonville, which was reported to have closed on account of the commercial disturbance, writes to THE BULLETIN that the statement is without foundation. He says: "I have not closed and have no intention of so doing. I have orders enough in the mill to run on all of this month, and am hustler enough to get more by the time I need them."

The Clipper ball club play the Putnams on the Greeneville grounds this afternoon, and the result is in great doubt, despite the fact that The New London Day suspects that the Norwich umpire removes every shadow of uncertainty. If the Putnams win, the home team will not give vent to their discomfiture by withholding the lawful gains of the victors, as was the case at New London early in the season.

D. W. Mack of Hartford of the Stamp Delivery Box company was in the city Friday. The unique contrivances are making themselves very conspicuous about town. They are apparently a logical solution of what has been a profitless nuisance so far as the storekeeper is concerned and inevitable requirement on the part of the public. The plan hereabouts is a novelty, and comes this way from the larger cities in the north and west, where its operation is very successful.

Farmers in this vicinity who depended on the whortleberry crop to add to their bank account will be very much disappointed this season, as the berries are very scarce. On several farms the bushes have entirely succumbed to the drouth and present a dried up appearance. The potato supply appears to be greater than the farmers anticipated, considering the dryness of the early part of the season, yet it is quite apparent that in proportion to the acreage, the yield will not turn out so well as last season, when the price paid was somewhat less than at present.

Veteran Firemen's Excursion.

The Veteran Firemen's association held a meeting Friday night, and voted to run an excursion to Watch Hill on the steamer Block Island next Thursday. They hope for a liberal patronage, as the object of the trip is to raise money to furnish the headquarters of the association in the Steiner block.

Third Regiment Officers Meet.

The officers of the Third Regiment, C. N. G., held their quarterly meeting in the armory of Company C, in the Lucas building, Friday evening. Every company was represented, and General Havens, Lieut. Col. Alary and Major La Pierre were visitors during the evening. Committee reports were received, and matters pertaining to the interests of the service were discussed.

The contract for catering for the officers during camp week was awarded to C. Pattison of this city at $13 a week.

Midsummer Fishing Yarns.

Great catches of fish are reported around Stonington. A Watch Hill man claims to have captured between 300 and 400 pounds of flounders, the largest weighing twenty-six pounds. Two youngsters from the same place landed ten bluefish that weighed eighty five pounds. A party from Mystic brought in 350 mackerel one day, and in Voluntown a man captured forty black bass, weighing seventy pounds, in one day's fishing in a pond.

THREE SLEEPERS JUMP THE TRACK

Frightful Accident on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern.

3 KILLED, 25 INJURED.

Among the Latter Were Members of the Chicago Base Ball Club.

FREMONT, Aug. 6.—A wreck occurred last night shortly after 10 o'clock at Lindsey, eight miles south of here, on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad. Three people were killed outright and fully 25 were more or less badly injured.

The west-bound Pacific express left here last night about ten minutes late. The train consisted of an engine, baggage car, 3 express cars, 2 coaches and 5 sleepers. The coaches and sleepers were well filled with people many of whom were on their way to Chicago.

At Lindsey, the train passed a local freight which had been side tracked. The express train was running at full speed and passed safely until the sleepers neared the switch, close to the freight, when the first three sleepers jumped the track and ran into the engine of the freight. The engine was wrecked and the sleepers were smashed like eggshells.

The scene that followed the collision was heartrending. The groans of the dying, the shrieks of the injured and the hissing of escaping steam combined to add horror to the scene.

Work was at once begun to render aid to the injured and those who were imprisoned in the ruins. The disaster was immediately reported and an extra left this place with several doctors for the scene. The sight that greeted the medical party was terrible. The track for some distance was covered with debris, beneath which several persons were imprisoned, and legs, hands and arms protruded here and there from beneath the ruins. The physicians at once attended to the injured, most of whom escaped with bruises and scratches. The killed are:

Ed. Lafferty, engineer of the freight train.

Charles Spass, brakeman.

Porter Robertson, (colored) of the sleeper Erie.

The seriously injured are:

Prof. Emerson of Amherst college, Amherst, Mass., chest crushed, will die.

J. A. Hamilton of Pittsburg, injured internally, perhaps fatally.

Porter Stevens, (colored)

Porter Pelham, (colored), injured internally.

A. H. West, Chicago, badly cut.

James Ryan, centerfielder of the Chicago base ball club, badly cut.

Mr. M. Kittredge, catcher of the Chicago base ball club, cut about the head and body.

Bruno Kaffler, Cleveland, injured about the head.

About fifteen of the injured after receiving surgical attention, proceeded on their westward journey on that part of the train which had escaped damage. Others were taken to the hotel Nicholson and private residences.

The bodies of the three men killed presented a sickening sight. Arms were cut off, legs torn and mangled and heads mashed out of all semblance of human shape.

Professor Emerson and Porter Pelham were extricated after a long struggle with the heavy iron braces and timbers of the sleeping car and were taken to a house in the village. Professor Emerson's case was hopeless from the start. Tonight he and Pelham are unconscious and their deaths are hourly expected.

The members of the Chicago Baseball club were in the Cleveland sleeper, which was the last on the train, and to that fact they owe much of their immunity from more serious injury. Ryan and Kittredge were cut badly and bled profusely. Other members of the team were bruised and cut, but not so as to interfere with the continuance of their journey. The track was cleared by noon today.

The Lake Shore officials have begun an investigation of the disaster. The only theory given is that the rails spread and let the heavy sleeping cars through to the ties.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 6.—Professor Emerson of Amherst college, who is reported to be fatally injured on the Lake Shore road near Fremont, was one of the ablest professors in the institute. He had charge of the department of geology and mineralogy. He was born at Nashua, N. H., in 1843, fitted for college at the Nashua high school and Tilton seminary. He was graduated at Amherst college in 1865 and studied abroad five years, receiving the degree of Ph. D. at Gottingen in 1870. Since that time he has been connected with Amherst college, having been appointed professor in 1872. He was married and has four children.

Willimantic Burglars Bound Over.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., Aug. 6.—William Arnold and Fred. Harcourt, aged 17 and 16 respectively, were arrested Saturday, charged with burglarizing the residence of Harry L. Metcalf of Prince street. A quantity of clothing and other articles were stolen, together with a small amount of money. Both boys pleaded guilty this afternoon and were bound over to the superior court under bonds of $500, in default of which they went to jail.

Prominent Waterbury Man Dead.

WATERBURY, Conn., Aug. 6.—Edward L. White, secretary for the Waterbury Watch company, died here Saturday. He was 40 years of age and was prominently identified with the manufacturing interests of Waterbury and Bridgeport. He was also a well known society man, a member of the Knights Templar and the Odd Fellows. Inflammatory gout, from which he suffered for fifteen years, caused his death.

Have Not Done Anything

The Waterbury American says that the democrats cannot be blamed for the present financial and industrial troubles because they have not done anything yet. That's just the trouble. It is the fear of what they are going to do that upsets everything.—[Hartford Post.

THE INSTALLMENT PLAN.

How a Middletown Dealer Intends to Evade Its Provisions.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 6.—Since the passage of the law compelling merchants and others who sell goods on the installment plan to pay a license fee, one of Middletown's ingenious dealers has devised a plan by which he can continue the business and still not be amenable to the law.

He has issued a form of contract which stipulates that the article, which ordinarily would be considered sold, is simply rented. The contract, however, contains a clause which entitles the purchaser to be credited with the rental paid, and when a sufficient sum has been paid in, the article is presented to the party who has rented it. There is some question among those who have seen the contract whether or not it relieves the dealer from responsibility.

Railroad Employes Laid Off.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 6.—During the last few weeks the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad company has laid off about 1,000 men in this vicinity. Saturday about 1,000 more engaged in the service shops and nearby stations were cut off. More than 1,000 have been taken from the Adrian shops at Elkhart, and along the line men have been thrown out of work in all branches of the road's business. The company states that depression in business is the cause. Nearly all the roads centering in this city have also been laying off employes.

Railroad Traffic Interrupted.

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 6.—A heavy down-pour of rain in this region for two days has washed everything away. The Southern Pacific road west of here is broken in many places, seven miles being washed out beyond Deming. The Silver City train on the Santa Fe will not get in for at least two days. The Santa Fe is also broken up above Albuquerque. Yesterday there was a cloudburst south of here, in Mexico, and it is reported that several washouts have occurred on the Mexican Central.

A Generous Duke.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The duke of York has announced that it is his desire that the money collected by the seamen and mariners of the British navy and presented to him and Princess May on the occasion of their wedding be returned to the fund of the families of the victims of the Victoria disaster. If the money is not needed for the Victoria fund, it is to be invested for the benefit of the widows and other relatives of naval men dying in the service of their country.

For the Twelfth Time in Our History.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—For the twelfth time in the history of the United States congress will at noon tomorrow be convened in an extraordinary session. There will probably be little done in the house the first week, owing to the non existence of committees. The organization of the house tomorrow will take but a short time and the programme for the remainder of the day will depend entirely upon such advices concerning the message as may have previously come from the White house. It is not likely that the message will be sent in tomorrow.

Middletown's Chief of Police Dying.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 6.—Chief of Police J. C. Chapman, who went to St. Luke's hospital to have an operation performed on a tumor on his spine, is dying. The operation showed that it was no tumor, but a diseased bone in the spine. The bone was removed, but paralysis set in, and today there was a change for the worse. The chief fell two winters ago and struck his spine on a post, and this fall probably caused the trouble.

Connecticut Man's Suicide.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 6.—Wilbur S. Benedict, aged 43, steward of schooner Eliza Ross, disappeared from the vessel at 4 o'clock Saturday morning. He had been ill for some time and unable to perform his work. This preyed upon his mind and it is supposed that he committed suicide in consequence by jumping overboard. He was a native of Connecticut and had served in the schooner for two years.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 6.—Beginning tomorrow the Schuyler Electric company works will run only four days a week until business is better.

"THE RESERVOIR IS BURSTING."

20,000,000 Gallons of Water Dash Down Upon Two Dwellings.

DEATH FOLLOWS THE FLOOD.

Terrible Experience of the Families in the Path of the Torrent.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 6.—The great reservoir of the Portland Water company in the East Promenade burst this morning, letting out 20,000,000 gallons of water in the short space of fifteen minutes. The immense mass of water thus suddenly loosed dashed with mighty power upon the two houses occupied by the families of Michael Lappin and Dennis M. Conley. The buildings were crushed and four persons lost their lives, namely: Mrs. Dennis M. Conley, Miss Agnes Conley, aged 17 years, Miss Mamie Conley, aged 15 years, and James Mosely, aged 16.

Under the walls of the reservoir were two small houses each with a small stable or barn attached. The one next to the reservoir stood but a few feet from the reservoir fence and the high wall of clay and dirt loomed fifty feet or more above it. Michael Lappin, an iron moulder, lived in this house with his wife and five of his children and an adopted son, James Mosely, aged 16 years. Four of his children are very young, while the fifth is a young man.

In the next house lived Dennis M. Conley, his wife, and two daughters, Agnes and Mamie, and his son John D. and his wife. The elder Mr. Conley was away from home by night. The other members of his household were at home.

Fred Hutchins lives at No. 23 Walnut street, near the reservoir. Mr. Hutchins' household comprised yesterday morning of himself, his wife who is sick, his sister, Miss Edna Hutchins, and his wife's mother, Mrs. A. M. Jones of Lewiston.

Mrs. Hutchins was quite sick Saturday night and Miss Edna and Mrs. Jones were up about 3 30 this morning to make some coffee and attend the invalid. Very soon after arising they went out for a short walk, the morning being very beautiful in Promenade. They went down Walnut street, and as they passed by the reservoir Miss Hutchins heard a hissing noise and saw a stream of water bubbling quite forcibly from the foot of the reservoir wall. "The reservoir is bursting," cried the older woman, for she saw it and immediately she ran with all her speed to the Lappin house, aroused the inmates and then aroused the Conleys.

This done, Mrs. Jones began arousing the neighbors on the other side of Walnut street and in other localities. It was probably about a quarter to six when Mrs. Jones aroused the Lappins. The stream at that time was only as large as a man's body. The members of the Lappin family evacuated their home with fortunate celerity. In less than five minutes Mr. Lappin, Mrs. Lappin, the four babies, the older Lappin boy and James Mosely had rushed out of the house with such clothes as they could get in their haste. They took refuge on the other side of Walnut street, where a few neighbors were already arriving.

The Conley family were not so fortunate. They were warned in time, and it seems that Mrs. Conley was already up and dressed when the warning came. The younger Mrs. Conley got up in her night dress, hastily folding a wrapper about her as she went. She ran across the road and fell fainting. The older Mrs. Conley with her two daughters, Agnes and Mamie, appeared next. They were holding each other by their arms and seemed to be about to come across the street while there was yet time. But for some reason they did not go. The water was already rushing against the doorsill, and perhaps this terrified them, or perhaps they thought the house would be the safest place.

The reason will never be known but the group of horror-stricken neighbors saw them draw back and close the door just as the flood struck the house, and they perished together.

Scheme for Government Ownership of Railroads.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Since the close of the silver congress George Washburn of Boston, chairman of the eastern division of the national committee of the people's party and Dr. A. C. Fisk of Denver, Col., president of the pan-American bimetallic association, together with other prominent men of the west have been in daily consultation with the leading government officials, bankers, capitalists and railroad men of the west devising a gigantic scheme of government ownership of railroads which they think will afford financial relief to the country and make at once an issue of two of the pet planks of their platform.

Mr. Washburn will leave for Washington tomorrow to have the matter presented to congress and secure the support of western and southern congressmen.

Freight Train Breaks in Two on a Trestle.

DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 6.—A freight train on the Peoria & Eastern railroad broke in two on a trestle here this morning and the rear portion was run into by another freight. The middle span of the trestle, twenty-five cars of grain, two cabooses and an engine were destroyed. Loss, $100,000. It is asserted that fifteen men who were stealing a ride were killed, but only one body, that of a brakeman, has been found.

An Unsuccessful Mission.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Frank F. Pratt of the Chicago navy, who went abroad last June to secure foreign entries for the World's fair regatta at Lake Geneva, and also to arrange a race between the English varsity eight and Harvard or Yale, has returned accomplishing neither mission. Mr. Pratt last night said that although none of the English or French cracks are coming over this year, he has agitated the question so well that there is every probability that we shall have some aquatic visitors next season, and, unless all signs fail, an eight-oared race between the winner of the Oxford-Cambridge race on the Thames next March and the winner of the Harvard-Yale race at New London in June.

Three Acres of Property Destroyed by Fire.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 6.—Fire broke out Saturday night in a timber yard adjoining the Mersey docks, on the boundary between Liverpool and Bootle. The fire brigades worked several hours before they got the flames under control. Timber and other property covering three acres were destroyed. The loss is £180,000. The direction of the wind was away from the river, to which fact is due the safety of the shipping.

Said He Was Janitor of the Y. M. C. A.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Daniel McNeill, who said he was janitor of the Young Men's Christian association of New Britain, Conn., was in line with the drunks at the Tombs Friday. When he came up before Justice Meade, the latter said: "Why, Daniel, you were here Thursday afternoon on a similar charge, and I let you go. This time it will cost you $10." Daniel did not have the cash and he was conducted down to prison below.

THE FIFTH CONNECTICUT.

Re-Union to Be Held at Willimantic—Into Atlanta—What the Fifth Did on the Way There.

The twenty-seventh annual re-union of the Fifth regiment Connecticut volunteers will be held in Willimantic tomorrow and Wednesday. On the evening of Tuesday such of the comrades as arrive will be met by some of the committee at Grand Army hall at 8 o'clock, where old acquaintances will be renewed in an entirely informal gathering. The annual meeting of the re-union association will be held at Grand Army hall on Wednesday at 10.30 o'clock a. m., the president of the association, Sergeant William J. Noad, presiding. The re-union dinner will be served at the Hooker house at 1.30 p. m. The committee of arrangements consists of Captain John A. Bowen of Norwich, who served in Company G, Sergeant Luke Flynn, Company K, Willimantic, Sergeant Joseph Webster, Company F, of Rockville.

A correspondent from Putnam, writing of this regiment to The National Tribune, says:

The Fifth Connecticut had the honor of being the first Union regiment to march through the streets of the Gate City of Atlanta, Ga., September 1, 1864, after being under fire of the enemy 116 days continuously, holding its ground in every instance.

The old Fifth of the First brigade, First division, Twelfth and Twentieth corps (Hooker's Ironclads), built miles upon miles of breastworks and never fought behind them. It was never driven from any line of battle, except at Cedar Mountain, Va., August 9, 1862, where, having captured the key to the field, it was left unsupported and was assailed on its front, right and left flanks by a force its superior in its proportion of ten to one.

It ate hardtack and chewed sowbelly, kept count of its coffee, and served its Uncle Samuel four years and three months. It was always ready to stand up and take its medicine, always generous to a fault in giving its friends, the Johnny rebs, all of the lead pills Uncle Sam furnished to distribute to an erring foe; often on the picket-line calling to the misguided Johnny to come in out of the wet, get some coffee, and take the oath. He most always replied back and told us to "Go to ——, and put on the cover," and would punctuate his hot words with the sharp ping of a rifle-ball. He didn't seem to love his brother in those days. Yet lot of good Yankee blood was spilled to keep the old flag at the top of the mast.

The Taftville Foot Ball club held a picnic Saturday on the Ponemah Heights and was greeted with a large crowd who enjoyed themselves until midnight dancing, etc. Good music and good prompting were the main features. Ice cream and refreshments were served, and the affair was a success, both socially and financially.

Mr. Samuel Baron has returned from a visit in Fall River.

LONG ISLAND SOUND PIRATES.

They Travel in a Fast-Sailing Yacht and Defy Pursuers.

SEEN OFF NEW LONDON.

Yachts Lying at Anchor Robbed—Farmers Alongshore Terrorized.

OLD SAYBROOK, Conn., Aug. 6.—A sloop came into the river Thursday and dropped anchor. On board the craft were Deputy Sheriff Knowlton of Three Rivers, L. I., and a posse of four men, and they were looking for a gang of thieves who have been committing depredations on the north shore of Long Island.

The thieves have been seen and pursued once or twice, but owing to the fact that they travel in a swift-sailing yacht, which they handle skillfully, they have thus far escaped capture.

Wednesday night, just before dusk, the piratical craft, which is described as a black boat of about fifteen tons burthen, sloop rigged and carrying an unusually large amount of canvas, was seen off the mouth of Coeche harbor, a small inlet on the eastern side of Shelter Island. That night two yachts lying at anchor in the harbor were stripped of their rigging, sails, cables, anchors and everything moveable.

Sheriff Knowlton was told by a tugboat captain that he had seen a boat similar in rig and appearance to the one he was in search of, off New London, and the officer at once started in that direction, declaring he would never go home until he had captured the thieves.

As far as can be ascertained the crew of the robbers' boat consists of four men and a boy, and that they are desperate characters, as is shown by the fact that a week ago, when detected by a Long Beach farmer in the act of robbing his henoery, they drove him into the house at the point of a revolver.

DAMAGE BY LIGHTNING.

Street Service Completely Blocked for Five Hours—Tradesmen Lose Heavily.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—The thunder storm that visited Lynn this afternoon was not only the severest ever known but caused the most damage. The water came in torrents from the highland districts in the central part of the city tearing up streets and gullying sidewalks. In one place the walk was washed away and the street caved, leaving a hole 30 feet long and 10 feet deep. Trees were broken down throughout the city. The street service was completely blocked five hours. The lightning struck a dwelling and the morocco factory of Wm. Lummis at Wioma and the spire of the First Congregational church, causing $900 damage. Basements and cellars throughout the city were flooded. Water entered the cellars of N. Webber's morocco factory and slacked a quantity of quick lime, starting a fire, which caused a loss of $300.

Tradesmen will lose heavily, as the water flooded all basements in the central part of the city to a depth of from two to five feet. The press room of The Lynn Item, was flooded to a depth of four feet and the police station has twenty-six inches of water in the basement.

In many business blocks the water entered the skylights in the roofs, working through buildings and damaging the stocks of occupants. Cut sole and leather dealers and manufacturers lose heavily from the same cause. The estimated damage to tradesmen from flooding is about $20,000.

New Haven Cigar Manufactories Shut Down.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 6.—The leading cigar manufacturing concerns of this city have posted notices announcing to their employes that beginning with tomorrow their shops will shut down. The new system will continue at least a week. It is stated by the manufacturers that a portion of the shops will reopen at reduced wages at the expiration of that time. The cigar business has been unusually dull here for several months and the step announced today has been inevitable for sometime.

Heavy Storm at Salem, Mass.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 6.—During a shower this afternoon lightning struck a chimney on J. B. Brown's house on St. Peter street and the house was considerably shaken. There was a bad washout on the Boston & Maine, between Salem and Swampscott, it being necessary to shovel gravel in the tracks in order to allow trains to pass. The storm was the most severe of the season, and at Rowley and Wilmington great damage was done to crops.

Hailstones as Large as Marbles.

RANDOLPH, Mass., Aug. 6.—This place was visited by a terrific storm of rain, hail and wind at 5 o'clock. A barn on North Main street owned by George H. Eddy was destroyed by lightning. Hailstones as large as marbles were driven against the houses with such force as to break many panes of glass. Large trees were uprooted. There were many bad washouts on the highways. It was the most serious storm that has visited this town for years.

NORWICH AND VICINITY.

Block Island Camp Meeting.

The fourth annual gathering of the Baptist Camp Meeting association will be held in the First Baptist church, Block Island, August 19 to 27. The services will be under the care of the Rev. L. S. Brown, pastor of the church, and his helpers will be representative preachers from different sections and denominations. A steamer will leave Newport for Block Island at 1.30 daily, Sundays excepted. One will leave New London at 9.35, touching at Watch Hill, and a steamer will leave Providence Tuesdays and Saturdays at 9 a. m. The New London Northern road will give return tickets for 1 cent a mile. A notice of the meeting states that hotel board, including lodgings, can be secured for $1 and upwards per day. Vegetables are fresh, largely from the farms of the island. The same can be said of eggs and fowls. Block Island hotels take the lead in fish as to variety and quality. Many are taken from the ocean by the guests themselves and freshly served for noon or evening repast of the same day.

HE WANTED HIS MONEY.

But When He Found He Could Get It He Put It Back Again.

The savings banks of New London have not yet adopted the rule requiring notice of the depositors intending to withdraw deposits. The officials of the three savings banks in that town say that there has been no demand from their depositors on account of the financial depression. They report that a number of depositors have withdrawn money to buy stocks which are very low at the present time.

Nothing short of a heavy run would [illegible] any trouble. The only case noted of a depositor becoming alarmed was that of an Italian who had placed $300 in the Mariners'. He presented his bank book and the money was quickly counted out to him. Just as soon as he learned he could get it, he wanted to put it right back again. He lost about $7 interest by the transaction.

WHO WILL BE INSPECTOR?

Speculation as to Capt. W. H. C. Bowen's Successor at Camp Morris.

There is considerable speculation among the local members of the National guard in regard to whom the war department will detail as inspector of Camp Morris. For several years past it has been the practice of the government to send an officer to Niantic for the purpose of observing the manner in which the encampment is conducted and to instruct the men in guard duty. These officers have been required to make an extended report to the inspector general of the army for the purpose of keeping the war department informed in regard to the exact status of our state troops.

These inspecting officers have no authority over the troops and are merely the guests of the state. They have been of great assistance, however, in keeping our militia officers informed regarding the latest methods of performing the many branches of military duty.

For a year or two past Capt. W. H. C. Bowen has been detailed for this work which he performed with satisfaction to the government, the officers of the state guard and everybody save the hypocritical military expert of one of the state papers. But Captain Bowen has been ordered to his post and some one must be appointed in his stead this year.

Lights Wanted at Ocean Beach.

Cottage occupants at Ocean beach complain because that locality is not lighted during the evening. Several of the summer residents of the beach agree to furnish lights if the city of New London will erect lamp posts where they are needed.

May Walk to the Fair.

For about a week John Exley has been talking of going to the World's fair. Years ago he made his way from Nebraska to Norwich on foot, and he is now confident that he can walk from here to Chicago in ten weeks. John is about fifty years of age but his walking powers are unimpaired yet.

City Court—Holloway, Judge.

Thomas Riley was found guilty of drunkenness in city court Saturday morning, and fined $1 and costs, $8.38. Riley was committed.

The continued cases against John Bloom and River Lake, charged with disturbing the peace, were settled upon payment of costs, $17.33 each.

Some of Them from Norwich.

The New London Day of Saturday published an extended description of Sheriff Frank Hawkins' rogues' gallery, and in conclusion says: "In the gallery are several young gentlemen of New London and Norwich that the sheriff has an idea may sometime do something to make them more prominent. These are in a portion of the album called the apprentices' department. The individual who graces this part are known to local police as "bad ones," or suspicious characters, ready to do a job if the opportunity offers."

The John Paull Stripped.

Schooner John Paull, which was wrecked last winter on the southern coast of the state, is now a dismantled hulk. For six months the stranded vessel has withstood the waves that have constantly beat against her sides. Tuesday and Wednesday of last week the big New Bedford tug Right Arm was alongside the Paull engaged in the work of stripping her. The towering masts, the heavy anchors, the many blocks and chains were all pulled out and placed on a lighter. The work is finished and this ends the history of the John Paull. She will lay for years, possibly, without breaking up, but the once famous coaster will no longer be an object of interest.

EXHAUSTED TROUT BROOKS.

To Restock Streams With Yearling Trout in Preference to Fry.

With the coming of fall, local fishermen are beginning to talk of the prospects of trout fishing in Connecticut streams. The majority of these streams are posted and the good fishing depends almost entirely on the stocking of the streams. The different methods of stocking these streams are topics of general interest. Game Warden Collins was seen by a Hartford Post reporter. He was perfectly willing to give his ideas on the subject. He is an enthusiastic believer in the introducing of yearling trout into Connecticut streams and feels confident that the result would be far more satisfactory than the present methods of cultivating trout fry.

"My views," said Mr Collins, "are that far better returns would be assured from the introduction of yearling trout in our streams than from trout fry. This well-known belief is steadily gaining ground everywhere. Yearling trout can be cheaply reared on artificial food and easily protected from turtles, piscivorous snakes, minks, kingfishers and other insidious enemies, while minnows and frogs are ever ready to add trout fry to their bill of fare.

"Yearling trout possess many advantages over trout fry owing to the fact that they are sufficiently large to war on the enemies of trout fry, and this should determine their selection for the stocking of our trout streams by our fish commissioners.

"Dumping trout fry in large lots into our streams without a due regard for their food supply is not fish culture—it is flinging away treasures. Yearling trout can forage far better for their food than trout fry.

"The difference in regard to the transportation of yearling trout against trout fry is of very small importance. I am satisfied that successes which have attended the method of rearing trout fry to yearlings in protected pools, and then properly planted is the true principle of trout culture—in the future."

Y. M. C. A. WHARF MEETING.

Frank Lawrence of New York Addresses an Audience of Men.

Mr. Frank Lawrence, superintendent of the Wilson Memorial home, New York city, addressed the sixth of the series of meetings under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. on the wharf Sunday afternoon. A service of song, led by Mr. James L. Case, preceded the address of the speaker. A male quartet, composed of Messrs. Burchard, Smith, Rich and Yeomans, rendered acceptably the selections: "You Will Need Them All the Way," and "We've Sighted the Golden Gate."

Mr. Lawrence's address was an earnest appeal to the unconverted. He showed that no man is saved until he humbly repents before God and accepts the salvation from sin which Jesus Christ extends to him, and without which there is no hope of external life. As a forcible conviction he cited his own experience previous to October 6, 1886, when he first was converted at a meeting in the old Water street mission in New York.

Rev. Leonard Woolsey Bacon will address the wharf meeting next Sunday.

PREPARATIONS FOR CAMP.

Large Force of Men at Work at Niantic.

Captain George A. Cornell, of the quartermaster-general's office, and a force in all of about thirty men are busily engaged at the state camp ground, preparing the camp for the brigade, which will live there from August 21 for six days. The camp has been geometrically laid out, all the tent floors are in position and the men have begun to put up the tents. In all about 1,100 tents will be erected, of which twenty-five are new improved [illegible].

Bean of Hartford will cater for Governor Morris and staff, the brigade staff, the officers of the brigade signal corps, and the legislative military committee, the members of which propose spending the week in camp.

THE NATIONAL CROQUET MEET.

The Invitations Out—The Players That May Be Expected—Enthusiasm All Along the Line—A Grand Contest Expected.

The invitations to the croquet giants of the country to come to Norwich for the twelfth annual meeting of the National Croquet association have been sent out, and one week from today they will begin to gather in "the Rose of New England" to test their skill and make whatever improvements in the game the experiences of the past year may have suggested.

The association's grounds, with the new buildings ready for use and the grounds built upon the Philadelphia plan by Mr. Noyes F. Meech, may confidently be expected to be more attractive than ever, and to afford much more satisfaction to skillful players than the grounds gave last year.

The Cottage city "contingent" are now at Martha's Vineyard knocking the balls around and getting ready to meet the stalwarts from other fields in friendly contests; and somehow this "contingent" furnishes a champion more than half of the time.

There is not a great change in the personnel of the players from year to year. It may be confidently expected that Prof. Charles Jacobus and E. F. Fay of Springfield, Mass., E. S. Barrett, James Barrett and Dr. Davenport of Northampton, Mass., George S. Burgess and G. A. Gammon of Lynn, Mass., W. A. Preston, E. F. Spaulding and H. N. Spaulding of Townsend Harbor, Mass., Howard T. Crawford of Woburn, Mass., Edgar R. Downs of Weymouth, Mass., and Fred G. Parry of Newtonville, Mass., George W. Johnson, Charles Greenslit, Joseph Bilbrough and Joseph Adamson of Philadelphia; C. A. Marsh, D. B. Frisbie, H. G. Fay, Philip H. Germond, Abner B. Holly and C. H. Bottsford of New York; F. Driver of Staten Island, N. Y.; Dr. C. Knecht and Wm. Knecht of Mattawan, Gus Maurer of Keyport, N. J., and Mr. Stout and G. S. Van Wickle of New Brunswick, N. J., R. C. Strong of New London, L. G. Williams of Mansfield Center, W. H. Apgar of Trenton, N. J., E. M. Baldwin and S. A. Barnum of Danbury, D. D. Butler of Middletown and many others who by repeated visits have become as familiar to the frequenters of the association's grounds as any fixture upon them, will be here, and they will all be cordially welcomed by personal friends. The Norwich ex-champions and favorites will be upon the grounds, and the local club will be represented in the contests.

Reports show that the old clubs have made an increase in membership the past year, the enthusiasm for the game is greater all along the line, and the two hundred and fifty to three hundred tournament games will be played with unusual zest in the five days following the 14th inst.

President N. L. Bishop is giving his attention to the preparations for the meeting, and everything will be done to make the visit of the delegates pleasant. The players are to be divided this year the same as last into four grade divisions, with four first and four second prizes of equal value.

The clubs belonging to the association are the Springfield, Florence, Norwood, Townsend Harbor, Malden and Cottage City clubs of Massachusetts; the Norwich, New London, Danbury, Rockville and Stamford clubs of Connecticut; the Providence club, R. I., the New York, Staten Island and Gloversville clubs of New York; the New Brunswick, Keyport, Hightstown, Asbury Park and Trenton clubs, N. J.; the Quaker City and Philadelphia clubs of Pennsylvania.

George W. Johnson of Philadelphia is the present national champion, an honor he first won in 1888, and again in 1889.

The rules of last year will probably be adopted, under which the tournament games will begin at 8 o'clock on the morning of the 15th. The members of the first division will play two games each to try the skill of the players. The grounds were reduced last year in size from 30x45 feet to 36x72, and the reduced size will be continued. The borders will be two inches high and the stakes made low. The arches will be three and a half inches wide and the cage three inches and three-eighths, and the balls three and a quarter inches in diameter, giving but a quarter of an inch leeway in the arches and one-eighth in the cage. In a distance of 60 feet it can be seen that skillful shooting is required to put the balls through the wickets.

Pepys wrote in her diary that "croquet was a regal sport;" and Sir Robert Dallington described croquet in his book as "a gentlemanlike sport, not violent, and yields good occasion and opportunity for discourse, as the players walk from one mark to the other."

As played two hundred years ago the game was much more scientific than as introduced and played on grass plots in this country a quarter of a century ago; but as the game is played today it is doubtful if the "genteel folk" who played the game in Pepys' time would recognize it.

The game as introduced to America was governed by 129 rules; but these have been reduced to 59, and the 70 rules dropped are not missed by modern players.

Norwich is anticipating with pleasure the arrival of the croquet giants, and the time when croquet will be heard from in every enterprising paper in the land.

REPEAL WILL COME.

Wild Silver Talk Will Not Prevent Prompt Action.

CONSERVATIVES APPEAR AGREED.

Tariff Will Follow Silver Legislation—The President's Opportunity.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The senators and representatives who were in attendance at the Chicago silver convention have reached Washington. Notwithstanding the inflammatory speeches and indiscreet utterances of many of the delegates, the aggregate results of the gathering are regarded as satisfactory to their interests. The effect in a general way, it is conceded, will be to stimulate the champions of free coinage. They are already assuming an aggressive attitude, and talk very belligerently. The conservative elements of both parties in congress feel strong in their position, and are not disturbed by the like Governor Waite of Colorado and ex-Representative Pierce of Tennessee. The colleagues of the latter are much surprised that he should have gone out of his way to attack President Cleveland, after the consideration which he and his friends have received in his district at the hands of the administration. They say that he does not represent more than a handful of people in his section and they are Populists who are advocating all the fanatical projects of that organization.

The representatives as they arrive from the south and west are deeply impressed with the importance of prompt action in the way of legislation to relieve the business situation and restore confidence. They regard this as the first duty on the part of congress. The other questions of tariff reform and other necessary public measures can then be disposed of with deliberation. While the great mass of the majority is committed to a vigorous reform of the tariff, the conservative that, under the present condition of the country, they should move with great caution. The ravings of the silver fanatics will not work any serious influence on the conservative sentiment of congress. The chief desire among men of all shades of political opinion in congress is to learn the views of the president and what he will recommend for the relief of the country. Until his views are laid before congress, individual opinions of senators and representatives simply contribute to the volume of literature on the subject and carry very little weight. The general belief is that the president will make a presentation of the condition of affairs and the relations of silver to the financial movements of the country.

A leading Republican senator from the east, in a conversation with several Democratic senatorial friends, said yesterday that "President Cleveland has a fine opportunity to place himself in a very commanding attitude if he pursues a broad and liberal course in his forthcoming message. If he undertakes to arraign the Republican party as the authors of the silver act of 1890 he will make a mistake. The measure was passed as a compromise, with a view to satisfying the extreme silver advocates.

It Did Not Accomplish the Purpose

for which it was designed, as the free-coinage champions were not contented, and it has worked a great injury to the monetary system of the country. The president, therefore, in treating on the subject, should be very conservative. The Republican senators, outside the silver extremists, are willing to co-operate with the president and his friends in bringing about a repeal of the purchasing clause in the act of 1890.

"If the president takes a partisan view of the situation and expects to carry out the administration program, he will meet decided embarrassment from the minority in both houses of congress. The Democratic senators who favor the policy of the administration express the opinion that the president will endeavor to put this question above partisan contention. They admit that unless they can secure the support of the conservative Republican vote in both houses a satisfactory adjustment of the silver question would be impossible. The president, knowing this fact, these senators assert, will approach this subject on the line of statesmanship rather than politics. By this course they say he will also strengthen himself before the business interests and people generally throughout the country."

STOUGHTON'S GOLD FIND.

Richest Specimen of Quartz Ever Found in Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—Stoughton's gold field excites considerable interest, and Ellis Britton, on whose land it was discovered, is receiving the congratulations of all his friends.

The richest specimen of quartz is declared by Assayer L. French Smith of Boston to be worth $42.20 per ton, which is said to be more than double that of any quartz found in this state. As it would pay mining quartz like this even at $20 per ton, it will be seen that the owner has a good safe margin.

The heavy ledge at the bottom of the well will be uncovered in the confident belief that the vein may prove of large extent.

"HUSBAND YOUR RESOURCES."

Secretary Howard's Circular to Mule Spinners' Association.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 6.—Under the heading, "Husband Your Resources," Secretary Howard of the Mule Spinners' Association has issued the following circular:

Fellow Workmen—Owing to the trying times we are passing through, your committee has decided to postpone the payment of benefits under rule 21 until it can be ascertained whether the closing down of the mills is to be general or not. Rule 21 entitles members to benefits for fires, failures, breakdowns or throwing out of machinery, but it contains a provision, also, that, if there be a general closing down of the mills, or that, if the funds of the association be reduced to $5000, the rule stands suspended.

From present indications, and in view of the mills already closed and partially closed, your committee are led to believe that before the expiration of two more weeks the closing of the mills will have become general. Therefore, in taking this view of the case, they thought the wisest and fairest course to pursue was to suspend payment for the present.

The committee contends that if any members were paid now who are idle through the depression in business, all members rendered idle through the same causes during the next five or six weeks would be equally entitled to payment, even though the closing down of the mills should become general.

SOLOMON ISLANDS' PIRATES

Attack and Kill the Crew and Loot Queensland Labor Vessel.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—Advices by an Australian steamer state that a report has reached Sydney that a Queensland "labor" vessel, while engaged in recruiting off the coast of Malayta, Solomon islands, was attacked and seized by the natives. The white crew was killed and the vessel looted and burned to the water's edge.

The first intimation of the affair was brought to Noumea by the "labor" vessel Lady Stanbyn, which had fallen into company with another vessel that had natives on board who were aware of the circumstances.

The plan adopted by the chief at Malayta was to decoy the vessel to a certain place on the coast on promise of supplying a number of recruits. This was done after he had ostensibly shown his friendship by putting on board a number of natives.

On the arrival of the vessel at the rendezvous she was surrounded by armed canoes, and her crew quickly dispatched by the combined forces of natives afloat and those already taken aboard.

QUESTION OF SALARY

Inspector Dean of Haverhill Unable to Do His Full Duty.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 6.—The large increase in the number of cases of tuberculosis reported to the cattle commissioners has led Chairman Lyman of the board to visit this city. He has notified Inspector Dean that he intended to stamp out the scourge of tuberculosis which has affected cattle all over the state and ordered him to make a minute examination of each and every case here in this city.

With the compensation now given him by the city, $250 per annum, Inspector Dean claims he is unable to attend strictly to these cases owing to the other duties coming under his office and which command his attention.

The salary is insufficient, he claimed, and has so informed Chairman Lyman. The latter declared that he would hold the city responsible.

Inspector Dean intends to present a communication at the next meeting of the aldermen covering the facts of the case, and if they refuse to increase the salary he will tender his resignation.

HILL FOR FREE COINAGE.

Preparing a Bill and a Speech Upon the Vital Subject.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—A special to The World from Albany, says: Although Senator Hill declines to talk about silver, his friends say that his thoughts are concentrated upon the subject, and that he is hard at work upon a free coinage bill to be introduced at the coming session, and upon a speech in support of it.

It is understood that his measure will aim to establish free bi-metallic coinage as it existed prior to 1873, and that instead of the present ratio of 16 to 1, the senator will advocate a ratio of 15 1-2 to 1. This would permit anyone having 301 3-4 grains of silver to take it to the United States mint and receive in return one silver dollar.

OSAGE INDIANS RICH.

They Refuse to Sell Their Acres That They Bought and Paid For.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Aug. 7.—The Osage Indians have refused to treat with the government commission for the cession of their reservation of nearly 2,000,000 acres to the government, and the commissioners will return to Washington in a few days.

These Indians have $15,000 in cash and over 1000 acres of land for every man, woman and child in the tribe, and do not care to be crowded by the white people.

Their reservation lies across the eastern end of the Cherokee strip, and as they bought and paid for it and hold a deed therefor, it will be probably many years before they will agree to part with any of it to white settlers.

Lowest Price in Forty-Five Years.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6.—The closing of the silver mines has not so far had the stimulating effect on the lead market that was looked for. Friday lead sold at $2.97 1-2, the lowest price touched in 45 years. The cause assigned is the financial depression. Buyers are purchasing as little as possible, and as large stocks are on hand and shippers are anxious to obtain money, a decline resulted.

Will Be Colonel Dodge.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 6.—The colonelcy of the Eighth regiment will probably fall to Lieutenant Colonel Charles L. Dodge of Beverly. His election is practically assured by the announcement Saturday morning of the retirement from the field of Captain Philip Little of Salem, who was the only remaining candidate, Colonel Kesler having withdrawn previously.

Heavy Chicago Failure.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—James H. Walker & Co., dry goods, Saturday confessed judgment on a note for $5695, and made formal application for the appointment of a receiver. So far as developed the suspension of business involves $2,000,000.

Paying Help in Gold.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 6.—The paymasters of some of the mills report that they are unable to get small bills from the banks and are paying some of the operatives in gold.

Office Holder Resigns.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—Another important position is vacant in Boston. Frank E. Orcutt, collector of internal revenue, sent his resignation to the president Saturday morning to take effect at the president's pleasure. Mr. Orcutt's resignation was asked for about a week ago by the treasury department, but he did not receive his official notice till Friday.

Declared Insane.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 6.—George Fletcher, one of the best known citizens of this city and state, was yesterday adjudged insane after an examination by Drs. Frederick Perkins and C. F. Flanders. He will be committed to the state asylum for the care of the insane at Concord.

Choctaws Get Another Respite.

WILBURTON, I. T., Aug. 6.—The nine Choctaw Indians who were sentenced to be shot July 7 for the murder of several members of the Jones faction, and who were respited by Governor Jones until Aug. 4, have been granted a further respite of one month.

Thieving Clerks Caught.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 6.—Charles Gallagher and Andrew Anderson, two clerks, employed by Quinn, Woodland & Co., pleaded guilty in the district court Saturday morning to charges of larceny and were held in bonds of $500 each for the grand jury. They have been engaged in a scheme of systematically stealing shirts, drawers, collars and cuffs from the firm, and it is believed that their peculations amounted to $300.

New Bedford Bank Closes.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 6.—The New Bedford Safe Deposit and Trust company which is neither a national nor a savings bank, closed its doors just before noon Saturday. It was incorporated in 1888 with a capital stock of $100,000. No statement has as yet been given out. It is officially stated that depositors will be paid dollar for dollar.

England Has a Shake.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—An earthquake shock was felt in the Charnwood forest district, eight miles from Leicester. The shock was also felt in Leicester, but less distinctly.

MOTHER SONG.

Soft sleeps the earth in moonlight blest;
Soft sleeps the bough above the nest;
O'er lonely depths the whippoorwill
Breathes one faint note, and all is still.
Sleep, little darling. Night is long—
Sleep while I sing thy cradle song.

About thy dream the drooping flower
Blows her sweet breath from hour to hour,
And white the great moon spreads her wings,
While low, while far, the star earth wings.
Sleep, little darling. All night long
The winds shall sing thy slumber song.

Powers of the earth and of the air
Shall have thee in their mother care,
And hosts of heaven, together pressed,
Bend over thee, their last, their best.
Hush, little darling. From the deep
Some mighty wing shall fan thy sleep.
—Harriett P. Spofford in Harper's Bazar.

LOVE'S STRATEGEM.

The warm light of a July morning sun streamed through the widely opened French window of the well furnished breakfast apartment of a large villa residence at Dulwich, named "The Cedars."

The inhabitant and owner of this residence was a widower between 50 and 60 years of age, a building contractor, named Grubber. His ward and niece, Miss Eva Vernon, and four female servants resided with him.

Mr. Grubber was a hard, stern man, a self made man he called himself, whose wife soon after his marriage had come into a fortune of £50,000, which enabled her husband to rise from the position of a builder's foreman to that of a master builder and contractor.

At the time at which this story is opened Mr. John Grubber, whom all his acquaintances and employees would insist upon calling Mr. Money Grubber, had amassed a large fortune and had been a widower for 20 years.

Ten years after his bereavement his only sister, Mrs. Vernon, died, leaving him the guardian of her only daughter, Eva, a child then of 10 years of age and possessing a fortune of £30,000 in her own right.

Hard, stern man that he was, John Grubber did his duty to his ward, and it was not till she had reached the age of 18 that she left school to become the mistress of her uncle's establishment at Dulwich.

It was a strange contrast that the uncle and niece presented on this beautiful morning in the month of July as they sat at breakfast some two years after her home coming to her uncle's house.

At one end of the table sat the man of business perusing the market article in the morning paper, his iron gray hair standing erect on his head, his heavy eyebrows contracted over his small, dark, piercing eyes, and his iron bound chin extended by his tightly pressed and spasm puckered lips.

Eva, who sat opposite to him in her neat morning wrapper, with a wreath of uncoiled golden hair falling over her smooth white neck and shoulders, seemed to have fixed her liquid eyes on space while she toyed aimlessly with her spoon in the cup.

Her thoughts were certainly not with her immediate surroundings, or she would not have started so violently or colored so deeply when her uncle exclaimed in his sharp, gruff voice:

"Confound it, bricks have gone up 3 shillings a thousand, and I have just taken that big contract for the new board school."

"What did you say, uncle?" asked Eva, shaking off the reverie into which she had fallen.

"Say," replied the other testily. "I said bricks had gone up and sand and lime are bound to follow. I shall lose a thousand pounds on the job."

And the old gentleman flung the paper down on the breakfast table and rose to his feet.

"I must be off at once," he said, "and find out if all the yards have raised their prices, and if not I must secure the lowest at once before they follow suit."

"But you have not eaten your toast or drank your coffee, uncle," said his niece.

"Bother the coffee; hang the toast," he cried. "Those who have not yet quoted so high are sure to do so when they see the paper. I must go at once."

"I'm so sorry, uncle," said Eva as he stood in the doorway. "I did so wish you to be at home this morning. I thought perhaps"——

"You must do your thinking while I'm gone," he interrupted. "It is only fools who think; sane people act. If I had stopped to think as women do, I should not have been the successful man of business I am. There, I cannot stop, not a minute. Confound it, confounded! Only to think that the very day after I signed that contract that bricks should advance 3 shillings a thousand, and I cannot do with less than 1,000 loads."

He dashed open a side door that led into the hall, and the next moment Eva Vernon, standing, with one white hand on the breakfast table, and her face, with a half pained expression upon it, turned toward the doorway through which he had passed, heard her uncle exclaim in sharp, angry tones:

"Jane, fetch me a cab. I cannot wait for the brougham. There, if you must wait to put your hat and boots on, I'll get one myself."

And then Eva heard the front door bang, and she knew that her uncle had gone.

She sank down upon her chair with a sigh, and with her clasped hands resting upon the edge of the table she said:

"How unfortunate that anything should have occurred to annoy uncle this morning. I had hoped so to be able to keep his irritable temper in abeyance till Arthur had told him the story of our love and implored his consent to our union."

* * * * * * *

"What, weeping, dear Eva?"

It was a rich, manly voice that uttered the words as its possessor strode through the open French window into the room.

Eva, whose forehead had sunk down upon her clasped hands, looked up and with a glad cry caught the extended hand in both her own.

"Arthur!" she said.

"Yes, darling, it is I, your ever devoted lover. But why are your lovely eyes moist with tears. What has occurred to distress you? Has your uncle been angry with you?"

"Not with me, Arthur," she replied as he placed his arm around her waist and gently touched his lips to her forehead. "He saw something in the paper that annoyed him, and he has gone away in hot haste and in anything but a good temper, and I could not but feel how unfortunate that anything should occur to upset him on the very morning when we arranged that you should submit to him so momentous a question as to his consent to my becoming your wife."

"Nothing could be worse," said Arthur, his handsome face paling slightly. "But still we will hope that business matters will not affect his feelings toward you or his willingness to enhance our happiness. Besides, my darling Eva, his anger will doubtless have evaporated on his return."

"I pray it may," replied Eva, smiling up in the face of her lover, "for I should be so unhappy if he dashed our hopes to the ground."

"How happy, my darling, you make me feel to hear you say so, since it proves, if proof I needed, how dearly you love me."

"Did you ever doubt it, Arthur?" she said as she wound her arms around his neck and fixed her blue eyes upon his [illegible].

"Forbid it, heaven, never for an instant!" he cried as he drew her to his breast and kissed her cheeks and lips. "I have loved you long, loved you dearly, and come what may I shall love you to the last."

Her head sank upon his breast, and as the young man pressed his lips and cheeks upon that wealth of golden hair the figure of John Grubber, the contractor, strode to the long open window and stood between its panels, gazing with thunderstruck amazement upon the young couple so fondly folded within each other's arms.

It took him some moments to command himself sufficiently to speak, and when he did so his voice was tremulous and husky with passion.

"What in the name of fury," he cried, "does this mean?"

And as he spoke he strode into the center of the apartment.

Startled by the tones the lovers started from out of each other's embrace, and with her face and neck crimsoning to the hue of a peony Eva gave utterance to a gasping cry, and covering her face with her trembling hands hurried from the room.

"What," almost shouted the irate contractor, "is the meaning of this scene upon which I have come so unexpectedly and I have no doubt so unwelcomely? Since my ward has fled in shame from my presence perhaps you, Mr. Arthur Linton, will inform me of the reason of your presence here and the strange position in which I have surprised you?"

"Mr. Grubber," said the young man calmly, "when I entered this apartment a short time since I came to see you, but found instead one I have long loved, and one whose own lips have assured me more than once that my passion is reciprocated, that my love is returned."

"Indeed," sneered Grubber.

"Yes, sir," returned the other, paying no heed to the sneer. "And I came here this morning with the full permission of your charming niece to inform you that we have long loved each other and to ask your consent to permit me to make her my wife, a happiness that we have long looked forward to, and which I am sure will never, either upon her part or mine, be dimmed by sorrow or regret."

"In plain words, you came to ask my consent to your espousal of my ward and niece," said Mr. Grubber.

"I did," was the reply.

"And pray, what have you to urge as an inducement to me to grant your request?" asked Mr. Grubber.

"That myself and Miss Eva have long loved each other; that my position in society is respectable; that my income from a high class business, though small at present, will increase with time and perseverance, and that no man could make her a more tender and devoted husband than myself."

"That you are honorable, respectable and a rising member of a noble profession I am willing to admit, but that is not all I shall require, Mr. Linton, to induce me to give my consent to my niece's marriage with you or any other. My ward has £30,000 in her own right, and with such a dowry no man shall marry her who does not possess 10 times as much when he leads her to the altar. When you can show me that your income can be counted by as many thousands per annum as it is now counted by hundreds, I may feel disposed to listen to your prayers, but till then, Mr. Arthur Linton, my ears are deaf alike to your pleadings and hers. No words. I will not listen to them. Our interview is ended. Good morning."

"Sir," said Arthur, "I learned from your niece that business had somewhat upset you this morning, and as I cannot but feel that some annoyance under which you at present suffer may have much to do with your present answer to my suit I will not accept it as final, but urge my prayer again when you are calm and will be more willing to study the happiness of your niece and one who so truly loves her."

* * * * * * *

Two days after Mr. Grubber sat alone in the breakfast room, when a servant entered with a visiting card upon a salver, which she presented to her master, saying:

"The gentleman desires to see you, sir, upon most important and urgent business."

"I am not acquainted with the gentleman's name," said Grubber, looking at the card, "but as he says his business is urgent show him in and tell Miss Eva that I am engaged for a time."

The servant retired and in another minute ushered in a tall gentleman attired in black broadcloth, with the unmistakable appearance of a man connected with the law, and evidently about 50 years of age.

Grubber rose and placed a seat for his visitor, who took it with a polite bow.

Placing a bundle of papers tied round with narrow red tape upon the table, the visitor, whose card announced him to be Mr. Parchment Wills of the firm of Wills & Draft, solicitors, Chancery Chambers, looking full at the contractor, said:

"Sir, you will doubtless wonder why an entire stranger to you has sought this interview, and in explanation I must inform you that our firm have for the past two years been engaged in seeking out a young man who evidently, quite unknown to himself, is the actual heir to no less a sum than £1,200,000, a fortune to which he legally becomes entitled by the death of an uncle, a wealthy landowner and stock raiser in Australia. In the course of our inquiries we have been led to hope that you might be able to give us some clew to the whereabouts of this fortunate individual, who, upon establishing himself to be the son of one Arthur Linton and his wife Maria, long resident in College street, Cambridge, but since dead, will be able to claim being considered a millionaire."

"What name did you say?" asked Grubber, leaning forward toward his visitor.

"The full name of the young man we are so anxious to find is Arthur Barton Linton, his father's sister having married a Joseph Barton, after whom young Linton was named. My object, sir, in coming to you is that our firm has discovered that you were in years gone by acquainted with the Lintons, and, furthermore, we had been informed that he was believed to be an occasional visitor at your house. If, sir, we have been misinformed, I can only crave your pardon for my intrusion upon you."

"You are quite right, sir," said Grubber. "I was acquainted with the Lintons of Cambridge during their lifetime, and I remember that I have heard that the sister of my old friend was married to a man of the name of Barton, with whom she emigrated to Australia soon after her marriage, and I have occasionally seen young Linton, coming in contact with him in the course of business, he having occasionally submitted to me plans of buildings for which I have contracted."

"Then you can give me his address?" cried the other eagerly.

"That, sir, I regret I am unable to furnish," said Grubber, the falsehood tinting his sallow cheeks with red. "But now I remember the young man has promised to submit some plans to me in the course of a few weeks with respect to a large building I am about to erect, and I think, sir, that to save yourself further trouble and expense in your search we had better wait till he lays these plans before me, when I can tell him that if he calls upon your firm he may hear something to his advantage."

"Perhaps so, sir," said Mr. Wills, rising and taking up his bundle of papers. "We are now assured of his existence and of the large commission which of course we charge. But that deducted Arthur Barton Linton will still be a millionaire, the envy of his own sex and the admiration of the ladies. Lucky dog. Ah, Mr. Grubber, how I wish you and I were as fortunate as this young fellow, whose future position will afford him all the pleasures and luxuries of life! You will not fail to send him, sir, to us, and now, apologizing for taking up so much of your time, I will bid you good day."

Mr. Grubber bowed his visitor out and then sank into his chair.

"Arthur Linton, the suitor for my ward's hand, a millionaire," he muttered. "Ah! that I had known this two days ago; how different then would have been my answer to him!"

As he rose and thoughtfully paced the room Arthur and Eva entered the apartment.

"Sir," said Arthur, "I have come for the last time to ask your permission to wed your niece. For your consent she joins her prayers to mine. It rests with you, sir, whether our future lives are to be rendered happy or miserable."

"Uncle," said Eva, throwing herself at his feet, "by the memory of your own love, by the thought of what you and my dear aunt would have suffered had my grandfather refused his consent to your union, I conjure you to have pity on those who love as truly and purely as did yourselves, and by your consent make your niece and Arthur happy."

"Well, well, my darling Eva," he said, taking her hand in his own, "far be it from me to cause you pain. I have been thinking and have come to the conclusion that perhaps after all I was selfish in desiring to keep you always with me. It is but natural for man and woman to love and to wed. I will no longer be a stumbling block in the path of your happiness. Take her, Arthur; she is yours."

With a glad cry the lovers sprang to each other's arms.

"Yes, she is yours," said Grubber, "and now take my advice. Get a special license and get married as soon as you can, for if I get another twinge of the confounded gout your wedding may be long delayed."

* * * * * * *

A week later, as Mr. Grubber drew on his white kid gloves, he said:

"I expect a gentleman here this morning—Mr. Parchment Wills. Show him into the drawing room. Now, my dear, I am ready."

Eva, veiled for her bridal, placed her hand on his arm, and he led her to the carriage which was to convey her to the church.

Half an hour later she returned home, hanging on her happy husband's arm.

On entering the drawing room with his guests Grubber found a letter awaiting him.

Opening it, he read:

SIR—We find we have been for two years on the wrong scent. The real claimant to Barton's fortune has come forward, proved his right to the money and enriched by £100,000 the firm of Wills & Draft.

"Sold, by heaven!" gasped Grubber as he crushed the letter in his hand and strode from the room.

"Darling," said Arthur as he drew his wedded bride closer to him, "what greater fortune can I possess than the loving heart I have won by a lover's stratagem."—Exchange.

An Odd Form of Courtship.

Mr. Mortimer Menpes, the artist, traveling in the east in search of subjects, has come upon a curious form of courtship. Sketching one day in Burmah, he noticed a man a little distance off glaring fiercely straight ahead of him at some object he could not see from his position. The man sat with the same fixed glare the whole afternoon and was at it again next morning. Mr. Menpes had the curiosity to ask an English visitor what it meant. The reply was, "Oh, he is in love!" And it was explained that this was their method of courtship.

The object of the man's attentive gaze was a girl in a neighboring bazaar. When a young man falls in love, he has to seat himself at a certain distance from his adored one and wait for her to do the rest. If she looks in his direction once or twice on the first or second day, he is wildly encouraged, and if on the third day she nods to him and smiles it is time to go to the parents with reference to the marriage settlements.—London Tit-Bits.

HIS NOTIONS CHANGED.

Why He Didn't Agree With His Friend on the Subject of Vacations.

A little bunch of well known business men were gathered by chance in front of the Lindell hotel. They stood there for some time discussing politics and enjoying the sunshine. Finally, as they were about to separate, one of the group noticed that the overcoat pocket of his vis-a-vis was crammed with railway maps, steamers' guides and time tables.

"I say, Charlie," he said, "why are you collecting all that rubbish? Planning a vacation?"

"Yes," he answered. "Same old thing every year. Go somewhere—go somewhere. I think sometimes I'd rather take my family out here on the Meramec, live in a tent and fish. But no, it's fashionable to hurry away on long and tedious journeys, stop at stuffy hotels, rush through a maze of nonsense and then rush home dead tired, weary, half sick and altogether footsore. The very contemplation of it tires me."

"Why don't you stop it then?" said the questioner.

"Rather a difficult thing to do, I should judge—when your family plans the campaign."

"Do as I did. It just took me three years to accomplish it, and now I live in peace. On our first summer vacation, which was by rail, I devoted my spare time to reading aloud the statistics, and descriptions of horrible accidents on railroads. At the hotel I brushed up on all the hotel conflagrations since watering places were invented and mentioned them in detail upon all possible occasions. It was a most exasperating and uncomfortable experience for all concerned, I can tell you, but it worked. Next summer, when the vacation business came up, I merely asked if we were going over the same route as before and was met with a most unanimous and emphatic chorus of noes. They were afraid of railroads and hotels, and so they compromised on a long trip by steamboat up and down the river, because it would be entirely safe.

"I prepared myself again, and when the boat moved out I had in my stateroom a couple of books which portrayed in the most heartrending manner the blowing up of almost every steamboat that ever ran the river. These I dragged out and read with much unction and deep pathos. In the holy calm of the summer evenings, in the glorious blush of the sunlit mornings, I read 'em aloud until we were all afraid we would never get home alive. Well, sir, it was awful! The horrors of those days and nights are with us yet. Next summer I suggested the beauties of a river trip, but nobody seconded the motion, and I soon learned that we were to spend a few months at a small inland resort not many miles distant from St. Louis.

"This was an unexpected flank movement, but I loaded up with statistics, and on cloudy evenings I would lie in the hammock of the resort and tell my family how cyclones are formed and show them how they rush up the valley and sweep resorts from the face of the earth. I was compelled to manufacture a few facts in order to prove that cyclones had a special fondness for summer boarders, but the scheme worked like a charm. We came home a month in advance and have never gone anywhere since. Say, old man, you don't know how I enjoy life now with a week or two in the woods with my fishing and hunting club. It's a great scheme."

And the ugly man laughed a harsh, discordant, exasperating laugh.

Nobody said anything for some time. The group was thinking.

"Yes, sir-ee. It's a great scheme," resumed the ugly man. "Don't you think so, John?"

"No, I don't," said John, "and I'll tell you why. I used to have your notions of a good time, and in consequence the summer outings of myself and family were anything but pleasant. But the little woman is lying out yonder in Bellefontaine now, and when these beautiful days come along I feel as though I would give the universe for one more chance to do something for the comfort and pleasure of one who deserved so much and got so little. That's why."

And John and Charlie and the ugly man turned away without another word. —St. Louis Republic.

He Was Not an Exception.

A Detroiter of a very mild and placid temper had some business attended to, or pretended to be attended to, by a Cleveland firm, and do what he could by letter he could not get a settlement. Finally he went there in person and settled the matter.

"It's the worst I ever saw," he said in parting.

"We've attended to a good many people's business," argued the head of the firm.

"But not as you have mine."

"Yes, quite the same."

"Oh, come off," exclaimed the disgusted Detroiter. "You can't stuff that down my throat. If you had treated very many people as you have treated me, you would have been killed long before ever I heard of you," and with that burst of anger he walked out perfectly satisfied.—Detroit Free Press.

Too Much Hay.

Farm horses almost invariably eat too much hay. Many farmers have no regular ration for their horses, but throw down a forkful of hay almost every time they enter the barn. As a result many of these horses are eating from morning till night, to the manifest disadvantage of the haymow and the manifest disadvantage also of the horses, whose bodies become distended, skins dry and coats rough, while the digestive organs are thrown out of gear, so that the animal's whole system becomes impaired.—American Agriculturist.

Why Not "For Better or Worse?"

It is a Kentucky woman's idea that the coat of arms of her state ought to be changed. In place of the two men's figures with clasped hands and underneath them the legend, "United, we stand; divided, we fall," she thinks there should be the figures of a man and a woman with clasped hands, the same motto beneath.—Rochester Times.

How Times Have Changed.

"Oh, for some new coined name by which to call him! Oh, for some name no other lips could give!" was the prayer of Violet until she married him. Now she is content to call him Old Beeswax. —Exchange.

Causes of Russian Influence In Asia.

A policy led by humanitarian principles, or dictated in accordance with the taste and exigencies of a free and constitutional nation, is a sign of weakness in eastern eyes, and the English, who twice evacuated Afghanistan, without being obliged to do so, are looked upon by the Asiatic either as fools or as a nation incapable to lend sufficient power to its will. There is another fact which should not be overlooked in our comparison of England's conquests in Asia with those of her northern rival.

The exploits of the British armies on the Indian peninsula have become very little known in the Mohammedan world, for the good Moslems are in general ignorant about their coreligionists in India, but the Russian victories, trumpeted in all directions, have become the subject of bazaar gossip in the most distant regions of the east.

The fame of Russian valor having been flashed abroad it is natural that the Mohammedans, overawed, should turn their eyes toward the so called invincible enemy. Their admiration increased the more they heard of the affable and friendly manners and customs of the Russians, of whom it is said that they do not betray pride and haughtiness like the commonality of unbelievers and that there are many points of resemblance between them and the Mohammedans. There really is some truth in these assertions.—Vambery in National Review.

A Smoke Burning Furnace.

The agitation against the smoky furnaces of many of the large cities of the country has resulted in a large number of patented grates, steam jets and other devices to obviate the evil. One of the simplest of these has been designed by the chief engineer of the Rookery building at Chicago. The electric, elevator and heating plants in this large structure are necessarily of considerable size, and the boiler plant has been producing an objectionable amount of smoke. To prevent this smoke Mr. W. C. D. Gillespie, the engineer in charge, has built a furnace which has a large number of orifices in front of and over the grate. When coal is first thrown on the grates, air is allowed to have access to the flames until it is seen through a small peephole that the lightest products of combustion have been burned off.

Then one hole after another is closed until just the proper number remain open to feed the necessary amount of air to the flames. A furnace of this type has been in use for several months and is reported to have given perfect satisfaction. The use of peepholes enables the fireman to watch the character of the flame at all times, and the airholes enable more air to be admitted as soon as any smoke appears.—Exchange.

CONGRESS MEETS TODAY.

There was never an extraordinary session of congress held in this country from which the people expected more than from the session which will meet in Washington today. It is to be hoped that the president's message will be clear and definite upon the finances of the country, and that the members of congress in their order to relieve a distressed people will forget they are partisans, and act promptly and with patriotic fervor for the good of the nation.

It is semi-officially stated that the president will not in his message pay attention to any issue but the financial issue. There will be wisdom in that. The legislation necessary to put the country upon a better business basis is not the kind that can be framed and adopted in haste. It will require sound judgment, careful preparation and full and free discussion. The suggestion of the New York Chamber of Commerce that the Sherman law be repealed and a commission appointed to confer with committees representing the financial and commercial interests of the country, and to study the best financial systems extant, preparatory to making a report in December to congress, is a good one for two reasons, it is favorable to a short extra session, which is wise; and to painstaking investigation of causes, and a careful and conscientious exertion to prepare the very best monetary laws for placing the currency of this country upon a safe and permanent basis, and giving it a value and stability that will command the confidence of the world.

In view of the sectional feeling and the circumstances under which the force bill was defeated and the silver bill made a law, it is not certain that an attempt may not be made to make a similar sectional combination to force a substitute or independent measure for the Sherman law regardless of the interests of the whole people for sectional advantage, and thus the session be prolonged. It is to be hoped that the congressmen of sound judgment and good sense are so numerous that the first ballot taken will show that patriotism is above sectionalism or partisanism, and that the people have men at the helm with whom they can with confidence trust the future welfare of the country.

HELP ONE ANOTHER.

The present financial crisis has been marked by waves of strength and weakness which has made it different from any previous financial disturbance in this country, and which shows that the intelligent financiers have been doing everything in their power to hold the country from dire disaster. The spirit to combine for the public good was best illustrated by the united action of the banks of New York city, and the issuance of millions in certificates to relieve the business of the nation. This spirit has been manifested in a smaller way in all places, and the disposition of all men of means to help one another through the present crisis has put a check upon any panicky feelings which might suddenly possess the people and breed ruin everywhere.

What these wise financiers have done and are doing, all people in a way can do. Do not hoard money and make conditions worse, but pay small bills promptly and move about with confidence in the future. The man who is paying out cash now, and the bank depositor who is regarding with the confidence it deserves the institution in which his savings are deposited, and is determined to wait patiently and trustfully for better times, is helping in the work of bringing better times about.

COMMISSIONER LOCHREN'S LETTER.

The letter of Commissioner Lochren has nothing in it to cheer the democrats who improve every opportunity to assail the pensioners as "bummers and coffee coolers." He writes a fair and soldierly letter, in which he says "I certainly have too high an opinion of my old comrades to believe that any large number of them are scoundrels, who have sought and obtained pensions dishonestly." His entire letter is written in a commendable spirit.

In his defence of Secretary Smith as "the man generally misrepresented, and who has, in fact, always been more considerate and liberal toward pensioners than any of his subordinates, myself included," he is not borne out by the cases of suspension cited in the papers, and stated in detail. Commissioner Lochren cannot think that Judge Lane of Michigan is an impostor, or Private King of Cambridge, Mass., or poor old McDermott of North Carolina, all of whom were unjustly suspended, and have been libelled by the democratic press. If what Commissioner Lochren has to say in defence of Mr. Smith is true, the public will find it out by his liberal construction of the pension laws and his haste in rectifying any mistakes he may have made.

There is no fault to be found with the employment of detectives to ferret out cases, and these men should receive a kindly reception in every community. Honest pensioners have nothing to fear from any work of this kind. It is necessary work, and it is not new work. The government has employed detectives for years for this purpose. All men rated for pensions under existing laws need not be invalids, for if they have wounds, have lost an eye, a hand or their hearing, in consequence of service in the field, they are as much entitled to their pension money as Secretary Hoke Smith is to his salary. If men who are well have obtained pensions under the invalid act, the sooner they are discovered and dropped from the lists the better it will be for all concerned.

MISPLACED SYMPATHY.

Impulsive sympathy is misplaced nine times out of ten. The people appear always to sympathize with the wrong man on almost all public occasions where rogues are being taken in by force. The criminal who is resisting a police officer with number nine boots and obscene and profane lips always has the lookers on boisterous for his release, when they know, or ought to know, that the policeman is the protector of peaceable citizens and the prisoner a man who would assault them as quickly as he would assault the officers of the law. This misplacement of sympathy is unexplainable, although it is often repeated, and is always against the people manifesting it.

On Friday Boston had a case of this kind; A citizen fell asleep upon a seat in the common, and when he awoke he found a pickpocket just completing the task of relieving him of all his valuables. The robbed citizen sprang to his feet and started in hot pursuit, shouting "stop thief" as the robber fled past hundreds of stalwart men, none of whom rendered any assistance whatever. Finally a gentleman hearing the cry intercepted and captured the pickpocket, when he was surrounded by the crowd, who sympathized with the thief, and was forced to release him, although the thief had dropped the stolen watch, which left no doubt at all concerning his character or identity.

The result was that the thief escaped to sneak around and rob the first victim he might discover, while the citizen robbed was without redress and the state prison lost a convict who will, so long as at liberty, be a thieving villain. There is nothing to show that the rescuers of the pickpocket were other than decent citizens who in a moment of excitement extended their sympathy to the wrong man, defeating the ends of justice and dishonoring themselves.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Secretary Gresham feels sure that congress will waste no time. Then a short session ought to be the result.

There is plenty of small change in the treasury at Washington, state the press telegrams, which is to be had by the banks on demand.

It is a good thing that nobody wants nothing just now. If everybody wanted everything, what a dense of a time we should all be having!

Now that wool under democratic management has got down to seven cents a pound, the sheep on a thousand hills feel so ashamed that they stick to the close country. They are ranked lower than goats, and will never vote for Grover!

Wheat is so cheap out west that it is being fed to hogs. One Ohio farmer has turned one hundred and twenty hogs into his wheat field. The farmers claim that at present prices wheat will yield them in pork at the rate of a dollar a bushel. The hogs are in favor of free trade and free wheat!

The Englishmen think the Navahoe is a smart light-breeze boat. They forget that she encountered a severe storm when she crossed the ocean, and proved to be a good sea boat. When she returns for the fall races she may make better time across "the pond" than the Valkyrie.

The London Times is getting to be generous toward Americans. While it has a very poor opinion of the Navahoe, it says "it is fair to admit that we learn a great deal from the Americans." You bet! New lessons have been taught you every year since the battle of Bunker hill.

Gov. Pennoyer of Oregon thinks the government went a little too far when it contributed millions to make the world's fair a success. The government fair commissioners might send him a little telegram "to mind his own business and they will mind their'n." Pennoyer can never rise to the stature of an annoyer.

Congressman Holman, whose name stands for democratic parsimony, declares he has failed to find a man in his district favorable to the repeal of the state bank tax law, and in his opinion "it will not be repealed." When he reads the platform of his party he must see that it is committed to "wild-cat money" if he is of the opinion his party is "agin it!"

TOPICAL.

Signs of a Change.

There are many signs which seem to indicate that the sentiment in Great Britain is gradually changing in regard to the national policy of free trade. Here, for instance, is so intelligently edited a paper as The Textile Mercury giving expression to sentiments like the following: "It is getting high time that English people should begin to pay some regard to the duty of cherishing home industries, at least by careful discrimination and patronage, when they find that continental states do all they can by advocacy and legal enactment to prevent our finding outlets in their dominions."

A Reasonable Strike.

It is impossible not to feel in sympathy with a strike which recently occurred among a set of textile operatives in Bergamo, Italy. Women and girls who had been toiling for years for fifteen hours per day, and receiving as wages for their day's toil the mere pittance of 16 or 18 cents, modestly demanded that their hours be reduced to twelve and their pay increased to 19 cents. It is gratifying to know that the concession was granted. A strike of this kind, which is founded upon simple justice, is one thing, and the customary American strike, the participants in which are usually the recipients of the highest wages paid in the world, is quite another.—[Manufacturers' Gazette.

Silver.

Silver prices showed increased firmness during the week, due to the steady London demand and the disposition shown there to purchase for future delivery at current rates. This has resulted in an advance of prices from 32¼d. to 33¼d. per ounce, the New York commercial quotations rising from 70 cents to 71½ cents. The London buying is supposed to be for China. The treasury bought only 2,354,000 ounces out of the quota of 4,500,000 ounces for July, and current offerings are exceedingly light. The mint has made a new regulation requiring that where tenders of silver are accepted the bullion delivery must be made within five days instead of ten, as has heretofore been the case. Bullion certificates have been totally neglected during the week.—[Bradstreets.

STATE EDITORS' OPINIONS.

The Spell.

Navahoe is the phonetic for Navajo. Mr. Carroll, her owner, says that he prefers that the name be pronounced right rather than spelled right, and if he spelled it right half the people would pronounce it wrong.—[Waterbury American.

Increase of Interest.

The school elections in Kansas show a large increase of interest in voting, among the women—who there vote in school elections. They increased their vote 100 per cent. Kansas develops most of the new things in politics. No state shows such a widespread interest—such as it is—in politics as Kansas.—[Hartford Times.

Keep Paying the Bills.

The national treasury says it can furnish all the small money that the country needs and the lack of small bills in New York and elsewhere is accounted for on the supposition that it has been withdrawn from circulation and hoarded by small holders. This is another argument for paying all small accounts promptly. To do so sets the wheels of business moving and helps pay bills all along the line. Everyone who thus throws a little money into circulation helps to break the financial stringency and is of more account than a democratic free trade congressman trying to represent a protection district, and to prove protection "a fraud" while preserving it for the interests of his constituents.—[Bridgeport Standard.

Surrounded by Mystery!

A GREAT MISTAKE.

A recent discovery is that headache, dizziness, dullness, confusion of the mind, etc., are due to derangement of the nerve centers which supply the brain with nerve force; that indigestion, dyspepsia, neuralgia, wind in stomach, etc., arise from the derangement of the nerve centers supplying these organs with nerve fluid or force. This is likewise true of many diseases of the heart and lungs. The nerve system is like a telegraph system. The little white lines are the nerves which convey the nerve force from the nerve centers to every part of the body. Just as the electric current is conveyed along the telegraph wires to every station, large or small. Ordinary physicians fail to regard this fact; instead of treating the nerve centers for the cause of the disorders arising therefrom they treat the part affected.

Franklin Miles, M. D., LL. B., the highly celebrated specialist and student of nervous diseases, and author of many noted treatises on the latter subject, long since realized the truth of the first statement, and his Restorative Nervine is prepared on that principle. Its success in curing all diseases arising from derangement of the nervous system is wonderful, as the thousands of unsolicited testimonials in possession of the company manufacturing the remedy amply prove.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine

is a reliable remedy for all nervous diseases, such as headache, nervous debility, prostration, sleeplessness, dizziness, hysteria, sexual debility, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy, etc. It is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid.

Restorative Nervine positively contains no opiates or dangerous drugs.

BREEZE WAS LIGHT.

Navahoe Easily Defeats the Scotch Calluna.

WEATHER SUITS THE AMERICAN.

Led the Rival Craft from Start to Finish —A Winner by Four Minutes.

COWES, Eng., Aug. 6.—The Royal Southampton Yacht club started its regatta Saturday at 10 o'clock in a moderate breeze. The match was a private one between the Navahoe and the Calluna.

The boats sailed a course of 42 miles, starting from Netley, three miles southeast of Southampton, down Southampton water to and around a mark boat anchored off Lymington, thence to and around the Warner lightship, at the east end of the Isle of Wight, and return.

There was some splendid jockeying between the skippers at the start, but young Barr got the best berth and sent his boat, the Navahoe, away in the lead.

The Navahoe, immediately after crossing the line, began to open up on the Calluna, and at the end of 18 miles from the start, the Carroll boat was three minutes ahead of the Scotch cutter.

The Wind Just Suited the Navahoe and in the moderate breeze she sailed very fast. When off Ryde she was 6m. 40s. ahead of the Calluna; then 27 miles of the race had been sailed. The performance of the Navahoe shows conclusively that she is a light and moderate weather boat.

The Navahoe continued to open up on the Calluna and at 2 o'clock she was heading for Netley and leading the Calluna by almost 10 minutes.

The wind held moderate and true all through the race, and there was not quite enough to suit the Scotch cutter while the conditions were most favorable to the Carroll boat.

The Navahoe sailed a good race and finished a winner by about a mile and a half ahead of the Calluna.

She has to allow the Calluna about three minutes, and on corrected time this will bring down her lead to about four minutes.

INJURIES MAY BE FATAL.

Tramp Given Food by John Riley Returns and Assaults His Benefactor.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Aug. 6.—John Riley, who tends the Highfield crossing on the Boston and Maine railroad, was assaulted a few nights ago, and his injuries are more serious than at first reported.

A tramp called at his cabin about 5 o'clock in the afternoon and asked for food. His request was granted, and shortly afterward he went off.

Later Mr. Riley was called into Newburyport, and on returning, about 7 o'clock, met the man whom he had befriended two hours before. The tramp attacked the gate tender, inflicting severe wounds on the head with a club, robbing him of $8 in money and attempting to get his watch. The chain was twice broken in the scuffle, but the watch was not taken.

The affair happened in Newbury, but the Newburyport police department were notified and search was made for the highway robber, but without success.

It has been ascertained that the assailant was in this city on the afternoon previous to the assault. He drank at several saloons and departed without settling.

Mr. Riley is well along in years, and has been a faithful servant of the Boston and Maine for a long period. It is feared that his injuries will prove fatal.

SITUATION IS IMPROVING.

Money Easier, Credit Stronger and Funds Coming Into Channels of Trade.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—The Boston News Bureau in its Saturday's summary says: The situation is improving in every direction. Money is easier, credit is stronger and the imports of gold and the increasing bank circulation will shortly swell the volume of currency, which will be reinforced by millions of hoarded funds eager to find their way into the usual channels of trade.

Great interest is manifested in the coming message of President Cleveland. It is the general impression that it will have no uncertain ring and that it will contain some recommendation for the solution of the present financial problem.

The business world is in no condition to stand any cheap politics at the coming session of congress, and the members of both house and senate will understand this fact.

The security market is the great barometer of the financial pulse. The buying is of the best and those operators who have played the recent unfavorable features for profits, have overstayed their market and are now liable to pay the penalty.

TO REDUCE WAGES.

Denver and Rio Grande Railroad Discontinues Brotherhood Agreement.

DENVER, Aug. 6.—The Denver and Rio Grande railroad has given notice to the brotherhoods of locomotive engineers and firemen that after Sept. 1 its agreements with these organizations will be discontinued.

The purpose of the road in effecting such a cancellation is to pave the way for a reduced wage scale. It will offer work to the engineers and firemen at a 10 per cent reduction below their present scale.

At an informal meeting of engineers the sentiment expressed was that the brotherhoods should strike before accepting the reduction.

BURDENED WITH WEALTH.

Boston Trust Company Has $100,000 It Doesn't Know What to Do With.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—The American Loan and Trust company of this city has in its possession securities valued at $100,000 with which it doesn't know what to do.

In a bill filed in the Suffolk county supreme court it has asked for instructions in the matter. The securities were deposited with the trust company by the Northwestern guarantee loan company of Minneapolis, which became insolvent in May last.

The bill in substance alleges that in the course of its business the plaintiff entered into an agreement with the Guarantee company, the agreement in effect providing for the deposit of securities to the value of $100,000 by the Guarantee company with the American Loan and Trust company, to hold in trust and pay over the income to the Guarantee company until that company should make default upon any of its guarantees, and upon such default to make good to the holder of the guarantee by selling such of the securities as might be necessary.

The bill further alleges that the plaintiff received the securities, valued at $100,000, the dividends and income of which have been paid to the Guarantee company up to the time of the suspension of the latter; that notice has been received by plaintiff from holders of guaranteed securities of Guarantee company to the amount of about $1,800,000, and that the amount of claims against the Guarantee company, partially secured by the securities in question held by the plaintiff, aggregate about [illegible]

The bill further says that part of the securities have been reduced to cash, but the plaintiff does not know to whom to distribute the proceeds of such securities, the claimants being so numerous.

The instructions of the court are therefore asked for, and an order of notice has been issued by the court, returnable Sept. 1.

THE GEARY ACT.

Question of Constitutionality May Come Again Before the Courts.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The department of justice has ordered an appeal from the decision of Judge Davis in Southern California that the deporting section of the Geary act is unconstitutional.

Acting Attorney General Maxwell has directed United States Attorney Denis at Los Angeles to represent the government when the case on appeal comes up for argument. This appeal may cause the whole matter to be again brought before the supreme court with a full bench.

TRADE UNION CONGRESS.

Great Gathering in Zurich to Discuss Problems of Labor.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Aug. 6.—The Great International Congress of Trades Unionists and Socialists was called to order Saturday morning in the Zurich town hall. Over 1100 delegates had arrived up to the opening, and it is thought that the total representation will be double that number.

No delegates from the United States are so far here, and comparatively few of the French socialists are on hand, the elections of August 20 proving a stumbling block to their presence.

At the meeting today of the executive committee it was decided that the president of each day's proceedings should be elected at the beginning of each day and successively from the different nations represented.

The German unions are strongly represented, and so is the English Trade Union congress, the London Trades council, the Miners' federation, the International Labor league, the Social Democratic federation and numerous other English organizations.

Over 200 resolutions have so far been filed by the delegates for discussion and action. One from the Swiss delegation declares that the next fight of wage earners the civilized world over must be for an international legal eight hour day, and that this must be accomplished by the political organization of the working classes in connection with trades unionism.

The Dutch Socialists have a resolution advising wage workers to use national elections only as a means of propaganda, and to permit their representatives to enter parliament simply to protest against the present capitalistic regime, but not to take part in parliamentary work proper.

The French delegation has filed a resolution favoring a unity of action between the revolutionary Socialists and the Communist Anarchists, but this will be vigorously opposed by the German Social Democrats.

A number of resolutions are to be filed in behalf of the American-Germans, but their exact purport has not yet developed.

The French have three resolutions relating to May Day demonstrations, the Paris Labor Exchange urging that it should not be merely a workers' holiday but a manifestation for the purpose of bringing about international peace.

The Paris socialists' alliance boldly declares that war should be abolished in Europe, and suggests the formation of an international court of arbitrators, to be composed of delegates from all nations to be elected by the various parliaments or congresses, one for each million of population.

AMBASSADOR BAYARD.

Says Step Ending Purchase of Silver One of Duty and Necessity.

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 6.—Ambassador Bayard says, in a private letter just received from London:

"I am looking somewhat anxiously to the meeting of congress, and hope there will be no faltering in the resolve to maintain the gold unit of value. So far from depreciating the intrinsic value of silver bullion, I believe the cessation of storage and accumulation of stock will help the market price for this commodity, as it would help any other commodity. Whatever future steps may be taken, a present step ending the purchase of silver bullion under the Sherman act is of the plainest duty and necessity. Green spectacles put upon a donkey are reported to have induced him to eat shavings instead of grass, but it was not a sustaining diet.

"The intrinsic value of gold makes it the best standard and measure of the unit for the calculation of exchanges, and to unship it is simply to throw the whole machinery of civilized contract out of gear, to bring about confusion and disaster, and strike a blow at all obligations of morality and good faith, which are the corner stones of honest life.

"What a cry would go up if the pound avoirdupois were reduced to 10 ounces and contracts executed at this rate. Speculators are not needed to guide men in such paths, and no sophistry should be permitted to obscure plain duty."

SIEGE OF LA PLATA.

Much Hard Fighting Around the City and More Expected.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The Herald's Valparaiso (Chili) correspondent cables: Hard fighting is accompanying the siege of La Plata. The provincial forces have made repeated efforts to cut their way through the lines of the Civico Nacionales but have failed. During these engagements 400 men have been slaughtered.

The siege has not yet been raised, and the situation at La Plata has not changed. It is expected that there will be a great deal more fighting around that city before the trouble is ended.

Another revolution has been started in the province of Corrientes against the governor. It is reported that there have been fights in various towns between the police and the citizens who oppose the governor.

The revolutionists have appealed to the national government to aid them in getting rid of the provincial executive. It is reported that the national government has decided to continue its policy of non-intervention for the present and give the people of the provinces every opportunity to overthrow corrupt local governments and put honest men in office.

Doubts as to Peduncle.

Maud—How do you like that young Mr. Peduncle?

Irene—I don't like him at all. He's either very stupid or he's an impudent upstart. I said to him at the party last night that I didn't feel like eating anything, and he said, "Why, Miss Squires, you certainly look well enough to eat."

"Well, what of that?"

"Why, he should have said I looked good enough to eat."—Chicago Tribune.

Granite State Candidate.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 6.—It is asserted that J. Albert Walker of this city will be the Republican candidate for governor of the granite state. Mr. Walker is spending the summer with his family at Portsmouth, where he recently entertained Secretary of the Navy Herbert. Mr. Walker is treasurer of the Manchester mills and is also identified with the largest coal business in New Hampshire.

POPULISTS' PLANS.

Mission of the Party Stated in a Lengthy Address.

CONVERTS COMING TO ITS RANKS.

Silver Must Not Be Demonetized—Foreign Invasion Must Be Resisted.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—The executive committee of the Populist party, which has been in session here since the adjournment of the silver convention, has issued an address. Among other things, it says—The friends of more money and less taxes devoted to the silver dollar of the constitution and of our forefathers; the opponents of contraction, gold standard and bond monopoly have just held their convention here in Chicago. It was composed of representative and patriotic men from all parties from all sections of the country.

The convention manifested an intense conviction that the bondholding and banking conspiracy which began its awful work in 1873, in a Republican congress, will now be continued, if not consummated in 1893 in a Democratic congress with equal Rapacity, Pillage and Peculation.

It is the mission of the Populists to resist this foreign invasion, which through corporate greed assaults our national liberties by usurping our lands, monopolizing our highways, absorbing our wealth, dictating our laws and enslaving our people.

We believe that the present effort to demonetize silver and issue more bonds, thereby increasing the aggregate of our billions of debt, all of which must then be paid in gold alone, burdening us and our posterity with gold contracts which we never made, is a crime equal to that for which kings have been dethroned and tyrants beheaded, and for which we believe every officer engaged therein should be impeached and punished as provided by law.

If silver is stricken down, it will take more merchandise from the business man, more labor from the wage earner, and more wheat, corn and cotton from the farmer than ever before to purchase the gold dollar of the bankers. Therefore these three classes of this un-American and destructive conspiracy. The logic of events forces the immediate solution of the money question. This we recognize without yielding any of the great principles in our platform which must follow and be settled in rapid succession, in order that our government may be wrested from its enemies and prosperity restored to the people.

We do not consider the money question as settled until the authority to issue money and control its volume are within the words of Jefferson "restored to the government and the people to whom they properly belong." This struggle will obliterate old party lines; tens of thousands of new converts are coming to our ranks; they should be welcomed and organized into a mighty campaign for 1894 in 1896.

Schooner's Cook Missing.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 6.—William S. Benedict of New Brunswick, N. J., cook on board the steamer Elias Ross, now at anchor at Taylor & Goodwin's wharf, is missing, and it is believed that he has committed suicide, as his coat and vest were found on the deck this morning. He was sick with consumption, and this was to have been his last voyage.

Death Brings Him Sleep.

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 6.—President E. S. Moffatt of the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company has committed suicide in London by shooting himself. Mr. Moffatt had been suffering for some time with insomnia and nervousness, induced by overwork, and his physicians had recommended a sea voyage.

French Occupy More Islands.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The Herald prints the following from Bangkok: The Saigon papers say there was some severe fighting between the Siamese and the French on July 20 on the Mekong river. It is said that 200 Siamese were killed, while the French losses were slight. The latter have occupied several more islands.

CROWN AND SCEPTER.

The German empress is a blond with one little weakness—for surroundings of pale blue.

Seven hundred live larks constituted the queer present lately sent by the king of Italy to the German emperor.

The queen of Greece is president of a sisterhood devoted to the reformation of criminals, and she personally visits prisoners.

Queen Victoria is very morbid about bedrooms in which her relatives have died. It is a common practice for her to keep these rooms locked and entirely as they were on the visitation of the angel of death.

The only ornament ever worn by the widowed Archduchess Stephanie is a locket containing the portrait of her little daughter on one side and that of her mother, the queen of the Belgians, on the other.

The empress of Austria has to give a written receipt for the state jewels every time she wears them, and her majesty, as a result, usually contents herself with her private collection, which is worth $1,500,000.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Dealings in Leading Securities in Boston and New York.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—In the outside market call money is quoted at 6 to 10 per cent, and time money is nominally 6 per cent.

The scarcity of currency and the dearth of New York funds overtop everything else in the money market. The stress of the situation appears in the fact that bills are commanding a premium of $30 per $1000 among the banks, and that New York exchange can be obtained with difficulty at a premium of $3 and $3 50 per $1000. The order from the treasury department that silver be paid out at the sub-treasury only on silver certificates, cuts off another source from which the banks had been getting currency to meet certain demands of their customers, especially those of them seeking money to pay their employes.

This inability to get currency is beginning to press heavily upon corporations with large pay rolls. At Fall River the mill treasurers have been canvassing the stores of the city, offering them a premium of $5 per $1000 upon their daily receipts, and paying for the same in certified checks. But this is a resource that can only temporarily aid them. At New Bedford the mills are paying their help in small checks, which the stores are receiving, and which as a kind of temporary circulation. This scarcity is only a reflection of the conditions which exist in New York and Philadelphia.

Despite predictions to the contrary the stock market opened fairly strong this morning and held its position to the close. London came from ⅛ to ½ lower than our close, and there is a very evident desire to realize on the rally here. But the short interest here is apparently an unimportant factor.

The developments of the morning were of a negative character, mostly. Some further engagements of gold were reported, and the shipments of grain, despite the rally in price, are limited only by vessel room. Further steps, too, are being taken to swell the volume of national bank note circulation. But the importance of these events have been rather anticipated in the rise of two days ago. The feeling, however, despite the currency stringency, seems better.

The local market was fairly steady. West End railway and Fitchburg preferred showed the greatest strength, while Calumet and Hecla, on a small scale, dropped to 255. Bell Telephone rose to 181, after opening 2 up at 183. Atchison opened ¼ down at 18¼, rallied to 18¾, but lost the fraction. Chicago, Burlington and Quincy showed similar weakness, selling down to 78, but closing at 80, yesterday's final sale. Union Pacific advanced from 18¼ to 18¾. Sugar and General Electric were irregular. Sugar common opened ¼ down at 74¾, rose to 77 and declined to 74¾. General Electric opened ½ down at 40, advanced to 36 and then slid to 35¾.

The most important changes, comparing final sales were those of Friday, were: Sugar declined 1¼. General Electric declined ¾. Bell Telephone declined 1. Pullman advanced 5, Union Pacific advanced 1¼. Fitchburg preferred advanced 1¼. West End Railroad advanced 1. Boston and Maine advanced 1. Calumet and Hecla declined 5, New York and New England declined ¾.

THE PROPER CAPER.

Delicate tints prevail largely where the devotees of fashion congregate.

Novel French skirts are shaped with many gores, then gathered front and back, but left with a plain smooth gore at the sides.

The statement that very many openwork and embroidered white silk stockings were included in Princess May's trousseau will doubtless do much toward giving this fashion a fillip.

There is a sudden revival of all the rich and pale shades of brown, from auburn, chestnut, vandyke, etc., through the many handsome half tones, to beige, fawn and pale amber brown.

A summer coat for wear on cool days or evenings is made of black English serge, open, and turned back in front with either white or colored bengaline silk revers. The coat is tight fitting in the back.

Belted round waists, single breasted or in double directoire fashion, with plastron and revers or yoke and girdle, are in the height of fashion, being this season almost as greatly favored by tailors as by the dressmakers.

Embroidered French muslins, with delicate flower borders, are made into youthful looking empire dresses, hooked behind, the dainty borders forming a yoke and edging the round, full empire skirt either in bands or little frills.

Many of the plainer English serge and hopsacking gowns made by the best of tailors are simply finished by two or three rows of stitching and rely upon the fancy silk shirt waist for the only touch of decoration and brightness about the dress.

White dresses show touches of deep color here and there, and airy textiles are often used as a transparency to throw a creamy film over rose pink, corn yellow and willow green, with now and then a somber note provided by a toilet of black gauze, net or lace.—New York Evening Post.

PEN, CHISEL AND BRUSH.

Phidon of Argos, 748 B. C., is believed to have been the first sculptor to employ metals in statuary.

Apelles is said by Pliny to have invented the use of canvas in painting. He also employed oaken tablets.

The author of "Alice In Wonderland," Lewis Carroll, has two hobbies—children and amateur photography.

Jules Verne is 65 years old and has written 68 books. The novelist leads a quiet, retired life at Amiens and is a member of the municipal council of that city.

It is only a few years since George Meredith permitted himself to be photographed for the first time, and now he has allowed his friend, the artist Watts, to paint his portrait.

Perhaps the best work ever done by John Tenniel, the caricaturist whom the queen has knighted, was the fantastic illustration of "Alice In Wonderland." Mr. Tenniel is now 73 years old.

The painter Kanensky was once a favorite of the Czar Alexander II. He came to the United States some years ago, took up his residence in Kansas, married a girl of Swiss parentage and is now thoroughly Americanized.

Signorina Ada Negro, the new Italian poet, is only 21 years old and has supported herself and an invalid mother by arduous and ill paid teaching in the national schools. She has just been awarded a pension of 1,800 francs a year.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Faraday first practically used gutta percha as an insulator for wires in 1847.

Street cars are being successfully propelled in Paris by electricity applied through accumulators.

The electric railway has penetrated even the fastnesses of the Tyrolese mountains, a road 27 miles long being projected between Riva and Pinzolo.

Telephonoter is the new instrument that registers the time of each conversation at the telephone from the time of ringing up the exchange to the ringing off signal.

In a somewhat novel form of alarm invented by a Frenchman the current from an ordinary burglar alarm or bell circuit ignites and explodes a cartridge on the roof of the house, besides starting all the bells to ring.

She Was Tired.

He—How many bridesmaids are you going to have, dearest?

She—None.

He—Why, I thought you had set your heart on it.

She—I had, but from present indications the girls I want will all be married first.—Life.

Superior Court Decisions.

Mills to Shut Down.

The directors of the Washington Mills company have decided to shut down their annex mills at South Coventry. The mills are amply supplied with orders for future delivery, but the directors deem it wise to go cautiously in the production of goods until there is an improvement in the business outlook.

Trouble for the Government.

Miss Grace Smith of Washington, D. C., representing Padgett & Forrest, attorneys, has been visiting Connecticut cities, making arrangements with letter carriers to collect their claims against the United States treasury department for money due them for working overtime. It seems that the eight-hour law went into effect May 24, but the Connecticut offices were not ordered to adopt the eight-hour rule until several months later.

Mr. Hicks's Generosity.

This week's issue of The Catholic Standard will publish the following:

"The Hon. Ratcliffe Hicks of Tolland has in contemplation a plan that is sure to attract much attention in this state among the Catholics. He intends to soon offer a prize of $100, to be awarded the pupil in the parochial school who shows the best results in oratory within a given period. The purpose of this move is to encourage oratory in the Catholic schools in Connecticut."

Business Done With Orders.

The principal merchants of Hartford have joined in an arrangement for the mutual advantage of themselves and of customers who are embarrassed for ready cash, because the savings banks no longer pay out deposits without 60 or 90 days' notice.

The banks have assented to a plan under which merchants may open accounts with them and deposit orders from customers who have deposits. The amounts of the orders are transferred to the accounts of the merchants, who give withdrawal notices, under which, on the expiration of the time limitation, they may draw the money.

About fifty large firms in New Haven have made a similar arrangement, and it is reported that the plan will also be adopted in Waterbury and Norwich.—[Boston Herald.

The Laurel Hill Extension.

The special committee of the common council, consisting of Mayor Harwood, Aldermen Ahern and Councilmen [illegible] and Henderson, gave a hearing to twenty-five Laurel Hillites Saturday night on the petition that the layout of the electric railroad be on the westerly side, instead of in the middle of the street, from River avenue to the northern end of the park. Were the petition granted the rails would hug the west sidewalk the entire length of the hill, as originally contemplated by the company.

The report of the committee will be received at the regular council meeting tonight. It is understood that the path of the rails along Laurel Hill will not correspond exactly to that asked by the remonstrants.

Law on Berry Picking.

The season of berry-picking is here, and the season of nutting and hunting is fast approaching. It may be well to call attention to Section 1,454 of the revised statutes of Connecticut, which reads as follows:

"Every person who shall knowingly and unlawfully throw down or leave open any bars or fence upon the land of another, or who shall enter upon the enclosed land of another, without permission of the owner, occupant, or person in charge thereof, for the purpose of hunting, trapping, fishing, taking or destroying the nests or eggs of birds or gathering nuts, fruits or berries, shall be fined not less than one, nor more than fifty dollars or be in default of the payment of the fine, be imprisoned not exceeding thirty days."

The owner of the land is authorized in Section 1,455 to arrest any person violating the preceding section and take him before a magistrate for prosecution according to law.

A RIDE TO NIANTIC.

Norwich Bicyclists Do Thirteen Miles in Fifty-seven Minutes.

A squad of eighteen Norwich bicyclists, for whom a rioting August sun has no terrors and who revel in formidable hills and sandy roads, penetrated to Niantic Sunday and enjoyed the royal hospitality of Landlord Babcock of the Howard house. The wayfarers arrived about noon, and were shown immediately to a private dining hall, where, amid laughter and good humor, and with the amazing appetite that only such a trip can inspire, the convention was called to order and proceeded to business by discussing the following

After several hours in the village the delegation set out for New London to board the steamer Ella for home. The distance, thirteen miles, was covered in exactly fifty-seven minutes, a record probably never before equalled. The party arrived in Norwich after a pleasant and healthful day's exercise.

TOYED WITH THE PUTNAMS.

The Clippers' Easy Victory on the Greeneville Ground Saturday.

The Clippers easily defeated the Putnams at the Greeneville grounds Saturday afternoon. About five hundred people were at the contest and were well pleased with the game put up by the Clippers. They show improvement in every game, and are now fielding like a professional ball team. It is the general opinion that they could give the New London ten runs start and then beat them out in a canter.

Driscoll started in to pitch his usual game, and prevented any scoring by the Putnams for five innings. The score then stood 10 to 0 in favor of the Clippers. Driscoll then eased up a little, and let them make a few runs. The final score was eleven to six.

Counihan and Shea did the best batting for the Clippers, and Fogarty, Counihan and Driscoll the finest fielding. Moore was given his base on balls four times. Heavey caught brilliantly for the Putnams, and Hopkins played well at third. The score:

Union vs. Colchester.

Saturday afternoon the Union Base Ball club of Norwich Town met and defeated the crack ball team of Colchester, by the score of 5 to 3, on the Colchester ball ground. People who witnessed the game saw a fine exhibition of ball playing. Foster, late of the High School team of Bridgeport, held the heavy hitters of Colchester down to four hits. The features of the game were the fine playing of the in field and the heavy batting of the favorite batter, E. Smith. The Unions are looking for bigger game and want the Clippers to give them their first open date.

Liquor Sellers Punished.

At an early hour Saturday morning people began to flock towards the Opera house. Several liquor cases were on the programme for trial before Justice Ibbotson. The first case called was that against Jerry Labby, charged with a sale and reputation. He was found guilty and contributed $40 and costs to the town treasury.

The next case was that against George Farley. He was charged with keeping liquor on his premises with intent to sell. Eighteen hundred dollars worth of intoxicating liquors were seized in his place. He was fined $50 and costs, and the court ordered the seized liquors shipped to Providence.

The next case was against Stephen Salisbury, proprietor of the Eagles house, upon a similar complaint. After a long argument Mr. Salisbury was fined $50 and costs. He appealed. The court was then adjourned till Saturday, August 12.

Charles Hendrick, for drunkenness, was found guilty and sent to Brooklyn jail for thirty days.

John Kennedy, for drunkenness, was given thirty days in Brooklyn jail.

THE COMMODORE'S CUP RACES.

The "Vigilant" Disabled in a Squall Puts Back to Glen Cove.

THE COLONIA WINS.

Story of the Day's Sport—38 Miles Covered in 3:06:39.

GLEN COVE, L. I., Aug. 7.—There was plenty of wind for the Commodore's cup races today, which, however, may fail to compensate Mr. Morgan for the disastrous effect the breeze had on his pet cup defender, the "Vigilant." The starters for the cup were as follows:

Sloops—Colonia, Vigilant, Queen Mab and Hildegard.

Schooners — Ramona, Lasca, Alcaea, Constellation, Coronet, Ariel, Emerald, Marguerite and Dagmar.

The course was from an imaginary line between the flagship and a mark boat one and a half miles west by south from Matinecock Point buoy, to and around a stake boat three-quarters of a mile south of Bellbuoy west of Greensledge to and around a stake boat three-quarters of a mile north of Lloyds Point buoy and finish at start, leaving the marks on starboard hand. The wind was abaft the beam as the yachts started, and continually freshening from a little west of northwest.

Official time of the starts of the sloops:
Queen Mab, 12 26.15.
Vigilant, 12 26 43.
Colonia, 12 27 57.
Hildegarde, 12 28 08.

The Vigilant passed the Queen Mab before the latter had gone a mile from the line. The Colonia was also overhauling her rapidly, while the Vigilant was showing the whole fleet a clean pair of heels.

A squall came down in the northwest and the Vigilant raced through the water with her rail under the water and a cloud of spray breaking over her bow. She was doing all her builders expected of her when suddenly there was a sharp crack up aloft and away went her topmast, carrying the topmast with it. Another ominous crackling sound forward and away went the big jib topsail with the bowsprit.

The wreckage came down on the deck and into the water on the lee. The boat was run up into the wind, her jib lowered and an anchor dropped. Several steam yachts, the Commodore's May among them, went to her assistance, but help was declined. The broken spars were cut away, the sails hauled aboard, and after twenty minutes delay the Vigilant sailed back to Glen Cove under mainsail and jib. The Colonia had it all her own way, so far as the sloops were concerned, after the Vigilant went out of the race.

On the last leg of the race she bowled along, making a fine show with her big new sails and clean, white hull. She was a good half-hour ahead of the Queen Mab all the way to the finish and crossed the line at 3:33:36. It took her just 3:06:39 to cover the 38 miles in the course while the Queen Mab, in which so much was predicted, took 3:32:08. The Hildegarde was 12 minutes, 47 seconds behind the Queen Mab in actual running time.

The schooners made a fine race of it. The Coronet had her maymast blown down by the squall that wrecked the Vigilant, but she went on with the remnant of her sail fluttering in the breeze. The Ariel sailed like a witch under her full complement of light weather working sails and stuck bravely to the Alcaea.

The order at Greer's Ledge mark was Colonia, Constellation, Alcaea, Ariel, Lasca, Ramona, Emerald, Queen Mab, Coronet, Dagmar, Marguerite, Hildegarde. The run home was made mostly in the same order. The schooners were ahead of Queen Mab and The Hildegarde, but could not quite keep the pace set by the Colonia.

The order of the finish was Constellation, Alcaea, Ariel, Lasca, Ramona, Coronet, Dagmar, Marguerite.

The time allowance gave the race to the Ariel. The best elapsed time was made by the Constellation and was 3:19:36.

MISS HALL RETRACTS.

The Case Against Dr. Miller of Stockbridge Dismissed.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., Aug. 7.—Case of Susan B. Hall against Dr. Webster Miller of Stockbridge, charging him with being the father of her child, born recently at New York, came before the district court at Great Barrington today. Lawyer Joyner, who appeared for the plaintiff, moved that the case be dismissed and Judge Sanford discharged the defendant. It appeared that on June 26 Miss Hall wrote a letter to Dr. Miller as follows:

Dear Sir: Three weeks ago last Saturday I took my oath in Great Barrington that you were the father of my unborn child. I wish to retract that oath. I was madly influenced at the time, and being nearly wild at my situation I did not consider what a wrong I was doing. Had I been in the state of mind I am now in I would never have done it. I have sent a similar letter to Mr. Joyner at Great Barrington. Trusting I am forgiven, I am yours truly.

This letter was dated June 26 and signed Susie B. Hall. After the dismissal of the case by Judge Sanford, a warrant was sworn out and Dr. H. Crandall, Deputy Sheriff H. Barton and Mrs. Emma Jones of Stockbridge were arrested on a charge of criminal conspiracy to extort money from Dr. Miller. They pleaded not guilty and gave bonds to appear for trial September 5th.

PLANNED AN ESCAPE.

Thomas Meehan Overestimated His Sprinting Abilities, and is Still in the Law's Toils.

Nineteen-year-old Thomas Meehan, whose record of recent petty offences has entitled him to a long residence in the Norwich jail, made a bold break for liberty Monday morning which placed him out of the clutches of the law for about five minutes.

Meehan had just been sentenced by Judge Kellogg to pay $5 and costs—$12 55—for sleeping in an outbuilding, and before being led back to confinement, was allowed to enter a private room at his request. Officer Irish awaited his return on the threshold of the door, anticipating no resistance, as the prisoner had been feigning lameness all the morning. Before the policeman could lay hands on him, however, Meehan gave a great bound, ran like a deer along the court house corridor to the open air, whence he sped up Broadway.

Constable Kinne of Norwich Town was hitching his horse in front of the Broadway theater as Meehan made his precipitate exit, and perceiving the turn affairs had taken, gave instant pursuit. Meehan turned down Willow street with the official close behind, ran like a fox up Chestnut street, scaled a fence and took a passageway by Goodwin's cork factory into Franklin street. Here John Robinson, a muscular waiter at the Wauregan house, intercepted the fleeing man, and Constable Kinne, still at his heels, made him captive, and with Officers Irish and Matthews returned breathless but triumphant to police headquarters.

Meehan added at least one more to his list of misdemeanors by his last escapade. He already had a charge of breach of the peace to answer to, and now he is held responsible for attempting to escape from an officer of the law. Then, too, he threatened Robinson with personal violence in the dim future when he regained his freedom, and he may have to pay dear for his words.

New School Laws.

A new law compels every town and school district having at least 10,000 inhabitants to maintain evening schools. New legislation was enacted concerning the division of school districts formed from parts of two or more towns. An act which is of considerable importance to some rural sections of the state authorizes the school visitors under certain conditions, to provide transportation at public expense for children to and from school.

Feeding the Troops at Camp Morris.

All the contracts for the feeding of the state troops at Niantic during the camp week a fortnight hence have been let by Commissary General Jamieson to responsible parties, and the bill of fare, as recently published in these columns, will be provided. The officers will have mess by themselves, but the fare will be the same as that the soldiers have. Following are the caterers who have been engaged by the different commands: W. G. Dunham of Hartford and L. L. Munson of Northfield for the First regiment, L. L. Fox of Torrington for the Second regiment, Charles Pattison of Norwich for the Third regiment and Nelson L. Bossman of Bridgeport for the Fourth regiment.

EMBEZZLER SWIFT'S CASE.

Death of Middletown's Chief of Police at St. Luke's Hospital.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 7.—Word was received in this city today of the death of Chief of Police Jedediah C. Chapman, which occurred at St. Luke's hospital in New York city, at 1.30 this morning. Mr. Chapman had been suffering since last March from spinal trouble which resisted treatment by the best local physicians.

Mr. Chapman was born in Westbrook fifty-six years ago. Soon after the war broke out he offered his services and enlisted in the Twenty-fourth Connecticut infantry, September 10, 1862, and was honorably discharged September 10, 1863. About [illegible] years ago he located in this city and [illegible] a restaurant at the foot of Washington street in the original Valley Railroad depot, which he conducted [illegible] four years. He was then appointed to the position of patrolman on the Middletown police force, and served [illegible] year, and was then elected by the court of common council to the position of chief officer.

During his [illegible] years of service he was faithful and conscientious in the discharge of duty. He was a man of high moral character, who always maintained personal dignity in his every day life, and was often referred to as Middletown's "handsome chief." He was past commander of Mansfield Post, G. A. R., a member of the order of American Mechanics, a charter member of Arrawanna Tribe of Red Men, and past dictator of the Knights of Honor.

He leaves a wife and daughter.

The remains will be brought to this city.

Chief Officers Knights of Columbus May Sue The Hibernian Record.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 7.—Members of the examining board of the Knights of Columbus, consisting of the Hon. John J. Phelan of Bridgeport, ex-Mayor Tracy of Meriden and Daniel W. Colwell of New Haven held a secret session Saturday afternoon.

It is understood that the board met to decide what action should be taken relative to an article in the last issue in the A. O. H. Record of New Haven, in which it was charged that the order was being run by a few of the supreme officers and that they had been stealing the money of the order. It was expected that John D. Cunningham, the editor of The Record, would be called before the board and asked to explain the article, but he was not and it is now believed that the matter will be brought before the board of government and then Mr. Cunningham will be asked to tell the name of the author of the article. In the event of his refusal it is said that the supreme officers will bring suit. Mr. Cunningham is a member of the order and it is alleged that he violated the rules in publishing the article.

Warehouse Fire in New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 7.—Early this morning the local fire department had a fierce tussle with a blaze in Betts & Co.'s feed and grain warehouse. The structure is wooden and the fire raged fiercely until put under control in a couple of hours. The contents, hay and grain, were also highly inflammable and both building and contents were totally ruined before the fire was placed under control. The building was owned by the Consolidated Railroad company and was valued at $1,600. It is fully covered by insurance. The destroyed stock was worth $10,000 and is a total loss.

Chris Langly, a local fireman, was struck in the face with an axe at the fire and severely injured. A deep gash was cut over his eye. His wound was promptly dressed and he will recover.

Barns and Grain Burned.

NEW HARTFORD, Aug. 7.—Two barns were burned here about 9 o'clock Sunday night. One on the J. W. Dwyer place rented to H. J. Stancliff was totally destroyed with seven tons of hay and some grain. The animals were saved. The loss on the barn is $1,500, and Mr. Stancliff's loss $260. George A. Spencer's barn, near by, caught fire and was also destroyed with most of its contents; loss $1,000. Both barns are near the railroad tracks, and it is believed that the fire was started by sparks from an engine.

Embezzler Swift's Case.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 7.—Edwin L. Swift, the teller of the Birmingham bank, who embezzled $10,000 about two months ago, was taken before United States Commissioner W. A. Wright today for examination. The prisoner waived examination and was bound over for trial in the United States district court, which will come in this month. He was remanded to jail in default of $10,000 bonds.

Insulted the Judge and Got Ten Days.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 7.—Mrs. James Pender, wife of an East Haven builder, was yesterday sentenced to ten days in jail. Her case is a peculiar one. After a long quarrel with her husband she threw her two-year-old child into a cistern of water. A neighbor pulled it out and Mrs. Pender was arrested. She insulted the judge, her husband, the audience and received the above sentence. She promptly said: "Thank you," and was escorted to jail.

Walsh Wins the Bicycle Handicap Race.

NORWALK, Conn., Aug. 7.—Thomas Walsh won the bicycle handicap race from Norwalk to Stamford tonight, covering the nine miles in thirty-two minutes. There were six starters, all Norwalk men, and the contest was for a costly gold medal and a course dinner. Eugene Benedict finished second.

House and Barn Destroyed.

TORRINGTON, Conn., Aug. 7.—Fire at 4.15 this morning destroyed a tenement house and a barn owned by P. J. Stone and a barn owned by P. Gleason. The loss is not adjusted but will amount to between $2,000 and $3,000, partially insured. The origin of the fire is a mystery. No one discovered the fire until the buildings were a mass of flames.

Think It May Be Miss Orr.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 7.—Cries have been heard coming from the swamp near the farm of Clapp Spooner, outside of this city, and many think that Anna Gray Orr, who has been missing for the past eight days, may be in the marsh. The cries have been heard by the searching party and some of its members have succeeded in getting near the spot whence they came, yet no trace can be seen of a human being. A party will be sent into the depths of the swamp to make an examination.

L. A. W. INTERNATIONAL MEET.

Walter Sanger Takes a Fall and is Severely Injured.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Walter Sanger's bad tumble, a number of surprises and a series of events marked the opening of the L. A. W. international meet today. Sanger's fall and inability to participate in the races today, tomorrow and Thursday gave the enthusiasts reason to feel disappointed, but it is thought that by Friday the Milwaukee crack will again be in form and ready to try conclusions with Zimmerman and the foreign racers in competition for the Saltonstall trophy and the world's honors. Three thousand persons attended the finals of the days events in the afternoon.

Sanger fell in the upper turn while making a spurt from the bunch. In turning into the upper stretch he took the outside, and was followed by Bunker and Bode, Babcock, Johnson, McDuffee and Dernberger. They were moving very fast on Tyler, in the lead, followed by Gibbons. Babcock was carried out and his forward wheel caught Sanger's pedal. Both riders fell and all in the bunch went down except Bode. Six of the best bicyclists on earth were thrown about on the raised turn.

Sanger was hurt the most, pieces of flesh being torn from his leg and arm and his body being covered with light bruises.

Zimmerman won both the open races, third of a mile and the one mile. F. H. Tuttle won the half mile state championship and J. H. Bliss the two mile Illinois championship. Zimmerman, H. Smith and McDuffee, the scratch men in the five mile handicap, did not start, J. P. Clark of Boston (100 yards) winning the event in 13 08, and had he started at scratch he would have lowered Lumsden's best record.

The races were splendidly managed and the sport was generally excellent. Tyler gave Zimmerman a hard drive in the third, a mile open, and later the champion was defeated in the half-mile handicap. In the field of 11 he finished fourth, 3 5 of a second behind the leader, Brown of Cleveland.

The first run in the mile open was above the time limit of 2 40, being done in 3.48 3 5, Windle leading. The officials declared another race necessary and Zimmerman then won handily in 2 29½, with Taylor a length behind.

The Case of Dr. Graves.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 6.—Ex-District Attorney Isaac N. Stevens of Denver, Colo., who conducted the prosecution of Dr. T. Thatcher Graves for the murder of Mrs. Josephine A. Barnaby, arrived in this city this morning, accompanied by Commissioner John C. Twombley of Arapahoe county. It is their intention to interview the Providence and Boston witnesses who testified in the former trial, with a view to ascertaining if their presence could be secured for the second trial, which in all probability would take place about the middle of October. He hinted that the government would introduce witnesses of important character.

American Watch Employes Resume Work.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 7.—The hands in the One American Watch company who were fortunate to be retained on the pay roll of the company resumed work this morning. The number that went back to work was 1,300, out of a force of nearly 3,000. The operatives are in much better spirits today than they were a week ago, and it is confidently expected that by September 1 a large number of the deposed employes will be reinstated.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The President's message would have been sent to congress today had it not been for the early adjournment of the senate. LAMBERTVILLE, N. J., Aug. 7.—Two hundred and fifty replies out of three hundred inquiries sent out to the largest peach growers of Hunterdon county substantiate the reports that unless rain comes soon, not half of the usual amount will be shipped. A full crop in Hunterdon county yields 1,500,000 bushels.

THE BUFFALO RACES.

Director's Flower Has a "Cake-Walk" in the 2-Year Trot.

THE SUMMARIES.

Followers of Vic H. Back Their Opinions and Lose Money.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Phoebe Wilkes this afternoon won the unfinished 2.21 trot by adding two heats in succession to the one obtained Saturday. This event furnished the only sport of the afternoon. The 2.19 trot and the 2 year-old trotting stake were straight heat affairs.

Director's Flower had a "cake-walk" in the two-year-old trot and completed her fourth consecutive victory in a jog. Phoebe Wilkes was hardly considered good enough to beat out the other speedy performers in the unfinished 2 13 trot, and the followers of Vic H lost not a few dollars in backing their opinion. It was expected that the rest over Sunday would greatly improve the chances of the Black Bird mare, but she came out sore and apparently without an iota of speed. Alvin made a great effort for the fifth heat but he is still too high in flesh and fell short by half a length. Hazel Wilkes might have won the race only for her unsteadiness.

Last week the Buffalo association charged 5 per cent and 5 per cent additional to all starters. This 5 per cent additional will be charged to money winners only, and it is expected that fields will be larger. Summaries:

A Missing New Haven Attorney Returns.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 7.—Attorney John K. Whitting, who has been missing from this city for more than a month, returned home today, but would say nothing concerning his disappearance. Gray and proceedings were to have been brought in the probate court tomorrow, asking for the appointment of some one to succeed him. About the time of Whitting's departure Attorney A. D. Penny applied to the probate court for an accounting of the settlement of the Gray estate. Whitting left the day that the case came up and nothing has been heard of him since until today.

REUNION OF THE "EIGHTEENTH."

A Successful Meeting Expected at Quinebaug Lake Tomorrow.

The Eighteenth regiment, Connecticut Volunteers, will hold its annual reunion at Quinebaug Lake, near Danielsonville, Wednesday. There will be all kinds of amusements at the lake. Fares will be reduced for the veterans and their friends on the Norwich & Worcester road.

The committee that has charge of the reunion is composed of Timothy Parker of Wauregan and W. H. H. Ellis of this city. A circular issued by the committee says: "As our reunion was so far from home last year that a great many could not attend, let us all do our best this year, and with our families and friends make this one of the largest and best reunions we have ever held; for as we meet each year and hear the names of those read who have answered to the roll-call here below, let us realize that it will only be a few more years that we can have the privilege of once a year gathering together to talk over the old times in camp."

Copies of the following congratulatory letter to Secretary Eugene Kelly of the National Federation of America from Justin McCarthy have been received in this city and will be read with interest by local subscribers to the fund: "I have again to thank you and your fellow workers of the Irish National Federation of America for a generous contribution of £1,000 pounds to aid the work of the Irish parliamentary party. You have made it possible for us to fight the fight to the end with every assurance of success. I gratefully acknowledge this sixth remittance, making a total of £6,000 from the Irish National Federation of America."

THE AIDA'S CLOSE CALL.

Her Main Shaft Broke While in Rapid Motion off Fishers Island.

The steam yacht Aida of New York is at the Morgan Iron works, New London, for repairs. While off Fishers Island Friday night she broke her main shaft and lay disabled amid clouds of escaping steam for an hour.

The yacht is one of the fine and fast Herreshoff boats, and made the run from New York to Great Harbor Friday. She is owned by W. P. Douglas. The accident occurred soon after she left the island for Greenport.

She was running at a high rate of speed when the shaft broke inside the ship and the engine began racing. In a moment the engine was hopelessly twisted and jammed, and the steampipe was broken, filling the boat with jets of flying steam. Considerable excitement prevailed among the crew but happily no one was injured. Only the crew were on board.

The Aida lay helpless on the water until she was picked up by the island steamer Munnatawket, which took her in tow. Machanics say that it is a wonder the break in her machinery did not sink her.

TO MEET AT NEW BRITAIN.

The Annual Convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union.

The annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence union of Connecticut will be held in New Britain, Tuesday August 29. This organization is the pioneer of the national organization and is now fourth in the aggregation in point of membership of nearly 5,800, a gain of more than 1,500 in the year. In New Haven there are more members enrolled than in any other city in the United States, excepting Philadelphia.

The present officers of the union are: James F. Brennan of New Haven, president; Walter Fitzmaurice of New London, first vice-president; Mary O'Connor of Stamford, second vice-president; William Gaffney of Ansonia, secretary, and John O'Rourke of Bridgeport, editor.

The Rev. Fathers Reilly, president of the Boston union, and Doyle, the new secretary of the National union, are among the clergymen from other states who have accepted invitations to attend the convention. The Rev. M. Tierney of New Britain will welcome the delegates.

The local society is not now a member of the state union.

THE TOWN'S POOR.

Few Paupers in First Century of the Town's Growth—Doctors' Charges—A Big Kick Over a Small Bill.

The early settlers of Norwich were in general self supporting and independent, and few instances appear in the records of a poor person supported by the town.

The earliest instance is dated February 9, 1685. "The Courts having ordered Katharine Dunellin to be accounted the poore of Norwich and by them to be provided for, orders two shillings pr weeke to be payde by the Town of Norwich for ye bringing up the child for two years from this date."

In later records an occasional item appears, such as "a pair of shoes for Alice Cook, 5 s," "A coat and leather breeches for old Bissell, 12 s." "A sheet to bury John Nichols in, 10 s." "18 watches with Gaylor, at 2 s. per night, £1 6 s."

Dec 19 1787. To Thomas Blythe for digging Gaylor's grave 5 s.

Dec. 17, 1786. To Jacob Hide, for digging Micah Rood's grave, 4 s.

In 1738 the whole town was excited over what was referred to as "the extraordinary charge of Henry Wallbridge, Jr. for entertayneing Christian Challenge in her late sickness and distraction at his house"; yet the whole charge for eight weeks of "nursing, diet, and strengthening salve," going for doctors, four days' waiting and tending, and finally conveying her to Windham, amounts to only £ 3 5 s. 6 d.

Dr. Caleb Bushnell's bill "tords the cure of Christian Challenge" is still procurable, and shows what a physician's fees were in those early days:

To 3 travells	00 7 6
to Laudanum Solution	0 4 0
to 3 times Bleeding	0 1 6

The said Christian Challenge seems to have been a traveler, or a "transient person," as they called beggars in New England, who was "rode over by Solomon Story on the Sabbath day, either wilfully or carelessly." Being badly hurt, she was for some time a burden on the town.

For a century after the settlement of Norwich only two or three in a year required assistance, and generally a few shillings covered the entire expense. At a later period the poor were provided for by contract; that is, put up at auction and sold to those who would keep them the cheapest.

In 1767 a vote was passed to hire a convenient house for the poor; but not until 1790 is record made of the town alms-house, situated upon Long, or Ox Hill, a portion of the Hazen farm. This site proving inconvenient and expensive, a building was erected in Chelsia in 1800, and to this the town's poor were removed. A work-house was here established in 1806.

The present site of the alms house was built upon in 1819. The salary of the keeper was fixed at $150, and physicians' fees were not to exceed that amount. Even after the rebellion the town's poor for a year rarely exceeded thirty.

The fourth regular almshouse of the town, a brick building, was erected in 1859 on the same lot as the preceding one. The number of inmates in 1863 was 56—two of whom were over 90. In 1880 the number of persons not in the almshouse assisted by the town was 263. In 1865 the expenses of the almshouse were $4,217.76; of the outside poor $15,044.

MUST BE WIPED OUT.

Message Urges Unconditional Repeal of the Silver Act.

VIEWS SILVER AS A MONEY METAL.

Present Coinage Is Not Favored Except as Subsidiary Currency.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—It is exceedingly unlikely that the president's message will be sent to congress today, but unless some unforeseen hitch should occur in the organization of either the house or the senate it will probably go in at noon tomorrow. Statements as to its length and contents are necessarily more or less conjectural. From sources believed to be well informed it is learned that the message will not be more than two columns in length and that it recommends the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act.

Pro-silver Democrats express themselves as agreeably surprised at what they understand to be the moderation of the president's recommendations. They are informed that he recommends the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act. He, however, recognizes that silver is one of the money metals of the country, which must be maintained, but points out that with the present attitude of European countries the proper ratio between gold and silver cannot be maintained by this country alone. Therefore he does not favor the coinage of silver under present conditions

Except For Subsidiary Purposes.

He thinks the European nations who are now depressing the price of silver can by the suspension of its coinage in this country, except for subsidiary purposes, be coerced into an international agreement more favorable than we have heretofore had. He is in favor of silver on a parity with gold, and stands on the platform of 1892, but says that platform cannot be carried out, for the reason that a fixed parity cannot be maintained. Prominent leaders of both wings of the Democratic party have had conveyed to them the impression that these are substantially the views the president will express.

Bourke Cockran of New York and Mr. Bynum of Indiana, it is said, are to be the leaders of the anti-silver forces on the Democratic side on the floor of the house. It is stated that the distinguished Tammany orator, at the suggestion of Mr. Cleveland, has devoted his spare time during the summer to the study of the question in all its phases. Last Saturday Mr. Cockran went to Culberson of Texas and Bland and stated that the anti-silver men were willing to start in with the discussion of the silver question without referring it or waiting for consideration or report from any committee. The underlying motive of this suggestion is said to be a fear on Mr Cockran's part that Speaker Crisp will give the silver men a majority of the coinage committee. He urged upon the silver leaders that to wait for a committee report would delay action; that it would be at least two weeks, and possibly three, before any committee would be announced.

Mr. Culberson told Mr Cockran that he would not agree to his proposition; that he believed the silver men could get their views before the country in very much better shape if they were embodied in a report from a majority of the committee on coinage. Mr. Cockran said he was willing to jump into the middle of the discussion at once; that he would agree that there should be no closure and that every man should say everything he had to say on the subject of silver without interruption and at the end of the discussion there should be a Vote Taken on Every Proposition.

Mr. Bland was also not favorable to this proposition at the outset and at two subsequent consultations Mr. Cockran has had with Mr. Culberson, Mr. Bland was unable to be present because of indisposition. They are to meet again today if possible.

The intention is that Mr. Cockran shall at the first opportunity introduce a bill to repeal the Sherman act outright, without any conditions or substitutes. Mr. Culberson will also introduce a bill, or someone will in his behalf, which will provide for the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act and will also provide for the coinage of silver without minting at the rate of 16 to 1. The bill, it is understood, in its wording will follow as closely as may be section 7 of the Democratic platform of 1892, which favors "the coinage of both gold and silver without discriminating against either metal or charge for mintage, but the dollar unit of coinage of both metals must be of equal intrinsic and exchangeable value, or be adjusted through international agreement or by such safeguards of legislation as shall insure the maintenance of the parity of the two metals and the equal power of every dollar at all times in the markets and in the payment of debts." By this means it is thought that the Democratic opponents of a bill thus framed will be put in the attitude before the country of opposing their own platform.

A strong pressure from leading Democrats is being brought to bear on Speaker Crisp to persuade him to agree to an entire reconstruction of the four leading committees, ways and means, appropriations, banking and currency and coinage, weights and measures. The persons who are engaged in this movement are the extreme tariff reformers, who are not satisfied with the methods adopted by the ways and means committee in the last congress. They claim that, as the Democratic party has now entire control of the legislative and executive departments of the government, it is its duty to strike out on a wholly different line of policy; also to get out of the old rut in which the party has been floundering on the tariff question for many years.

The speaker listens to all they have to say, but gives out no intimation of his plans. To comply with these requests would require a change in the chairmanships of these important committees and necessitate an entire reconstruction and modification of their personnel. Messrs. Springer and Holman, who have been at the head of two of these committees, are aware of the efforts which are being made to displace them, but do not appear to be the least disturbed, and are in daily conference with the speaker.

SEEKING THE FUNDS.

Iron Hall Supremes Will Petition the Court to Restore Them.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 7.—It has just been learned that Attorney Winter was retained by authority of the supreme sitting of the Iron Hall, which closed its meeting here on Thursday, to appear for the order and ask for the restoration of the funds.

The petition to the court is now being prepared and will be presented on the first day of the approaching term.

It will aver that the requirements indicated by the supreme court have been complied with in letter and spirit, and that the order as now represented in its organized supreme sitting has the confidence and respect of the membership, and has adopted a constitution and by-laws that will place an effectual bar to the abuses which existed under the Somerby regime.

Acting under Attorney Winter's advice, petitions are being circulated among the members praying for the restoration of the funds, and it is claimed that 40,000,000 of a membership of 55,000 will be represented in three petitions when the court convenes after the summer vacation.

If the petition is refused a change of venue will be demanded, and it is said that the application will be backed by affidavits containing sensational charges.

ROBBED BY BRIGANDS.

Sensational Story of a Rich Coffee Planter of San Salvador.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7.—Senor T. Salaveria, a rich coffee planter of Salvador, arrived here on the Panama steamer yesterday and told a sensational story of robbery by brigands at his coffee plantation, 60 miles from San Salvador.

A band of 150 brigands in June raided the place, and, after binding and beating Salaveria and his aged wife, secured $85,000 in coin. This money had been provided to pay the coffee pickers. The robbers also stripped the house of jewelry worth several thousand dollars.

Salaveria tracked them to their retreat in the mountains and informed the government, which promptly dispatched troops. All the mountain passes were guarded, and then the hunt began. When Salaveria left Salvador, 17 robbers were caught and after a brief trial were shot.

WEATHER FAVORABLE.

Indications In Northwest Point to Crops Larger Than Last Year.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 7.—The weather during the past week has been favorable for maturing the crop, which is ripening so rapidly that it will be ready to harvest next week upon most of the fields in Minnesota and North Dakota. The estimate of the probable yield varies from 10 to 20 bushels per acre.

Taking the average of all the reports, there will be certainly over three-fourths of an average crop of average superior quality of wheat, which is a larger yield than it appeared possible there would be one month ago.

Reports from all stations in the province of Manitoba indicate that there will be exceptionally good crops, very much larger than was raised last year.

SOUR GRAPES.

Disappointed License Seekers Organize to Swell No-License Vote.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 7.—A side party, strictly local in its purposes, will begin a vigorous campaign, which will be kept up until the municipal election, four months hence. Its object will be to secure the largest possible no-license vote in Haverhill. It will pursue a policy of personal effort and will work independently of the temperance organizations. It will not, in fact, claim temperance as its motive, nor are its members, which are said to number 250, in any sense temperance advocates.

They rather represent the element which was disappointed in the distribution of licenses and real estate owners who do not like the localities in which licenses were granted.

Federation of Labor Convention.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—Representatives of fully 55,000 organized wage workers assembled in Typo hall, 724 Washington street this morning to participate in the proceedings of the eighth annual convention of the state branch of the American Federation of Labor. President O. A. Robbins called the convention to order promptly at 10 o'clock. Committees were appointed and the report of the president was made.

Object to Reduced Wages.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Aug. 7.—At 12:30 o'clock this morning it was learned that the Evansville and Terre Haute firemen, brakemen, switchmen and conductors have decided to object to the 10 per cent wage reduction. They are willing, however, to loan the company 10 per cent of their wages. The result of the engineer's meeting will not be known until later. The company, is said, will stand firm.

Police Haven't Heard of It.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 7.—The local police and authorities know nothing of reported important developments in the McCarthy murder matter. There is nothing new that throws any light on the mystery. Preparations are being made for a thorough inquest soon, which is expected to bring out facts of importance.

HUNTING THE FISH.

Commissioner Feels That He May Locate Them In Great Numbers.

WOODS HOLL, Mass., Aug. 7.—Colonel Marshall McDonald, United States commissioner of fish and fisheries, is at the fish commission headquarters here to attempt to settle definitely whether the tile fish can be taken from the borders of the gulf stream in sufficient numbers to establish a new market fishery.

When Commissioner McDonald left Washington for Woods Holl, he entertained some doubts as to the satisfactory outcome of the proposed expedition, but a trip on the Grampus and the capture of a number of the species has caused him to feel that his department may locate the fish in great numbers.

The tile fish has until recently been considered extinct. It possesses many of the characteristics of the cod, and attains a weight of 30 pounds. The tile fish, when cooked, tastes like hake. If fried, it closely resembles swordfish, and when baked fresh, ranks with terrapin. Commissioner McDonald says that epicures will seek the fish because of its excellent flavor, and that it cannot be other than expensive.

The Grampus sailed yesterday for Newport, where she will secure menhaden for bait and plenty of ice for preserving the specimens of tilefish taken. The schooner has been supplied with two miles of trawls, and extra men were shipped to handle them. The fishing will be done 100 miles off shore, in exactly the same way as that employed by the cod fishermen.

PACIFIC BANK LOOTED.

Sons of Dr. McDonald Steal $900,000 Within Last Four Years.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—A special to The Tribune from San Francisco says: The looting of the Pacific bank of San Francisco by the sons of old Dr. R. H. McDonald has caused a sensation here. The failure of the bank was bad enough, with more than $1,500,000 loaned on poor securities and speculative investments, but the examination of the bank commissioners has brought to light gross speculations that may yet land the guilty persons in state prison. The two brothers have obtained from the bank within four years fully $900,000, for which there is nothing to show.

It has also been discovered that just before the bank suspended young Richard secured coin and easily convertible bonds amounting to $97,000, and that this sum was taken to New York last week by McDonald's confidential clerk, A. L. Jenkins. The only security for this money is Dr. McDonald's real estate, which was supposed to be good for some of the bank's deficit.

As this property has been used as collateral, the doctor's brother will now have to bear the heavy burden of responsibility, as Daniel M[illegible], another heavy stockholder, [illegible] assigned all his holdings to [illegible] nephew in order to escape liability.

FEMININE DIVINITIES.

Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt has pretty, white hands, and they are always laden with rings.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger, the New York society leader, read Dante and Tasso in the original at 9 years of age.

Mrs. John Mackay has a superb necklace of oak leaves and acorns. The former are diamonds, the latter pigeon blood rubies.

Lady Leinster, who presides over the distinguished social sets in the Irish drawing rooms, is one of the finest French scholars on the continent.

Mrs. Thomas A. Edison has a very charming picture of her little daughter Madeline. The child is sitting curled up in a moyenage armchair.

Mrs. Alice le Plongeon, who is at present residing in Brooklyn, is the only woman who has lived among the deserted old cities in the forests of Yucatan.

At home Mrs. Paran Stevens of New York's famous Four Hundred seldom wears any rings except her wedding ring, which is rather a narrow hoop of gold.

Major Susie Smith is an officer in the London Salvation Army. She is also a Vassar girl, with the intellectual look, the spectacles and the English which belong to Vassar.

Mrs. C. T. Yerkes, wife of the Chicago millionaire who is building a palace on upper Fifth avenue, New York, is very blond, very gracious and very picturesque as regards her dress.

New honors have been heaped upon the dowager Marchioness of Londonderry. She has been admitted by the archdeacon of Merioneth as church warden for the parish of Machynlleth.

Mrs. Philip Newman of London is the only woman designer and jeweler in all England. Her place in Bond street is well known, and she is said to have received at one time an offer from Tiffany to come over and do certain designing for him.

Mrs. W. J. Baird of England is famous as one of the most expert chess analysts in the world. Her chess problems are considered among the best and most difficult published. She has competed in many tournaments and has won many prizes.

Mrs. Lewis, the English woman who discovered the Syriac gospels in the convent of St. Katherine, on Mount Sinai, to which she and her sister obtained admission and where they were treated with all imaginable deference by the monks, is the mistress of 10 languages.

WHIP AND SPUR.

Owners in Texas tree their hounds in 2:20 for $25 purses.

The pacer Dr. M recently lowered the Canadian pacing record to 2:13¼.

Charley Boots recently refused $15,000 for the California colt Peter the Great.

A New Yorker has estimated that the average life of a horse in that city is 4 years.

Ed Corrigan's Riley has bad legs, and it is not likely that he will ever regain his form.

Guy, the once great son of Kentucky Prince, recently trotted a mile to wagon at Detroit in 2:12.

The English stallion Meddler cost W. H. Forbes $75,000. Meddler belonged to the late Abington Baird.

The death of Senator Stanford will not interfere with the engagements of the Palo Alto horses in the east.

R. R., 2:12, the little roan pacer that beat Hal Pointer out in 2:09½ two years ago, is being campaigned again.

The two fastest regulation tracks by the records are at Terre Haute and Nashville. There will be contests against time on each this fall.

Chester park, the half mile track at Cincinnati, is to be cut up into building lots. The early education of Maud S was given on this track.

A horse named Billy has been furnishing power for an elevator on the sixth floor of a New York warehouse for nine years, during which time he has never been down to terra firma.

FLOWER AND TREE.

Pinks and carnations should have slender stakes to support them.

It is said that the violet is conventionally the only flower that can be worn in mourning.

A curious tree growth is noted near Ellenville, N. Y., where a hemlock and an oak have become perfectly joined at a height of about 10 feet.

The water lily is largely used in some parts of India as food. The fruit of some species that grow plentifully in the lakes of Cashmere is rich in starch and has much the flavor of a chestnut.

Give each pansy plant plenty of room—not less than a foot of space—and make the ground very rich. If the flowers are pinched as fast as they appear and the plants are prevented from forming seed, they will produce flowers the whole summer.

EDUCATIONAL ECHOES.

Columbia college promises soon to become the home of the free scholarship.

The main building of the state university of Missouri at Columbia, which is to replace the burned edifice, will cost about $250,000.

William Royall Tyler has been appointed master of Adams academy at Quincy, Mass., to succeed Congressman Elect William Everett, resigned.

Miss Edith J. Claypole, after a year's work in the laboratories of Professors Wilder, Gage and Comstock, has been recommended for the degree of master of science "with the highest distinction."

The plain living which conduces to high thinking in the schools of Paris is of this order: A cup of coffee and a roll for breakfast; a slice of ham and a cake for lunch; a bowl of bread and milk for supper.

THE JEWEL CASKET.

An oblong locket of perforated silver gilt has fine chains depending from the sides.

A new souvenir spoon has a portrait of Mrs. Cleveland in the bowl and the White House perched on the handle.

The large round scent jars intended for rooms have large bits of carnelian and transparent quartz set in the covers.

There seems to be a fancy for tame forms in jewelry. Some wide silver bracelets have pendant chains and bolts at the clasps.

Loose chain bracelets made of odd shaped beads connected by a few links of gold are among the prettiest fancies of the season.

Charming receptacles for face powder are graceful low vase forms expanding into perforated silver edges as delicate as lace work. The bowl is very shallow and just large enough to hold a large powder puff.—Jewelers' Circular.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Suffered Every Minute

Since I came out of the war, with catarrh in my head, chronic diarrhoea and rheumatism, says Mr. J. G. Anderson, a well known blacksmith in the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad at Scottdale, Pa. "I had pains all over me, my sight was dim, and there seemed to be floating specks before my eyes. The food I ate seemed like lead in my stomach. The rheumatism was in my right hip and shoulders. Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills did me more good than everything else put together. They are the only medicines I use now. All my disagreeable symptoms have gone."

The Miserable Millionaire.

I am so very, very rich it is a nuisance quite;
It keeps me anxious all day long and wide awake at night.
My bonds they are so many that it makes my fingers sore
To cut off all the coupons, which I deem a dreadful bore.

I have six villas in the hills and seven by the sea,
But they're no joy, but aggravations rather, unto me,
For when the summer season comes I'm always full of woe,
Because I can't make up my mind to which of them I'll go.

I have a stable full of rigs and horses for each one,
Yet though they're all of blooded stock my [illegible],
Because when I'd go driving in my sulky or my brake
I cannot seem to choose the one 'twould please me best to take.

Upon the water 'tis the same. I've craft of every kind,
From dingies up to steamers swift that leave all else behind,
And yet I never venture out upon the sound or sea
Because my mind and I do not seem able to agree.

Now wealth is very lovely, and there's much that it will buy,
But 'tis a sorry burden to a fellow such as I,
For just the thing I need the most gold helps me not to find,
And that, as you may guess, in brief, 's a firm and stable mind.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

THE LAST HOURS OF A GOOD AND TALENTED YOUNG WOMAN.

An Epicurean Dish of Peaches—Deed of a Rich Woman—The Happy Blond—Lady Carlisle and Her Work—Avoid Sunburn. An English Visitor In Boston.

The death of Miss Eugenie Boyd Hendren was a sad surprise and shock as well to her family as to her many friends. She had been ill with heart disease for about 10 months and had been constantly confined to her bed since January, when she returned from St. Luke's hospital in New York, where she was treated by eminent physicians for nearly six months.

She had the ablest medical attendance, but all remedies positively failed, and nothing more could be done for her. Miss Hendren was calm and resigned to the end and showed not the least fear of death.

Miss Hendren was an artist of more than ordinary ability, her water colors being gems both as to design and technique, and her exhibitions always attracted large audiences, who admired her genius. She possessed wonderful will power and energy and was ambitious to excel in her art, and it is thought that a too active mind and too great application to her work brought on the disease that caused her death.

Of Eugenie Hendren it may be truthfully said that she was a woman of an unusually strong and interesting personality. Her talents were unmistakable, and her intense, earnest nature caused all who talked with her to feel themselves in a better atmosphere. Unlike many women in whom genius finds development, her nature retained all its womanly sweetness and gentleness.

The angelic fortitude with which she suffered more than a year's enforced imprisonment upon her bed, the patience with which she bore the pain which racked her body and the courage with which she hid her weariness and physical agony from those around her were all more than human and bespoke unmistakably her approaching death.

When I called to see her in the early part of the month, it required no skilled eye to see that her days on earth were very few, yet the hope that burned in her bosom was as steadfast as a beacon light to encourage faltering ones to endeavor and struggle on in the battle of life.

Each day she sent out letters to her many friends, for she was an ardent letter writer, and every sentence she penned was replete with encouragement and sympathy. So radiant was her mind with hope for the future that it seemed cruel to speak to her in any way but in words of cheer and faith in her ultimate recovery. Her plans for future work were each day brought nearer completion, and she delighted to go into the details of her intended studio in New York when health would be restored and she could take up her pen and ink work instead of the brush, which her doctors had forbidden her.

The Herald prizes which she won in contests with many gifted and clever artists were spoken of by her with childish delight.

Each day brought her a multitude of letters from men and women in all parts of the world who became interested in her through reading of her beautiful life and character. Until the week preceding her death she planned work which she might do even upon her sickbed, unable as she was to rise to a sitting position.

Her life opened like a beautiful fragrant rose, full of color and sweetness, and lying helpless upon her bed her hopeful smile was in itself a sermon more eloquent than was ever spoken from a pulpit.—Norfolk Cor. New York Herald.

The Day of Resurrections.

This is the day of resurrections in the realm of fashions. Every week records the revival of some old fancy. Sedan chairs, spinning, old fashioned scents, tea caddies and a dozen other rejuvenations have been heralded, and now we are told that the bell rope is to usurp the place of electric buttons. It is to be made by hand and will become a popular piece of fancy work.—New York Sun.

The Work of a Secretary.

Mrs. Richard Foster Avery, who was the secretary of the recent woman's congress at Chicago, says that she sent out 8,000 personal letters in preparation for the meetings. She employed sometimes as many as 12 stenographers and often worked 17 hours a day.

The ubiquitous and artistically "deadly" bottle of gilding has been getting in some more of its fatal work. Think of gilding two of the 5 cent Japanese stoop [illegible] and joining them with a ribbon bow! Yet this has been seen the past [illegible]

An Epicurean Dish of Peaches.

"There are but few people who know how to serve peaches and cream in a manner worthy of that luscious luxury," observed a lady the other evening at a restaurant where the fruit had been placed before her in an altogether-unattractive style. "Let me tell you," she continued, "how to present the fruit in a manner fit for the gods. To begin with, take two or three large freestone peaches, yellow ones, fair and smooth, for each guest whom you expect to serve. Place them in a vessel and pour very hot water upon them until they are entirely covered. Let them remain in the scalding water for a half or three-quarters of a minute, and then pour a covering of cold water upon them and add a lump of ice as large as a cocoanut. After they have stood in the cooling bath 10 or 15 minutes lift them out one by one and remove the skin, which can be done with surprising ease, by starting it with a knife and pulling it gently with the fingers, as one does in pealing tomatoes after similar treatment. The only difference is that the skin comes off peaches more easily than it does off tomatoes.

"When the skins are removed, put the peaches into a large earthen dish, being careful to pile them on top of one another as little as possible, and place the vessel in the refrigerator. Ten minutes before it is time to serve them lift them carefully one at a time into a large cut glass dish (a salad bowl will answer capitally) and cover them over with finely chopped ice. At the table the hostess is to serve them in flat plates, not in small, deep dishes, and for each person there must be a fork and a small fruit knife, with which the pits can be removed easily and without any 'mussiness.' Served in this way and with fine sugar and a cut glass pitcher filled with rich, golden cream, a dish of peaches becomes a beautiful, luscious, melting dream."—Exchange.

Deed of a Rich Woman.

It isn't many days since Mrs. Willie Vanderbilt was speeding through Central park, New York city, in the carriage and behind the horse made so familiar [illegible] by newspaper artists. An old woman sat on a bench, and a policeman was shaking her arm, while a little girl stood by crying. Mrs. Vanderbilt had her coachman pull up and learned upon investigation that the old woman was ill. That drink had nothing to do with the case seemed clear. The invalid was promptly lifted into the carriage. The little girl got in, too, and off the party went to a hospital. The case was the common one of a hard-working woman with an orphan grandchild—"the veriest rot you can read about in circulating library novels," to use the expression of a clever magazinist in a late essay. Well, the old woman is now living better than she ever did in her life probably, and the little girl has not the same cause to weep she had a month ago.

This incident well illustrates Mrs. Vanderbilt's character. Impulsive, kindly, generous, she is not like many of her relatives. Nor does she affect the elaboration so characteristic of the Vanderbilts. It is comparatively easy for any one, especially women who come upon a legitimate errand, to interview her. The great difficulty is that once a charitable act of hers like this becomes known she is besieged by hosts of applicants, worthy and unworthy, not a tithe of whose needs she could attend to, however willing.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Happy Blond.

Oh, to be a blond during the hot weather! Brunettes may be nice and sparkling and pretty in the winter, but as summer girls they are not the unqualified successes that their fair sisters are. I always thought I would rather be fair than dark, but it is only when summer comes that this thought expands into a positive conviction. I actually yearn to be a golden haired, blue eyed, fair skinned maid in hot weather. A blond may feel the heat just like other people, but she has the happy faculty of being able to conceal the fact from the world at large. She can wear a low neck dress without a fear, because she knows that no matter how much she dances her neck and face will still look as cool and white as a lily.

Now a brunette cannot exert herself the least bit without looking positively greasy, and if there is any one thing that takes the romance out of a girl's life it is a shiny nose. And the worst of it is that all the powder in the world will not help matters any. If you rub on a little, it melts like butter before the sun, and if in your desperation you apply it in wholesale quantities it cakes and gives you a complexion like the clown in a circus, and that is anything but pleasing to the girl, but very amusing to the world at large.—Philadelphia Times.

Lady Carlisle and Her Work.

Lady Carlisle, whose work in the cause of temperance and whose efforts in the interests of woman have made her widely known in the United States, after a friendly contest for some time with her amiable husband has been permitted to practice at home what she preaches abroad. At the two beautiful ancestral homes of the Carlisles—at Castle Howard and Palace Green—all the men servants have been discharged and their places filled with women and girls. The change extends even to outdoor departments, and the beautiful grounds are henceforth to be kept in order by a staff of women gardeners, who have been in training for some time for the occupation.

Lady Carlisle is now just over 50 years of age, is a fine specimen of the typical grand dame style and the daughter of the second Lord Stanley of Alderley, and full of interest in public matters of all sorts from temperance to home rule. She is happily married, her husband inheriting the easy temperament of the Carlisle branch of Howards and tolerating her activities with resignation and amusement. She holds to the firm idea that what a man can do a woman can do better, and as to some few things that naturally occur to one she is no doubt quite in the right.—London Letter.

[illegible]

An inexplainable distinction without a difference is contained in an assertion made by a girl who attended a dancing party the other night. "I don't dislike him, but I would not dance with him simply because, if you must know, I don't like him."—Springfield Graphic.

Avoid Sunburn.

Just at this season of the year the sun plays havoc with delicate and sensitive skins. To stay indoors during this lovely weather, when one has opportunities for enjoying the air, would be almost criminal, and yet the result of basking in the sunshine is to some women positive torture.

The effect of the sunshine upon very thin and transparent skin is in many cases to cause it to peel off in flakes. In other instances the skin becomes red in patches and burns violently. Those whose skin is less sensitive experience little effect from the action of the sun, the skin simply becoming browner and darker in hue.

Upon some complexions the action of the sun causes freckles to accumulate to an alarming degree. This is due to the chemical decomposition of the iron deposit present in the secreting glands of the skin.

The skin is more likely to become tanned, freckled or bronzed at the seaside than in inland places. Any one suffering from serious skin affections should avoid the seaside, as the salt air has an exceedingly irritant effect upon the cuticle when in an unhealthy condition.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

An English Visitor In Boston.

Eager for English letters, but overflowing with love and good will for all America, Mrs. Chant came Monday with her fair young daughter. "Oh," she said, "I have a title now. They think at the west that L. Ormiston Chant means 'lady,'" and she told laughingly how, as she stood by Lady Aberdeen's side, an eager woman pushed forward, saying, "Lady Aberdeen, will you please introduce me to Lady Ormiston Chant?" And the countess, with a twinkle in her eye, did so. The merry ripple of talk sank into pathos as she spoke of a Kansas woman whom she had met on a railroad car, the first the poor woman had ever entered.

Fifteen years before she had gone in an ox team to her husband's home, and this was her first outing. "Oh! her poor hands," said Mrs. Chant; "what a story they told of ceaseless, painful labor through those weary years! Never on one of our navvies did I see such hands as those, but she was working for something that our navvies never gain. Truly, those Kansas women have earned their freedom."—Boston Woman's Journal.

Put an Awning Over Your Hammock.

Often the enjoyment of a hammock is greatly interfered with by a provoking absence of shade just when we most want it. Perhaps there is one convenient tree under which to hang the hammock, or, again, there may be two young trees whose leafage does not protect from the sun. It is an admirable plan under these circumstances to stretch an awning over the hammock, for then you can lie in the hammock at all hours in serenest comfort perfectly unconcerned, even if light showers come up. Make the awning in the form of an isosceles triangle, cutting off the acute angle at a width of 18 inches. Sew this end firmly over a rod or round stick. Put a screw eye into the middle of the rod through which to pass a rope and tie this end to a tree. The other points must have rope sewed stoutly to them and be tied to posts, unless there is a second tree, in which fortunate event they can be tied to its branches.—House Furnishing Review.

The White Stocking For Large People.

Well, the white stocking has come back again. You know Hawthorne said it is much more effective than black. A lady tells me that a woman who weighs 180 or 200 pounds should choose a white stocking with a perpendicular stripe of blue or black. "The lace stripe that comes with rich white stockings," she says, "is good only for milady's parlor or a ballroom, but on the beach or in the park they invite the mosquitoes. It takes a woman with some artistic feeling to show it off just so much and not more. A white stocking should be worn by a woman with a moderate leg."

I am glad to see white skirts again. There is nothing so charming as a laced underskirt. It is the real ideal for a woman. A white skirted woman will marry sooner than a woman with a dark colored skirt.—Boston Globe.

A Suggestion About Tipping.

Katharine Bates, who wrote "A Year In the Great Republic," thinks it would be a good scheme to tip servants with gloves instead of money. "I have," she says, "such a sincere regard and admiration for America and the Americans that I hope to visit the country again before I die and shall be tempted to take a well stocked glove box with me. May I make one last suggestion to those going to Chicago this summer? Give out the gloves one at a time and let the noble democratic waiter realize that the possession of the 'fellow glove' depends upon whether his civility endures to the end.—New York Tribune.

Women In Surpliced Choirs.

Surpliced women choir singers have just been introduced into the Epiphany church choir in Washington. They wear plain gowns of white, with flowing sleeves and deep edges of black. On their heads they wear simple toques with tassel and cord. Women choir singers have been engaged for some time in a number of New York churches, as in St. George's, where they wear black robes and toques. The custom originated in Melbourne and is gradually gaining ground.

English Women Going Into Athletics.

English women are, as usual, taking the lead in athletic games and sports. At a recent archery contest at Cheltenham, one fair markswoman made 70 hits out of a possible 75. This was at a distance of 80 yards. In angling, too, the English women are very successful. Goodly numbers of them are now trout fishing in the highlands, and the other day two of them captured over 100 fish.

Miss J. Merta Mitchell of Salem, Ind., was admitted to the bar the day after the Indiana supreme court gave its decision that Indiana women might practice law. She is a recent graduate of the law department of De Pauw.

INDIAN PIG STICKING.

ONE MAN WHO SAYS IT IS THE FINEST SPORT IN THE WORLD.

How the Wild Boars of the Jungles of India and Northern Africa Are Hunted by Enthusiastic Sportsmen of Other Countries—Plenty of Danger.

As an ardent pig sticker I may be forgiven for advancing the opinion that it is the finest sport in the world. By "pig sticking" I of course mean pig sticking as it is practiced in India and in northern Africa and perhaps in some other English colonies—viz, riding down the pig on horseback and dispatching him with spears.

The Indian wild pig varies naturally according to his home. The biggest I have ever seen were in the Vindhya mountains, where I used to shoot them as food for my beaters. Sometimes they were of vast size, bigger, I think, than even their Ganges cousins.

A peculiarity of the wild pig is the straightness of his tail as compared with the curled appendage of his domestic brother. From the top of his low forehead to the end of his snout is almost a perfectly straight line, and he has a far longer snout and jaw than the English market pig. His skin is a kind of bluish gray and his bristles gray or black, though sometimes an almost brown pig is found. The wild pig will never live far from water. He is happiest in the long grass, often 12 feet high, that grows along the banks of the big Indian rivers, and above all rejoices in "jeo," a kind of evergreen brushwood that is as common as the grass. He only eats at night, and about 10 p. m. he sallies forth from cover and will go many miles to find the succulent sugar cane or other luxury, returning as a rule about an hour before the first streaks of dawn.

Pig sticking begins usually about Christmas week, when the giant vegetation of the rains has died down sufficiently to get at piggy, and the marshy ground where he lives is firm enough for horses, but it is not till the end of February that really good pig sticking begins, and it improves as the weather gets dryer and hotter till the June rains come, and pig sticking instantly ceases.

At about 6 a. m., after a light breakfast, the sportsmen set out—usually in "tumtums"—to the meet, having sent their spears and horses on ahead over night, together with the all important mess tiffin basket, in which a huge block of ice and innumerable soda water bottles and beer bottles figure largely. It is rare to gather together more than 12 men. It may have been different in olden times, but polo is a formidable rival to pig sticking nowadays, and the ordinary British subaltern can rarely afford time and money for both. Indeed, from my own experience, I should say the average field was not above five, and personally, I much prefer, except from the social point of view, very few companions.

The officer in command divides the party, if large enough, into little sections of three, and each section separates from the other and keeps together all day, either at one end of the line or in the middle. The coolies are usually about 30 in number and form line, covering about 200 yards of ground. Each is armed, or should be, with a big stick, and the end men carry flags, which can be seen above the long grass and help to keep the coolies in line. Behind them marches on each wing one of the shikari's satellites, and in the center is the shikari himself on horseback, and these officers, like sergeants, keep the line straight, and exhort, often in language more forcible than polite, the apathetic coolies to strenuous exertions. The sportsmen generally ride a few yards in advance of the line, unless, from the nature of the covert, the pig is likely to break back.

A pig lies usually in a kind of form like a hare and will sometimes let a man or horse almost tread on him before moving, and being often covered with mud or dust is very difficult to see in the grass and weeds. When, however, he does jump up, he slips along at an incredible speed for the first 30 or 40 yards and then settles down to a very fast gallop. I have known boars at once on being put up make straight for the first man or horse they see before they have been wounded or touched, and, as all know, the tusk of the wild boar cuts like a razor, though luckily the wound is usually a healthy, clean cut—very different from a mauling by the fetid claws of a tiger or leopard or the thrust of a stag's horn.

Whenever a pig gets up one of the sections go after it, and there are various little rules as to how the pig should be attacked and in what order. The most important rule is never to drop your spear, still less throw it at the pig, as some beginners have been known to do. Spears are weighted with lead at the handle, and when dropped from the hand in the long grass, the sharp end, being the lighter, naturally sticks up, so that the next horseman or beater may be wounded. I know of several horrible accidents that have happened in this way.

The man who first draws blood gets "the first spear" and is entitled to the carcass. The body is given to the coolies to eat, and the head is taken home by the triumphant sportsman to adorn his bungalow hall, or the tushes are taken out and made into some knickknack. Of course he is in honor bound to help fairly kill as well as prick his foe, but it is the second horseman, riding perhaps four lengths behind him, who has the most dangerous part to play. A pig when wounded rarely pursues his former course, and the leader often loses touch with him, while his follower has to bear the full brunt of a terrific charge. It is fatal to receive a boar's charge at a walk or trot. One cannot go too fast—not straight at the pig, but at a slight angle to him as he charges.

In Bombay a long spear is used, and the boar is stuck by an "underhand" thrust. In eastern Bengal a jabbing spear is used and is more deadly, I think. Of course it is unlawful to stick sows. They cannot fight well, having no tushes.—Baily's Magazine.

Chemists say that it takes twice as much sugar to sweeten preserves, sauces, etc., if put in when they begin to cook as it does to sweeten them after the fruit is cooked.

Emma Corbett is en route from Leadville, Colo., to the World's fair on horseback. Her object is to make faster time than the contestants in the recent cowboy race.

The Ever Ready Hairpin.

Not long since a Long Island girl while driving a friend to the station upset the village cart and broke one of the traces, which she deftly mended with a hairpin and got her guest to the station in time for the train. But as the smoke of the approaching locomotive showed its white feather in the distance it was discovered that during the accident the friend's dress had been torn quite off the band.

"I cannot possibly go to town like this!" she cried in dismay, holding up several breadths with the gathers completely unripped. Ever equal to the emergency, the fair Long Islander drew out several hairpins from her braids, shook back her flying tresses, ran one hairpin through half of the loosened folds, made a hook at the end so that it could not slip, gathered up the rest on another, fastened it in the same way, secured the whole to the band with a third, and finished just as the train came steaming up, so that her visitor went on her way rejoicing, none the worse for her exciting experience.—New York Tribune.

Women's Influence Over Men.

I do not believe a man was ever reformed by scolding or sarcasm. Tears and repinings and complaints soon grow to be an old story to him. He can find more pleasure among his convivial companions than he finds in such a home. Alas, that it should be so.

Good women ought to study the art of pleasing more than they do. No woman can afford to fall back on her goodness to reform a man. It is a dangerous experiment and one that rarely succeeds. The average man must be entertained.

A man who has been a hard drinker or opium victim cannot suddenly give up his vices without some stimulant to take their place for a time. A man accustomed to the excitement of gay company cannot suddenly become satisfied with the dullness and stupidity which many good people allow to creep into their homes.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox in Ladies' Home Journal.

The male quail, or "Bob White," deserves honorable mention among gallinaceous birds because he is particularly good to his wife. He always helps her to hatch her eggs, and if anything keeps her away will take the whole duty on himself.

HARRISON'S SYMPATHETIC WORDS.

While President Harrison declines to discuss the present monetary and industrial conditions he volunteers to speak freely of the distressing feature of the situation to him, and shows the heart that is in him for the masses, with whom he sympathizes. Writing the editor of The New York Press he says: "The most distressing feature to me of the present situation, is the closing of so many mills. My sympathy is moved for the man who, having two millions, loses one; but his case does not approach in sadness that of the workman who loses the daily wage upon which his family depends. I have before expressed the hope that the 'Society of the Unemployed' might not find an American domicile, and I now most devoutly hope that the present conditions may prove to be temporary, for, if they extend into winter, there will be great suffering."

Benjamin Harrison is an American with a warm heart and a sincerity of purpose that characterizes few public men; and the sound sense of the old republican leader expressed in such words as these brings home to the people with renewed force the measure of the man who was the victorious leader of the republican party and the ruler of the nation for four prosperous years, and impresses them with the greatness of the loss which his defeat brought upon the country.

HOW FREE COINAGE WOULD WORK.

The Chicago Herald in a recent editorial showed the silverites how the corner in lard came to collapse and bankrupt the operator. The high prices were so attractive that all the half-grown and half-fatted hogs were sacrificed for their lard, and the bulk and weight was increased by adding to it all the free beef tallow and cotton seed oil, which overloaded the market and crushed men who had planned to wrest a million from the pockets of the people.

"The history of the lard corner and its collapse," says The Herald, "illustrates exactly the process through which free silver would carry the country if it should be adopted. It would bring out the product of the leanest as well as the most productive mines. All the old silver sugar bowls and spoons, the worn out silver ornaments, the silver relics and heirlooms, would be sent to the melting pot in the mint for coinage into dollars. Montana's deformed statue of justice and silver idols from Japan would go with worn-out plate and smooth halves and quarters to swell the output of coin. Instead of $800,000,000 or $400,000,000 in silver coin, as we now have, we should have $2,000,000,000, and it would be as cheap as it was plenty. We would have dollars worth but 30 cents or less. The price of commodities would advance as the value of money decreased, and those who would suffer most would be the class to whom the free coinage theorists say that it would be the greatest benefit."

SPEAKER CRISP'S EXTRAORDINARY SPEECH.

The democratic caucus put Mr. Crisp to the front for the speakership of the house "with a hurrah," and he made a speech about "the extraordinary condition of affairs throughout the country, and the extraordinary session," which was common place in the extreme, and not calculated to, even salve over the breach in public confidence, or to strengthen the hope that the extraordinary session would be a short one. He proposed to his party immediate action to redeem their pledges; and if that means their pledge to repeal the ten per cent. tax on state bank issues, and the complete repeal of "the McKinley robber tariff law," he only needs to make the fact plain to increase the present troubles one hundred per cent. He doesn't mean anything of that sort; but is "talking through his hat" when he proposes "the repeal of the present laws and the making of good ones."

This is a well qualified statement of his: "In so far as the present condition is attributable to existing law, we are in no wise responsible therefor;" but the democratic party is responsible for the combination with southern democrats which came near foisting upon this country a free coinage act which would have been destructive to the nation's credit and currency, and which the Sherman bill, as a compromise measure, prevented. The democrats are responsible for the danger which made the Sherman law expedient, [illegible] by the revolutionary language of the democratic platform which pledged itself to overturn the American industrial system and to put in its place a tariff for revenue only, which would be the virtual establishment of free trade. And that party is responsible for the pledges made to the workingmen that their wages would be raised, and that they would be able to buy more for their money under democratic rule, when today with eight months' experience with democracy, the wages of the workingmen are being reduced and more of them are without money to buy anything with than were ever known to be at one time idle before in the history of the country.

As stringent as the times have been and as great the losses, there are democratic papers that still feign to believe that the cry greatly exceeds the reality. The Boston Journal has taken pains to present to its readers a picture of the shrinkage in value of thirty-three stocks since the democratic triumph in November, 1892, as follows:

Here is a loss in eight months' time in thirty-three properties which is nearly double the losses in the panic of 1873, but only about one-fifth the losses during the past year in this country. It is preposterous to claim that the issuance of thirty millions of treasury notes in exchange for depreciating silver bullion is the sole cause of the trouble. The revolutionary doctrines of the Chicago platform, which the democrats themselves are now repudiating, are the cause of the distrust and destruction of confidence which has produced a stagnant market and paralyzed the manufacturing interests of the country.

THE TORPEDO BOAT.

The English battleships and the fleet of torpedo boats have recently had their annual manoeuvres in the English channel for practice, and the sham battles fought are said to have been scary if not disastrous. For the first time in years the fleet representing the invaders was repulsed, and the result of the action is said to have established the fact that torpedo boats are too much for the heavy, armored war ships. It seems probable in view of the disaster to the Victoria and the recent manoeuvres of the home fleet in the English channel, that the mammoth floating forts and battering rams have attained their largest proportions. There is no doubt that the torpedo boats in the future will be in naval warfare what the artillery is in the field, and that upon them chief reliance will be placed for victory.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

President Cleveland did not send his message to Congress Monday. He will confine himself to the financial condition of the country, and it is said will favor the gold unit of value. The message will be short, making about 2,000 words, or two columns in THE BULLETIN.

VOICE OF THE PRESS.

An Invitation.

The democratic party is invited to carry out its Chicago pledges and bury them.—[Springfield Union.

Must Stick.

Congress can hardly help sticking to its work. The weather in Washington at this time makes everything stick.—[New York Recorder.

They Do Not.

Contrary to the familiar arithmetical declaration, ten mills do not make one cent. They are closed down at present.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

Old King Alcohol.

It appears certain that from 70 to 80 per cent of crime, 80 to 90 per cent of all poverty and from 10 to 40 per cent of the suicides in most civilized countries are to be ascribed to alcohol.—[Westminster Review.

Worst Foot Forward.

It seems to be conceded that Speaker Crisp will be re-elected, which signifies that the democratic majority in the house will begin the special session by putting its worst foot forward.—[St. Louis Globe Democrat.

The Dinner Not the Pail.

Somehow there is a subsidence of talk about the workingman's dinner pail under the McKinley law. Just at present, it is the dinner rather than the pail that is the occasion of the workingman's anxiety.—[Boston Journal.

The Nestor of Sound Money.

The fact that the old nestor of sound money, John Sherman, is still in the United States senate, is the chief secret of the hopefulness of Grover Cleveland regarding the repeal of the silver purchase act.—[New York Press.

A Newport Fad.

Thirteen women at Newport have set a new fashion, and it ought to be a lucky one. They call it the "Dutch treat." This means that every member of a party pays her own expenses. In times like these the Dutch treat should be popular.—[Springfield Republican.

Never'll Stray Far from Home.

If Colorado carries out the scheme which has been suggested, of establishing a depository of silver bullion and issuing certificates thereon, she may at least be easy on one point; such currency as that will never stray far from home.—[Boston Journal.

Vice Versa.

A judge in Louisville, Ky., had three girls before him last Sunday charged with smoking cigarettes in a public place. He decided that girls or women had as much legal right to smoke in public as boy or men had, and so discharged them. The judge showed good judgment and the girls had taste.—[Springfield Republican.

JEWETT CITY.

On the Crest of the Wave—Plenty of Money.

Jewett City instead of feeling the general depression like many of the neighboring manufacturing towns, is in better condition than for some time. Not for years has so much building been going on. Not only all the local carpenters and day laborers can get work, but hundreds from out of town are given steady employment here. Our mills are all running on full time, and our bank has plenty of cash. Taken all in all, Jewett City on the Quinebaug, is on the crest of the wave.

H. O. Prentice of New York is in town for a few days with friends.

Work at Aspinook is being pushed steadily ahead. The coffer dam, which will turn the whole river from its course, is nearly completed, and the permanent dam will soon be done.

A number of fine boats will be owned in town as soon as the Aspinook pond is full.

A late authority on American money says that the largest amount represented by any one "greenback" is $10,000, and that there is but one such note in existence.

London has not had a world's fair for over 31 years.

A correspondent at Calcutta says that a draper's assistant receiving £40 a year in England is rich by comparison with a man having a salary of 200 rupees per month in India.

In the jewel house of the Tower of London there is a book bound throughout in gold, even to the wires of the hinges. Its clasp is two rubies set at opposite ends of four golden links.

Queen Victoria has about forty pet dogs. Her greatest favorites are collies.

The city of London has no park within its borders, and yet the largest recreation ground open to Londoners is under the control of the city corporation—Epping forest, with its 5,000 acres or nearly nine square miles of almost unbroken woodland, forming one of the most extensive and beautiful pleasure grounds in Europe.

THOMPSON IS HELD.

Must Answer for the Brutal Murder of His Wife.

DECLARES THAT HE IS INNOCENT.

Testimony of State's Witnesses Strongly Against Him.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—Judge Forsaith today in the municipal criminal court found probable cause for holding George Thompson for the Suffolk grand jury for the murder of Mrs. Mary E. Thompson, his wife, on Aug. 1 last. Thompson was committed to jail without bail until the first Monday in September. The preliminary hearing was held today and the government witnesses only testified.

Mrs. Murphy, the mother of the alleged murdered woman, was the first witness. She testified that she was at the home of the Thompsons, 33 Dundas street, on Tuesday, the day of the trouble. On that day, she stated, Thompson came home with some liquor and those present partook of it. Thompson began beating his wife with his hands and feet. He struck her about the face and kicked her about the thighs. She (witness) had been in an adjoining room and she heard the blows being struck. Mrs. Thompson fell to the floor. Witness exclaimed on the arrival of Dr. Warren that Thompson Had Killed Her.

Mr. Herbert J. Anderson, a next door neighbor to the Thompson's, stated that on Tuesday he heard much noise and epithets exercised by the Thompson's. He also testified that he heard the sound of blows and said it appeared as if they were dealt with a stick. Further he said he heard groans.

Medical Examiner Draper was next called to testify. He said: I saw the body of Mrs. Thompson on the morning of the day succeeding death. It was that of a small woman. The eyelids of both eyes were discolored as was also the tip of the nose. Bruises were apparent upon the front of the right arm, under the middle part of right collar bone, left hip, and left elbow, back of right hip and thigh. The back of the head was swollen but the skull was not broken. The blood had the odor of alcoholic liquor. The bowels also sustained bruises. All the bruises, except those upon the face were recently inflicted. Death was caused by injuries to the brain causing concussion of brain and by the injuries to the intestines.

"The injuries to the intestines or abdomen were not themselves sufficient to cause death. Those on the back of the head were. The injury to the back of the head might adequately have been caused by a fall."

Officer Clary of division 10 gave testimony of his visit to the house of the Thompsons after the trouble. He said he found Mrs. Thompson lying upon the floor. When he entered some one said: "He killed her." It was the voice of a woman witness heard, and he asked the woman, who was Mrs. Murphy, how he killed her. She answered: "He kicked her." She pointed to Thompson, who started to leave, but returned when called. Witness arrested Thompson.

The defendant cross-examined the witnesses, he being without counsel. The officer testified in reply to a question from him that Thompson was sober at the time referred to.

Thompson himself was asked by the court if he had anything to say and he responded thus:

"I Am a Perfectly Innocent Man of the charge against me. I had returned home that day about 1 o'clock and found both women there—my wife and her mother. Some grocery bills had been sent home, and I took them up and went out to pay them and returned about 3 o'clock. About the floor and table was strewn pieces of broken glass. Mrs. Murphy stated my wife had fallen down the cellar stairs on Saturday and injured herself.

"My wife when I returned home after the errand was sitting in a chair, her head inclined forward. I took up a newspaper and went into an adjoining room to read it, closing the door behind me. After reading for awhile I started to water some flowers, and on passing through the kitchen I found my wife on the floor, where she had fallen from the chair.

I Tried to Awake Her first by shaking her; then I sprinkled some of the water over her. Then Mrs. Murphy cried out, 'Oh, she's dead! You have killed her!' I immediately went for a doctor and returned with Dr. Warren. My wife had been drinking that day."

Dr. Warren, who was called in by Thompson, gave testimony in behalf of the government. He said: "I arrived at the house about 7:30 in the evening. Thompson called me. He said: 'Will you come to 33 Dundas street, as my wife is very ill.' I left with him. On the way to the house he said: 'I will tell you the truth.' She is very stupid with liquor.' When I entered I found the woman lying on the floor. She was dead. The Murphy woman said to Thompson: 'You have killed her.' I notified the police." The court held Thompson for the grand jury.

AFTER AMERICA'S CUP.

Report That Emperor William May Challenge for It in 1894.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Should the Valkyrie not win the America's cup this year, there will be a challenge for it in 1894 probably.

The statement is made that an order has been placed with Designer Watson for a 90-footer, and the Scotchman has been given free hand to get up the fastest yacht that he can.

Watson feels happy over the success of the Valkyrie over the Navahoe in the two races in which the wind blew very hard.

No less a person than the German emperor has placed an order for a 90-footer with the Scotch designer. The emperor has caught the yachting craze, and royalty is now well in the sport on this side. He has watched the recent races, and is well pleased that Watson's boats have beaten the Navahoe.

The German ruler wants to have the fastest yacht in the world. It is not improbable that she will be built in Germany. In this event she can challenge for the Cape May and Brenton's Reef cups, and being a boat built outside of Great Britain she could, if she won them, take the cups to Germany.

The Berlin correspondent of The Standard says that the German emperor will send a new yacht to compete in the Cowes regatta in 1894, because the latest improvements cannot be applied to the Meteor.

RETURNING HOME.

Lawrence Man Finds Mother and Brother Both Dead.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 7.—Yesterday Joseph Allen left his home, 180 Chestnut street, where he resided with his aged mother, Mary G. Allen, and his brother William, and this morning when he returned he found them dead. The medical examiner pronounced heart failure as the cause of the mother's death and alcoholism as the cause of William's.

In a closet were found nine empty pint and two half pint flasks which had contained liquors.

Mrs. Allen was a widow and was about 70 years of age. She leaves two sons and a daughter, Mrs. John Kelly, all of this city. William was 52 years old, and served in the rebellion in the old Sixth Massachusetts regiment.

Will Not Employ Strikers.

TOPEKA, Aug. 7.—All efforts to bring the southeastern Kansas miners' strike to an end have proved fruitless, for the reason that the operators do not propose to employ any of the men who have participated in the present trouble. Yesterday a reinforcement of negroes from Alabama reached Pittsburg. The operators are putting new men to work every day, and say they will not feel the effects of the strike by the end of next week.

Both Time and Pay Reduced.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—A notice was posted in the roundhouse of the New York Central Railroad company in Mott Haven, late on Saturday night, announcing that after today the time of labor of all machinists, car repairers and yardmen would be reduced three hours a day, with a corresponding reduction in pay. It is said similar notices have been posted all along the road.

HAPPY MACHIAS.

Making Great Preparations to Receive a Gunboat Named For Her.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 7.—The people of Machias are making great preparations for the day when they shall present to the gunboat named for the town the elegant silver service which they have purchased at Tiffany's.

Owing to the extra session of congress, Congressman Boutelle, through whose efforts the gunboat was named after the town, of which the first naval battle of the revolution was fought, will not be able to be present and deliver the address, as he was expected to do.

Next Friday the gunboat will steam up the river, and she will be given a royal welcome. A salute will be fired and all the building and wharves about the harbor will be decked with bunting.

The banquet will be held at 3 o'clock, and Hon. Harrison Hume will preside as toastmaster. Governor Cleaves and other prominent men will deliver addresses, and the banquet will be the feature of the occasion.

There will be a reception in Libby Hall from 8 to 10 o'clock, and Cheney's orchestra of Boston will furnish music for both this and the banquet. There will also be a ball game in the afternoon between the Machias nine of the Sorrento team of summer visitors. In the evening there will be a band concert and a brilliant display of fireworks.

On Saturday an opportunity will be given for all to visit the gunboat, and in the evening there will be a very fine concert, to be followed by a ball.

These will be the greatest days in the history of Machias, at least since the memorable day when the battle occurred in the harbor.

That gold and silver bullion brought to the mint for coinage shall be received and coined by the proper officers for the benefit of the depositor; provided that it shall be lawful to refuse, at the mint, any deposit less than $100, and any bullion so base as to be unsuited for the operations of the mint; and provided also, that when gold and silver combined, if either of these metals be in such small proportion that it cannot be separated advantageously, no allowance shall be made to the depositors for the value of such metal.

The second clause repeals the silver purchasing clause of the Sherman law of 1890.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Dealings In Leading Securities In Boston and New York.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—In the outside market call money is quoted at 8 to 10 per cent, and time money is nominally 8 per cent.

The market today is but waiting for what the message of President Cleveland will contain. All eyes are turned toward Washington, and the message when sent in will be read with more interest than ever before, as so much depends upon its character and the action of congress upon the suggestions which it may contain. The feeling seems to prevail that the president's message will help the bull combinations, and that congress will without delay legislate easy money and confidence into existence.

It was said on Saturday that there would be further engagements of gold in London this week. Although exchange is not at the regular gold point, the premium on the shipments sold, to arrive, more than offsets the slight difference in exchange. Foreign houses which have been aided by the banks in importing gold cannot, of course, obtain any benefit from this premium, as it is understood that this gold is to be paid into the banks, and the loan certificates which were issued for the purpose of buying them are to be retired by means thereof.

Union Pacific showed marked weakness this morning, opening at 18¾, and with sales later at 18¼. This has been the case with this stock, whenever the market showed a slight strength it will break. Toward 11 o'clock the quotations on this stock fell from 18¾ to 18¼ in rapid succession. This is a decline of 2¾ per cent.

The opening today was one of firmness. Atchison opened at 18¼ and advanced to 18⅝ with later sales at 18¾. Chicago, Burlington and Quincy rose to 80 and fell off to 77¾. General Electric 42¾, off 4¼ per cent. Sugar common was active, opening at 74⅞ and advancing to 76¼. Then followed a slump which carried it down to 73.

Mexican Central was dull and West End railway sold at 58. Pullman sold at 143 on Saturday, and opened this morning at 150 with but few sales. Boston and Maine advanced 1 point to 140, but lost to 139½. Boston and Albany selling at 189½.

GOING TO THE WORLD'S FAIR?

A Remarkable Hotel That It Will Pay to Visit.

The Beautiful Building Put Up Within the Past Few Months.

Erected by C. E. Brown, the Well Known Chicago Merchant.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—If one goes to the World's fair there is a substantial, comfortable hotel that it will pay him to visit.

The proprietor, Mr. C. E. Brown, is a well known successful merchant, 4658 State street.

The story of how he came to put up the hotel is interesting.

To use the words of its energetic and successful proprietor, Paine's celery compound (the remedy that makes people well) built it.

Mr. Brown says:

"Believing it to be a duty that every man should acknowledge and recommend that which has done him good is the cause of this statement, which, to give all particulars, must go back to my boyhood days. When about 12 years old we moved to central Illinois, where for three years I had 'the shakes,' or ague, which I presume gave me what they called an ague cake or enlargement of the spleen.

"At the age of 17 years I came to Chicago and entered the old Chicago university, but my health was so poor that I could not make much progress with my studies, and from that time on until about eight years ago I was sick more or less without anyone being able to tell just what was the trouble, or to give me any relief.

"Eight years ago while lying aboard my yacht in Milwaukee harbor I awoke one morning but was unable to get up or move. Dr. Adam Miller was called, and he pronounced my trouble dropsy of the heart. After about six weeks of hard fighting and my determination not to die I got up, but was not well, and had to continue taking medicine. About two years ago I lost my wife, the worst thing that could happen to a man. I had a very sick spell after that. A friend then recommended Paine's celery compound, and I took six bottles of it and it put me on my feet again, and I am feeling, and have felt for the past year, the best I ever did in my life. I take no medicine at all now. A short time ago I bought six bottles more of Paine's celery compound. Five of them I gave to friends. I have recommended it to many of my customers and friends both here and at Central Falls, R. I., and I fail to hear of a single one it has not done good. Even a Mrs. Yeager, who has stood out a long time from taking it, said it was the best thing that she ever tried.

"I believe that Paine's celery compound was the means of curing me of the dropsy and making me well, so that I was able to take up the battle of life again. And I have built during the last four months a beautiful building and I have been so well that I have stood every day upon its walls fully eight hours a day, from the time of throwing the first shovel of dirt. I now have 125 rooms for World's fair visitors, and if any of your friends are coming to the World's fair, just tell them to stop at Brown's hotel that Paine's celery compound built, and they will find it well built, no crumbling walls or fire trap, but solid and substantial, like the writer.

"I am surprised at myself being able to stand so much work and the long hours from 7 a. m. to midnight, and on the jump all the time, besides confusion and asking questions, which used to make me very nervous. Am feeling well, looking well, and a living example of what your compound has done, and shall recommend it the longest day I live.

"I can refer you to Marshall, Field & Co., Keith Bros., and many other Chicago merchants in regard to my standing," says Mr. Brown; "or you can write to Dr. Miller, who has been my family physician for a good many years, although I am glad to say that I have not been obliged to call him in for over a year."

A table of statistics might be prepared, giving testimonials from men and women from every state in the union, of every age, the rich and the poor, and from every condition in life. There is not a city or village in the United States where Paine's celery compound is not known and prescribed. It has cured nervous diseases, brain troubles, kidney disorders, and liver complaint where everything else has failed and where the patient's life has been despaired of. It makes people well. Try it. aug8d

COMMON COUNCIL MEETING.

Street Railway Resolutions Adopted—The Laurel Hill Bridge—A Variety of Petitions and Reports.

The regular August meeting of the court of common council was called to order by Mayor Harwood at 8.45 o'clock Monday evening, with a full board of aldermen and councilmen present.

Alderman Aborn presented the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That permission is hereby given to the Norwich Street Railway company to erect for the purposes of their business of a street railway company, poles in Shetucket street from Main street to a point southerly of Laurel Hill bridge; in Laurel Hill avenue from Laurel Hill bridge southerly to the city line; in Thames street from West Main street to West Thames street; and in West Thames street from Thames street to a point near Dunham street, in accordance with the locations marked on the accompanying plan which is made a part of this resolution, and shall be kept on file in the records of this court of common council; provided, however, that the poles erected in Shetucket street shall be of iron. The poles in the other above named streets may be of peeled chestnut, painted, and shall not be more than thirty-five feet high above the ground, not more than eight inches in diameter at the top, and fourteen inches in diameter at the ground; said poles shall be straight and shall have conical tops. No poles shall be erected by said company until the same have been approved by the street committee of this court of common council as complying with this resolution. The bond wires connecting the rails shall be of such size, and the connections shall be such that the resistance of the rails and wires to the passage of the electric current through them shall be less than the resistance of the wire or wires carrying the current to the cars. Wherever other wires shall at any time be so situated that if broken or detached they might fall or be blown upon or across or against the working conductors, suitable guard wires, two for a single track and three for a double track, must be properly supported over the working conductor. All feed wires must be thoroughly insulated, and all supporting wires carefully insulated from the working conductor.

In disposing of the petition signed by William T. Lane and thirty-three others, remonstrating against the placing of the tracks of the Norwich street railway in the middle of the street on Laurel Hill avenue from River avenue to the northerly end of the park, the petitioners averring that by doing so it would make it difficult, as well as dangerous, for teams to pass cars. Alderman Aborn presented a resolution changing the location of the track from River avenue to Centre street to from 8½ to 9 feet from the westerly curbing. The driveway along the Laurel Hill route will now be from 14 to 17½ feet wide the entire distance. The resolution met with unanimous favor.

Jeremiah Halsey, G. L. Bidwell and Mrs. Kempton Abbott petitioned the council for the establishment of a grade for a sidewalk on the east side of Franklin street from East Broad to Rockwell streets. The street committee to whom the petition was referred made an immediate favorable report.

The street committee reported favorably on the petition for a crosswalk to be laid in front of the courthouse to the residence of N. S. Gilbert; and presented a resolution, on which consideration was deferred to the next regular meeting, that the city take a portion of the land of the Otis Library on Broadway and widen the sidewalk of the institution at that point.

P. F. Murtagh and others, who asked that the Ann street extension be graded, were given leave to withdraw their application.

The street committee reported that, in compliance with the request of T. T. Mason and others, the construction of a crosswalk from Lincoln avenue to William Park had been begun.

L. R. Hawkins, G. C. Spafford and Mary J. Elliott asked for permission to build a private drain in Pearl street. The street committee gave permission in a resolution which followed the presentation of the request.

James H. Watson asked for permission to build a two-story building on Oak street for a two-tenement house. Street committee.

G. L. Bidwell applied to erect a wooden residence at 305 Franklin street. The fire committee's favorable report followed the reading of the petition.

The street committee reported that steps had been taken to widen Thames street, in accordance with the petition of John P. Murphy and others.

Auditor Gilbert L. Hewitt made the annual report of the correctness of the account of the clerk of the city court.

Mrs. M. P. D. Goodrich and twenty others requested that an electric light be stationed on lower Broadway in the vicinity of the Central building. Referred to the police commissioners.

The fire committee reported favorably on the petitions of B. F. Goodwin and P. F. Murtagh, referred with power at the last regular meeting, and also on those of E. J. Wright, E. H. Palmer & Sons and [illegible].

Patrick Morris asked permission to erect a frame one-and-one-half story house in lot next to 231 Thames street. Referred to fire committee.

Jennie A. Rice, per F. F. Rice, applied to build a wooden cottage on Asylum street. Street committee.

Thirty petitioners solicited the council to order a concrete sidewalk laid on the easterly side of Mt. Pleasant street, extending from West Main to Elizabeth streets, "thus greatly accommodating the people in that portion of the city and Mt. Pleasant schools." Street committee.

A petition signed by W. C. Higgins, W. F. Burt and twenty-two others asked that the two buildings which adjoined the [illegible] lately purchased by the city, and removed from the lot, corner of West Thames and High street, be removed from their present location, considering it necessary for the public good and the best interests of the city. Alderman Aborn spoke of the necessity of immediate action on the petition, and on his motion it was referred to a special committee, consisting of the mayor and street committee. A hearing to interested parties will be given Wednesday evening.

E. N. Brewster called the council's attention to the dangerous condition of an aged tree in front of his residence on Grove street, and asked that it be removed by the city. Referred to the street committee.

Dr. William Witter and others petitioned for a concrete sidewalk on Central avenue from Prospect to Twelfth streets. Referred to street committee.

The council authorized payment to the Uncas National bank of $30 for a strip of land required in making the approach to the Laurel Hill bridge, and a warranty deed for the same was approved.

Appropriations for a large number of bills, including $1,429.05 for July expenses of street department were made, following which the council adjourned.

HOW THE MESSAGE IS VIEWED.

By Leading Republican and Democratic Newspapers.

RESPONSIBILITY PLACED

Congress Must Come to the Rescue of the Country.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The Evening Post, commenting on President Cleveland's message to congress, says: It presents the plain truth and places upon congress the responsibility of action for the rescue of the country from its present deep affliction. He tells the senators and representatives that the present trouble has come about from a loss of confidence in the standard of value, and that the only way to restore confidence is to assure our own people and the world in general that we intend to pay our debts. There is no suggestion of compromise in the message, no project for a substitute for the Sherman law. On the contrary, the recommendation is for absolute repeal. The message, as a whole, is well conceived. It can hardly fail to stir the country and bring a sharp return stroke of public opinion upon congress.

The Mail and Express says: President Cleveland's message is disappointing. It lacks the vigor, strength and emphasis which have sometimes marked his expressions regarding topics of national interest. The president writes as if he knew a large part of the democratic majority in congress and of the democratic party generally was opposed to his ideas, and as if he feared to give offense in an emergency when their opposition might paralyze the country and the administration too. The message, commonplace as it is, might bring some reassurance to the business world in this troubled hour, but for the unfortunate fact that it also briefly, but emphatically, declares that this administration will, "in the near future, insist on the tariff changes to which the party stands pledged."

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 8.—The Hartford Courant, republican, says in its editorial: President Cleveland's message comes up to the occasion so far as the silver question is concerned, though his promise to give us a tariff disturbance later cannot but counteract some of the benefits of his vigorous talk on the currency. The points that he makes are well taken and clearly stated. The factors that make good times are here, but confidence has gone and good times with it. Its departure he attributes to the silver purchase legislation of 1890, which he cleverly pronounced "a truce after a long struggle" without trying, for partisan effect, to shove the blame for it upon the republican party—a small trick of various democratic agitators. In this Mr. Cleveland shows a commendable breadth and no little shrewdness in cultivating friendship at a time when friends are needed. He very rightly says, in a large way, that "this matter rises above the plane of party politics." Prompt repeal of the purchasing clause of the act of 1890 is the remedy hereby offered and earnestly recommended by the president. Is the democratic party going to prove itself the equal of its leader? Republican support he is sure of; will his own party add votes enough to save the business of the country?

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 8.—Commenting on the president's message, The Journal prints in tomorrow's editorial columns: The message will be carefully read, and it would be a good plan if it were read very frequently during the next month, when the weary delays of all legislative bodies are made more prominent than usual at Washington. At the very time that the members of either house go to the executive mansion to discuss partisan or national affairs with Mr. Cleveland they will be met by his continued reiteration of this one appeal, to stop buying silver. He gives them gentlemen nothing else to think over or to talk about, there are no side issues, he tells them, partisanship must give way to patriotism, and all must unite to save the ship of state from drifting on the rocks. We judge from the tone of the message that Mr. Cleveland has every reason to believe that he is not appealing to his followers in vain, and moreover feels assured of an honorable support from the best elements in the republican party to undo the compromise which both parties were more or less responsible for in 1890. Much support can be given to the president by the public opinion of New England making itself heard through the press and the resolutions of several associations, and it is not a rash prediction to make in stating that there will be but one voice audible from Maine to Connecticut. Mr. Cleveland in his reply says that the business of the government must be conducted on business principles, and every good citizen will respond with a hearty "amen."

Singular Experience of Captain Beach of General Haven's Staff.

NEW HAVEN Conn., Aug. 8.—Captain Francis G. Beach, who was recently appointed an aid on Brigadier General George Haven's staff, underwent a very singular experience last Sunday night. Captain Beach is one of the best known patent attorneys in the state and is spending the summer with his family on Fishers Island. He returned to this city today and related his experience. About 5 o'clock Sunday a very dark cloud was seen coming up from the westward. Thinking that it would be followed by a shower, Captain Beach went to a window. The cloud was not a very large one and the sky could be seen all around. It was then directly over the cottage. As Captain Beach was about to close the window a blinding flash of lightning threw him to the floor. The flash was followed by a terrific report. Captain Beach was stunned but not seriously injured. When he recovered sufficient to get up he found that his wife and children had been prostrated by the lightning, which had also struck the tower of the cottage. In the tower a colored servant was sleeping and was nearly killed.

Fatally Hurt by a Runaway Horse

NORWALK, Conn., Aug. 8.—John Napley and Mrs. Gregory were thrown from a carriage tonight. Mrs. Gregory was uninjured, but Mr. Napley was thrown on his head on the sidewalk and it is feared fatally hurt. A trace became unfastened and the horse was frightened by a locomotive.

Receiver for a Shoe Manufactory.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 8.—In the superior court this afternoon, before Judge Hall, an application was made for an appointment of a receiver of the Ten Eyck & Baker Shoe company, and Wm. E. Burnham of this city was named as receiver. The concern is a large manufacturer of shoes. The company is sound and this [illegible] is taken as a protective measure.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

Financial Measures Introduced in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Various petitions for and against the repeal of the Sherman act were presented in the senate and referred to the finance committee.

As soon as the introduction of bills was in order Mr. Hill of New York introduced a bill to repeal certain sections of the Sherman act, and it was referred to the finance committee.

That was followed by two bills introduced by Mr. Stewart of Nevada, one to restore the right of coinage, and one (which he said was to meet the existing troubles immediately) to supply a deficiency in the currency.

Senator Hill's resolution provides for the repeal of section 1, 3 and 4 of the Sherman act, and declares that this repeal is not to be considered as an abandonment of the bi-metallism, but that the policy of the government shall be the maintenance of gold and silver as the standard of money metal, to the accomplishment of which the government shall be steadily and safely directed.

A resolution was introduced by Mr. Vest declaring that the American policy, from tradition and interest, favors bi-metallism and the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver, without discrimination against either metal; that it is the established policy of the United States to maintain the parity of the two metals so that the debt-paying and purchasing power of every dollar shall be at all times equal; and that it is the duty of congress to speedily enact such laws as will effectuate and maintain those opinions.

Mr. Hale offered a resolution fixing the hour of daily meetings for Saturday afternoon at 11 a. m.

After a long discussion Mr. Hale's resolution was tabled till tomorrow.

The senate was then addressed on the financial question by Mr. Dolph, who contended that the Sherman act was not the sole or the principal cause of the present business depression.

Adjourned till tomorrow.

The House.

The house was called to order promptly at noon and prayer was offered by the newly elected chaplain, the Rev. Dr. Haddaway.

The first petition filed in the house was presented through the petition box by Mr. Curtis, republican, New York. It was from the business men of Buffalo, N. Y., and asked for the unconditional repeal of the purchase clause of the Sherman law.

Mr. Reilly of Pennsylvania announced the death of his colleague, William Mutchler, and as a mark of respect the house adjourned until Thursday.

HIS LOOKS DO NOT BELIE HIM.

Congressman Sperry of Connecticut Does a Philanthropic Act.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 8.—Representative Lewis Sperry of Connecticut, says a local paper, has the mildly philanthropic air of a foreign missionary, enhanced by his beard and spectacles. That this benevolent air does not belie him was illustrated by an incident at the capitol, Thursday. The member had strolled up to look over his mail, and was accosted by an extremely ragged and woebegone newsboy disposing of his papers.

"You look just about the age of my boy," said the congressman, as he looked down upon the newsboy. "I wouldn't like to see him in such shape. You come along with me."

Thereupon Mr. Sperry took a down-town car in the company of a disreputable-looking newsboy, and alighted with him at a large clothing store. A suit of summer clothes, shoes, hat and all the necessary trimmings were purchased by the congressman before leaving the store, and then the boy was sent on his way rejoicing, with a more extensive wardrobe than he had probably ever possessed before during his existence.

DUNHAM STILL MISSING.

Nothing Heard of the Whereabouts of the Saybrook Liveryman.

OLD SAYBROOK, Conn., Aug. 8.—The mystery surrounding the sudden disappearance of Edward Dunham of this place, is still unexplained, and his friends have come to the conclusion that he has either been foully dealt with, or is wandering about the country suffering from temporary insanity. It has been learned since Dunham has been missing that for several weeks previous he had acted despondently and had complained of being unable to obtain sleep. His wife had an idea that possibly her husband had gone to his father's home, a [illegible] town in Illinois, but dispatches sent there brought only the answer that nothing had been heard or seen of him.

The fact that none of the checks that he was known to have had on his person at the time of his disappearance have as yet been presented at the banks, give credence to the theory that Dunham is alive. He had a few creditors in this place, but his debts were not of so large an amount but that he could easily have settled them. To protect themselves, several persons whom he owed have attached Dunham's livery stable, and a hearing will be held in September.

Appointed Adjutant of Second Battalion.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 8.—Colonel Doherty of the Second regiment, C. N. G., today announced the appointment of Lieutenant Rodman V. Beach to the position of adjutant of the Second battalion. Lieutenant Beach was paymaster of the regiment, and the position made vacant by his promotion has been filled by the appointment of Corporal John Lowe of Company F.

A Telegraph Line to Ellis Island.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Superintendent Stump of the bureau of immigration has entered into a contract with the Western Union Telegraph company for the operation of a line from New York to Ellis Island, New York harbor. This will make both a telephone and telegraph line to Ellis Island.

PUTNAM.

A Norwich Boy Arrested in Putnam—The New Check System.

Tom Wilson, who claims Norwich his residence, was arrested Monday night by Officer Carver for drunkenness. He appeared before Judge Chesebro Tuesday morning and paid a fine of $9. He told Officer Carver that he had been robbed of $60 on Monday night.

A new feature in the general business depression has been the adoption by the Grosvenordale company of a system of payment in checks to the regularly employed help.

Morse's mills of Putnam will use this new system on next pay day.

2 OUT OF 3 RACES EXCELLENT.

Miss McGregor Wins the 4-Year-Old Trot in Three Straight.

DOUBLE CROSS WINS

The 3-Year-Old Event for Trotters Eligible to 2.30 Class.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Two out of three races here today furnished excellent sport.

Elfrida was picked to win the 3-year-old trotters eligible to the 2.30 class, but she more than found her match in Double Cross.

Hal Braden was scheduled to win the 2.17 pace, and sold a very popular favorite. Chesterfield showed great speed in the first heat, winning it and cutting his mark from 2.15 to 2.11¾. Hal Braden was laid up because of a break. Chesterfield beat him out in the second heat and made a half-second better time than in the first. In the third heat Chesterfield got to dancing on the first turn and then McCoy laid him up. Hal Braden finished in front and was again installed as favorite. But Chesterfield came back in the fourth heat and the race was his without much effort, though the Raven made a great bid for the heat.

Miss McGregor was the favorite in the four-year-old trot and she landed the event without difficulty in three straight heats. In the final heat she equaled her mark of 2.19¼. Summaries:

WON'T ACCEPT A REDUCTION.

Employes of the Eastern Tinware Company Leave on that Account.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 8.—As was stated in this city, Monday, President Schneider of the Eastern Tinware company announced a few days ago that work would begin this week on full time. Monday morning when the men appeared ready to go to work, they were surprised to learn the conditions under which they were expected to resume. They supposed that they were to receive the same pay as before the temporary suspension, but in this they were disappointed. They were notified of a reduction of 10 per cent, which they positively refused to accept. The company would offer no better terms, therefore the factory is again closed.

The Middlesex Quarry company at Portland have notified their men that beginning Wednesday, August 9, they will work only three days a week. A similar announcement is expected to be made by the Shaler & Hall Quarry company within a week.

Piano Key Factory at Deep River Shuts Down.

SAYBROOK, Conn., Aug. 8.—This morning the employes of the piano-key manufacturing firm of Pratt, Read & Co. of Deep River were surprised to find a notice posted on the front door of the factory, stating that the works would shut down tonight for an indefinite period. This measure throws at least 300 men out of work, and most of them are dependent upon their wages for subsistence.

The local grocery and dry goods men have given notice that hereafter they will give credit only to persons who are owners of unincumbered real estate.

The Long Island Pirates Captured.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 8.—Detective Dennehy today captured William D. Buckingham, John L. Howard and Charles F. Church, boys, who with some companions, stole M. White's yacht and played pirate all along the Connecticut coast. They raided farm yards and chicken roosts and destroyed considerable property. The boat was abandoned in Madison and the boys scattered, part of the gang coming here. They belong to the same section where the boys recently stole rifles and other weapons from Healy & Bigelow and pitched a camp, making raids in the neighborhood.

Bridge Burned on N. Y. & N. E.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 8.—An incendiary fire tonight destroyed the railroad bridge over the Blackstone at that village on the main line of the New York and New England railroad. The fire was fortunately discovered in time to flag an approaching train. The bridge cost $35,000. A $2,000 cottage was also destroyed. Freight and passenger traffic will be seriously crippled by the loss of the bridge.

Nelson Makes a Half Mile in 1.03 1.2.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 8.—While being worked on a new mile track at Rigby Park today, the stallion Nelson made a quarter mile in 30½ seconds and a half in 1.03½.

SUN SPOTS AND AURORAS.

This Curious August Weather Attributed to Solar Disturbances.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The brilliant auroral displays of Sunday evening are generally attributed to the big spots on the sun. The cool weather which came on Sunday evening is supposed to be another effect. A remarkable group of very dark solar spots appeared on the sun's southern hemisphere Sunday so marked as to be plainly visible through smoked glass. Smaller groups could also be seen. A violent solar eruption appeared to be in progress, the darkest of the spots or chasms being bridged over with beams of bright light. The area covered by the main center of activity was estimated to be 3,000,000,000 square miles.

A similar group of spots observed in February, 1892, was followed by a far-reaching magnetic storm and a most brilliant aurora. Those who had observed the sun-spots expected a bright auroral display on Sunday night, and were not disappointed. From nightfall until early yesterday morning, with more or less intensity, the mysterious celestial exhibition continued, and the mercury steadily fell.

The unusually quiet but deadly electrical storm which passed over Long Island early Sunday evening is attributed to the same causes.

A Disappointing Run.

MORRIS COVE, Conn., Aug. 8.—The run of the New York Yacht club from Glen Cove to Morris Cove was a greater disappointment than yesterday's race. The wind was light and fluffy, but coming from every portion of the compass and the yachts soon became scattered all over the sound. The cup defender, Colonia, having no competitor in her class, became disgusted early in the day and got under way two hours before the race. She sailed away to the eastward under plain canvas, and when the wind died away signalled for a tug. She then headed for Newport, where she will have a few repairs made previous to her great struggle with the Vigilant, Jubilee and Pilgrim in the Goelet cup race. The Queen Mab was the first to cross the line at 12 hours 36 minutes 26 seconds, followed closely by the Jessica and Bedouin.

Want Employers to Pay Off in Checks

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 8.—At a meeting of the Worcester Clearing house, this morning, it was voted to request the larger employers of labor, doing business with Worcester banks to pay off their help in checks, payable only through the Worcester Clearing house, the system to continue during the present scarcity of currency. Several large concerns have agreed to follow this method of paying off their help.

L. A. W. MEET AT CHICAGO.

Honors Divided Between Tyler, the Eastern Crack, and Zimmerman.

SECOND DAY'S EVENTS.

Small Attendance Owing to Champions Not Meeting.

CHICAGO, Aug 8.—Honors on this, the second day of the L. A. W.'s national and international meet, were divided between H. C. Tyler, the eastern crack, and A. Zimmerman, whose quarter mile in 30 2-5 seconds is excelled only by his own world's record of 30 1-5, made at Detroit last week. Tyler voluntarily moved back from the 20-yard mark in the mile handicap to scratch, in an effort to break the track record, and succeeded by covering the mile in 2 11 1-5. This performance is second only to Sanger's mile at Milwaukee in 2.09 2-5. Zimmerman also won the two-mile lap race, scoring seventeen points to Guy L. Garry's twelve. This was the first time the Boston man had been in the front, and the champion would have scored in his stead in the final lap. The attendance was not large, probably owing to the fact that Sanger was not to ride against Zimmerman. The Milwaukee crack will not recover in time to ride before Friday, and possibly not at all this week. The sport today was better than on yesterday. Meintjes, the South African champion, proved a disappointment. He started in the mile handicap at an advantage of fifty yards and succeeded in qualifying in the trial heats, finishing a second to Brown of Cleveland. In the final he was shut out by Tyler forcing the leaders to finish in 2.11. In the two-thirds mile handicap he was shut out in his trial heat. It is thought by some that he is holding out his best methods for the international events.

John S. Johnson, the Minneapolis crack, started back in the second heat of the mile handicap and was disqualified by a quarter length. He won the second heat of the quarter open in 34 seconds. Zimmerman's quarter was brilliant. He pushed away from his opponents at once. Tyler and Johnson were on either side, a half length back down the stretch. On the upper turn he began his spurt and the two fast men kept with him into the stretch. There Zimmerman rushed away with wonderful ease and it was thought a record was broken. The time was 30 2-5, faster than any other wheelman had ever covered the ground in competition. Zimmerman started in none of the handicaps.

Security for Positions of Trust

G. L. Hewitt has been appointed the agent of the Fidelity and Deposit company of Baltimore, and is now prepared to issue the bonds of this company, guaranteeing the honesty of any person required to give a bond.

The company acts as surety for executors, administrators, guardians, trustees, contractors, bank officers or employes, officials of the government, state, county or city, letter carriers, cashiers or bookkeepers and persons in every position of trust.

By the payment of a small premium it relieves you of the necessity of asking your friends to go on your bond and thereby put yourself under an obligation to them.

It enables heirs and next of kin to become trustees, executors and administrators of the estates of their deceased relatives and to keep the management thereof in the hands of those most interested and enable them to make a speedy, cheap and proper settlement.

A Well-Known Organist to Leave New London.

Joseph D. Rice, organist at St. James' church, New London, has tendered his resignation to take effect September 1. Mr Rice has removed his family to New Haven, where he has musical engagements that keep him busy the greater part of every week, and it was cheaper for him to reside there permanently than to travel back and forth from New London. Mr. Rice has made a most favorable and highly creditable record as director of music at St. James' church, New London, a prosperous and wealthy church, and has well maintained the high standard of music for which the church is well known in this section of the state.

A CANTERBURY SUICIDE.

Farmer George Smart Hangs Himself in His Barn.

George Smart of Canterbury hung himself in his barn early last Saturday morning. Walter Williams, who gathers cream for the Brooklyn creamery, while passing Smart's residence saw someone in the barn who appeared to be on his knees. On going to the scene he found the body hanging so low that the knees were on the floor. He at once cut the rope, but there were no signs of life. Mr. Smart was a man past middle age, and a farmer. No cause is known for his committing the act.

GORED BY A BULL.

A Waterford Farmer's Fatal Encounter With an Enraged Beast.

Michael Coffey of Quaker Hill was gored by his own bull in a field Monday evening and received injuries that resulted in his death early Tuesday morning.

Coffey was crossing the field when the beast made for him, crushing in the ribs on both sides, tearing out his right eye and puncturing his abdomen.

Mr. Coffey would have been killed outright by the bull but for the assistance of two tramps. The man lingered until death came to his relief shortly after midnight.

SPORT FOR FISHERMEN.

Block Island Waters Offer Rare Piscatorial Excitement.

The amateur fisherman is in high glee at the present time on account of the arrival of mackerel and bluefish. Out in the sound and around Block Island this toothsome fish, together with the blues, are caught in large numbers and are of good size.

Any sportsman who finds the ordinary fishing hereabouts dull and void of excitement should pack up his paraphernalia and embark for the bluefishing grounds of Block Island, where ten or a dozen finback whales are spouting and disporting themselves, and the residents on the island consider it a serious omission of the daily programme if they do not spend a little time watching the leviathans from the banks.

A gentleman who returned Monday from a cruise, while out sailing around the island one day last week, ran through quite a school and passed within fifty feet of a finback about eighty feet long, which is considered a large size for these waters. The older residents in this vicinity recall the time when whales were seen in Fishers Island sound. Regular whalers seldom, if ever, touch a finback when on a cruise. They do not yield the profit that is made from catching a right or sperm whale.

ALLYN'S POINT.

The Original Owner and His Descendants.

Probably not one person in a hundred who passes up and down the river on the excursion boats at this season of the year, looks upon Allyn's Point as anything more than an unloading place for coal vessels. It has associations with the early history of Norwich, however, which make it of interest for many reasons.

The original proprietor of the Point was Robert Allyn, who removed from Salem to New London in 1651, and obtained a grant of a large farm on the east side of the river. This farm is now a part of the town of Ledyard.

Allyn was one of the first company of purchasers of Norwich, and lived for several years in the western part of the town-plot. In 1661 he speaks of himself as a native of "New-Norridge." He held the office of constable in 1669.

In later years he gave up his Norwich house to his son John, and retired to his farm on the river, where he died in 1683. His age is not known; but from the fact that he was exempted from training in 1669—probably upon attaining the military limit, 60 years—he must have been about 75.

It is interesting to notice the old Norwich and Ledyard names in the list of heirs to his estate. With his son John, there were his daughter Sarah, wife of George Geares; Mary, wife of Thomas Parke; Hannah, wife of Thomas Rose, and Deborah, who married John Gager, Jr. The son received £ 188, and each of the daughters £ 66 6 s.

John Allyn married "Elizabeth, daughter of John Gager of New Norwich," and in 1691 took possession of the homestead at the Point. He died in 1709, leaving an estate of £1,278 to be divided between his son Robert, and his daughter Elizabeth, the wife of Thomas Waterman.

His inventory enumerates three farms and a trading establishment upon the river; and among the moveables such articles as a silver tankard, cup and tumbler, a silver whistle, a gold ring, a wrought cushion and a lignumvitæ pestle and mortar.

Robert Allyn, his son, married Deborah Avery, and died in 1730, leaving nine children. Robert Allyn, of the fourth generation, also occupied the homestead, and dying in 1760 left an estate of more than £3,000. His inventory of wearing apparel comprised a blue coat with brass buttons, silk jacket and breeches, laced jacket, boots and spurs, gold sleeve buttons and ring, silver snuff-box and silver buckles for shoes, knees and neck bands.

The site of the old Allyn homestead is about six miles below Norwich, and was directly opposite the ancient fort of Uncas. Allyn's mountain, south of the pond and cove, was in early times the look out post, when the river was visited by any unusual craft or the Indians on the other banks were gathered for council or sport. From this point, on the memorable 6th of September, 1781, the conflagration of New London was witnessed by women and children whose husbands and fathers had hastened to the scene of action.

During the war of 1812 the three blockaded vessels forming the squadron of Commodore Decatur were laid up in the river near by, and on this hill the commander's men threw up a redoubt, and kept a sentry to watch the movements in and about New London harbor.

MURDER INTENDED.

A Pole Robbed and Thrown Into the River.

FISHED OUT WITH A BOAT HOOK.

Drawtender Heard the Splash—Unfortunate Man Gets Well Soaked.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—The mysterious bath of a Polish Jew in Charles river early this morning is something that is troubling the police of division 15. Not because the man went into the river, but because of his peculiar circumstances previous to his sudden dip into the murky water.

He, in an excited and half-coherent manner, and in language that might be called a mixture of English, Hebrew and Polish, declared that he had been robbed, and that after getting his money the thieves thought to throw his life away.

As he could not tell to this mixture a very clear story the police are undetermined as to just what did happen. The fact remains, however, that the man did get

A Very Thorough Ducking.

Joseph Downey, the draw tender of the Charles river bridge, is the sponsor for the tale. There is no doubt he tells the truth so far as he goes, the trouble is that he was unable to go very far with the dense subject he had.

Mr Downey's attention was first attracted about 2:45 o'clock this morning by the sound of a fight on the bridge. He heard much loud talk, not unmixed with the sound of scuffling. He went out on the bridge to see what the matter was, and as he reached his door he was startled by a loud cry and the sound of a heavy splash.

The guttural gurgling which followed, Mr. Downey was satisfied from experience, came from a man who was in the water, who wanted to get out.

So the drawtender got a boat hook and a boat and after a half hours' labor fished on to the bridge a

Very Much Frightened Foreigner

who from his general appearance he decided was a Polish Jew.

Mr. Downey politely requested information as to what the trouble was and the stranger tried to tell him.

Now it is difficult for a clear headed man, who can speak English, to tell a very connected story of events leading up to a sudden ducking, and the excited foreigner with only the command of a few words, had an extremely hard time of it.

He stamped, fused and fumed, and in a long interview, not particularly edifying to either side, Mr. Downey gathered that he had been drinking with some other men, and that they had inveigled him into the bridge, taken away his money, and then tossed him

Over the Rail Into the River.

The man insisted on going to his home and Mr. Downey allowed him to do so. The drawtender says he thinks he said he lived at 5 Bartlett place, but it might have been some other number or some other street for all that he knows definitely. Then he reported the matter to the police.

Officers are trying to find out something about the matter, but they have not been very successful. They cannot ascertain that any man ran off the bridge, or that there was much of a fight there. They will have an interpreter see the assaulted man, and endeavor to get a clear story from him.

TYSON GAVE BOGUS CHECK.

Now He Is Arrested for Obtaining Money Under False Pretences.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—A dispatch to the World from Reading, Pa., says: Colonel Harvey Tyson of Governor Pattison's staff was arrested at his home last night on a warrant issued at Harrisburg upon information of William F. Harrity, secretary of the commonwealth, charging him with false pretences. It is alleged that he secured a sum of money, said to be $400, from Secretary Harrity, upon his check, which was subsequently protested.

Colonel Tyson was recently appointed engineer of the state forestry commission, upon the recommendation of Secretary Harrity and others, at a salary of $2500 per annum. He expected to start soon upon a tour of the state.

PORTSMOUTH'S NEW MAYOR.

Takes Oath of Office and Suggests Reform in Street Management.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 8.—At 10 o'clock this morning, the members of the new city council met at city hall to witness the inauguration of Charles P. Berry as mayor. The oath of office was administered by Hon. Calvin Page.

In the board of aldermen Samuel L. Gardner was elected city clerk.

The common council organized by choosing Augustus M. Wells president, and Charles E. Senter clerk.

Mayor Berry, in his inaugural address, recommended a complete sewerage system and a reform in the management of the street department, giving full control to the street commissioners.

STEAMER POMHAM BURNED.

Half Dozen Employes With Difficulty Escape Being Roasted to Death.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 8.—The iron steamer Pomham of the Shore Line Transportation company was burned at the dock on the east side of the Crawford street bridge this morning at 5 o'clock.

The fire caught from the boiler room and spread with such startling rapidity that the half dozen employes aboard the boat had the greatest difficulty in saving themselves from being roasted to death.

John Summer, a Portuguese boy employed about the deck, was forced overboard by the flames, and had a narrow escape from drowning.

Manuel Bashop, a deck hand, got off the steamer in safety, but went back after his clothing and some money he had drawn from the bank recently, and was badly burned. The flesh was burned from his feet and his back was also badly burned.

Dr. Bogman, who was called, reported Bashop in a precarious condition, and ordered the victim to be taken to the hospital.

Others who received slight injuries and met with losses were: John Krein, Joseph Lima, Frank Brown, Manuel P. Davis, Manual Roberts and Manuel Deses, all Portuguese.

The Pomham was a large propeller, built at Newburg, N. Y., five years ago by a number of capitalists to run in opposition to the Continental line steamers to the shore places on Narragansett bay, but this season the vessel, with its mate the Squantum, were leased to the Continental company for $10,000 a year.

The Pomham cost about $80,000. The fire for a while endangered the docks and some surrounding business blocks. The wharf pavilion was damaged.

Home Rule in House of Lords.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—The Earl of Kimberley has sent a circular to the Liberal members of the house of lords, calling their attention to the fact that the home rule bill will be laid before the house of lords toward the end of August, and urging their attendance.

CLAIM FIFTY MAJORITY.

Friends of Repeal of Silver Law More Confident Than Ever.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—As a result of the exchange of views among members of congress today at the Capital the friends of the unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act are a good deal more confident now that they will carry their point. A partial canvass has been made and the friends of the repeal claim at least 50 majority if a square vote can be had on that naked proposition. The danger which confronts those who are striving in this direction is that the silverites who are under the lead of Bland will not permit a square vote on that proposition.

The silverites claim to be powerful enough to delay final action for a good many weeks. They will not consent to fix any time either in which debate shall be closed. They propose to discuss every proposition that may be offered or brought before the house as long as they please. On the other hand the friends of repeal express the opinion that the sentiment of the country is so strongly in favor of prompt action that congressmen opposed to repeal will not dare to filibuster against it.

Senators Teller and Stewart, who are doing most of the talking on the small side, express the belief that no bill for the unconditional repeal of the act of 1890 can be put through the senate in the next six months. There are some Democratic senators in that body who are inclined to these views. There are not more than eight or 10, however. There are some western senators like Manderson of Nebraska and Carey of Wyoming and others, who have been counted upon as opposed to unconditional repeal, will vote in favor of it rather than defeat any action. This is a time, say these gentlemen, when one should rise superior to politics and act for the best interests of the country.

HALL MARKING LAW.

Free Trade In Silver Brought to the Attention of Parliament.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—In the house of lords, yesterday, the Earl of Northbrook, some time governor-general of India, called the attention of the house to the existing obstacles to importation of manufactured silver from India arising from the compulsory hall marking law in England.

He said that the silver in the hands of the people of India was estimated to amount in value to from £150,000,000 to £100,000,000. Owing to the stoppage of the free coinage of silver by the Indian government, the people were unable to find a market for their metal, and were sustaining enormous losses.

The abolition of the hall mark in England, together with free trade in articles manufactured from silver, would, he declared, mitigate the evils brought about by the stoppage of free coinage.

The Earl of Kimberly, secretary of state for India, admitted that it was desirable to change the law. Silver manufacturers in England were, however, opposed to the abolition of the law compelling their goods to bear a hall mark. He saw no reason why the various standards of manufactured silver ought not to exist in England the same as in other countries.

Lord Herschell, lord high chancellor, said he had been advised that there were no large hoards of silver in India. During the famine vast quantities of silver ornaments had been sent to the mints, where they had been converted into rupees. The estimate as to the value of the ornaments among the natives was a greatly overrated one.

The Earl of Kimberly promised to submit to the house the papers that he had on the subject.

DOUBT CLEARED AWAY.

Philadelphia Arrives at Callao—Unreported For a Month.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Much anxiety and doubt were cleared away yesterday at the navy department by the receipt of a cable message from Dr. Barker, commanding the U. S. S. Philadelphia, stating his vessel arrived at Callao from Rio de Janeiro yesterday morning. The Philadelphia had not been heard from since July 9, when her arrival at Rio was reported, with the information that she would sail thence immediately for Callao. It is customary for captains to wire the departure of their vessel on long cruises, but Captain Baker failed to make report.

About that time cable communication between the United States and Brazil was interrupted on account of the Brazilian revolution and it was supposed this prevented the transmission of a dispatch telling that the vessel had left for Callao. But when three weeks went by and nothing had been heard of the Philadelphia the navy department officials began to get anxious.

It appears from Captain Barker's dispatch that the Philadelphia did not leave Rio until July 17. He states that the vessel arrived at Callao 20 days and 18 hours from Rio, with all well on board. Orders are waiting Captain Barker at Callao directing him to proceed immediately with his vessel to Apia, Samoa, to represent this government's interests in the Samoan protectorate.

NAVAHOE OUTCLASSED.

Makes Poor Showing in Royal Victoria Yacht Club Race.

RYDE, Isle of Wight, Aug. 8.—The race of the Royal Victoria Yacht club today started the weeks' racing. The clubs course is 50 miles, and the first prize £80. The starters were the Satanita, the Calluna, the Navahoe and the Britannia.

The Navahoe got a fine start, and went away in the lead, with the Satanita, the Britannia and the Calluna well bunched. It was a beat out of Spithead, and at the end of seven miles' racing the Navahoe gave way to the Britannia and Satanita. The order of the yachts eight miles out was: The Britannia, the Satanita, the Navahoe and the Calluna.

After racing 15 miles the Calluna passed the Navahoe and the Satanita and took second place, the Navahoe being slightly ahead of the Satanita. The wind held moderate from the east southeast, and half the distance over the timings were: Britannia, 1h. 09m. 52s.; Calluna, 1h. 15m. 40s.; Navahoe, 1h. 16m. 12s.; Satanita, 1h. 17m. 04s. The royalty boat in the race out beat the Navahoe in all points of sailing.

The Britannia won easily, beating the Navahoe by 8m. 5ls. The American boat was five minutes ahead of the Satanita. The Calluna was last, 2 minutes astern of the Satanita.

Governor Wants Better Roads.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Governor Altgeld is reported to be seriously considering the advisability of calling an extra session of the Illinois legislature. His object, it is understood, is twofold, and covers a scheme to improve the roads of the state and at the same time provide employment for the thousands of poor people thrown out of work by the financial depression.

Working Hours Reduced.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Aug. 8.—A notice was posted in the Wabash machine shops in this city yesterday, notifying the employes that until further advised the working hours should be reduced from 10 to 8 per day. A similar notice was also sent to the shops at Springfield, Ills., Moberly, Mo., and Peru, Ind. Several thousand men are involved.

Dr. Thomas W. Evans, the Paris dentist whose fame was worldwide in Eugenie's days, is about to erect a home for American girls who go to the French capital to study.

Colonel John Turner Wait of Norwich, for many years member of congress from the Third district of Connecticut and now nearly 83 years of age, is probably the oldest practicing lawyer in the Nutmeg State.

Jonathan Stanhope of Wayne county, Ind., who is eccentrically enthusiastic over the celebration of the Columbian discovery, proposes to paper his parlor with 1, 2 and 5-cent Columbian postage stamps at a cost of $1,200.

Frederick J. de Peyster, president of the St. Nicholas society of New York, the quintessence of Knickerbocker gentility, declares in a recent interview that it is more important to be a member of the St. Nicholas society than to control 100,000 miles of railway.

There lives a man in Webster county, W. Va., of the name of Whorton, aged 99 years, whose hair and beard are turning from white to black. He is said also to be cutting a new set of teeth. His appearance is stated to indicate a man of about 40 years instead of one nearly 99.

The redoubtable Colonel Fred Burnaby, whose fame as an athlete is still fresh in England, when he was quartered at Windsor with his regiment made a wager that he would run, row, ride, hop and walk five successive quarter miles within a quarter of an hour. Nervous Prostration

And Dyspepsia in its worst form pulled me down until I could not eat nor sleep and felt if I did not soon get relief, I should surely die. THE NEW BABY.

There came to port last Sunday night
The queerest little craft,
Without an inch of rigging on;
I looked and looked and laughed.

It seemed so curious that she Should cross the unknown water
And moor herself right in my room—
My daughter, oh, my daughter!

She had no manifest but this,
No flag floats o'er her water;
She's too new for the British Lloyds—
My daughter, oh, my daughter!

Ring out, wild bells, and tamed ones too!
Ring out the lover's moan!
Ring in the little worsted socks!
Ring in the bib and spoon.

Ring out the music; ring in the nurse!
Ring in the milk and water!
Away with paper, pen and ink—
My daughter, oh, my daughter!
—George W. Cable in Washington Star.

ANOTHER'S SISTER.

Let us all pray to be delivered from the sin of hasty judgment. When I first beheld four or five modern comedies adapted from the French language, wherein the situations were all due to somebody, chiefly a she, entering somebody else's apartments, chiefly a he, I scoffed audibly. The thing was absurd, outworn and cheap. But now that has happened which has caused me to know a great deal more about French comedies and critical situations than all the most successful playwrights put together.

In the first place I occupied (and still do occupy) chambers which consist of two rooms connected by a tiny hallway giving on to the landing by one door. Therefore it will be plain to the meanest mind that once the halldoor is occupied by the enemy, the only other exit is from the window by way of the gutter pipe—a vertical distance of three stories. There should always be two ways, not including the window, out of every set of chambers.

This need had never presented itself to me until one memorable afternoon, when without knock, word or warning a round faced, golden haired, blue eyed maiden in an astrakhan faced jacket, a gray skirt and a black velvet hat charged into my room after the most approved fashion of all the comedies, crying, "Dear old Joe!"

My name was not and never will be Joe. There was no need for explanations. Sister, and only sister, was stamped all over the face of the maiden. Everybody who has been possessed of an only sister understands the manner in which one of the tribe enters a brother's rooms.

The maiden gave a little scream as I turned. She apologized. Could I tell her whereabouts Mr. Joseph Hupard's chambers were?

I could not—for you may live 17 years in chambers without knowing the face, life or occupation of any one of your fellow convicts. I suggested that she should speak to the housekeeper and escorted her to the tiny hall aforesaid.

You will observe that there was nothing whatever in these proceedings to bring a blush to the thinnest cheek.

The imp of perversity, who is generally playing about on the landing for 6 shillings a week, met me in the hallway, saying, "Lady and gentleman to see you, sir."

Behind him stood two figures that I knew, and at any other time would have received with joy.

The maiden at my heels lost her singularly pretty head, and whispering "What shall I do?" bolted back into the sitting room.

All this was strictly in accordance with the rules of the stage, but why it should have taken place in my chambers I could never understand. And yet I was deeply thankful that she had not gone forth, like Una, under the noses of my visitors. Uncle John—yes, it was an uncle, even as is the case in a comedy—would have laughed, and since she was another man's sister that would have been even worse than Aunt Alice's hawkeyed inspection of the maiden, and subsequent description of her face, figure and dress to all her righteous world.

I received my people in the hallway. An inspiration told me to get rid of my coat and rumple my hair. Desperate fear made me very wise, most courteous and genial to excess.

"Oh, so glad to see you," said I, "but I'm afraid you've come to a regular camp in the wilderness. Fact is, my sitting room is upside down—that fool of a housemaid has been doing something to the fire that has filled the place with smuts, and I've made her dust everything out again. But come into the bedroom, since you've taken the trouble to climb all these stairs." Even as I spoke in the hall, I heard the heavy armchair wheeled up against my sitting room door, and there was a sound of emphatic dusting. I thanked heaven that was pleased to afflict me that it had sent at least "one heart still ready to play out the play."

Into my humble bedroom I led those relatives, and my aunt, after the manner of women, made scorching inventories with her eye and inquired as to whether I was well looked after. But it was the antipathetic kiss and the remark that followed—"My boy, how hot you are! Aren't you well?"—that seared my perfectly innocent soul like hot iron. Perfected crime must bring with it a sense of ease and rest. It is the unmerited imputation of evil that strains the nerves.

My aunt would fain have had tea, "when that girl had finished cleaning your rooms." The bedroom door was of course open. I assured my aunt that the folly of that housemaid prevented her from finishing anything this side of doomsday, and that the dust would not settle down till 20 minutes after that.

There was a crowing, choking noise, that might have been a smothered chuckle, from the sitting room, whereof the fanlight above the door was open.

"What a very superior voice she has!" said Aunt Alice. "Quite like a lady's. Is she pretty?"

"Come and see," quoth I, with that icy innocence that only cunning can bestow. I half opened the sitting room door, coughed vehemently and drew back as one choked with the dust.

"Impossible," I said. "She's not in a sweet temper today because I made her do the rooms twice. We'd better not disturb her, or she'll break my ornaments." This, messieurs, could not have been excelled by the most hardened profligate on the stage.

My aunt left very slowly and deliberately, mourning for the loss of her tea. I escorted her and Uncle John down to the first floor. How could I tell that her housewifely zeal for her nephew could have led her to bestow upon the housemaid, who was Fan of the Teeth, a few hints on the best management of fires and the proper care of the room, which the fellow servant was even then supposed to be cleaning?

"You see, it all means more work for you in the end," said my aunt.

I dashed into the sitting room to find, helpless with suppressed laughter, the maiden with the black velvet hat. I was coatless, as has been recounted—people never stay long with a man who lacks a coat—my hair was on end, and I was flushed. But there was no resisting that infection of mirth. I laughed aloud. The air was dense with dust, and all the furniture was out of place. "That fool of a housemaid" had lived up to her reputation.

"Haven't I done the room beautifully?" she said, with a wicked giggle. "Thank you—thank you, oh, so much for helping me!"

"Not in the least," said I. "I've got a sister of my own. But hadn't you better"——

"I'm gone," she said, and vanished at the word to hunt for her brother's chambers.

Entered, her cap over one eye, Fan of the Teeth, boiling with rage. She was an austere woman of 85, not to be trifled with.

"And I'm sure me and Lucy, too, we takes all the trouble that we can with 17 sets of chambers to be gone through, and the bells ringing on every landing all day long. 'Tisn't as if I was afraid of my work, for I 'ave kep' myself ever since I was a little girl of thirteen, nor Lucy neither. But when that lady on the staircase spoke to me an tole me that I was inattentive an Lucy, too, an smuts all about your room, sayin that I was to take extra care of you, sir, I was put out.

"Do as you would be done by, I thinks, an show no favor to any chambers more than another, for some one must lose by it, and if it isn't you it will be some other gentleman. An there aren't no smuts in your room not to be seen, an Lucy, I know she 'as been on the fourth floor since I come down with the slops, but I didn't say nothink to that lady when she said what she said—an Lor, sir, what 'ave you been doin to the furnichewre—all pulled across the room? An you 'avin to see your friends in your bedroom—as if it was our fault!"

"Fanny," said I, "if there has been any fault, that fault is mine. Take, oh, take those lips away, and—here's a half sovereign."

It was a damning confession of guilt, received as such. Fan removed herself with an unholy light in her eye.

I hated Fan, and this still further shook my nerves. Worn with a thousand conflicting emotions, I fled to the sideboard and pulled myself together with the necessary liquids. Men never seem to do that on the stage after any unusual crisis. They do in the prosaic world of real life.

Re-entered Fan, the half sovereign in her hand, and placed it on my table.

"I've took them in their teas," she said oracularly, "an she was tellin 'im all about it. She is a real nice little lady, she is, an—an I don't want no 'arf suffering for that."

No comedy that I could think of had any mention of the soubrette—to be sure, Fan was rather too angular for the soubrette—refusing a tip.

"And you're a lady, too, Fan," said I. "Keep it. Few people return money. Still fewer dismiss preconceived suspicions."

She withdrew slightly alarmed.

I stepped into the hallway to set down the empty soda water siphon in the place appointed. The door leading to the landing was half open. I heard voices descending the stairs.

"He was really very nice, Joe, about it. Said he had a sister of his own and laughed."

"H'mph. Then I'm sorry for his sister, that's all. He drinks like a fish. Why, only last night I found him on his hands and knees on the second floor and had to help him to bed."

The next chambers! As I hope to clear my character before all judges, it was the man in the next chambers! I had heard the infernal din of that episode at 2 o'clock in the morning, and a few of Joe's comments as he left the drunkard. How should the maiden know exactly into whose rooms she had penetrated, and here was Joe saddling me with my neighbor's booted slumbers.

I gripped the siphon head in an agony of wrath. The steps were almost opposite my landing. There was more soda water than I thought for in the tube, and the infernal concoction exhausted itself with a finale, spit and grunt. It seemed to roar through the house.

"There!" said Joe. "You hear, Milly? That's a soda water siphon. He's at it again—so early."

"But he didn't look as if he took"—The sweet voice died away, and I was alone with my sorrow and my siphon.

Today I know something of plot and construction, and, as I say, I understand the verisimilitude of the modern French farce. Yet would I sell all my insight for the single privilege of explaining to Milly (my Milly—she has dusted my rooms) that I am not—indeed I am not—the villain that Joe painted me.—St. James Gazette.

Using English Coins For Weights.

Many are the uses of money, but Mr. Joseph Newton, late of the Royal mint, points out there is at least one use which is not generally known. This is the availability of coins for letter weighing when the ordinary postal weights do not happen to be at hand. Commencing with the sovereign, this weighs a very safe quarter ounce, for foreign postage, two equaling, of course, a half ounce, and four one ounce. The next denomination, the crown piece, is just on the right side of one ounce in weight, and the half crown of half an ounce. Five separate shillings, or two shillings and a sixpence, for the ounce and half ounce, will do as well.

Descending from gold and silver to hard working bronze, it is found that either three penny pieces, or five halfpence, or 10 farthings will respectively make up one ounce. Another peculiarity in regard to the halfpenny is noted by Mr. Newton. That is its diameter, which is precisely one inch, so that by using it as a measure it will be seen that 12 halfpence laid flat and in touch are equal to one foot and 36 to one yard.—London

FARM, FIELD AND GARDEN.

A STONE DITCH.

Three Ways of Placing the Stones According to Width of Ditch.

Never throw the stones in loose. It is a waste of time, as the ditch soon becomes clogged and the water comes to the surface. Lay a good throat and do the work yourself. This is the only way to secure permanent results. Why is it we are so apt to distrust our own judgment on some unusual work and willing to pay big wages to some tramp who comes along looking for a job, claiming to be an expert, but who may have never seen the work done? He has the brass to try and nothing to lose. We have intelligence and self interest enough to make our work superior, without experience, to his. Thus reasoned a Rural New Yorker correspondent as he stood by his first ditch 17 years ago. He writes:

It works well yet and will for 50 years to come. Put the bottom stones below the frost line so that they will not heave. There are three ways of placing them according to the width of the ditch and their own size. The mode I prefer in wide ditches is to have stones on each side and a cover laid on. The center of the ditch is a little the highest, and the side stones keep crowding to the outside. The cover of flat stones should reach well across so as not to work off and drop down. Cover all cracks with other flat stones and put in as many more as you can spare or have time to draw until the ditch is nearly full. In clay land too much dirt on top of the stones will get packed down and hold the surface water.

In a narrow ditch dig one side a trifle lower than the other and put in good sized jam stones. Put flat stones against the opposite side and let them lie on top of the jam stones. This makes a V shaped throat. Put more stones on top of the cover and wedge this down against the bank to hold it tightly. Fill in with stones to level up. A third way is to take two flat stones and set them against the opposite sides of the bank, bring the tops together in the center, then fill in behind them to hold them firmly. I do not like this way, as if one slips both may fall in and close the throat.

A stone throat if firmly laid and covered with stones will not need that anything should be put on it before covering it with earth, and a horse can be driven on it without injury while plowing in the covering. In this country we often dig ditches partially at least to provide a place to get rid of stones. If there are only a few of them on top of the cover, scatter in some straw, which will keep the dirt from rattling through until it is well settled. The lifetime of a ditch depends on the care taken to keep the mouth open. If the fine earth cannot run out, the throat soon fills.

Horn Fly Pest.

The terrible horn fly pest is preying on the cattle of the country again. We reprint the following remedy from a bulletin by Professor Weed of the Mississippi agricultural experiment station:

The treatment for the horn fly is mostly preventive in its nature and consists of the application to the cattle of odorous substances which will keep the flies from the animals. For this purpose a great many substances have been recommended, but most of them have proved of little value. The following, however, have given the most satisfactory results at our hands:

1. Gnat oil, made as follows: Crude carbolic acid, an ounce; pennyroyal, one-half to an ounce; sulphur, one-fourth pound; crude cottonseed oil, a gallon. Mix well and apply with a brush or cloth to the back and shoulders of the cattle. The crude cottonseed oil is cheaper than the other oils, although fish oil or lard oil is equally good in making the above.

2. Fish oil and tar mixed and applied as above are equally effective. The tar is mixed with the fish oil so that the odor may last longer and thus keep the flies away from the animals a greater length of time. Either of the above will keep the flies away from the animals for several days, after which the application should be repeated.

3. The flies breed in fresh manure. It is thus important that the barnyards be kept as clean and free from manure as possible. Lime placed upon the manure will kill the larvae.

Field Peas.

The question of raising field peas for forage, for feed and for ordinary uses as fertilizers has occupied the attention of many of the stations lately. The Minnesota station announces that peas are a good crop in cold climates, and they will repay the cost of cultivating them. In many cases it is an improvement to grow the peas along with oats as the stalks of the latter tend to support the drooping vines of the peas. But it is better to select the standing varieties of vines and to improve them by cultivation and selection. When grown on a large scale, the peas can be harvested with a mowing machine, raked with the ordinary hay rake and thrashed out with thrashing machines either alone or with oats. They form a crop very rich in nitrogenous matter, and they come in very good in rotation with grain crops.

Sowing Grass Seed Without Grain.

We prefer the plan of sowing grass seed without grain in August and September, whenever the land is well fitted for working, and then sowing clover as early as possible in the spring after the surface of the ground thaws out. Should not wait for all the frost to come out of the ground, nor should we be worried if it froze again after the clover seed was sown. Have seen good success with it when sown upon the snow, but the snow was level and not more than a few inches in depth, and the land level enough so that the melting snow did not wash the seed off the higher parts of the field.—American Cultivator.

Poultry Pickings.

Separate the sexes as early as possible if you want to get well matured pullets and juicy cockerels.

The Farmers' Journal says that a $5 force pump with sprayer attachment and a pail of kerosene will in a few minutes make a large henhouse unfit for the red mites. A monthly spraying during the summer does the work, and the little red bloodsuckers will be hors de combat.

Grain should be fed rather sparingly on hot days, but green stuff in unlimited supply is nature's food for overheated animal life.

ONLY A LITTLE LESSON.

The Florist Gives the Young Married Man a Tender Reminder.

It was just a little lesson, that was all, but it went right to the spot. He stopped a moment on his way home to look in a florist's window, and the florist, who saw him, asked him inside to see something extra fine.

"You don't buy any more flowers now?" said the florist.

"No," was the response, given good naturedly, though it was brief.

"And it used to be, a year ago or more, that roses and violets and carnations and all sorts were a great attraction to you."

"Yes; I had a sweetheart then," and the man blushed and laughed.

"You used to take her a flower every time you went to see her, didn't you?" pursued the inquisitive, kindly old florist.

"Yes."

"And they didn't cost very much as a rule, did they?"

"Oh, no, but that didn't make any difference to her. I brought them fresh and fragrant; that was enough."

"Why don't you take them to her now? Did she choose another in your stead?" And the florist's voice was sympathetic.

"Oh, no; I married her a year ago."

The florist waited a moment as if thinking.

"And don't you love her now?" he asked cautiously, as if treading on thin ice.

"Of course. We are very happy. But you know the flower business doesn't go any more."

"Did she ever say so?" asked the florist.

"Well—um—er—no; I can't say that she ever did."

"Have you ever asked her about it?"

"No. I never happened to think of it. Busy, you know, with all sorts of things, so much more practical."

The florist didn't answer. He went to a pot of roses and violets, and taking a handful he handed them over to his late customer.

"There," he said, "I give them to you in remembrance of old times. You might take them to your wife, and if she doesn't like them you can bring them back to me."

But they never came back.—Detroit Free Press.

If Two Worlds Should Meet.

Our world is spinning through space at a speed of over 1,000 miles per minute. Should it come in collision with a globe of equal size going at the same rate of speed, what would be the result? The very best thinkers of the age tell us that heat enough would be generated by the shock to transform both of the colliding bodies into gigantic balls of vapor many times their present circumferences. Some have thought that in case the center of the earth is composed of solid and colder matter than is the generally accepted belief this might not be the case, but after searching all the leading authorities I must admit that I cannot find a more appropriate "finis" than the following, which is from an eminent scientist: Should such an unheard of event occur the heat generated would be sufficient to melt, boil and completely vaporize a mass of ice fully 700 times the bulk of both the colliding worlds—in other words, an ice planet 160,000 miles in diameter!—St. Louis Republic.

Equal to the Occasion.

One of the good stories ex-Postmaster General James tells is about a typewriter he once employed who was a novice at the art, but who proved herself equal to the emergency. Colonel James had dictated to her a political speech which he was about to deliver. He referred to a certain individual and said of him, "He knows no more about politics than Nicodemus did about the second birth."

The young woman's notes when she came to write them out proved to be incomplete. She was not familiar with New Testament stories, and thus was obliged to fall back on her wits. The sentence as she finished it read, "He knew no more about politics than Nicodemus did of the tariff." The tariff at that time was a favorite topic of conversation and a safe conclusion, the young woman thought, in this respect.—New York Press.

The Abandonment of Deep Mourning.

The so called "deepest mourning" is no longer considered good form in Europe, and crape has dropped out of fashion, being now only used for draping buildings and monuments, or for shrouding the lighted lamps of the vehicles figuring in the funeral cortege. No one would ever dream of taxing either the empress of Austria or the Princess of Wales with indifference to the death of their respective sons, yet each has been content to mourn her offspring without crape, either in the shape of a veil or as a trimming to her dress. The result of this has been that widows, especially when young, dispense not only with crape, but with the characteristic cap and long streamers. Indeed, at the present rate, there will be no outward sign left by which we shall be able to distinguish from the ordinary woman those fair sirens against whom we have been so pathetically warned by Mr. Weller.—New York Tribune.

Points About Point Lace.

You mustn't be fooled into thinking that lace is made in the country whose name it bears. The Irish took Nottingham lace, embroidered it and sold it for real Irish point. I have seen many of our good Americans, who so dearly love to be humbugged, buying "real Irish point lace" from dealers aboard ship in Queenstown harbor, when it was nothing more than they could have got in Nottingham or any city at home for half the money.—Interview in Clerk and Salesman.

A Small Town Proud of Its Years.

The little town of Newport, Hants county, N. S., has a population of about 1,400, and there among them 40 persons, 22 of them women, whose united ages amount to 3,300 years, an average of 84 years each. The townspeople ask if there is another small town in the world that can equal theirs for longevity.—New York Times.

The Value of a Military Training.

To get the best possibilities for beauty out of training we must have all round influences for good. Among these I would place first military training for youths. I say military rather than gymnastic or turn verein exercise, because sound drill includes something of these and adds the moral influence of discipline.

In my opinion it would be for the benefit of the country, the family and the individual if every mother's son were obliged to pass a certain amount of military service before he could vote. The military training is the only one nowadays which teaches men to obey and gives them any notion of the value of obedience. No training makes men so effective for every day use or leaves them so alert, prompt and full of resource. The adoption of military education in earnest would lead to the adjustment of serious questions, physical and national.

The merely useless mechanical part of drill which is mainly for parade purposes would have to be dropped, and useless schooling would have to be thrown out.

A child taught to obey in the first place and efficiently guided in study can master the courses of our schools in half the time now spent. This by the way. The great point about military training is that it enforces exercise for a purpose, not merely for the sake of exercise.—Shirley Dare in New York Herald.

Dreams of Authors.

Who would imagine that the actual sleeping dream of an author could be used as literary material—part of his mental stock in trade? But this has been so.

They are of little use for consecutive narrative, although I have been told that Mrs. Southworth derived the plots of some of her stories from suggestions of her dreams. As a rule dreams furnish only situations or impressions which are likely to be both subtle and intense. Who does not remember some haunting melody of his dreams whose sweetness moved him to tears, some glimmering landscape, some strange and weird journeying or faces that suddenly appeared and as suddenly vanished in this quaint borderland of the mind?

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" came, it is said, from Mr. Stevenson's dream people, and the intensity of the impression produced by this fantastic creation would suggest such an origin. But no moral sense exists in the irresponsible region of sleep, so that the graver and deeper lesson which the thoughtful reader must draw from Mr. Stevenson's pages must have been evolved in his waking moments.—Kate Field's Washington.

Effecting a Settlement.

"On one occasion," remarked a well known Methodist minister who had been a circuit rider in the mountains of North Carolina, "a man from a neighboring county swooped down on our side and carried off the wife and mule of one of my church members. There was an immediate agitation, and in the midst of it I arrived. A consultation was held, and it was decided that I should go as peacemaker and embassador and effect a settlement. Just before I started the bereaved husband called me to one side for private conference.

"'I reckon, parson,' he said, 'that you oughter to know my feelin's in this thing.'

"'Of course—certainly,' I assented.

"'Well, I tell you what you do. Don't be brash about it ner foosty, fer I'm a man uv peace, but ef he'll give you $47 in money for the mule you needn't ter say a doggone word about the ole woman.'"—Detroit Free Press.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The president's message is short and to the point. It deals principally with the financial situation and declares that in importance it should precede all others and and that tariff reform should take second place. The president recommends the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law and the issuance of bonds for the purpose of replacing the gold which has been drawn from the treasury.

As was to have been expected, the president attributes the present crisis to the operation of the Sherman law, and does not seem to comprehend that an anxious people are desirous of knowing where he stands upon the tariff question and free trade.

In his position toward the Sherman law, if congress has been carefully polled, he has the representatives of the people with him; and it is to be hoped that congress will act promptly and uncompromisingly upon the bill.

If the repeal of the Sherman law is to restore confidence, put an end to the shrinkage of values, quicken the home markets, start up the wheels of the manufactories with a full force of help on full time, and set the country on the high road to prosperity again, delay for debate would be a crime. The people need to be relieved.

Republicans do not believe the only cause of distress is the Sherman law or that its repeal will be the remedy for all present ills.

The republicans are in favor of the unconditional repeal of the bill, and as a party will give the president their support.

Political higgling and delays are dangerous, and no congressman who is loyal to his country will hesitate to do everything in his power to bring immediate relief to the financial and commercial interests of the nation.

After that has been done, if there is not a reaction for the nation's good, the great industrial problem will have to be met, and met squarely. If it is met promptly and wisely, all will be well; but anything that savors of free trade will bring to the working people of this country a period of idleness, poor wages and want such as they have never known.

THE GRAND ARMY MEET.

The twenty-seventh annual encampment of the Grand Army, which is to be held in Indianapolis next month, promises to be the largest attended meeting of the order and the most important. The Grand Army at this late day finds its members assailed and the interests of the old soldiers in peril, and once more it will rally for defence. The body has nearly half a million names upon its muster rolls, and is a factor still in the land. The Grand Army is made up of brave and true men, and when they meet and discuss the pension question there is no doubt that they will do it with such fairness, calmness and wisdom that they will impress the country by their sincerity, honesty and good sense.

They are not to be roiled up or thrown into a state of high dudgeon by a set of slandering demagogues or the overofficiousness of a misplaced gentleman from the south; but they have the acumen to meet in a positive and candid way the democratic nonsense that has been hurled at them, and are able to show that they have not been so luxuriously pensioned as many of the kickers pretend, and that the pensions they have received have been honestly earned and obtained.

A full and complete democratic victory seems to have galvanized the old confederate spirit into life again, and the enemies of the veterans have now attempted to accomplish by slander what they could not do with bayonets. The veterans stand shoulder to shoulder again, and, there is no doubt will drive their enemies to the last ditch. The valor of the soldiers and sailors is too highly appreciated by all loyal citizens to suffer from any attacks that slanderous enemies can make.

ANGLERS' DAY.

The anglers of England and America, in the great centers, will today celebrate the three hundredth anniversary of the birth of Izaak Walton, the author of "The Compleat Angler," the first classic written upon the subject. Walton spent his early life as a sempster or haberdasher, but his tastes and talents committed him to literature, and he became a biographer of some note. It is not as a biographer, but as an angler, that he made fame and continues to be known to the world. Wotton had thought of writing such a work, but Walton did it, and became Piscator "master," much as Darwin became the father of evolution by the courtesy of Wallace. He was sixty years of age when the first copy of the "Compleat Angler" was sold, and he continued for thirty years thereafter to angle in the river Lea and the New river. He not only talked of the science of angling, but of the physical advantages of the exercise, and his hale and hearty appearance and well preserved faculties at 90 bore testimony of the correctness of his views, for in that year he wrote the preface to "Thealma and Clearchus," a pastoral poem by John Chalkhill.

He knew how to catch a trout or grayling in clear water, and his work of today stands as a teacher of the art. Never hoping to be sepultured in Westminster Abbey, he slyly scratched on the stone tablet to Isaac Casaubon in the south transept the initials and date: "I. W., 1658," and this is a desecration now cherished by all Britain, and is sought for with curiosity by travelers who have read his work and have been inspired by his words.

All authorities hold that no man of Walton's time enjoyed a higher personal regard among the nobles and distinguished men.

A TIMELY SUGGESTION.

In view of the financial situation The Hartford Courant is led to suggest the issuance of pension bonds as a basis for an issue of currency of which the country is so much in need.

"The pensions of this government for the year 1893," says The Courant, "were $159,096,618. For the year 1893 there is an appropriation of $144,956,000 and an estimated deficiency of $10,508,621 beside. From 1861 through 1893 our government paid out the enormous sum of $1,415,346,-919 for pensions.

"These payments are a legacy of the war. They are part of the cost of the union. Why should the immediate present bear the whole of this heavy burden, whose benefits are not for now alone but for by and by as well?

"The country is tremendously in need of currency, and the bonds on which currency is issued have been so far retired that they are scarce. There may be objection to issuing bonds for the sole purpose of subsequently issuing currency upon them. But what can be the objection to dividing up with posterity our pension payments and issuing bonds enough, for a while, any way, to pay say half the cost? We could put out $70,000,000 to $75,000,000 low rate gold bonds at once, and not only relieve the present situation, but also take so much off from the taxes. The banks would be quick to pick up such bonds and issue currency against them. Indeed, the mere announcement that this would be done would vastly revive confidence and go a long way to stop the present hoarding.

"As soon as people see there's no need of hoarding money—that whether they hoard it or not there still will be a plenty—then they will abandon their foolish and dangerous policy. And they will not till then. It's like a panic on a steamboat, first a free fight for the life preservers in the fear that the boat will sink; second, a quiet return of the life preservers to their places as soon as it becomes evident that they are not to be used. This pension bond issue would relieve taxation, add to the currency and help the whole situation from the day it was proposed."

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The senate was so prompt to adjourn Monday that it delayed the president's message. If it is as prompt to act in important matters the country will have occasion to be grateful. The body appears to be more in favor of adjourning than of working.

A wage-earner who is idle not because he desires to be nor because he deserves to be but because adverse conditions compel him to be excites the sympathy of anybody whose heart is composed of ingredients less hard than flint.—[Waterbury Republican.

A Potent Restorer of Confidence.

The prompt repeal of the silver purchase act will do much to restore public confidence, but after all nothing could be so potent in this direction as a republican victory in every doubtful state which holds an election next November.—[Boston Journal.

Almost as Absurd.

Barring out a Buddhist priest on the ground that he is a sort of contract laborer is almost as ridiculous as the seizure of The Recorder's cartoon plates of the silver dollar.—[New York Recorder.

The Gentle Game.

The annual tournament of the National Croquet association begins at Norwich next week. The gentle game of ball and mallet is not so popular as it used to be, but these enthusiasts who gather at the head of sloop navigation on the Thames every year have reduced it to a science such as it never was before, and perhaps in its new form it will some day in the future come again into vogue.—[Providence Journal.

Let Her Go!

To congress: Shut off the floodgates of debate and turn full head on the steam of national prosperity.—[New York Recorder.

Always Uncertain.

Anxiety in regard to the action of congress centers wholly about the course of the democrats. Everybody knows the republicans will be almost solid for safe and conservative legislation. The democratic party is always the unknown factor in national emergencies.—[Indianapolis Journal.

The Emperor on a Lark.

When he is on his yacht, William of Germany is no longer a "war lord." He is unconventional to a degree. He enters heartily into all the fun there is going on. He can take a hand at the sheets himself, and if he doesn't go aloft it isn't because he is afraid to. He jumps right in among the men and pulls away with the best of them. He is, in fact, a regular royal sport. "On the way to Cowes," we are told, "the yacht stopped off a wild spot on the shore, where there were many seagulls. The emperor and several friends rowed ashore. He took off his shoes and stockings, rolled up his royal trousers and paddled about in the water in apparently great delight. He skipped flat stones over the water till there was quite a panic among the hovering gulls." Fancy that! It's really a charming picture.—[Providence Journal.

Used a Croquet Mall.

It is evident that Mrs. Potter Palmer used a croquet mallet for a gavel at that stormy meeting of the board of lady managers. She should come to the next meeting armed with an old-fashioned rolling pin.—[Boston Globe.

How to Understand It.

The democratic campaign declaration, "Vote for Grover Cleveland and get $1.25 a bushel for your wheat," to be clearly understood, should be taken in connection with the "wildcat" notes.—[New York Press.

Shouters for the "Twin Issues."

The seven or eight populist representatives held themselves together long enough to nominate Jerry Simpson as their candidate for speaker. But to all intents and purposes the populists must be reckoned as democrats, ready to support democratic measures. Every man of them is a loud shouter for the "twin issues" of free trade and free coinage.—[Boston Journal.

The shah of Persia carefully treasures an heirloom in the shape of a small cube of gold literally covered with oriental letters of characters. It is said to have fallen from heaven during Mahomet's time.

The narrowest part of the strait of Florida, through which the gulf stream flows at the rate of five knots an hour, is fifty miles wide, and has a mean depth of 350 fathoms. If this was stopped up the climate of this country in winter would be totally changed.

Philadelphia possesses a collector of horseshoes, Boston a gatherer of bricks, New Orleans a collector of sugar samples, Louisville a gatherer of sample flasks of whisky, but Nebraska beats them all. She boasts of a man who takes locks of hair shaved from the heads of noted criminals, which he labels and indexes with great care.

The Preacher Consoled the Wrong Man.

A rather rakish-looking fellow occupied the second seat, with a horseshoe scarfpin and a long moustache, which he chewed spitefully as he looked over a veterinary surgeon's bill and frowned. Just ahead of him a good old Presbyterian preacher sat with a mourning man, who had just buried his wife. And as the B. & O. S. W. express moved down its west-bound time card, the minister spoke soothing words of comfort to the bereaved husband and sought to console him in his grief by hopes of future life and lessons to be learned by bitter trials here below.

"She was a good woman—a very good woman, Henry, but the Lord has need of her, and we must bear it bravely."

The husband choked, but said nothing.

The minister arose, passed down the car took a cool drink of ice-water; then, with bended head and heartful mind still deep in sympathy, returned and sank into the seat.

"There may be yet some now unknown lesson in this loss," said he, softly, to his companion, not staring at him in his grief.

"Yes," was the reply, tinged with ill-temper; "I'll know a dern sight better than to hire such a highwayman for a doctor again."

Somewhat surprised, the minister exclaimed: "But then, my friend, what is all that compared to her worth to you?"

"But you see I had her heavily insured, and wasn't a red cent in the hole; but this chump flung the stinger into my pocketbook for all he was worth, because he knew I had the stuff. And she ain't been worth so much to me after all—she's lost me more than she was worth from first to last. I'll never take up any of her blood again—there's a bad streak in it."

Shocked beyond expression at the heartless words, but knowing that deep grief often unseats reason, the minister sought to soothe the unsettled mind.

"I never knew her family, but she was good in her ways, and always did her best."

"Oh, yes, she's good enough in her time, but, confound her skin, she never did her level best. Why, blame it, man, she'd lay right down and give it up when she had everything her own way, hands down. By Joe, you ought to see her slap the mud in Nancy M.'s face at Selma last fall!"

"What!" gasped the paralyzed minister.

"Why she knocked her eye out in a jog trot till she reached the finish, and let down there—give up, dogone her. But I've entered her on the kite track at Chillicothe for the summer meet, and if she don't pull down third money in the four-year-old 2 35, I'll knock a knothole in her neck with a fork handle!"

With an articulate gurgle of horror the minister turned and looked at his companion.

He had dropped by mistake into the seat with the Kentucky horseman, who had just received the doctor's bill for attendance upon his trotting mare during a siege of pneumonia.—[Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

They are safe because they contain no deleterious drugs and are manufactured upon scientific principles of medicine. They are sure because nothing goes into them except ingredients which are exactly adapted to the purposes for which a plaster is required. They are speedy in their action because their medicinal qualities go right to their work of relieving pain and restoring the natural and healthy performance of the functions of muscles, nerves and skin. Do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

A Young Girl's Fortune.

AN INTERESTING SKETCH.

Nothing appeals so strongly to a mother's affection as her daughter just budding into womanhood. Following is an instance: "Our daughter, Blanche, now 15 years of age, had been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. She was in such a condition that we had to keep her from school and abandon her music lessons. In fact, we feared St. Vitus dance, and are positive but for an invaluable remedy she would have had that terrible affliction. We had employed physicians, but she received no benefit from them. The first of last August she weighed but 75 pounds, and although she has taken only three bottles of Nervine she now weighs 106 pounds; her nervousness and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone, she attends school regularly, and studies with comfort and ease. She has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid, and no money could procure for our daughter the health Dr. Miles' Nervine has brought her.

When my brother recommended the remedy I had no faith in patent medicines, and would not listen to him, but as a last resort he sent us a bottle, we began giving it to Blanche, and the effect was almost immediate."—[Mrs. R. S. Bullock, Brighton, N. Y.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles' Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from opiates or dangerous drugs.

President Urges Repeal of the Silver Law.

DUTY OF THE HOUR PRESENTED

Financial Plight Due to Congressional Silver Legislation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—President Cleveland's message was read in congress today. It was as follows:

To the congress of the United States:

The existence of an alarming and extraordinary business situation, involving the welfare and prosperity of all our people, has constrained me to call together in extra session the people's representatives in congress to the end that through a wise and patriotic exercise of the legislative duty with which they solely are charged, present evils may be mitigated and dangers threatening the future may be averted.

Our unfortunate financial plight is not the result of untoward events nor of conditions related to our natural resources, nor is it traceable to any of the afflictions which frequently check national growth and prosperity.

With plenteous crops, with abundant promise of remunerative production and manufacture, with unusual invitation to safe investment and with satisfactory assurance to business enterprise, suddenly financial distrust and fear have sprung up on every side.

Numerous moneyed institutions have suspended because abundant assets were not immediately available to meet

The Demands of Frightened Depositors.

Surviving corporations and individuals are content to keep in hand the money they are usually anxious to loan, and those engaged in legitimate business are surprised to find that the securities they offer for loans, though heretofore satisfactory, are no longer accepted.

Values supposed to be fixed are fast becoming conjectural, and loss and failure have involved every branch of business.

I believe that these things are principally chargeable to congressional legislation touching the purchase and coinage of silver by the general government.

This legislation is embodied in a statute passed on the 14th day of July, 1890, which was the culmination of much agitation on the subject involved, and which may be considered a truce, after a long struggle between the advocates of free silver coinage and those intending to be more conservative.

Undoubtedly the monthly purchases by the government of 4,500,000 ounces of silver, enforced under the statute, were regarded by those interested in silver production as a certain guaranty of its increase in price.

The result, however, has been entirely different, for immediately following a spasmodic and slight rise the

after the passage of the act and has since reached the lowest point ever known. This disappointing result has led to renewed and persistent effort in the direction of free silver coinage.

Meanwhile, not only are the evil effects of the operation of the present law constantly accumulating, but the result to which its execution must inevitably lead is becoming palpable to all who give the least heed to financial subjects.

This law provides that in payment for the 4,500,000 ounces of silver bullion which the secretary of the treasury is commanded to purchase monthly, there shall be issued treasury notes, redeemable on demand in gold or silver coin, at the discretion of the secretary of the treasury, and that said notes may be reissued.

It is, however, declared in the act to be "the established policy of the United States to maintain the two metals on a parity with each other upon the present legal ratio or such ratio as may be provided by law."

This declaration so controls the action of the secretary of the treasury as to prevent his exercising the discretion nominally invested in him, if by such action the parity between gold and silver may be disturbed. Manifestly a refusal by the secretary to pay these treasury notes in gold, if demanded, would necessarily result in their discredit and depreciation as obligations payable only in silver, and would destroy the parity between the two metals by establishing a

Discrimination in Favor of Gold.

Up to the 15th day of July, 1893, these notes had been issued in payment of silver bullion purchased to the amount of more than $147,000,000. While all but a very small quantity of this bullion remains uncoined and without usefulness in the treasury, many of the notes given in its purchase have been paid in gold. This is illustrated by the statement that between May 1, 1892, and July 15, 1893, the notes of this kind issued in payment for silver bullion amounted to a little more than $54,000,000, and that during the same period about $49,000,000 were paid by the treasury in gold for the redemption of such notes.

The policy necessarily adopted of paying these notes in gold has not spared the gold reserve of $100,000,000, long ago set aside by the government for the redemption of other notes for this fund has already been subjected to the payment of new obligations amounting to about $150,000,000 on account of silver purchases and as a consequence for the first time since its creation been encroached upon. We have thus made the

and have tempted other and more appreciative nations to add it to their stock.

That the opportunity we have offered has not been neglected is shown by the large amounts of gold which have been recently drawn from our treasury and exported to increase the financial strength of foreign nations. The excess of exports of gold over its imports for the year ending June 30, 1893, amounted to more than $87,500,000.

Between the first day of July, 1890, and the 15th day of July, 1893, the gold coin and bullion in our treasury decreased more than $132,000,000, while during the same period the silver coin and bullion in the treasury increased more than $147,000,000.

Unless government bonds are to be constantly issued and sold to replenish our exhausted gold, only to be again exhausted, it is apparent that the operation of the silver purchase law now in force leads in the direction of the entire substitution of silver for the gold in the government treasury, and that this must be followed by the payment of all government obligations in depreciated silver. At this stage and the government must fail in its established policy to maintain the two metals on a parity with each other. Given over to the exclusive use of a currency greatly depreciated according to the standard of the commercial world, we could no longer claim a place among nations of the first class, nor could our government claim a performance of its obligation, so far as such an obligation has been imposed upon it to provide for the use of the people the best and safest money.

If, as many of its friends claim, silver ought to occupy a larger place in our currency and the currency of the world [illegible] handed.

The knowledge in business circles among our own people that our government cannot make its fiat equivalent to intrinsic value, nor keep inferior money on a parity with superior money by its own independent efforts has resulted in

at home in the stability of currency values that capital refuses its aid to new enterprises while millions are actually withdrawn from the channels of trade and commerce to become idle and unproductive in the hands of timid owners.

Foreign investors equally alert, not only decline to purchase American securities, but make haste to sacrifice those which they already have.

It does not meet the situation to say that apprehension in regard to the future of our finances is groundless, and that there is no reason for lack of confidence in the purposes or power of the government in the premises.

The very existence of this apprehension and lack of confidence, however caused, is a menace which ought not for a moment to be disregarded.

Possibly if the undertaking we have in hand were the maintenance of a specific known quantity of silver at the parity with gold, our ability to do so might be estimated and gauged, and, perhaps, in view of our unparalleled growth and resources, might be favorably passed upon. But when our avowed endeavor is to maintain such parity in regard to an amount of silver increasing at the rate of $50,000,000 yearly, with no fixed termination to such increase, it can hardly be said that a problem is presented whose solution is free from doubt.

The people of the United States are entitled to a sound and stable currency and to money recognized as such on every exchange and in every market of the world. Their government has no right to injure them by financial experiments opposed to the policy and practice of other civilized states, nor is it justified in permitting an exaggerated and unreasonable reliance on our national strength and ability to jeopardize the soundness of the people's money. This matter rises above the Plane of Party Politics.

It vitally concerns every business and calling and enters every household in the land. There is one important aspect of the subject which especially should never be overlooked.

At times like the present, when the evils of unsound finance threaten us, the speculator may anticipate a harvest gathered from the misfortune of others, the capitalist may protect himself by hoarding or may even find profit in the fluctuation of values; but the wage earner—the first to be injured by a depreciated currency and the last to receive the benefit of its correction—is practically defenceless. He relies for work upon the ventures of confident and contented capital. This failing him, his condition is without alleviation, for he can neither prey on the misfortunes of others nor hoard his labor.

One of the greatest statesmen our country has known, speaking more than 50 years ago, when a derangement of the currency had caused commercial distress, said: "The very man of all others who has the deepest interest in a sound currency and who suffers most by mischievous legislation in money matters, is the man who earns his daily bread by his daily toil."

These words are as pertinent now as on the day they were uttered, and ought to impressively remind us that a failure in the discharge of our duty at this time must especially injure those of our countrymen who labor, and who because of their number and condition are entitled to the most Watchful Care of Their Government.

It is of the utmost importance that such relief as congress can afford in the existing situation be afforded at once. The maxim, "He gives twice who gives quickly," is directly applicable. It may be true that the embarrassment from which the business of the country is suffering arise as much from evils apprehended as from those actually existing.

We may hope, too, that calm counsel will prevail and that neither the capitalists nor the wage earners will give way to unreasoning panic and sacrifice their property or their interests under the influence of exaggerated fears. Nevertheless, every day's delay in removing one of the plain and principal causes of the present state of things enlarges the mischief already done and increases the responsibility of the government for its existence. Whatever else the people have a right to expect from congress they may certainly demand that legislation condemned by the ordeal of three years' disastrous experience shall be removed from the statute books as soon as their representatives can legitimately deal with it.

It was my purpose to summon congress in special session early in the coming September, that we might enter promptly which the true interests of the country clearly demand, which so large a majority of the people, as shown by their suffrages, desire and expect, and to the accomplishment of which every effort of the present administration is pledged. But while tariff reform has lost nothing of its immediate and permanent importance, and must, in the near future engage the attention of congress, it has seemed to me that the financial condition of the country should at once and before all subjects be considered by your honorable body.

I earnestly recommend the prompt repeal of the provisions of the act passed July 14, 1890, authorizing the purchase of silver bullion, and that other legislative action may put beyond all doubt or mistake the intention and the ability of the government to fulfil its pecuniary obligations in the money universally recognized by all civilized countries.

[illegible] MARKETS.

[illegible] Vegetables Is Now Very Profitable.

VERY GRATIFYING TO FARMERS.

Prices Hold Up Well—Receipts of Butter Fall Off.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—The trade in vegetables during the past seven days has been profitable for all concerned in the transactions. Nearly all the traffic has been in native stock, and our market gardeners have found ready buyers for all the stock they could bring. This alone is gratifying to the farmer, and add to this the good prices obtained, makes his lot really an enviable one for those who in business life are complaining of an utter stagnation of trade.

Now truly is the farmer's harvest. His stock is rapidly arriving at a marketable stage, the copious rains of the past week greatly assisting nature in her work, obviating the necessity of artificial irrigation, which is always a costly item in the farmer's expense accounts. The good demand by the consumer keeps prices on a proper level, and satisfies all who have a hand in the transactions.

Cucumbers are worth now $1.75 to $2.50 a 100; beets in bushels, $1.50; cabbages, $4 to $5 a 100; parsley, 50 cents per bushel; spinach, 50 cents per bushel; tomatoes, 12 1-2 cents per pound, natives; butter beans, $1.25 a bushel, while the cranberry variety is worth 75 cents a bushel; carrots in bunches, 50 cents a dozen radishes, 50 cents a dozen bunches. Native onions are now coming in fine quality at $1 to $1.25 a box, and the Egyptian variety brings $2 to $2.25 a bushel bag. The market growers bring but little green corn. Some from the interior, is, however, seen and quoted at from 15 to 20 cents a dozen ears. Peas are still arriving in good quality and bring $1.50 a bushel.

In the Butter Market

receipts seem to be falling off a little. The total amount for last month was considerably less than that for the preceding month and also less than the corresponding month last year. Some who are authority on the present situation argue that were it not for the present financial troubles prices would be at least 5 cents higher than they now are.

In Boston prices seem to be steady and are a little lower than a week ago. Western creamery brings about 20 cents, with some extra quality 1-2 cent higher. Northern extra creamery sold for 21 to 22 cents. New York and Vermont dairy lots 17 to 18 cents and low grades 15 to 16 cents.

The Fruit Market

is now well supplied with almost every variety. New apples from the southern middle coast are plenty, and a few lots of premature native stock are seen. Red astrachan's from Maryland bring $1.50 in crates, and southern green pie apples about $3 per barrel. Southern Le Conte pears are tempting in appearance and cost 75 cents to $1 per crate, and Bartletts are from $1 to $2 a crate. Good hard blueberries are quite plenty, 10 cents a quart being the ruling price. Choice native blackberries are worth 15 to 18 cents a quart. Large currants, 7 to 8 cents a pound.

Southern grapes have appeared and Delawares bring $3.50 to $4 for crates of seven baskets. Niagaras and Moore's Early in the same packages bring $3.50 to $4. The peach crop of Delaware and Maryland has begun to show itself here and good fruit brings $1.25 to $2 per basket. Many windfalls are seen at a less figure.

EXPENSIVE FAKE.

Reported Shutdowns in Attleboro Costs Her Industries Many Dollars.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 8.—A few days ago a dispatch to the Associated Press from this town announced that the jewelry shops were to shut down until September, and that all of the manufacturers had signed a paper to that effect.

This story, which was a "fake," was copied by many of the western papers, and now each mail brings letters stating that the trade is buying in Providence and other places as the result of the dispatch. The jewelry manufacturers say that they have lost hundreds of dollars on account of the story. Many of the shops are running, and will continue to run as fill orders.

There have always been shutdowns in the jewelry shops at this season, and this year the men have been laid off but a little longer than usual. Orders are coming in from nearby trade, and will come from the west when the dealers have been notified that the shops have not shut down, but are ready to fill all orders which may be sent.

CHOLERA IS SPREADING.

Several Cases Have Been Reported in Capital of Galicia.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Cholera is spreading in Roumania and Galicia. Several cases have been reported in Lemburg, the capital of Galicia.

A dispatch from Rome says: In accordance with the provisions of the Dresden cholera convention, Signor Giolitti, prime minister and minister of the interior, has notified the foreign diplomatic representatives that cholera has become extinct in Alessandria, and that the epidemic is declining in Naples, where the number of cases does not exceed 12 daily.

The report of a death from cholera in the East End of Berlin on Sunday has caused a scare in that city. The correctness of the diagnosis is doubted. An autopsy will be held to clear up the case.

WHITE CITY WAIFS.

It is becoming fashionable for people to lie about the money they spend at the World's fair.

A portrait of the queen of Madagascar, painted by a native artist of that country, is on exhibition in the W. C. T. U. department.

Kiass, the Sumatra outang at the World's fair, is fond of cigarette smoking. He lights the cigarette with a match and appears to enjoy his smoking hugely.

Clement Scott, the distinguished English dramatic critic, says that a day at the World's fair requires "the strength of an ox and the constitution of a Hercules."

On exhibition at the World's fair is the first life saving apparatus used by a United States crew. It consists of a car, mortar and ball, with which 200 lives were saved from the wreck of the British ship Ayrshire at Squan beach, New Jersey, in 1850.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Dealings in Leading Securities in Boston and New York.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—In the outside market call money is quoted at 8 to 10 per cent, and time money is nominally 6 per cent.

"The shadder of this 'ere shanty is the only thing moving in sight," once remarked an old western farmer as he sat at his cabin door in answer to the inquiry of the "tenderfoot" as to what the excitement was. This expression aptly describes the condition of the market this morning. It was simply the dullest kind of an opening. Few traders are about the brokers' offices and there will be little doing until after the president's message has been read and thoroughly digested.

General Electric broke at the opening from 43½ of last night to 40½ on one quotation, with sales later at 40¼. Chicago, Burlington and Quincy sold at 77⅜. Sugar common came out at 75 and fell to 70¼ on few sales later 71. Preferred selling at 75. Atchison was firm at 13⅞. Union Pacific came out strong, and on first quotation sold at 17⅛. West End Land opened at 12⅝. There has been very little doing in the copper stocks. Atchison second 4s were quoted at 28, with sales at 24½.

The continued scarcity of all kinds of currency, notes and specie was the principal topic [illegible]. Well informed bankers claim that it is in some respects the most serious question of the present time. Many, however, are of the opinion that it will right itself in a few days. This is offset by the statement of other financial firms that the trouble will not be relieved until confidence has been restored. The ideas as to how this is to be brought about are varied. It is said that the railroads cannot borrow money in New York but are compelled to obtain their necessary funds abroad.

FOR THE BABIES

Dr. Grinnell Recommends Lactated Food.

Cholera Infantum is Reaping an August Harvest.

Lactated Food is the Surest Preventive

It Has Saved the Lives of Many Infants

Important That Parents Now be Supplied With It.

"After using lactated food for five years in cases of children suffering from cholera infantum, and in debilitating or wasting diseases, during which time it has never failed me, I have pleasure in calling the attention of physicians to it, and in recommending its use."

So says A. P. Grinnell, M. D., the dean of the medical faculty of the university of Vermont, and the statement is published in The Ladies' Home Journal.

The statement is of inestimable value to mothers if they will but avail themselves of Prof. Grinnell's experience.

More than one-third of all the babies born die before they have lived a year, and two-thirds of the little unfortunates die in the summer months.

Cholera infantum is, of course, the most destructive cause. The infant's stomach gives out, and frequently the natural food is not nourishing. That is one reason why lactated food is used. This food is pleasant to the taste, easily digested, and contains the elements of strength that the little ones so sadly need.

It is what physicians term a predigested food, and they consider it especially valuable in all weak conditions of the digestive organs, not only for infants, but for invalids, the aged, and all whose stomachs are weak. Thousands of packages are prescribed every year by physicians, but the greatest demand comes at this season.

Wells, Richardson & Co., of Burlington, Vt., who put up lactated food, have probably received more heartfelt letters of gratitude from delighted mothers whose babies' lives the food has saved than one can read in a month. Hundreds of photographs of little ones have been sent to the company by grateful parents.

A child's life is too sacred a thing to be trifled with. Lactated food should be used from now on through the summer until the child is old enough to eat other food with safety. It is not expensive; it is not a secret; it is prepared under the supervision of no less a man than Prof. Boynton of the Vermont university; it will prevent cholera infantum; it will save the life of the child who is wasting away with this dread disease. From every part of the country come the most grateful testimonials of its value—from mothers and fathers whose babies have been saved and from invalids to whom it has given strength.

Lactated food is not a medicine—it is simply nature's substitute for mother's milk, and is a pure food that has saved many a little one's life. All reputable druggists sell it, and at this season of the year it is of the utmost importance that parents supply themselves with it.

Eldridge Chappel a resident of Babcock Hill near Willimantic, who was so seriously cut by a mowing machine last Wednesday died Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. He was 24 years old.

Principal John McCarthy of the Vinita, I. T., school leaves for the west in a few days. He has received a call to a frontier school at Ashland, Wis., and may relinquish his present position in its favor.

Joseph Bodrose of Voluntown, was brought to town by Sheriff Billings of North Stonington, Tuesday, and deposited in the Norwich jail to work out a fine of about $90 for violating the liquor law.

Henry Letcher, the 15-year-old runaway Worcester boy who was caught stealing a ride on the Boston boat train Monday night, was put in City Missionary Swan's charge Tuesday and returned to his parents.

Owing to the short supply of currency, the Ponemah mills were unable to pay off their help Tuesday. The employes will be paid in checks today, a system which will be in vogue during the financial disturbance.

The anniversary of the consecration of Bishop McMahon will be solemnly celebrated at St. Joseph's cathedral, Hartford, today, with pontifical high mass at 10.30 o'clock in the morning. A large number of the priests of the diocese will be in attendance.

Willimantic merchants have their great annual holiday tomorrow, and the whole borough will take a day off. The bill of fare served by Caterer Pattison at Crescent Beach will be clam chowder, baked bluefish, clam fritters, stewed lobster, vegetables, green corn, potatoes and watermelons.

The general depression in business throughout the country will probably cause this section to have its share of the tramp fraternity. Several have already been reported in various parts and many appeared fairly well dressed and of gentlemanly manners, which was quite a relief when contrasted with the genuine tourist.

The Crescent Beach correspondent of The Hartford Times writes: Dr. Herr and friends left again yesterday on another blue-fishing excursion. The last time they were over, which was but a few days ago, they captured 400 pounds, including several of nine pounds each. Sunday's tabernacle service was attended by about four hundred people, who listened to an interesting discourse by the Rev. Dr. Herr.

Miss Annie Hislop of New London, with some other young girls, were fishing from Mott's rock, off Ocean beach Monday, when the high wind blew her off the rock into the water. Fortunately Miss Hislop is a good swimmer, and though not attired for the water, she struck out for the beach and landed only the worse for her mishap by a wetting.

Brakemen Strike.

The night brakemen in the Norwich & Worcester yards struck early Tuesday morning, on account of a disagreement as to what shall constitute their night's work. The difficulty was amicably adjusted during the day, and the place had its customarily busy aspect last night.

To Watch Hill and Back.

Richard Fairbanks and Thomas F. Mullen, two expert and tireless wheelmen, rode to Watch Hill and return Tuesday, arriving home at 10 o'clock last night. On the return journey the bicyclists lost their way and made a circuitous trip that added over fifteen miles.

Charged With Theft.

D. J. McCormick, proprietor of the Franklin Square hotel, missed his coat Tuesday morning soon after Thomas Mitchell of Boston had left the place. Late in the afternoon he spied the man, identified his property and caused Officer Irish to place the alleged thief in custody. Mitchell had two other coats on his person, and claims they all belong to him.

A Change of Base.

The train dispatcher's office in the quarters of Supt. Dewey of the Norwich & Worcester road will be removed from this city to Putnam, nearer the center of the division, this week. Veteran Firemen's Excursion.

Tomorrow the Veteran Firemen's association of this city will make an excursion to Watch Hill on the steamer Block Island, leaving Norwich at 8.15 a. m., giving a stay of three hours at the hill and an excellent opportunity to see the New York Yacht club under sail. Walter Main's Circus.

Walter L. Main's grand circus and menagerie which exhibited here yesterday afternoon and evening was one of the best and cleanest shows that has ever visited our city, and the large crowds which attended will bear us out in our statement. The menagerie contains a fine lot of rare animals, birds, etc. The ring performance was a success from start to finish, the performers being of the best, and the horses the finest that have been seen here in many a year. We recommend the Main show to press and people.—[Exchange.

They exhibit on the Preston lot next Friday.

Grangers' Field Meeting.

On Tuesday, August 15, the meeting will be at Saipaic grove, Rockville, and will include Hartford and Tolland counties Pomonas.

Death of Policeman Taber.

Lewis N. Taber, for a dozen years policeman on various city beats, died at his home on Maple street at 12.30 o'clock Tuesday noon at the age of 41 years, after an illness of several months. Failing health compelled him to abandon police duty in April, and from that time his decline was rapid.

Mr. Taber was born in New Bedford, Mass., and had been a resident of this city a quarter of a century. Previous to his appointment on the police force, July 1, 1881, he had worked in the local pistol shops. He was faithful and fearless in the discharge of his duties, a devoted husband and indulgent father, and possessed many good qualities that made him popular among men. His keen sense of humor and fund of anecdotes made him a much-sought companion and an agreeable entertainer. Mr. Taber was for many years drum-major for Tubbs' military band.

Two children, a wife, mother and two sisters survive him.

Narrow Escape from [illegible] Pequot.

Shortly after the sloop y[illegible] Commodore John Moller, dropped [illegible] off the Pequot house Monday evening, upon her arrival from the Thimble islands, cries for help were heard ahead of the vessel and a man was seen struggling vainly in the water to overtake a small boat from which he had been swimming and which the wind was blowing away from him. The Nirvana's crew lowered a boat and rescued the man who was nearly exhausted. The crew of the schooner yacht Lydia, which had also just arrived in the harbor, picked up his boat. He was the butler in the family of E. F. Riggs, the Washington banker, who occupies the Sackett cottage in the Pequot colony. When rescued the butler had swam nearly to the middle of the river in pursuit of his boat. His incident created considerable stir at the New York Yacht club station, and a boat was being cleared away from there to go to the man's rescue when the Nirvana's boat was sent out.

The Willimantic Fair.

The directors of the Willimantic Fair association have decided to devote the first day of the fair, Tuesday, September 19, to bicycle racing and to award $300 worth of prizes.

The first day was selected so as to allow the track to be put in the best possible condition, much complaint being made in former years of its being cut up by horse racing and bicyclists endangered by the presence of jockeys training their horses on the track, even through the races. An attempt will be made to have some of the champions attend. It is understood that the directors will not interfere with the sale of privileges to fakirs this year, as the sale is a source of income and the games they work an attraction that the unwary and uninitiated will never tire of trying to learn.

HYMENEAL.

Falvey—Barnes.

A pretty church wedding was that of Mr. John F. Falvey to Miss Mary E. Barnes in St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. The spacious edifice was nearly filled with well-wishing friends, who were seated by Ushers H. J. Watson of New York, Daniel Lee, Jr., John A. Dunn and Edward J. Carroll of this city.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father P. M. Kennedy. The bride was becomingly attired in white silk, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Miss Julia A. Kingberger of New Haven filled the position of bridesmaid, and Mr. Jeremiah Falvey, brother of the groom, was best man.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride on Yantic street. The newly-married couple left Tuesday afternoon on a short tour.

LYMAN STRONG OF HEBRON.

Mentally Affected, and Detained by the New London Police.

A man about 60 years of age appeared at the New London police station Monday and said that several men were following him with the intention of doing him injury. He could not see them, he said, or describe them, but he knew they were there and he wanted them arrested. As he appeared to be mentally weak he was placed in a cell until something could be learned about him and his friends notified.

Later he said his name was Lyman Strong and that his home was in Hebron. According to his story he left there Thursday night and walked to Niantic, where he stopped at Taylor Smith's. From Niantic he walked to New London. He said he could hear men follow him all the way, but could not see them. When asked if he had any friends, he replied that he had a brother in Colchester, David B. Strong. He is a man of apparent intelligence, gray haired and comfortably attired. He is being held at the police station until his friends call for him.

SPORTING EVENTS OF THE DAY.

THE OARSMEN.

First Races of the World's Columbian Association.

DETROIT, Aug. 9.—This was the first day of the great World's Columbian Oarsmen's meet, given under the auspices of the National Association of Oarsmen. The events were brought off on the Belle Isle course, which was in fine condition, though the time was slow.

Fully 10,000 people saw the sport. The attractions today were tame, compared to what is expected tomorrow.

A big surprise in today's program was the defeat of the Atalantas by the dauntless Intermediate eight in the fastest time of the day.

In the second heat of the international four-oared shell race, Wyandotte crew, which is reputed to be the fastest in the country, led from the start, but stopped at the boat club house, the usual finishing point in the races. For straightaway, however, the goal was 300 yards below, and the Wyandottes, not discovering their error, were disqualified from entering the final event tomorrow. Summaries:

Senior single sculls, first heat—W. S. McDowell, Iroquois club, won; E. A. Thompson, Argonauts, Toronto, second. Time, 10.21½. Second heat—Edwin Hedley, Passaic, N. J., won; James Henderson, Catlin, Chicago, second; E. N. Atherton, Hartford, third. Time, 10.35½. Third heat—John J. Ryan, Sunnysides, Toronto, won; Joseph Wright, Toronto, second. J. H. O'Neil, Millstreams, Chelsea, Mass., third. Time, 10.53.

Senior four-oared shells, first heat—New York Athletic club, New York, won; Minnesotas, St. Paul, second. Time 9.14½. Second heat—Wyandottes, Wyandotte, Mich., won; Argonauts, Toronto, second; Atlantics, Hoboken, N. J., third. Time 9.16½.

Junior singles, first heat—John H. Hall, Albany, won. Time 10.89½. Second heat—Alfred Russell, Toronto, won; W. T. P. Paine, Argonauts, Toronto, second. Time 10.47½.

Intermediate eight-oared shell, mile and a half straight away—Dauntless, New York, won; Atlantas, New York, second. Time 7.38½.

International four-oared shell, mile and a half straight away, first heat—Minnesotas, St. Paul, won; New York Athletic club, New York, second. Time 8.04. Second heat—Atlantics won; Argonauts second. Time 8.07.

The Buffalo Races.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Fantasy this afternoon, in the event for 3-year-olds, easily out-trotted Silicon, the champion 2-year-old last year, William Penn and Margrave that last week took a record of 2.15½. Fantasy was not extended in any of the three heats, and in the third she placed her mark at 2.15. Silicon was unsteady and left her feet whenever the clip became too fast. Paul is a peculiar pacer and he is peculiarly driven. Today he started in the 2.13 pace, and in the first two heats there was nothing in it but Paul, and he went the first clip in 2.11—a new mark for him—and the second in 2.11½. Then the horse was as good as out of the race, for Manley Hardly made a drive in the next three heats which went to Prima Donna. Pixley won the 2.15 trot off the reel. Azote, the only one that could go her clip was contented with second.

Today's attendance was about 4,000. The warm weather well suited for fast time and the condition of the track was excellent.

THREE MEN FALL.

Murphy of New York, Brandenburg of Chicago, Warren of Hartford.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—For the first time during the L. A. W. meet, Zimmerman was beaten from scratch today. John S. Johnson of Minneapolis, assisted by Tuttle and Knisley, accomplished his defeat in the five-mile national championship by crossing the tape an open length ahead of the great New York. Two Chicago riders set a fast pacer for Zimmerman for four miles, and a bunch of wheels kept the champion sprinting until the upper turn was reached the last time. There Zimmerman pulled away for his finishing spurt, with Johnson after him. The great distance and the manner in which the pacemakers forced him made his final effort, usually invincible, comparatively weak, and Johnson passed him with ease. The last quarter was run in 28 3-5 seconds. Knisley finished the fourth mile in 10.15, lowering the world's record, made by Munger in Evansville last year, by 1-5 second.

This was far the best race of the meeting, and was a hot contest from start to the tape. It looked like a plan of "anything to beat Zimmy." Knisley first set the pace and then Githens took his place. Then Tuttle went to the front, and all but Johnson having taken part in killing off the champion, Johnson, fresh from the rear, advanced and won. Previous to this Zimmerman had won his three races—the quarter mile national championship, the one mile ordinary, national championship and the one-third mile scratch. He did not start in the handicap. The five mile race saved the day for the western men. In the two mile handicap three men fell, but only W. F. Murphy of New York was injured. He was bruised and had his legs cut. The other two were Branderberg of Chicago and Warren of Hartford.

Johnson, Tyler and Tuttle did their best to beat Zimmerman in the quarter mile championship, but the latter won easily. The ordinary race was a joke and raised a general laugh. The mile, 2.40 class, was won by A. D. Kennedy of Chicago. It was announced by the officials today that Sanger would ride tomorrow, but he will not. It is very doubtful if he can recover in time to ride at all this week. The attendance was 8,000. The weather was fine and the track was fast. Summaries:

Well Known Newspaper Man Dead.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—William Bowers, one of the best known newspaper men in Boston, died at the Revere House this morning aged 53. He had been in poor health for the last three years. Mr. Bowers began work on The Boston Herald in 1869 as a compositor. In the course of time he became associated with the news department of that paper, and up to last October, with the exception of twelve months' service in the army during the civil war his services on The Herald were continuous. Mr. Bowers was night editor of The Herald for many years. Subsequently he became day editor, and held that position until compelled by failing health to give up work last October.

The twenty-seventh annual reunion of the Fifth regiment Connecticut volunteers was held at Grand Army hall, in this city, Wednesday and fully seventy-five of the surviving vets were in attendance. The business meeting was held in the morning, at which the usual routine business was transacted, such as election of officers, reports of officers, committees, etc.

It was voted to hold the next reunion in Norwich, August 9, 1894.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: President, George M. Rice, Uxbridge, Mass.; vice-president, E. B. Coolidge, East Hartford; secretary and treasurer, E. E. Marion, Hartford; chaplain, Rev. Horace Winslow, Simsbury.

At the close of the meeting the party repaired to the Hooker House, where at 1.30 they partook of one of Landlord Hooker's tempting and satisfying dinners. The committee who will make the arrangements for next year is as follows: John A. Bowen, Adolphus Mush and Delano B. Carpenter.

Something like 350 members of the regiment still live, but are scattered far and near. The largest attended reunion ever held was in Wallingford in '91, when 135 "vets" were present.

CHIEF KILEY SUSPENDED.

State Firemen's Association Takes Action Against New Londoners.

The State Firemen's association in session at Danbury has stirred up the New London department. Tuesday it voted to suspend from membership Chief Engineer Thomas Kiley and Assistant Engineer John Stanners, both of that city.

This action is the result of the charges made months ago that Chief Kiley was not entitled to benefits of $76 which the association paid him.

The money was paid to Kiley on the representation that he contracted a cold at the fire in Rosenthal Bros. store on lower Bank street in that city and was made ill for some time because of it.

The executive committee, on statements made by New London citizens, investigated the case, coming there twice and hearing the statements of New Londoners.

Tuesday Chief Jones reported to the convention that the committee was unanimously of the opinion that the money should never have been paid to Kiley. The convention took the committee's view of the matter and suspended Mr. Kiley and also Mr. Stanners, for concurring in claim by signing Kiley's application.

The convention instructed the executive committee to take steps to recover the money paid to Kiley and they will proceed to do so.

At the election of officers Wednesday, Chief Greenesberg of this city was elected the New London county vice president.

BUT ONE REPUBLICAN PRESENT

At the House Caucus of Members Who Favor Free Coinage.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED

Supporting a Bill to Repeal the Purchasing Clause of Sherman Act.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—A caucus of members of the house who favor free coinage of silver was held today in the hall of the house, lasting from 12, noon, to 2.45 p. m. At the close it was officially announced that the following resolution, offered by Mr. Boatner of Louisiana, had been adopted by a unanimous vote:

"Resolved, That we will support a bill, repealing the purchasing clause of the Sherman act, and concurrently providing for the free and untrammeled coinage of silver with full legal tender quality on such a ratio as will provide and maintain the parity between gold and silver." Be it further

"Resolved, That a committee of seven be appointed by the committee of this conference to draft and introduce such a bill and take proper steps to secure the full and free consideration thereof and a vote of the house upon the bill and all propositions.

The committee provided for in the resolution was composed as follows: Messrs. Bland, Sibley, Boatner, Lane, Bankhead, Bryan and Bailey. By vote of the caucus J. G. Culberson was added to the committee.

When the caucus met it was estimated that there were about forty members in the hall, but during the time the caucus was in session about 100 members were admitted. Estimates of the number in attendance from [illegible] to [illegible], the clerk of the caucus fixing the number at 93, and Mr. Bland saying he counted over 100.

J. G. Culberson of Texas was elected chairman of the caucus and C. P. Sibley of Pennsylvania, the only democrat present from the eastern states, secretary. The only republican present was Representative Bowers of California. The populists were represented by Jerry Simpson and Mr. Kell of Nebraska.

Representatives from members after the caucus adjourned agreed that no differences of opinion were disclosed during the discussion. The question of the ratio for coinage was not discussed except incidentally.

A motion by Mr. Bland was adopted authorizing the appointment of a committee of [illegible] from each state, who will canvass the house, discover each member's standing upon the proposed bill and see that every friend of the measure is in his seat and ready to vote when the time comes. This committee has not yet been named.

Mr. Bland stated after the caucus that it had been in every respect satisfactory to the friends of free coinage. The steering committee, he said, would probably meet the committee of anti-silver men tomorrow and consider the details of the discussion to be had upon the bill outlined in the resolution.

"We will require ample time," remarked Mr. Bland, "to carry out the terms of the discussion. I do not see how it will be possible to come to a vote before six weeks. I cannot tell when the committee will have its bill ready to present to the house. It is apparent that some free silver men are satisfied that the present ratio of 16 to 1 should be changed. We shall probably vote upon the present ratio of 16 to 1 and if this is defeated, then 17 to 1, and so on up to 20 to 1 if necessary."

MISSING SECURITIES

Of the People's Fire Insurance Co. Being Recovered.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 9.—The alleged missing securities of the People's Fire Insurance company, are turning up daily. Today there were found in the vaults of the national bank of Commonwealth, where they had been mislaid, eighty-eight shares of the First National bank of Marion, Ind., and the sum of $4,400 which was in the hands of Nashua parties for collection, was also reported.

The Manchester Mirror tonight in a lengthy editorial on Insurance Commissioner Linehan's report on the People's Fire Insurance company has this to say: "We are bound to say, that in our judgment, the report of Inspector Linehan is unfair. While it may not contain an absolute falsehood it so distorts and groups the facts that they are made to take the place of falsehoods and convey a wrong impression which is very injurious to the company. There is not a bank or an insurance company in the state whose books treated in this way would not show a heavy 'deficit,' or whose officers would not be made to appear as embezzlers by the tables prepared as those were prepared in January and August."

Contract Laborers to Be Sent Back to Ireland.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The alien contract labor law was put into effect against women for the first time Tuesday. Chief of contract labor inspectors John J. Quinlan found four men and four women who arrived on Monday from Ireland on the Circassia whom he suspected of coming under contract. Of these two men and two women will be returned.

They are Matilda Talford, 23 years old; Jane Lewis, 19 years old; James Cowles and Archie Harrison. They are expert silk workers and were to go into the mills of Cheney Brothers, at South Manchester, Conn.

The women admitted they were under contract. Their passage was paid over and they were to repay the advance from their wages. Nothing could be proven against the other four of the party, so they were released. All were said to have come over in charge of men in the employ of Cheney Brothers.

The Vigilant Will Be All Right Friday.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The possible cup defender Vigilant, disabled in Monday's race, has left City Island in tow for Newport. The tug had a new mast for the Vigilant lashed on her deck. NEW KITCHENS BEING BUILT.

Completing Arrangements for the Troops at Camp Morris.

There was a conference at the adjutant general's office in the capitol, Tuesday, between Adjutant-General Bradley, Quartermaster-General Harbison, Commissary-General Jamieson and Assistant Adjutant-General Healy, regarding the arrangements for the troops at camp. General Jamieson reported on the contracts made with the caterers for the subsistence of the troops, and his action was approved. The uniform contract price is $5.50 per man for the week, and each caterer gives bonds to an amount exceeding his contract. The question of charging men who are in camp but a portion of the week pro rata is to be decided later on.

Quartermaster General John P. Harbison and Commissary General William Jamieson went to Niantic on Monday and agreed upon a plan for the six temporary kitchens which will be built in the immediate rear of the mess houses, to take the place of the old wooden shanties that are usually erected by the caterers. Barrett Brothers of Hartford were awarded the contract and already have a force of men at work on the kitchens. They have agreed to have them completed by Saturday night. The camp is being rapidly laid out. All the A tents for the enlisted men have been pitched, and the force of men employed by the quartermaster general's department under Captain George A. Cornell, has begun erecting the tents for the field, staff and line officers. Telephone communication has been opened with the quartermaster general's storehouse and the poles and wires to communicate with the various parts of the camp will soon be erected.

IN YACHTING COSTUME.

A Romantic Marriage in New London at St. James' Church.

A delightfully romantic sequel transpired to one summer yachting trip in New London Tuesday. It was the marriage of a yachtsman and his fair bride, both in yachting costume, before the altar of historic St. James Episcopal church, in that city.

The wedding was the outcome of an eight months' engagement, and was celebrated sooner than had been expected, in order that the young bride, who is an ardent lover of yachting, might accompany her husband on his yacht on a trip along the New England coast, terminating at Bar Harbor, before the yachting season closes.

The contracting parties were Mr. William Cooke Daniels, the head of the dry goods firm of Daniels, Fisher & Co. of Denver, Col., and Miss Edith Miriam Turner, the eldest daughter of Major Emory Stratton Turner, president of several land improvement and investment companies in Denver.

Mr. Daniels, who is a Yale '88 man, is the son of the richest man in Denver.

The young couple became engaged last winter. They were to have been married next winter, but Mr. and Mrs. Turner were persuaded to allow the young couple to be married Tuesday. They sailed on their yacht immediately for Bar Harbor.

300 HEAD OF BEEVES STOLEN.

Mexican Outlaws on the Rio Grande Becoming Bold.

SHERIFFS IN PURSUIT.

Mexican Rangers Assist the Owners in Hunting the Thieves.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Aug. 9.—The Mexican outlaws on the upper Rio Grande border are becoming so numerous and bold that the authorities are unable to cope with them.

A band of thieves ran 300 head of beeves across the Rio Grande near the mouth of the Pinto last Wednesday night.

The cattle were principally the property of E. Ross and Malone & Fritter. These owners with two sheriffs and other official help were soon in pursuit. Some of the party are still pursuing the thieves on their own soil with the help of the Mexican rangers.

Other losses are reported from the neighborhood of the Pinto. John M. Campbell has lost $6,000 worth of fine beeves this summer, and W. H. Jones has sustained losses.

Charged With Swindling the Company.

BELVIDERE, N. J., Aug. 9.—The New Jersey Iron Ore company has caused a capias to be issued against William C. Faulkner, one of the Warren county freeholders. He has been required to give bonds in the sum of [illegible] in connection with a suit for $9,[illegible] which has been brought against him by the company on the ground that Faulkner swindled it by leasing it a lot of ground which he claimed was rich in iron, but which turns out to be of no value whatever.

It is alleged that some who have not yet been arrested are suspected, and that the next grand jury will be called upon to investigate the workings of affairs. Former Superintendent George F. Bird and his former manager, Baron Forstner de Dambenoy, a descendant of the Holland nobility, are under indictment. Bird has fled and the baron is under $6,000 bonds to appear for trial.

Attempt to Steal a Priest's Body.

NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 9.—An attempt was made Monday night to steal the body of the Rev. Father Rice, the founder of the Niagara university, from the cemetery attached to that institution. Persons had gained entrance to the vault and were making good progress in securing the body when they were evidently frightened away.

Father Rice died in Dublin fourteen years ago and his body was brought back here for interment, being incased in a double metallic casket and placed in the vault. The ghouls had got through one casing and were boring through the second when scared.

£775,000 in Gold for the United States.

SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 9.—The steamer Lahn, which sailed hence for New York today, has on board £775,000 in gold for the United States.

Mr. Moody Returns to Northfield.

EAST NORTHFIELD, Mass., Aug. 9.—The return of Mr. Moody has aroused new interest in the [illegible] conference and all available accommodations were occupied today. [illegible] hall was crowded this morning. Mr. Moody was warmly greeted and thanked the conference for rendering him financial aid. He said members had got it into their heads that no work could be done in summer. As a result the churches lose in summer what they gain in winter. The church work had taught him that the best results came from summer work.

Dr. A. J. Pierce gave a stirring address on "True Giving."

Mr. Moody gave a very instructive reading from the notes on the margin of his Bible on "Roundtop."

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Saved Her Sight

"My little girl Hazel two years ago had the grip, leaving her with inflamed eyes, so bad that for seven months we had to bandage them and keep her in a dark room. The family physician and an oculist said the sight of one eye was destroyed and she might lose the other. She suffered intense pain, and when light was admitted to the room would cry as if burned with a hot iron. We began giving her Hood's Sarsaparilla, and to our surprise her eyes began to improve rapidly. The sight

They will have uniforms alike, dark coats with white caps and white trousers. Each of the boys will take a turn cooking.

Bridgeport Letter Carriers Must Pay.

The letter carriers in Bridgeport will have to pay full fare on the street cars, beginning September 1, unless the government in the meantime makes an allowance for their transportation. The Traction company has issued orders to that effect and President Haft says he sees no reason why his company should carry the carriers free any more than do the street car companies in other cities. He sees no reason why the United States government should discriminate against Bridgeport. Postmaster Knowlton of Bridgeport has for some time been in communication with the authorities at Washington for the purpose of having the letter carriers in that city placed on the same footing as those in other cities, but thus far nothing has come of it.

CENSUS OF THE BLIND.

A Sightless Hartford Lawyer Begins an Important Work.

Attorney Frank E. Cleveland, the blind lawyer of Hartford, is hard at work making a census of the blind persons in the state. The selectmen in each of the towns have been corresponded with and every effort is being made to have the census complete. The canvass is being made to ascertain the location of every blind person in the state. By the new law passed by the last legislature, all blind persons of a suitable age will be educated in blind institutes. A report will be made at the next meeting of the board of education for the blind which will probably meet early in September. Gov. Morris is chairman of the committee, ex-officio. Mr. Cleveland is secretary of the committee and does most of the active work. Mrs Blanche Foster is also a member of the committee and a valuable assistant in the work.

The statute reads that all blind persons of a suitable age will be educated by the state. This leaves a considerable degree of laxity with the members of the committee as to whether the applicant is of suitable age or not. The number of years the applicant has been blind will be taken into account, rather than his age. As an example, Mr Cleveland said: "Take a man who is 26 years old and who has been blind only three. This makes him in reality, as far as his taking care of himself is concerned, only three years old."

FARMERS' FESTIVALS

To Be Held in Various Sections of the State This Month.

The Patrons of Husbandry of Connecticut have arranged for four farmers' festivals or picnics, to be held in various parts of the state this month under the directions of the officers of the state grange.

The first gathering will be at Roseland park the 14th, the 15th at Saipaic grove, Rockville, the 17th at Pawson park, Branford, and the 18th at Highland lake grove, Winsted.

These meetings will be addressed by John C. Higgins, master of the Delaware State grange, Mrs. Alonzo Towle of New Hampshire, President B. F. Koons and Prof. A. B. Peebles of the Storrs agricultural school, and the officers of the Connecticut State grange. There will also be local speaking at each gathering.

It is expected that several thousand persons will attend the Saipaic grove meeting. The Windsor band will furnish music, and there will be addresses by O. S. Wood of Ellington, E. S. Hough of Poquonock and Mrs. C. C. Moody of East Hartford.

Broke His Leg at Uncasville.

Nate Woodworth of New London broke his leg just above the ankle Wednesday afternoon at his mills at Uncasville while stepping from a bale of paper onto a saw horse, which gave way. He was taken to his home and attended by Dr. Allen.

YEAR'S CATCH OF SHAD.

Preliminary Reports Show That It Was Double of 1892.

The fish commissioners, Messrs. James A. Bill of Lyme, S. M. Bronson of Hartford and R. Follett of Lime Rock, held a session in the agricultural room in the capitol Tuesday afternoon. The figures relating to shad hatching at Birmingham during the season show a total of 1,360,000 fry. They were placed in the Connecticut and Housatonic rivers and the tributaries of these streams. The figures showing the year's catch have not been received in full. The reports from the pound fisheries will not be in until October. The gill net reports show double the catch of last year. The catch of alewives was the largest in years in the Connecticut.

Commissioner Follett had some samples of native trout from Mr. C. W. Barnum's Taconic trout fishery at Lime Rock, which he exhibited at the meeting. The number of brook trout placed in the Connecticut streams during the season was 1 000,000. There were 200,000 Brown trout fry distributed, and 50,000 lake trout. The latter were placed in Rogers lake in the towns of Lyme and Old Lyme, Lake Saipaic, the Twin lakes and Lake Waramaug in New Preston.

The commissioners considered the use to be made of the appropriation by the legislature for the maintenance of retaining ponds, where the trout fry can be placed and kept until the young fish are fairly developed. No definite action was devised, however, at Tuesday afternoon's meeting.

REVOLUTIONARY TRIALS.

Molasses, Salt and Wheat Scarce in Norwich—Tory Molasses—Salt Six Dollars a Bushel.

During the early years of the revolution the people of Norwich were forced to deny themselves many luxuries in the shape of provisions. Molasses, in particular, was a commodity which could only be obtained by capture, and the want of it was one of the most keenly felt privations of the war.

In July, 1775, it being learned that the brig Nancy, owned by Josiah Winslow, a well-known royalist of Boston, and having on board eighteen or nineteen thousand gallons of molasses, had been forced by stress of weather into Stonington harbor, a spirited band of volunteers in a large sloop, commanded by Captain Robert Niles, proceeded to Stonington, where they captured the vessel and brought her with her cargo to Norwich, where the prize was sequestered for the use of the state.

This "tory molasses" as it was called proved a valuable capture. It was doled out to the hospitals, and used as a medium of exchange for public purposes.

This scarcity of sugar and molasses continued for several years. The best substitute for the latter was corn-stalk molasses, made by cutting the stalks when the ears of corn were just ripe for roasting or boiling, pressing out the juice, and boiling it down to the consistency of syrup.

By the side of this record of privation appears the order of the governor and council, May 4, 1777, for the distillation of 40 hogsheads of molasses into New England rum. Feb. 25, 1777, the same authorities ordered 250 hhds. of West India and New England rum to be purchased to supply the troops of the state.

In October, 1776, another merchant vessel, carrying a cargo of 8,000 bushels of wheat, shipped at Baltimore for Falmouth, England, was steering toward Stonington in distress, having lost her mainmast in a storm, when she was seized by an armed vessel belonging to the colony, and conducted to Norwich to secure her from recapture. Later on she was sold for the benefit of the country.

The high price of salt during these years was also a source of annoyance to the colonists. It was almost impossible to obtain a winter's supply. The government was obliged to send abroad for all salt used, which was distributed to the various towns. It was then apportioned by the selectmen to the districts in proportion to the population, and again dealt out by a committee to individuals.

Whenever a quantity of salt was obtained it was disposed of with the utmost caution. One of the state cruisers having captured 800 bushels, it was kept at Norwich, and in April, 1777, the governor and council directed Jabez Perkins to dispose of it to inhabitants of Connecticut only, to allow no family to purchase more than half a bushel, and to supply small families with less in proportion.

Three years before peace was declared, salt was $6 a bushel.

The scarcity of wheat was a still greater calamity. The winter of '77 seems to have been the season of shortest allowance. Each family was visited and an account of the grain in their possession taken. One hundred and twenty six families were at one time reported unsupplied, and the following certificate shows the condition of affairs later on:

This may certify that the whole number of inhabitants in the town of Norwich is hungry; for the quantity of grain computed in wheat is scanty; the deficiency amounts to a great many bushels, as per return of selectmen unto my office, agreeable to the act of assembly.

Certified by Galetia Simpson.

At this very period of greatest scarcity there was at least one distillery in operation in the town, as we learn from the records of the war committee, December 11, 1777.

"The governor was desired to grant a license to Caleb Huntington of Norwich to distil from rye, the spirit called Geneva, to supply the inhabitants of the state so far as he could, provided he retail the same at a reasonable price, not to exceed 15 s per gallon."

After 1780 the tide turned; farms prospered, business grew brisk, and the people of Norwich had not only enough, but almost a superabundance not merely of the necessities of living but of articles of luxury and display as well. From that date on we hear no complaints of scarcity.

DAYS OF CAUCUSES.

Opposing Forces Mapping Out Plan of Campaign.

ANTI-SILVER ADVOCATES' VIEWS.

Filibustering Will Not be Permitted In the House.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—This a day of caucuses at the capitol. The house adjourned over until Thursday so as to give full scope to the silver men for their consultation, which is to be of the broadest character. Mr. Bland made it known that he desired all friends of silver, whether Democrats, Republicans or Populists, to consider themselves welcome, and silver senators also were not to be excluded if they choose to aid their colleagues of the lower house with their advice. A caucus was held by Democratic senators before the hour of meeting of the senate.

It may depend upon the decision arrived at in caucus whether or not the silver debate which had so sudden and spirited an opening in the senate chamber yesterday will be continued and carried along to a definite issue, or whether the Democrats will decline to continue the debate on the lines which Republican senators yesterday originated. There is a general belief that the Democratic leaders will and will resent, as they did yesterday, any effort on the part of their opponents to originate measures on vital points of policy. The 250 bills introduced in the senate yesterday are likely to be followed up by a still more bulky consignment. Speaker Crisp continues to maintain an eloquent silence as to the organization of house committees, and this lets loose unlimited gossip, much of it probably baseless.

The anti-silver men have been led to expect by the expressions of those silver men with whom they have conferred regarding the proposed agreement for a prompt discussion of the question, that no filibustering would be countenanced. "There may be an attempt," said Representative Harter, one of the leading anti-silverites, this morning, "on the part of a few radical silver advocates to delay the inevitable simply for delay, and if their opposition shall prove to be purely for obstructive purposes, there will be no trouble in securing the signatures of a large majority of the Democrats on the floor to a request from the committee on rules

To Report a Cloture."

Mr. Harter says there are two other things beside the repeal of the silver purchase law as recommended by President Cleveland, and two only, absolutely essential to the complete return of confidence and the rapid growth of prosperity. "The first is least important perhaps," he said, "but it will produce instant and wholesome results. This is to give national banks the right to issue notes up to the par value of their bonds. A still more important thing is to give the secretary of the treasury with the approval of the president, the right to sell United States 3-year 3 per cent bonds at any time, in any amount, and on any terms he sees fit, in order to maintain all United States coined and paper money at a parity, or in order to pay all debts of the United States at maturity. Other wholesome legislation might follow but with these measures passed I would prefer to adjourn and let the country have a rest until the regular session."

The president's message is commended on all sides, except by the silverites. The members of the administration very much regret that politics should have been dragged into the consideration of the question at first flush. The president was in hopes that the discussion would be conducted

In a Non-Partisan Manner.

He was particular in the use of his language in the message in order that the blame for the passage of existing laws and for the present unfortunate condition of affairs could not be laid on any party. If it once becomes a partisan question there is not the remotest possibility of the passage of any bill whatever on the subject.

There is a clear majority of the senate in favor of the repeal of the purchase clause of the existing law, but that majority is made up principally of the Republicans, only a minority of the Democrats being in favor of such a proposition. If the Democratic leaders in the senate are as wise as the president in his message, and do not seek to give a partisan turn to the question, there may be some chance of the passage of a satisfactory bill; but if Voorhees and Gorman are to manage the question, then the country may as well make up its mind at once that there will be no legislation whatever on the subject.

Senate Promptly Adjourns.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The senate, without transacting any business, has adjourned until tomorrow. The motion was made by Mr. Gorman (Dem.) of Maryland, and the yeas and nays were demanded by Mr. Platt (Rep.) of Connecticut. The vote was: Yeas, 46; nays, 21.

HIBERNIAN'S FIELD DAY.

Members of the Order in Rhode Island Have an Outing.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 9.—The annual field day of the Ancient Order of Hibernians today was one of the greatest affairs of its kind in this state. About 3000 men participated in the street parade, including delegations from every branch of the order in the state, and several companies of the state militia.

The members of the organization went to Rocky Point, and there a series of games and feats of strength and skill for prizes were indulged in.

There were, as guests of the order: Hon. M. F. Wilhere, national delegate, Philadelphia; Captain M. J. Slattery, national secretary, Albany, and T. J. Dundon, national treasurer, Columbus, O.

The column was reviewed by the mayor and members of the city government as it passed the city hall.

BRAZILIAN TROUBLES.

Censorship of the Press Maintained. Revolters Victory Reported.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The Herald's Valparaiso (Chile) special says: In Santa Catharina, Brazil, the federal soldiers have deposed the state authorities. There is also trouble brewing in Parana. The house of deputies declared that the state government is acting without the sanction of congress. While cable messages are allowed to be sent to Europe, all sent to the south from Rio, especially press messages, are read by the censor.

The Herald correspondent in Rivera telegraphs that the revolters defeated Baron Turuyy. Salgrario, with 1000 men, is marching on Santa Anna. In Corrientes and vicinity the inhabitants are in a state of alarm, owing to the advance of the officials.

DESTROYER AT NEWPORT.

Will Be Used in Experimenting With Different Torpedo Nets.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 9.—The Destroyer has arrived at the torpedo station, having been brought on from the New York navy yard by the tug Nina. She is to be used here in experimenting with torpedo nets, being supplied with a submarine gun well fitted for this purpose. She has been expected for nearly a year, but lawsuits caused her detention in New York.

There are three nets at the station now ready for the trial, which may begin next week. One is of English construction and like those supplied to vessels of nearly all nations, while the other two are of American manufacture, and are claimed to be superior, because being less heavy, of greater strength, and easier to stow on the ship.

UNRULY ELEMENTS.

Earthquakes and Cloudbursts Work Destruction Near Styria.

VIENNA, Aug. 9.—Earthquakes were felt in several districts in north Styria yesterday morning. Several buildings in different parts of the affected districts were damaged by the shocks. No loss of life has been reported.

On Saturday there was a cloudburst in the vicinity of Gratz, the capital of Styria. The mountain streams almost instantly became raging torrents and the waters swept down into the valleys doing great damage.

A large number of persons were drowned. Many head of live stock were carried away in the floods, and much property was destroyed.

SENSATION IN PARIS.

Floquet and Others Charged with Conniving at M. Arton's Escape.

PARIS, Aug. 9.—Paris has another big sensation on hand. No sooner did the Siam cyclone subside before Panama's pot of scandal began to boil again.

M. Dupas, a former official of the detective service, has made public today a brochure, in which he says that the Ribot and Loubet ministers connived at the escape of M. Arton, the Panama lobbyist.

MM. Dupuy and Floquet, who held office at the time alluded to, deny the truth of the charge. The alleged revelations have created immense excitement in the city.

Salt Lake Depressed.

SALT LAKE, U., Aug. 9.—The president's message was anxiously awaited, and upon receipt was read with intense interest. The general expression is that the recommendations of the president, with regard to the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law, would not be a disappointment to the west. Notwithstanding this expression, there is an unmistakable feeling of depression over the message.

National Bank at Exeter.

EXETER, N. H., Aug. 9.—An organization for a national bank, to be known as the National Bank of Exeter, was effected last night, with the following gentlemen as directors: John J. Bell, Winthrop N. Dow, William P. Chadwick, Daniel Gilman, George L. Ilsley, John E. Gardner and Ephraim G. Flanders. It is expected that the new bank will be in operation within four weeks.

Serious Vermont Blaze.

RICHFORD, Vt., Aug. 9.—L. Baker & Sons' feed store and lumber dressing mill, the latter including a large engine and all the machinery, were totally destroyed by fire early this morning. The estimated loss is $20,000; no insurance. Two freight cars belonging to the Canadian Pacific Railway company, one of which was filled with lumber, was also burned.

Rockland Merchant Dead.

ROCKLAND, Me., Aug. 9.—Arthur Smith, who has been in business here since 1862, and who was perhaps the best known merchant on Main street, died this morning, aged about 70 years. Few men in the state were better known in musical trade circles, while he had a wide acquaintance among Boston manufacturers. Mr. Smith is survived by a wife.

Two Blasters Killed.

MILFORD, Mass., Aug. 9.—At Whitins, while blasting a well on the premises of A. Amalia, Chase Gasso, 26, and John Laramie, 21, were killed by the giant powder explosion. A charge had failed to ignite even after kerosene was poured on, and both went down to withdraw the charge, when it went off.

Life of Quarreling Ended.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—In a fit of anger, at 8 o'clock this morning, John H. Meister, aged 45, a prosperous baker, of 800 Henry street, Brooklyn, put an end to a life of quarreling that he has led with his wife, by shooting and killing her almost instantly. He then committed suicide.

Whiting Not a Candidate.

HOLYOKE, Mass., Aug. 9.—In an interview Hon. William Whiting of Holyoke announces his retirement as a candidate for gubernatorial honors on the Republican ticket. He says he does not care to go into a struggle for the nomination.

CUT WIFE'S HEAD OPEN.

Violent Assault Committed by Henry Liversey in Providence.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 9.—Henry Liversey made a violent assault on his wife last night, which may cause her death.

Liversey came home during the afternoon in a drunken state and demanded some money of his wife, who refused it. He became very much enraged and punched her on the head with his fist. He soon tired of this, and seizing several plates broke them over her head.

Then picking up a huge butcher knife, he completed his savage assault by inflicting a severe gash on her head, cutting it open. The blood streamed over the woman, and she fell to the floor unconscious.

Liversey was arrested, and was sentenced to 30 days in jail this morning to await the result of her injuries, which, it is feared, will be fatal.

Goodby Russians.

NEWPORT, Aug. 9.—Admiral Kaznakoff and the officers of the Russian flagship Dimitri and Donskoi gave a farewell dinner to their comrades of the Rynda, Nicholas I and Admiral Nashimoff last evening, it being the last day they will spend together in port. The whole squadron will weigh anchor at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and the flagship will then separate from her consorts. She proceeds direct to Cronstadt, the port of St. Petersburg. The other vessels go to Cadiz, Gibraltar and the far east.

Pinned the Safe Lock.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Burglars entered the Framingham central passenger station of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad this morning by prying open the window of the ticket office and picking the lock to the safe. They succeeded in obtaining about $50 in cash. There is no clew.

Will Increase Bank Circulation.

TAUNTON, Mass., Aug. 9.—The directors of the Taunton National bank have voted to increase the circulation of the bank $90,000, which will necessitate the placing of United States bonds for $100,000 with the treasurer of the United States.

Will Not Open Its Doors.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The Madison Square bank will not open its doors today. It is said its capital is impaired about $80,000. The refusal of the St. Nicholas bank to continue to act as clearing agent precipitated the trouble.

AN UP TO DATE SOLILOQUY.

To paint or not to paint? That is the question.
Whether 'tis better on one's cheeks to suffer
The marks inflicted by a wearing season,
Or to take steps against increasing paleness
And with the rouge put end it? To paint, to rouge—
That's all, and by a simple smear to mask
Time's smart and to change the pasty hue
Our flesh is heir to—'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wish'd. To paint, to rouge;
To rouge, perchance to daub—aye, there's the rub.
For, of that simple smear, the mess some make
Must give us pause and bid us hesitate
Ere we supply ourselves with new complexions.
For who would bear the marks of dining out,
Of crowded halls, of visits to the opera,
Of smart reunions and of sleep curtail'd,
When she herself might bring youth's roses back
With a soft hare's foot? Who would still be pale,
But that the dread of rouging badly done,
Of paint put on with ineffective touch,
And clumsily withal, puzzles the will
And makes us rather wear the hue we have
Than rouge a new one when we scarce know how?
Thus does self consciousness and fear of ridicule
Make cowards of some of us, though not of all,
And keep us, in the midst of painted blushes,
Still sicklied o'er with a pale cast of cheek.
—London Truth.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

WORDS OF WISDOM FROM A MATRON.

Dangers of Summer Resort Flirtations and Indiscriminate Introductions.

Well qualified by years of intelligent observation of a wide scope, enhanced by special opportunities for seeing, a very estimable woman—liberal minded at that—of this city gave utterance to the following:

"For the month now at hand the chief amusement, not to say occupation, of the young people at the summer resorts will be flirting. Dancing and driving, bathing and boating, croquet and bowling and cards—all these will have their devotees and receive due attention, but the business of the season to which all these other occupations shall be subservient is the old new game of playing at love, forever so pleasant and amusing. Now and then perhaps there will be a touch of the real article—a genuine heart, warm and living, among the imitation hearts of ice, which may find its like or thaw the ice, or perhaps be itself frozen—who knows? Few men care to marry the summer resort girl or the girl they meet at the average summer resort. They see so much froth that it makes them disbelieve in the wine. So much deception causes doubt everywhere.

"On the other hand, men know to what extent manœuvering mammas lead their daughters, season after season, to the sacrifice. Matches made at watering places are seldom safe, and guardians and parents will be wise to keep a watchful eye on their charges and to inquire into the character and antecedents of the nice young man whom ward or daughter scrapes acquaintance with in the surf. The convenient code which provides that such acquaintances are only for the season allows much latitude, and often, very often, shelters doubtful personages with married women or with single ones, wise in the ways of the world. Gamblers and fortune hunters have no cloven hoof which cannot be hidden by the conventional patent leather boot.

"Because a man waltzes or swims well, shall he without other passport dance or swim with any daughter—any woman? Shall Mr. Smith's introduction suffice for Mr. Jones when all known of Mr. Smith is that he wears a good coat, boards at a good hotel and drives a pretty team? It might be convenient if the custom common among some German peasants were introduced with us—the custom of indicating the dowry of each maiden by the strips on her bodice. But possibly that is too much to ask of congress in a land where heiresses are in the minority. So the desiring young man who wishes to endow a fortune with his heart and hand must take his chances, and when the biter is bit Mr. and Mrs. Lammie have no cause to complain if they do not receive much sympathy."—Chicago Tribune.

"Hen Dinners" at a Summer Resort.

One sign of the times is the starting of the hen dinners, which were so popular in New York during the Lenten season. They are very jolly affairs, so say those invited, and the stories told at the dinners are certainly mirth provoking. These dinners, although attended chiefly by married women, are never complete without a chaperon, who as a rule, belongs to the rather older set. Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock was asked to "matronize" the one given last week, and when she declined Mrs. James Kernochan took her place. It does certainly seem very strange, and one wonders where it will end, this complete separation of interests—the men going off by themselves and the women by themselves—meeting simply as jolly good friends, but with no interests in common.—Newport Cor. Vogue.

A Word to the Short Girl.

If you are not thin and slender, dear girls, do not include a collaretted and winged and big sleeved Eton suit in your wardrobe. Certainly the temptation is strong, because every girl wants the thing that she sees looking pretty on some other girl, and on the tall, willowy girls and the petite and dainty maidens these suits are undoubtedly a success.

Unfortunately, however, all girls are not built to adorn the new style Eton outfit. The girl who in courtesy is termed plump never was intended by nature to fit into a winged Eton and cannot be made to do so successfully by any amount of art. When a girl is too broad across the shoulders and too short waisted, what an unreasonable thing it is to put on a costume that increases both defects, and then expect to please.—New York Times.

Names of Japanese Girls.

Many of the pretty and suggestive little words that serve as names for Japanese girls are as charming in English as in Japanese. It is not uncommon for a Jap girl to bear the name of a flower. On the other hand, however, many girls in Japan bear the names of some domestic utensils, as frying pan or dustbrush. Doubtless this results from the custom common among some peoples of naming a child for the first object that strikes the eye after the little one has come into the world.—Frank Harrison's Family Magazine.

Present Fashions Unsatisfactory.

Fashion does not appear to be wholly satisfied with herself just now. Aware that her recent ventures are not altogether popular, the great dictator is continually trying to improve upon her original and somewhat crude ideas. Nevertheless, what are really meant for improvements often serve to accentuate the ugliness or eccentricity of styles under the improving process. The skirts, bodices, sleeves and trimmings are in no sense prettier or more artistic than they were a year ago, and it would seem that the only real commendable, agreeable change is the removing of the sweeping train from the skirts of street dresses. Very few women are found who are really pleased with the arbiter of dress in her present mood.—New York Post.

This Season's Bathing Suits.

"This year's bathing suits are simply charming," remarks a young lady in a letter to a friend. "Colors are more brilliant than ever. Miss —— will wear one of bright red throughout for early morning dips when sightseers are few, and the old time trousers will be replaced by veritable tights in one piece, stockings and all. A wholly new wrinkle will be a 'swimming dress' with a detachable skirt, which, after the girl is well in the water, may be easily removed and hung on one of the life poles until she gets tired of swimming in deep water, when it can be readjusted easily without making any undue display of the figure. This allows a woman the same freedom in the water that a man enjoys and is a good idea."

Recent Women Explorers.

Mrs. Peary is not the only woman who accompanies her husband on dangerous exploring trips. The wife of the arctic explorer, Dr. Nansen, is his companion in all his perilous exploits. She is described as a "jolly, bright little woman, with dark hair," who has given up many luxuries to reside with the doctor at Sysaker, six miles from Christiania. She enters with enthusiasm into all the explorer's schemes for the success of each new expedition. The cabin of the boat in which they propose to make their next trip is only 13 feet square and is to be used as dining room, workroom and drawing room.

Another woman explorer of cold latitudes is a Mrs. Burgess, the wife of a member of the Newfoundland assembly, who accomplished the remarkable feat of accompanying her husband a distance of 290 miles over snow and ice on snowshoes to attend the session at St. John's. They had no guide and a sledge of three dogs for their luggage and provisions. At one time it was necessary to cross an arm of the sea 11 miles wide in a leaky boat; at another they were obliged to cross rivers in the interior by means of trees, but throughout the journey this plucky woman was equal to any emergency.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Woman 107 Years Old.

Mary Thompson, an inmate of the Camberwell workhouse, celebrated the one hundred and seventh anniversary of her birthday recently, and in view of the event Mr. Frank Wint, the master of the workhouse, has furnished portraits of the old lady to the queen and the Prince of Wales. Polly, as Miss Thompson is familiarly called by her fellow inmates, enjoys fairly good health in spite of her years, and her intellect is singularly clear. Her memory carries her back to incidents which occurred 80 or 70 years ago, when she was in service. Polly is rather proud of the fact that she managed to resist all offers of marriage, for she says, "The men worked the women so hard in them days." For nearly 80 years Miss Thompson has lived within the walls of the Camberwell workhouse, and the good health she still enjoys is probably due to the care and attention she receives at the hands of the officials.—Lloyd's Newspaper.

Kansas Women in Politics.

The organization of the women of this state under the name of the Woman's Progressive Political league, headed by Mrs. John G. Otis and Mrs. L. L. Hopkins, is limited to those who are in sympathy with the teachings of the Populist party, and women who are identified with the Republican and Democratic parties are not eligible to membership. The secretary of the league has issued an announcement to this effect as follows:

"In view of a misunderstanding, largely conveyed through the press as to the object of our organization, we, the ladies of the Woman's Progressive Political league, wish to state that we are a People's Party organization first, last and all the time, and we advocate all reforms tending to the relief of the people, including woman suffrage and control of the liquor traffic."—Kansas Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

News From Abroad About American Girls.

A new and terrible fashion, which may perhaps completely revolutionize the style of feminine dress has received the stamp of approval of the American girl. This gentle creature has resolved to decorate her skin with much the same designs and figures that the materials of her dresses are often decorated with. In other words, plain white skins will soon be fashionable no longer. They will be ornamented like brocaded silks or printed calicoes. Tattooed arms and legs are becoming the latest fad, and all sorts of curious figures and designs indelibly printed in the soft flesh of the transatlantic beauties will be one of the interesting features of the American ballroom. Probably ere long a young lady's tendencies will be easily discernible by the nature of the ornaments engraved in ink upon her skin.—St. James Gazette.

The Black Satin Gown.

Last season the woman who wore an all black satin gown was regarded with astonishment. This season it is being more universally used for gowns and for trimmings, and, in fact, all satins are fashionable, particularly black. At one time it was supposed to be one of the "old lady" materials, but fashion has altered all this, and at present it figures prominently, both for day and evening wear.

Facts About Australian Women.

Two Australian girls have gained honors similar to those won by Miss Ramsay and Philippa Fawcett at Cambridge. Apropos of Australia, schoolmistresses in Victoria state schools can earn a possible $1,500 for their yearly salary. There are many women journalists in Australia, some dozens of them acting as reporters in Sydney and Melbourne.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

Little Willie's Great Sorrow.

One of the most pathetic incidents of the terrible storm which passed over Pomeroy, Ia., a short time ago was the great loss which fell to the lot of a little boy. The entire Maxwell family, consisting of father, mother and four children, were killed with the exception of Willie, aged 8.

Their home was torn to splinters, and also a portion of the stable, in which was kept a cow, a calf and a horse. Little Willie got away from those who had him in charge just after the storm and wandered over to the spot where once stood his home. There was nothing left of it but a small portion of the shed, the sole occupant of which was the calf. The cow and the horse had been killed.

Willie wound his arms around the calf's neck and wept. He refused to be comforted, and his guardians could only get him away from the animal by force.

Don't Overdo Pleasure.

It seems impossible to impress it upon the average small boy and girl that there is actually more enjoyment in eating slowly and taking small mouthfuls than in gulping down food in enormous "chunks" and omitting as far as possible the process of mastication; that there is more pleasure in playing ball at the rate of one game or two each day than in playing all day long for a week or two, going to bed cross and exhausted every night and wearying of the sport before the vacation is half gone, and that there is, generally speaking, more solid "fun" in not overdoing a pleasure than there is in rushing into it at such a rate that the young rioters "tear it to tatters," and themselves, too, in a painfully short time.—New York Times.

How a Boy Got Back His Ball.

Some boys playing baseball in the street knocked the ball against the window of a house and smashed a pane of glass. The ball fell into the yard, and one of the urchins started to recover it when a woman appeared and screamed:

"You boys can't have that ball. You've broken one of my windows."

The boy at the gate pulled off his hat and made a bow expressive of the most profound respect.

"We's didn't do it, lady," he said. "It was de ball. See?"

They got their ball on the strength of this argument.—New York News.

How Grandma Hurt Edith's Feelings.

Edith took her grandmother, who has come on from Maine for a visit, into the parlor and showed her the head of a lion done in crayon. Edith made the picture and is proud of it.

Grandma adjusted her spectacles and gazed admiringly at the drawing.

"You don't know what it is, grandma," Edith said.

"Don't know what it is!" responded the old lady testily. "Lived on a farm 60 years and not know a calf's head when I see it. Guess you ain't got a very high opinion of your grandma, Edith."—New York Times.

The French Doll.

Tillie's father brought her home a beautiful French doll. She called it Lisette. It had a white satin dress all spangled over, pink shoes and stockings, and a feather fan fastened to her side, with the tiniest bag to hold her lace handkerchief.

She had a pet dog too. His name was Towser, and he used to get very jealous of her attentions to Lisette. One day Master Towser was going by the piazza. He saw the doll lying in the hammock. "I'll fix her!" he said to himself, and he began to tear her to pieces.

"Oh!" screamed Tillie. "You naughty dog! What has my dolly done to you? You ought to be ashamed," and she went away crying bitterly. Poor Towser loved Tillie very much, and when he saw she felt so badly he ran after her and laid the doll down at her feet. Then he barked, as much as to say: "I am very sorry. Here is your dolly, and I wish I could make her whole again."

Tillie forgave him. Her father, when Christmas came again, gave her another, even prettier than the old one, which Towser treated with the greatest respect.—Our Little Ones.

Preparing Lunch For Children's Picnic.

First of all for a children's picnic ought to come sandwiches. Long, thin loaves of bread are the best. Butter each slice before you cut it off. Cut it thin. Spread with chopped ham or chicken or tongue. Some may be spread with potted ham bought already prepared. Canned salmon makes a good filling for sandwiches; so does cold boiled egg properly minced and seasoned. It is enjoyable to have as many kinds as possible. If you were preparing for an afternoon tea or a home luncheon, you would cut off the crusts, but they are very properly left on for a picnic.

A plentiful supply of buns is also a good thing to provide. Boiled eggs, even very specially prepared, will give young cooks little trouble. Boil them 20 minutes, let them cool, remove the shells and cut each egg in half lengthwise. Take out and season well the yolk of each, adding a bit of chopped or potted meat if you wish. Put the yolks back and press the halves together to look like whole eggs, twisting each in a piece of white tissue paper to keep them together till eaten. Fruit, crackers, cookies, jumbles and ginger snaps can be carried neatly and handled easily.

Carry plenty of fruit—apples, pears and bananas. Leave milk at home on account of both souring and sloppiness and rely upon water. It is best, too, for little picknickers to be served with lemonade after they reach home again, heated and in need of cooling refreshment, rather than attempt it at their feast.—New York Press.

A Delightful Children's Game.

When an afternoon full of games has left the nursery in great disorder, Bessie and Gertrude have one very last game to play, called "Helpfulness."

Bessie invented it.

On separate slips of paper are written the names of the principal things in the room—floor, chairs, rugs, bookcase, bureau, closet, sofa, corners, tables, window sills and desk—the slips of paper shuffled about, backs up.

Each person "playing" draws one in turn till all are taken, putting in order that part of the room or piece of furniture named, and when the game is done behold the room neat and fresh again.—Youth's Companion.

The Soldiers.

Rub-a-dub-dub! The soldiers come,
With sword and banner and rattling drum;
With feet that tramp and heels that stamp,
They march in line from the nursery camp.
Oh, stiff and straight, with a rum-tiddy-tum,
The soldiers come!

Rub-a-dub-dub! With stripe and star
Their beautiful banner shines afar.
Their bright eyes flash with courage rash,
Their general struts in a scarlet sash.
Oh, bold and brave, with a proud brum, brum,
The soldiers come!

Rub-a-dub-dub! In tones severe
The general utters his orders clear.
They march, they wheel, they run, they kneel,
With ring of pewter and clash of steel.
They aim, they fire—look out! Bum, bum!
The soldiers come!

Rub-a-dub-dub! The pattering rain
Beats aloud on the window pane.
Who cares for that? With a paper hat,
A stick, and a gun, and a rat-tat-tat,
In rain or shine, sword, banner and drum,
The soldiers come!
—Margaret Johnson in Nursery.

Wee Jim.

Not larger than a baby is Wee Jim,
With your pale face holding great eyes of blue.
In gazing you ask is that all of him,
And straightway his sweet eyes look up at you.

Two tiny feet fit for a toddling child,
Hands white and frail—only a baby's size—
A twisted body bent in shape, but look so mild
Shining from saddest violet eyes.

Not much to see, but in his home they say
Wee Jim is sunshine for them all.
From morn to night and night to day
They love him, for he is their all.

But one day Jim will need no crutch,
For in the city golden there awaits the boy—
Lord, is it asking thee too much?
Take the lad home and shut him in with joy.

An Egg Snake Among a Lot of Viperines.

Among a number of viperine snakes of about the same size is a snake that lives on eggs. He is about as thick as a lead pencil, but that doesn't prevent his swallowing a large pigeon's egg whole, nor even a hen's egg at a pinch. It dislocates his jaw, but that is a part of his professional system, and when the business is over he calmly joints up his jaw again and goes to sleep. He is eccentric even for a snake and wears his teeth on a backbone, where they may break the eggshell so that he may spit it away.

When he first stretched his head round an egg, the viperine snakes in the same case hastily assumed him to be a very large tadpole, and since tadpoles are regarded with gastronomical affection by viperine snakes they began an instant chase, each prepared to swallow the entire phenomenon, because a snake never hesitates to swallow anything merely on account of its size. When finally the egg swallower broke the egg and presented to their gaze the crumpled shell, the perplexed viperines subsided and retired to remote corners of the case to think the matter over and forget it—like the crowd dispersed by the circulating hat of the street conjurer.—Arthur Morrison in Strand Magazine.

Bombarded by Letters.

The lord mayor receives not less than 20,000 letters in the course of the year, while Mr. Spurgeon is reported to have had as many as 500 a day. Dr. Parker complains that he is pestered with letters from all sorts of people on all conceivable subjects. Popular clergymen also seem to be badgered quite as much as authors. Canon Liddon was killed by correspondence. At least he wore himself out by trying to answer the piles of letters daily inflicted upon him by thoughtless admirers. The complaint is chronic, but clergymen ought to console themselves by the thought that they only get a ripple of what comes like a wave upon editors and members of parliament.

Among statesmen Mr. Gladstone has probably the heaviest letter bag, but he never opens it himself. That task is undertaken by some member of his family, only one-tenth of its contents being seen by the "Grand Old Man" himself. But the replies to this small proportion make a serious inroad upon his time, for the veteran letter writer scorns the aid of such labor saving devices as shorthand and typewriting.—Gentleman's Magazine.

An Old Time Schoolmaster.

An old time schoolmaster in Pennsylvania had been a carpenter in his youth, with a taste for books, and had finally settled down as teacher of the village school.

He never punished boy or girl. He succeeded in keeping his pupils interested in their work. There was perfect order in his school and apparently no discipline. He was known to be an abolitionist who had frequently concealed runaway negroes in the garret of his school. Sometimes denounced by village politicians as a fanatic, he was ordinarily laughed at as an eccentric schoolmaster.

But his boys never challenged his authority. They learned a little Latin and Greek and a good deal about duty, honor and justice.

The old man's eyes used to blaze beneath his wig when he spoke of the need of courageous, honest men in public life.

Two of his boys never forgot his burning words. One was a general in the civil war and a political leader of commanding influence. The other was conspicuous for integrity at a period of low public morality.

Thackeray once said that it was better for a boy to have the middle place in the form and a good thrashing now and then than to be the cock of the school. His idea was that conceit ought to be knocked out of boys. But brutality is not good training. It hardens the heart and paralyzes sensibility.—Youth's Companion.

Nonsense About Tomatoes.

An idea has gained currency during the past few years that the tomato as an article of diet is liable to produce or encourage the terrible disease of cancer, and not long ago it was also stated that the use of this vegetable had been forbidden at the Cancer hospital. So widely spread has this notion become that Dr. Marsden, chairman of the medical committee of the Cancer hospital, London, has thought it advisable to give it official contradiction.

He says that his committee has been inundated with letters on this subject, and he begs publication for the following statement, which we hope will settle the matter once for all. It is the opinion of the committee "that tomatoes neither predispose to nor excite cancer formation, and that they are not injurious to those suffering from this disease, but on the contrary are a very wholesome article of diet, particularly so if cooked."—Chambers' Journal.

ORIENTAL ART IN COLOR.

Brilliant Tints Combined So as to Have a Restful Effect on the Eye.

The reason that colors in an oriental brooch or bracelet are so perfect is the same reason that an old oriental carpet is better than any other. An Asiatic dislikes to be dazzled, to be blinded with glare, to have his eyes hurt and his brain heated by unsubdued effects of light. Consequently, though he dyes his wools in intense colors, having few others, he so combines them, so mixes them with black and that dark cream of which Europe has never caught the secret, that the total result is restful, and the very idea of glare or of full daylight on the patterns is entirely absent.

It is precisely the same with oriental jewels. Their natural glare is kept down by combination and want of polish. The Asiatic, who carved in jade and sank deep inscriptions into sapphires, could have faceted precious stones as well as the cutters of Amsterdam, who until lately used no machinery. But he did not desire to do it. He wanted subdued effects and made of the garnet a carbuncle—which is a miracle of color without glare—or he cut off, as we have seen in many emeralds, a mere corner, so the beholder, instead of being bothered with flashing green, should peep at will into green depths.

We do not say he was altogether right—as regards the diamonds he was entirely wrong—but we may rely on it that he knew his business, and when he failed that he intended to fail. His intense appreciation of turquoise was due not only to admiration of its color, which can be matched only by one or two flowers, but to the fact that it is the one gem that for all its brilliancy of color does not flash. To this hour the high class Asiatic loves the catseye as the European never can because the light in it gives no pain, but reveals itself through a sort of dusky shade.

The European has made lovely jewels and will make lovelier ones, but he has never made jewels like those of the Asiatic, who with illimitable art can take from gold all its glitter without diminishing by one iota the perfection of its color, and will hand you a bit of enamel in which the green is as bright as the emerald, the red as fiery as the ruby and the whole as restful to the eye as a piece of turf.

The oriental jeweler has another merit, and in it lies the secret of a possible great development in the demand for European jewelers' work. He always gives to his jewels a certainty of value. His gold is gold of unadulterated purity, his silver truly silver of the standard, his gems the stones they are said to be and his work paid for at an understood and invariable rate. The consequences are that he makes little and that the market for his commoner wares never ceases, jewels being as much property as English sovereigns are, equally portable, nearly as capable of concealment and as fixed in value.—American Jeweler.

THAT DEMOCRATIC SPAN.

It is not to be wondered at that the president confined himself strictly to assailing the perniciousness of the Sherman bill, and recommended its prompt repeal, not because it was the all-cause of present troubles, but because it is the principal barrier, in his opinion, to prosperity.

This was not the only pernicious thing he saw, probably, as he took a look across the political sea on which democratic craft free-silver laden are trying to sail with flat wind. As a pilot of the ship of state he is not disturbed by these attempts to keep in the race by the use of artificial wind.

But when on shore he casts his eyes upon the Free Trade mule getting into double harness with that wild steed, Free Coinage, his heart is faint, for he doesn't know how he can keep that bulling and bullioned pair from dragging the nation to destruction. With a kicking, snorting, rambunctious mule and a wild, roaring, blood-hunting, bridled broncho from the west in the same harness, one looking for thistles and the other for blood, he naturally shrinks from the task of taking them in hand.

If the Free Trade mule would only manage to kick the wild steed of bullion blood out of sight, the president might then send the mule to John Bull as a memorial of the Baring sea conference, and the country would be ready then to go on with that safe and easy-going pair—Protection and Good Wages.

It is a pleasure to drive a pair well-broken to road, equal in speed and quality, and sure to reach their destination with their load preserved while the market is brisk and the time for pleasure or profit is ripe.

HE WAS NOT A BEGGAR.

A Connecticut minister who had been thanking God for two weeks for a diet of huckleberries and white bread while his family went barefooted and his church could not pay his salary, was not a beggar when he asked for the portion of the $200 salary then his due. It is not a big-hearted flock that asks a minister to work for an average of seventy-five cents a day, with the board of himself and family thrown in; but this man received that sum in lieu of all other considerations, except the annual donation, which usually yields more fun for the visitors than sustenance to the pastor's family.

Probably, when his parishioners read in the good Book: "Feed my sheep," they think it means to let the pastor and his family browse in the huckleberry pasture, and pick up any greens, sorrel, catnip or mints they may chance to find. When it comes to shoes they never shoe the minister or his family unless they will submit to be taken to the blacksmith.

This society ought to be put on a huckleberry diet from now till September, with an increasing ration every day as the seeds grow tougher, and by the time no more berries were to be found, they might be in distress enough to pay them for their niggardly ideas, and to awaken them to the fact that Christianity puts heart into a congregation and a well-fed minister into the pulpit. They have a meeting house and a starving minister, but they do not seem to have anything else.

THE PENSION BOND ISSUE.

The suggestion of The Hartford Courant to issue bonds at a low rate of interest to meet half of the annual payment of pensions as a means of immediate relief to the country, and of increasing the currency to the full limit, has met the approval of leading papers of the state and many business men and old soldiers. This is a wise and convenient way to reduce taxes, increase currency and restore confidence.

The Courant repeats that "these bonds would be eagerly sought as a basis for more and needed bank currency, and the mere announcement that they were to be issued and that currency was to follow, would go a long way to stop the hoarding and restore confidence."

As soon as the people begin to show less nervousness and the banks to assume a more confident and reliant attitude, the worst of the stress will be over. When the people think money is plenty, a better state of things is at once begun. Get the people to thinking right and the times will speedily come right.

A DEMOCRATIC VETERAN HEARD FROM.

David J. Hendricks of Bridgeport assails The Farmer as "a veteran hating sheet," and says: "I am an old soldier 54 years of age, and have been a voter ever since I was 21, and have voted the democratic ticket ever since, but last November I cast my last democratic ticket. I mean on national issues. It is very evident the old soldiers cannot trust the democratic party. * * * Of 149 old vets canvassed 69 of them said they voted for Cleveland, and 58 of the 69 have sworn never to vote that ticket again."

Mr. Hendricks vents his feelings in half a column of solid matter and speaks with spirit if not in good form. The great discovery he has made is "that the old soldier cannot trust the democratic party!" When all the old soldiers who have been voting blindly see this great truth, their causes for complaint will be at an end.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

When business is dull people have more time to read and are looking sharper for bargains. That is the reason advertising in the dull season pays.

When the Englishmen thought the Navahoe was foundering in the race of the 3rd, Mrs. Carroll was on deck and did not notice anything unusual in the actions of the yacht.

The members of congress have been polled by the press to estimate the chances, but there are so many non-committal men among them that all results thus far have proved unsatisfactory.

The newspaper is getting into the migratory habit. Seventy outfits for papers are packed and ready in Kansas to be in the rush when the Cherokee strip is opened and new towns are established in a day.

The trolley fiends have won all the legal points on the field of Gettysburg and are as much a fixture as old Round Top. Now the war is over they expect the veterans to patronize the cars and to ride around and view the familiar sights from the car platforms.

Congress adjourned over from Tuesday till Thursday out of respect to a deceased member. If out of respect to a long suffering people it will act upon the president's recommendations and adjourn till December within ten days it will confer a favor upon the living.

The democratic press are taking hope because the quarterly payment of pensions will in the next few days put in circulation thirteen millions of currency, paid out by the government to pensioners "who are obliged to turn it into the channels of trade for necessities."

Did any workingman who voted the democratic ticket expect to read anything like this in a democratic paper within a year after Cleveland's election: "On every hand we find mill owners paying their hands in store checks, which orders for provisions and other necessities serve just as good a purpose as currency."

The congress of librarians held at Chicago last week decided that Oliver Optic's stories are not wholesome reading for the young and should not be found on the shelves of public libraries. This decision would be alarming if it wasn't funny. Librarians are not hired to serve books to the public as a nurse presents a diet to a patient. It was a big boom for the books, and no boom at all for the congress.

Two brothers in Indiana, who had been discharged by the court, were selected as subjects for entertainment at a "lynching bee." They met the lynchers cordially with double-barrelled guns. When the welcome was over four of the would-be lynchers lay dead at their door and a fifth was mortally wounded. The "lynching bee" was postponed, but several funerals occupied the attention of the neighborhood for a few days.

A special correspondent of The Economist writing from London says: "The average pay per hour for iron-workers in America is 17 cents while on the Clyde it is 7 cents." In view of the big difference in wages and the slight difference in the cost of living, the English working people are beginning to alter the term "free trade" to "slave trade", for the free trade policy of the country is making slaves of the working classes.

Judge Barbour of Hartford is in a little tilt with Mr. Thayer of The Courant, whom he charges with making unjust reflections upon the city court. He ordered Mr. Thayer put out of court on Tuesday and Wednesday, and he was put out. Judge Barbour is giving himself a reputation for having less sense than most people attributed to him, and has nothing to gain by showing unusual authority. The Courant preached a plain sermon to him on Wednesday morning, and gave him advice worth following. The judge, who wants to make a target of himself for the press, is the exception and not the rule.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

It Fails!

A strong and patriotic message.—[Boston Journal.

A Remote Allusion.

The president's allusion to the tariff is very remote. It is evident he is in no haste to have that question opened.—[Worcester Gazette.

Up to the Occasion.

President Cleveland's message comes up to the occasion so far as the silver question is concerned, though his promise to give us a tariff disturbance [illegible] not but counteract some of the benefits of his vigorous talk on the currency.—[The Courant.

A Difference in Texts.

The last message which President Harrison sent to congress last December pointed out truthfully the abounding prosperity of the country. That was his text; the text of President's Cleveland's message is calamity.—[Hartford Post.

It Was What it Was Expected to Be.

President Cleveland's message to the congress in extra session has been awaited with unusual interest. It will be found to be what everybody must have expected it would be. There is no hint of a compromise with the silver and cheap money forces.—[Springfield Republican.

Level of High Statesmanship.

The silver portion of the message sent to congress Tuesday is a clear, comprehensive review of the situation. It is up to the level of high statesmanship, and at the same time so lucid is it in expression and so free from all economic technicality that a schoolboy can understand it.—[New York Recorder.

That Foot-Ball Attempt.

President Cleveland's foot-ball attempt to kick tariff reform into the future would be immensely amusing if it were not immensely pathetic. The tariff uncertainty must share equally with the silver law the inglorious responsibility for the existing depression.—[Waterbury Republican.

United on No Remedy.

There is literally nothing new, nothing hopeful, nothing suggestive, nothing that shows Grover Cleveland has mastered the situation and that he and his party are united on some remedy after they have torn the Sherman silver plaster off the wound. After the repeal of the Sherman act, what then?—[New York Press.

Its Great Merit.

The president's message has the great merit of being reasonably short. It will therefore be generally read. People can find time and inclination to read a message of its brevity and importance even in this weather. And some of them will not only be pleased with its brevity, but they will also be pleased because it is not so full of "I's" and "me's" as most of the president's messages have been.—[New Haven Journal.

He Did His Part Well.

Honor to the president. The president has done his part well. He urges congress to repeal as soon as practicable "the provisions of the act passed July 14, 1890, authorizing the purchase of silver bullion, and that other legislative action may put beyond all doubt or mistake the intention and the ability of the government to fulfill its pecuniary obligations in money universally recognized by all civilized countries." More sound than many, he does not propose sweeping repeal of the act, but to save its valuable provisions.—[New York Tribune.

POLITICAL.

A Warning!

The Indiana congressman who assists in any way to delay the repeal of the Sherman silver purchase law, need not return to Indianapolis when the session is over.—[Indianapolis Sentinel.

A Marvel.

If the public career of Senator Beckwith of Wyoming was so soon to be done for, it is surely a marvel what it was begun for. But Mr. Beckwith's fondness for much life is so strong that if he had taken his seat he would probably have been a senator of the absentee type, and that sort are not wanted.—[Boston Journal.

The Best Speech!

Finally, it is not the long-winded, flowery orators who will make the lasting reputations at this session of congress. "Nero fiddled while Rome burned." Nero was a tyrant, and this country does not want any fiddling just at present. The man who comes to the front in the halls of congress and says sternly and impressively, "Gentlemen, do not dawdle! The country is waiting for you," will make the best speech of the session. He will strike the keynote of the session, and his fame will resound through the land.—[Worcester Gazette.

TOPICAL.

Altogether Lovely.

Oh, 'twas altogether lovely to nag the G. O. P.,
And furnish season tickets up Salt river, don't you see?
Slashing up official pudding, sure, such happiness must bring,
While Marvell gives his hatchet just a little extra swing.
But hold! Here comes another sort of music in the air,
That tells of empty stomachs and of pockets plucked and bare!
Where are those protection killers now, those spouters of renown?
Where, oh, where, those great reformers
When
The Mills
Shut Down?
—[Fall River News.

A Country Minister.

I come before you today with an empty stomach. I haven't had anything to eat this morning and we have had nothing to eat at our house for a week but blackberries and bread, and those God Almighty prepared for us and no one can take them away. The reason my family are not here this morning is because they have no shoes to wear and had to stay at home. I am not asking for charity, but only want my salary that you agreed to pay me.

These startling words came from the lips of a Methodist minister, the Rev. F. A. Smith, just after he finished his sermon in the little church at Silver Mine, near New Canaan, Conn., Sunday week. The salary paid to Mr. Smith, who has a wife and daughter to support, is $800 a year and house rent. It is expected that on this meagre sum he shall preach to his people every Sunday, be a friend to them in affliction, christen and baptize and marry and bury them; call on them socially and be ever ready to minister to their wants whether spiritually or materially.—[Ansonia Sentinel.

LONDON'S OPINION.

Comment of the Press on the President's Message.

GENERAL SENTIMENT FAVORABLE.

Post Declares World Must Have Silver Coin.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The Post, commenting on President Cleveland's message, says: America cannot well stop at the repeal of the Sherman act. The president throws out no suggestion, but some action is certainly necessary.

It is probable that the problem which the United States has to solve may lead, not to bimetallism, but to more mature and unbiased consideration of the possible uses of silver. As a part of the world's currency the metal cannot be demonetized with safety, and if through America some method for its more extended employment were devised, the benefits to the world would be of supreme importance.

The Daily Graphic says: Yesterday's proceedings in the United States congress and the British house of commons ought to be read side by side.

President Cleveland's striking picture of the evil wrought by free silver in the United States constitutes an effective answer to Mr. Chaplain's economic fallacies. It passes human comprehension that in the face of the change of policy in the United States English bi-metallists should advocate a return to free silver in India.

The Daily News says: In firmness of tone and uncompromising thoroughness of policy Mr. Cleveland's message of the country. Messrs. Chaplin's and Balfour's arguments are practically answered from the other side of the Atlantic.

Will Fully Meet the Expectations

The president lets the fanatics down easily in suggesting that, although, perhaps, the larger place claimed for silver in the world's currency may be brought about by general international co-operation, the United States will not get a hearing while trying to bring about the result single handed.

What our bi-metallists will say of this terrible exposure of the failure of a great bi-metallic experiment we need not attempt to forecast. It will probably exert a great effect upon wavering members of the United States congress, and bring about the complete repeal which the president advises.

The president and congress can only remove the original causes of the inflation of prices and the growth of rotten speculation which Led to the Present Disasters.

The latter cannot be immediately remedied by congress. The panic of 1873 was followed by five or six years of depression. Unless matters grow much worse than they now are, the present panic ought not to have equally severe prolonged effects.

The Financial News says: President Cleveland's plea for the repeal of the Sherman act is virtually unanswerable. The question whether the stoppage of the monthly silver purchases would immediately end the crisis, is not easy to answer. We are not inclined to reply off hand in the affirmative.

If the American people show as much faith in their currency when watering means, as they did in the first two years of the silver purchases, the effect of the repealing of the Sherman act

May Be Immediate.

There is more reason for such faith now than there was three years ago.

The Times says: It may perhaps be thought that the president, as the head of his party and on the eve of a party fight, is unlikely to understate the case for action which his party contemplates. But it would be difficult to convict him of exaggeration in the face of the daily returns of American prices and exchange.

No permanent improvement can be looked for until congress abandons the Sisyphean task of attempting to maintain an artificial ratio between silver and gold. It is one of the mysteries of politics how a comparatively small body of men has succeeded in dictating the financial policy of a great nation for its own ends.

President Cleveland is manifestly doing everything possible to terminate the evil, but the silver interests is certain to make a tough fight. It is not easy to predict the precise issue of the struggle.

THE REPUBLICAN LEADER.

Statement of Ex-Speaker Reed on Message and Situation.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—A Washington dispatch to The Press contains the following statement, written by ex-Speaker Reed:

One can hardly fail to be impressed by the resemblance between the message of President Cleveland and that of the last Democratic president who addressed a congress of his party in 1857. While the disaster is not the same, the expression of sorrow is very similar. Mr. Cleveland has set an example of short, single topic messages; but, while this message is impressive, it is far from being adequate to the occasion. While my votes in the past show plainly that I agree with much that he says, I should not be doing justice to my own sense of truth if I did not record my entire disbelief in the idea that the message states the underlying cause of our disaster. The cause of our misfortune is plainly this: Utter uncertainty reigns in finance and tariff, and in everything on which business can be based. If you remove one element of uncertainty there remains all the others. You cannot readjust the economic principles which govern a country without disaster, especially if that readjustment be violent and involve the wages and salary of every citizen.
THOMAS B. REED.

WATTERSON PLEASED.

The Message Is All That Friends of Reform Could Desire.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 9.—Under the caption "A Great Document," Mr. Watterson says in today's Courier-Journal: Like everything emanating from the pen of the president, the message bears the imprint of a strong and earnest mind. It is marked by exceeding clearness of expression and thorough directness of purpose.

Nobody can gainsay the array of facts, or answer the argument of this message. From the beginning to end it is equally true in the presentment of the state of the country, and of the cause of the distemper, and wise in its recommendation of the remedy.

Touching the tariff the president speaks in no uncertain tone. Here the message is all that the most ardent friends of revenue reform could desire or ask. It removes any doubt that may have been created by the artful misrepresentation of the protectionists as to Mr. Cleveland's position and intentions.

SENATOR CHANDLER.

Tariff Clause Will Disturb More Than Financial Soundness Will Improve.

WASHINGTON, Aug 9.—Senator Chandler, speaking of the president's message yesterday, said: "The two columns treating on the silver question seem to be thoroughly sound, except where the president uses the word 'principally' in stating that the present situation is due to silver.

"The last clause declaring that there must be immediate action upon the bills to carry out the pledges of the Democratic party concerning the tariff will disturb business more than his soundness on the financial question will improve it."

SENATOR PETTIGREW'S VIEW.

Laughs at the Idea of Congress Repealing Silver Act in a Few Weeks.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Senator R. F. Pettigrew of South Dakota laughs at the idea of congress repealing the Sherman act in a few weeks.

"Why, the house cannot pass a repeal bill," he said to a reporter, "before December, and even then it may have to get the help of the Republicans and adopt the Reed rules. In the senate the case is more hopeless for the gold standard men. They cannot adopt closure in the senate, and when it comes to talking against time the free coinage advocates have the advantage. One of our talking champions is Senator Morgan of Alabama. He talked for 11 hours once and the senate wished to adjourn to give him a rest. The senator said it was true that he felt a little tired from his knees down, but from that point up he was fresh and able to continue indefinitely. With such able and perennial talkers as Senator Morgan I would like to see them repeal the Sherman act without a satisfactory substitute. Without any disrespect to the able and distinguished senator, I think he could talk 60 days. He has some able seconds, too, so the cause of free silver is not hopeless."

"How do you think the senate stands on the silver question?"

"When the session adjourned the senate had a majority of 14 in favor of silver. I do not know how it stands now."

"How will you vote?"

"I do not care to say. I believe heartily in bimetallism. My state is in favor of free coinage, and has so expressed itself in several conventions. We are not satisfied with the Sherman act at all, because it makes silver a commodity. Instead of passing such a bill we should have passed a free coinage bill, pure and simple, and then the people could have judged for themselves whether it made times harder or not. I do not think there would have been any financial panic. I opposed the Sherman act and only consented to vote for it when $600,000 more per month was added to the $4,000,000 to be purchased."

The senator said the people had an idea that when silver was high that wheat and cotton were also high, and the condition of things in India and here tended to prove it. Silver was low here, and so were cotton and wheat. Demonetizing silver had chiefly benefitted England, and the action of England in regard to silver in India was done to have an effect upon this country. The senator explained why it was that the depreciation of the rupee did not affect the natives of India at all. Wheat could be bought in India for $1 (about two rupees), because the natives accepted the rupee at its face value. In England the wheat sold for 75 cents, or three depreciated rupees, thus enabling their seller to clear one rupee on a bushel. Twelve years ago India shipped no wheat and last year the export amounted to 60,000,000 bushels. He thought that with a gold standard only, the way things are going now, in a dozen years there would be no wheat and no cotton raised in this country. We would have to import wheat.

BOGUS DIVIDENDS.

Charges Against the National Cordage Trust.

CRIMINAL SUITS ARE INSTITUTED.

Officers and Big Stockholders the Defendants.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—A criminal suit was instituted today against E. M. Fulton, Sr., E. Weaver Loper, F. T. Wall and J. M. Waterbury officers ex-officio and big stockholders in the National Cordage trust.

The proceedings are brought by a stockholder who is represented by Ambrose H. Purdy. The charges are based upon evidence alleged to have been secured from the books.

The stockholder who is behind the suit had the books in his possession for two days, and it is claimed he secured proof that the officers have declared dividends which

Were Not Taken Out of the Profits.

For the year beginning October, 1890, the books show that a dividend of $1,406,212.47 was declared on the capital stock of the company, and that a surplus of $106,412 was carried over to the next year.

The allegations of the plaintiff in the suit are that the dividends were not earned for that period, and that the officers who promulgated the statement are guilty of a misdemeanor and also of perjury in having sworn that the statement was true. The statutes provide a severe penalty in cases of conviction on charges of the kind.

Since the failure of the cordage trust, many allegations have been made that the scheme of financiering in the company was,

To Put It Mildly, Very Questionable.

Dividends were declared, year after year, and people familiar with the cordage trade were unable to see how it could be done, with the price for cordage down to an extremely low point.

It has been declared that dividends were paid out of borrowed money, and that the failure of the trust resulted from the inability of the gentlemen who held the financial wheel to continue longer to withhold the truth.

Mr. Fulton was in Europe when the trust went to the wall. His son is identified with cordage now. Mr. Waterbury was the president and nabob of the trust, Mr. Loper the treasurer and Mr. Wall is a stockholder and director.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 9.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Portsmouth and Dover railroad was held at the city rooms and the following directors chosen: Frank Jones, Daniel Marcy, J. Treadwell treasurer.

They All Do It.

'Tis now suburban residents
Begin to dig and hoe
And trim their little garden plots
In hopes some things will grow.

There's one thing that these amateurs
Produce by tilling lands—
The most of them can always raise
Some blisters on their hands!

What He Asked For.

Hojack—Have you anything in the shape of $1 you can lend me?

Tomdick—Yes; here.

"But that's only a cent."

"Yes, but the shape is all right."—Truth.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Maryland has an electric freight line.

Electricity is now made use of to dry tea leaves in Caylon.

Electricity has been successfully introduced in England and France for purifying sewage.

Successful experiments have been made in several states in stimulating the growth of such plants as wheat, corn and tobacco by mean of electric currents.

BOSTON PRODUCE MARKET.

OATS—Oats are very steady, with the offerings here small. New clipped, for prompt shipment, are quotable at 37½@38c, with old clipped, to arrive, scarce and nominal. New clipped sold from track at 41c. The spot market is very firm at: Clipped, 41@41½c; fancy, 42c; No. 2 white, 40c; No. 3 white, 38½@39c; clipped, mixed, nominal, 37@38c.

BUTTER—Butter is firmer, following the firmer market in New York: Western creamery, 20½@21c; firsts, 17@19½c; imitation creamery, 17@18c; factory, 17@18½c; northern creamery, extra, 21@21½c; northern dairy, 18@19c; eastern creamery, extra, 19½@21c. These are prices for round lots. Jobbing lots and fancy lots cost more.

HAY—The hay market is quiet and steady, with choice hay bringing full rates. New rye straw is selling at $15 50, with old scarce and nominally quoted at $16@17. Millfeed is higher: sack spring bran, to arrive, $16; sack winter, $17@17 75; middlings are quotable at $14 50@15 for sack spring and at $17 75@18 for sack winter.

FLOUR—The flour market is not favorably affected by the easier position of speculative wheat at Chicago, but the trade here is not reducing quotations. The feeling is that wheat will rally in a day or two. Quotations are not changed.

POTATOES—The supply of potatoes is heavier, and the market is easier: Rhode Islands, $2 75; natives, $2 50@2 75; Jerseys, $1 50@2 50. Sweet sell at $4@4 25 for ordinary to good, and at $4 25@4 50 per bbl for the best.

CORN—Corn is very steady. Chicago No. 2 yellow is quoted at 51@51½c, to arrive, with No. 2 yellow at 53½@54½c. The spot market is firm at: Steamer yellow, 52½c; No. 2 yellow, 53c; steamer mixed, 50½@51c.

MEAL—The position of cornmeal is very steady, with oatmeal dull. Bag meal is quoted at $1@1 02, with barrel meal at $2 20@2 25.

EGGS—Eggs are dull with the market easy: Western, 16c; Michigan, 16½@17½c; provincial, 16½@16c; eastern and northern, 18@20c.

PORK—Pork provisions are steady and unchanged. Trade is only fairly active.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Dealings in Leading Securities in Boston and New York.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—In the outside market call money is quoted at 8 to 10 per cent, and time money is nominally 6 per cent.

The general feeling on the street this morning was not one of confidence. The traders did not manifest any desire to either buy or sell, and were simply waiting for future developments. The president's message was a great disappointment and a source of great uneasiness. This feeling will prevail for some time yet.

The bear element took advantage of the unsettled condition of affairs, and as a result prices dropped badly all along the list. The principal feature of attack was General Electric. This stock opened at 42, a decline of ¾. This price, was, however, only temporary. The quotations came quickly lower, and in the first half hour the price had fallen four points to 38¼. A sharp decline followed closely upon the temporary firmness, and the price ran off to 39 in the first hour of the market.

Chicago, Burlington and Quincy opened weak, and declined from 77 on last night down to 75¼. There was considerable trading in this stock. Atchison also was very weak and sold at 16¾. Sugar common came out at lower prices and fell from 70 to 68. There was, however, a sharp turn for the better, which ran the price up to 70 again. This was followed by a reaction which carried the price down again to 69¼.

Union Pacific came out firm and strong on the weak market, with sales at 17¾, an advance of ¾ on the close of last night. Boston and Maine weakened under the depression, and at the opening sold at 140. On rapid sales the price slumped to 137¼. Boston and Albany also lost ½ to 198. Erie Telephone came 1 point below the closing of yesterday, selling at 37.

Several large operators in sugar who have been bullish have been discovered to have sold their stock and to have withdrawn their supporting orders. The feeling seems to be that the price will go lower in order to enable those who have sold to recover their stock on favorable terms. The sugar trade is dull, but the earnings of the company up to the end of June were entirely satisfactory.

The London market opened irregular and soon lapsed into decided dullness. There is very little demand abroad for American securities. The leaning rates for stocks in Boston are, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, and Atchison flat; Sugar, 6 and 7 per cent. on 80s. General Electric ¼ per cent, and flat.

DAYS OF DEATH.

Cholera Infantum Rages Like an Epidemic.

Infants Dying from Want of Proper Food.

How to Preserve the Lives of the Babies.

Boon Within Reach of Every Family.

The Good that Follows the Use of Lactated Food.

"Infants are suffering frightfully in these days," said a physician to a BULLETIN man yesterday.

"July and August are fatal months for children, and the death rate from cholera infantum will keep up during September.

"Cholera infantum, under which this many cases of indigestion are reported, is a preventable disease," and he showed the reporter a recent grouping of statistics, from which it appeared that this disease was preventable by the use of lactated food.

Hundreds of physicians prescribe this lactated food for their little patients at the beginning of summer, with the assurance that the dread disease will not appear in that family.

Thousands of mothers have testified to the fact that lactated food has done what nothing else could do, saved the lives of their little ones.

No better evidence can be offered of its superiority than the many instances in which fretful, peevish, and sleepless babies, as soon as put upon lactated food, sleep all night and wake up laughing. The happy change, physicians say, is solely due to the superior nourishing and satisfying qualities of this food.

It must be borne in mind that lactated food is so inexpensive that it is within the reach of every family. For twenty five cents a mother can buy a package that contains enough to make ten pints of cooked food.

The most skillful specialists in children's diseases have publicly advised mothers that to be on the safe side they should use lactated food until their children are old enough to come to the table. It strengthens the weak ones and keeps the well babies strong.

BAD RUNAWAY AT BALTIC.

Horses Frightened by the Cars Injure Several People With Possible Fatal Results.

A pair of horses driven by Robert Stott of Fall River were frightened by the cars at the Baltic station at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and getting out of control, ran away and threw out the seven occupants of the vehicle. The party were from Blissville and were riding for pleasure, Mr. Stott and family being the guests of Mr. James Emerson of Blissville. Mr. Stott had his thigh and collar bone broken, and was severely cut about the body and head, his wife, Marion Stott, was painfully injured in the back and bruised, and Elizabeth Stott, aged two years, had her left thigh broken and sustained internal injuries from which she may die.

The Emerson family were all badly bruised and one of the children was so badly injured that it is feared she will not survive. The Stotts were taken into the house of a Frenchman, where they received the kindest attention and still remain.

Dr. Cassidy was summoned by telphone at 5 o'clock, and with James B. Shannon, Jr., drove to the Baltic station in thirty minutes. Dr. Paddock, who was summoned by Dr. Stanton, also drove to Baltic, and with Dr. Stanton set the broken bones and made the Stotts as comfortable as possible.

Before the doctors had arrived James Emerson and family had left for their home in Blissville.

PRINCIPAL HINE RELEASED.

He Receives the Superintendency of the Dedham, Mass., Schools.

It was a surprise to the Greeneville school board on Wednesday when Principal Hine appeared and asked to be released from his present position of principal of the schools in that district, to accept the superintendency of the schools of the town of Dedham, near Boston, Mass.

Mr. Hine has been principal of the Greeneville schools for the past four years and has brought them to a high standard. He was highly regarded as a teacher and a citizen, and it is with regret that the residents of the town will learn of his departure.

He will move with his family to Dedham on Tuesday of next week, and that town is to be congratulated upon having procured such a capable and well-equipped superintendent for their schools.

Delegates From Sons of Veterans.

Next Monday, at Cincinnati, will begin the annual encampment of the Sons of Veterans. Delegates from all over the United States will be present. The object is to elect a commander-in-chief of the order to succeed Commander-in-Chief Marvin E. Hall of Hinsdale, Mich. There will also be competitive drills for prizes amounting to $1,000. The following are the delegates from this state:

Colonel B. R. Singleton of Middletown; Past Colonels G. Brainard Smith of Hartford, H. W. Waffelis of Litchfield, W. N. Barber of Meriden, A. E. Chandler of Norwich.

Delegate at large—Major F. S. Valentine of Birmingham.

Alternate delegate at large—Captain C. B. Holle of Meriden.

Alternate delegate—Past Captain A. D. Lincoln of New Haven.

THE YACHTS ARRIVE.

New London Harbor Crowded with All Styles and Sizes.

The squadron of the New York Yacht club, over 200 vessels, dropped anchor in New London harbor late Wednesday afternoon. Last night the yachts were illuminated from stem to stern and deck to topmast, and the sight was one of surpassing beauty. There were hops at the Fort Griswold and Pequot houses, and the cottages were decorated with Chinese lanterns.

On shore the prevalence of yachting men in blue clothes with yachting caps and white shoes were noticeable, and by their swagger and the general nautical air they carried, and their evident familiarity with the intentions of the clerk of the weather stamped them as well encrusted sports.

The yachts left New Haven Wednesday morning and proceeded to New London to remain over night. The possible cup defenders, Jubilee, Colonia, Vigilant and Pilgrim were all seen last evening.

The Electra was in the harbor last evening. A line of green electric lights extending from her stern over her masts and down to her stem made a grand sight. There was an enormous throng down the harbor and Pequot avenue near the Pequot house was thronged with sightseers.

The famous steam yacht White Ladye, which Lily Langtry had built, the most beautiful boat afloat, arrived yesterday afternoon.

Among the most important features of the annual cruise of the New York club since its first occurrence in 1882 are the races for the Goelet cups, which are yearly sailed off Newport over the Block Island or the Bow and Pigs courses. Additional interest will be attached to the event this year from the fact that the four cup defenders, Vigilant, Colonia, Pilgrim and Jubilee, will participate in the race, and an opportunity be given to compare the general appearance of the brack sloops, if not to form an idea of their comparative merits.

Friday morning at 10 o clock, weather permitting, the races for the Goelet trophies for schooners and sloops will be sailed.

The donor of the cups is Ogden Goelet, owner of schooner yacht Normena. The Goelet prizes are triumphs of the silversmith's art, besides their value as representing, practically, the championship of the year. The cup offered for schooners is a handsome piece of silverware costing $1,000.

The prize for sloops is a silver loving cup of antique design, valued at $500.

The race from New London to Newport this morning will be very exciting, and large crowds will avail themselves of the opportunities offered by the river boats.

WIDENING THAMES STREET.

Hearing Before the Council Committee—The Plans Proposed.

Mayor Harwood, Alderman Aborn and Councilman Hendee of the special common council committee gave a hearing Wednesday evening to the petitioners who asked that the two buildings which adjoined the structure lately purchased by the city, and removed from the lot, corner of West Thames and High street, be taken down, and that a city meeting be called to consider the project.

Mr. W. C. Higgins explained to the committee the object in view of the petitioners. It was their desire that the Grant and Moloney properties be purchased and the street widened by their removal, because public necessity demanded it. The grade at that point was dangerous and inconvenient now, and the recent increase in traffic warranted an amelioration. The Richmond Stove company, under proper conditions and considerations, would, moreover, consent to grant the city five to five and a half feet of their land on the west side of the highway fronting their plant, to broaden it for several hundred feet.

John Woodmansee complained of the hardships the High street corner entailed on teamsters, and corroborated Mr. Higgins' remarks on the stern necessity for a wider roadway.

C. H. Talcott said that his presence must not imply that he favored the proposal. He would not be benefited especially, and did not want to be assessed.

Col. John P. Murphy thought there was no question of the desirability of the improvement.

Real estate agent, Nicholas Tarrant, representing the Moloney estate, which is north of the Grant property, the two obnoxious dwellings, offered the place to the city for $1,[illegible] a price which no individual could [illegible], and would give thirty days' option if absolutely necessary.

Mayor Harwood explained that the council had no authority to purchase property without an appropriation. The only way to secure the price was to call a city meeting and levy a tax. While desiring not to retard the success of the plan at all, he thought the agitation of the project was precarious at the present time.

After considerable minor discussion Mr. Tarrant made a proposition which met considerable favor, as its adoption would obviate the necessity of calling a city meeting. He would give the city $2,500 for the plot of land of the Grant and Moloney places left untouched after the street had been widened. This would mean an outcome of only $500 on the part of the city, as the sale can be consummated for $3,000.

The committee will confer further with Mr. Tarrant.

THE YACHT RUN TO NEWPORT.

Vigilant Finishes the Trip Over a Minute Ahead of Jubilee.

A GALLANT RACE.

Names of the Class Winners—Entries for Today.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 10.—Early this forenoon the starting signal for the great yacht fleet in New London harbor was given and the fleet went ahead through Fishers Island sound with the tide behind them.

Jubilee crossed the line promptly after the start for her class was signalled and about two minutes ahead of Vigilant. Both boats were on a starboard tack under mainsail, wearing foresail jib, gaff topsail and jib topsail.

Jubilee footed faster than Vigilant, and as both sloops fetched by Race Rock the wind shifted a little towards the eastward, and Vigilant began setting her larger head sails so as to regain some of her lost ground. General Paine had an eye astern and followed her example, hoisting his big foresail, while the Vigilant broke out hers in stops. Then Vigilant put on that cloth in the shape of her big jib topsail and others followed suit.

Half way to Watch Hill Vigilant seemed to close up a little, and the boats set their balloon jib topsail as the wind freshened from the southwest again. Vigilant did not move as fast as Jubilee in the light wind of the start. Lasca, Mayflower, Wasp and a greater part of the fleet had to tack round Race Rock. Vigilant and Jubilee could not have watched each other closer if they had been sailing for the cup.

The start was a one gun start and no crew could have made greater efforts to overcome its handicap, than did the Vigilant's.

Off Point Judith the big sloops set spinnakers for the run into Dumplings and the finish of their 40 mile run. Vigilant was yet in the rear. But her handicap was soon to give her vantage over General Paine's veteran sagacity.

A succession of blanketings finally gave Vigilant the lead, as she came up behind Jubilee and finished over a minute ahead of her big rival. Measurement and allowance are factors to be considered yet. Vigilant sailed a gallant race. Constellation maintained her good record in the big schooner class and sailed a great race as did also Lasca and Alcea.

The entries for tomorrow's great race so far are: Sloops Pilgrim, Colonia, Vigilant, Queen Mab; schooners Lasca, Ariel, Constellation, Alcea. The entries close at 8 a. m. on the flagship tomorrow. Over 350 yachts are in port.

The class winners today were Constellation, Fortuna, Lasca, Ariel, Neara, Katrina, Queen Mab, Eclipse, Wasp and Mariquita.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—A Newport, R. I., dispatch says: The only drawback to the result of the race between the Vigilant and the Jubilee today is the fact that no man is yet prepared to say which is the better boat. As neither boat has been officially measured and the start was a single gun, the relative speed of the flyers remains a mystery. General Paine is confident that the Jubilee is superior to the Vigilant on every point, and Mr. Iselin holds that the Vigilant is superior to the Jubilee.

IN CONGRESS.

Both Houses Adjourn After Short Sessions, the Senate Till Monday.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Immediately after the reading of yesterday's journal, Mr. Gorman moved that when the senate adjourn today it be till Monday next. The motion was on the point of being declared agreed to when a demand for the yeas and nays came simultaneously from two republican senators, (Messrs. Lodge and Chandler).

The vote was taken by yeas and nays, and resulted: Yeas, 40, nays, 16. As soon as the result was announced a motion that the senate do now adjourn was made by Mr. Cockrell, and the yeas and nays demanded by Mr. Chandler. The vote resulted: Yeas, 39; nays, 15.

The negative vote, in both instances, were given by republican senators; and the affirmative votes by democratic senators, reinforced by the senators from the silver producing states and by Mr. Mitchell of Oregon and Mr. Peffer of Kansas.

The senate then, at 12.30, adjourned until Monday at noon.

In the house, after the reading of Tuesday's journal, Mr. Bailey of Texas moved that the house take a recess until 1 o'clock. The motion was carried by a vote of 136 to 98.

Shortly after reconvening the house adjourned until tomorrow.

A PROPOSITION FORMULATED.

To Discuss a Bill for the Repeal of Purchasing Clause.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—This evening a proposition was formulated by the anti-silver committee which it is believed will be acceptable to the free coinage committee, and it is thought that at the meeting tomorrow morning the conference will require the committee on rules to report an order to the house covering the arrangement. The proposition is that the house proceed to discuss a bill providing for the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law; that the opportunity be given to offer an amendment providing for free coinage of silver at a ratio to be agreed upon by the silver men, if that is possible, if not then votes shall be taken upon the different ratios proposed. If free coinage, at any ratio, be rejected an amendment may be offered similar to the Bland bill of 1878 limiting the purchase of bullion and amount of coinage. This failing, the vote is to be taken upon the bill as introduced or unconditional repeal. The discussion is to last two weeks, with the privilege to any member who fails to get a hearing, of printing his remarks in the Record.

The situation was greatly simplified tonight by the action of a conference held at the residence of Secretary Carlisle, at which nearly 40 gentlemen, including the leaders of the anti-silverites, were present. It was agreed to take the affirmative on every proposition. The conference lasted nearly two hours, and at its conclusion those in attendance congratulated themselves that the action taken was the best under the circumstances.

A proposition was made to the silver men tomorrow to close debate in ten days and then vote on the different propositions regarding free coinage, different ratios and unconditional repeal.

Mr. Cockran and the other anti-silver leaders expressed themselves as hopeful that this plan will be agreed to. It is probable that the bill will be introduced in the house tomorrow; at any rate, not later than Monday, after which debate will be commenced.

THE NATIONAL REGATTA.

A Big Day at Detroit—Large Increase in Spectators.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 10.—Today was the big day in the national regatta and the crowd at the island to witness the races was even larger than yesterday. All the heats rowed today were finals. Just before the opening heat the legislative committee went into session at the Detroit Boat club, to consider the charges against oarsmen Curran and Gray. The charges were preferred by M. C. Conville, a Buffalo saloon keeper. Curran and Gray were called before the committee to state their side of the case. It is alleged Conville placed $100 on the pair at Hamilton. During the races one of the seats broke and Conville dropped his money. He was angry and charged that the oarsmen had received $50 from the committee in Buffalo for rowing in the Buffalo regatta. The committee decided to let the pair race under protest, and so Conville's charges will be investigated further.

South Coventry's New Postmaster.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., Aug. 10.—Geo. L. Phillips, deputy sheriff of Tolland county, received last night the appointment to the office of postmaster of South Coventry. Mr. Phillips is a prominent democrat, is a druggist and was assistant postmaster eleven years prior to the Harrison administration.

LETTER FROM NORTHFIELD.

Moody's First Church Record—His Experience in Chicago—Eastern Connecticut People Present.

[Special Correspondence of THE BULLETIN.]

MY DEAR EDITOR: There is something about Northfield that is out of common. I think this is my fifth visit and yet the charm of the scenery never was greater. The old here is always new. Your first impression is evermore repeated. How manysoever times you have seen it, the enchantment of the sight is the same. And this is the experience of all.

One thing, in some measure accounts for this. You see in the wills and well kept grounds; in the convenient and durable and grand buildings that bastion the central hall; in the facilities for promoting growth in mind and heart and soul, that schoolroom and library and church presents, a man who is back of and in it all.

The world knows his story. In this extract from the records of a church in Boston made many years ago, his history begins:—

"No. 1,079. Dwight L. Moody, Boards at 43 Court street. Has been baptized. First awakened on the 16th of May. Became anxious about himself. Saw himself a sinner. Sin seems hateful; holiness desirable. Thinks he has repented. Has proposed to give up sin. Feels dependent on Christ for forgiveness and help. Loves the scriptures. Desires to be useful. Religiously educated. From Northfield, this state. Is not ashamed to be known as a Christian. Eighteen years old."

This is the substance of what he said to the committee of the church to which he applied for membership, and what has followed could hardly have been unexpected. He "meant business" then and he has ever since. The purpose shadowed then has filled and controlled his life; and without most that is deemed by many essential to success no living man has had greater. He has had opposition, but from the one path neither fame or sneer has turned him the breadth of a hair. The painful thing is that we have not thousands of Moody instead of one.

Tuesday was missionary day, and the vast audience through three long sessions were held and helped by men who carried the scars of conflict with idolatry on many a well-fought field. Among them were Dr. Atterbury of China, Dr. Thomas L. Gulick of the Sandwich Islands, Dr. David Downer of India, Dr. Josiah Tyler of Zululand, Dr. Reynolds of Turkey, Rev. C. A. Nicholas of Birmah, Dr. Post, thirty years in Beyroot, and Dr. Malbee, who has recently returned from his visit to many of the missionary stations of the world. One can hardly conceive of the amount of information as well as inspiration [illegible] into these hours.

This morning Mr. Moody made his first appearance, arriving from Chicago last night. Stone hall was well filled when he entered and his reception was most enthusiastic. He had charge of the morning meeting, most of which at the solicitation of the audience was given to the story of the work in Chicago, through which, as he said, an average of 17,000 heard the gospel every week day and 40,000 every Sunday.

One circumstance is worthy of the widest record. One day last week he found that the money required to continue his work in the city was almost gone and that the sources from which he expected the replenishment of his treasury had failed and he thought he would call his co-workers together to consult about the grave matter. He invited them to dinner without telling them the object of the invitation. He said his own heart was greatly burdened. He could not eat himself and was waiting for the right time to tell them the facts and to look with them upon the probable suspension of the work, when a telegram was handed him telling of the $7,000 that morning raised in Northfield. Prayer was answered, the burdened lifted and the whole dinner party united in thanksgiving to God.

The attendance is as large as ever. Stone Hall, which will hold from 1,200 to 1,500, is at most services packed. A large number are from eastern Connecticut. Among them are Dr. and Mrs. S. H. Howe and daughters, Hon. J. N. Harris and wife of New London, Capt. Charles T. Potter, Rev. E. F. Allen of Griswold, Mrs. H. T. Arnold and Misses Sarah and Mary Frances of Plainfield, Rev. D. Denison of Pomfret, Miss Nellie Haskell of Norwich, Rev. C. A. Dinsmore and wife of Willimantic, Mrs. Dr. Palmer of Norwich, Mr. John Rockwell, Mr. and Miss Aiken and perhaps others. The interest is the same as ever and the expectation of good will be more than realized.

H. L. READE.

L. A. W. AT CHICAGO.

Records Lowered—Sanger Leaves for His Home, Disabled.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—At the big L. A. W. meet today in the mile tandem competition, Crooks and Bernberger of Buffalo lowered the record from 2.25 to 2.20 2-5. They now hold the national championship at that style and distance.

Zimmerman did easy work today and is preparing for the international events of tomorrow and next day. He qualified in the trials for the mile open today, but did not start for the final. It was very easy for him to win the mile national championship in 2.20 3-5. Later he won the quarter mile open.

John S. Johnson was frightened out and did not compete in the trial, while Tyler qualified but did not appear for the final. In the final of the mile open Johnson was trailing behind, when Bliss rushed by them all unexpectedly and the former was in a bad pocket. Bliss himself was beaten by Tyler and Taylor, but Johnson could not get through in time. Boston's crack, Gary, was in front in a final for the first time during the meet and is now the two-mile national champion, having won in 5.07.

Swendeman, the Helena wheelman, won the handicap at two miles from a large field. He had a concession of 200 yards and was not overtaken. Crooks of Buffalo forced J. P. Clark of Boston to run his half mile in 1.14¼ in order to win the 1.20 class race. The sport was not of as high a class as on the two days preceding.

Walter Sanger will not ride again during the meet. He has not sufficiently recovered from his fall on Monday and left for his home in Milwaukee this evening. Tomorrow and Saturday some interesting races will take place.

Men of Co. I, Fourth Regiment, Sent to Jail for Drunkenness.

WINSTED, Aug. 10.—Considerable excitement was caused here last night by the arrest of Charles M. Parsons, captain of Company I, Fourth regiment, and Privates Hugh Shepard and Albert Johnson of the same company, for intoxication. The men were in Shepard's house drinking, and became involved in a quarrel, during which Shepard's face was badly cut. All of them were locked up and today arraigned before Justice Hurlburt. He sentenced Parsons and Johnson to thirty days in jail each. Shepard was fined $6 and costs. Parsons and Johnson appealed and were released on bonds of $300 each. Charges will be brought against them by the military authorities.

MIDDLEFIELD EXCITED.

Burial of Veteran Blakeslee in a Pauper's Grave.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 10.—The town of Middlefield is considerably wrought up over the circumstances of the burial of a veteran of the late war, Blakeslee by name. Up to the time of his death Blakeslee was in receipt of a pension of $12 per month, and lived comfortably at the home of Charles Crane, where he boarded.

When he died about three weeks ago Mr. Crane made arrangements for the funeral, and the soldier was buried in pauper ground in the cemetery in the village. Mr. Crane recently sent in a bill to the selectmen to cover the expenses of the funeral, but they have refused to pay it on the ground that they were not notified of the death and had nothing to do with the arrangements for burial. Had they been notified it would have been possible to obtain from the state treasury $35, which is allowed for the burial of every veteran. The townspeople are indignant that a veteran under such circumstances should have been buried in pauper ground.

Danbury National Banks to Issue Currency in Shape of Certified Checks.

DANBURY, Conn., Aug. 10.—Owing to the scarcity of currency the Danbury national banks are preparing to issue local currency in the shape of certified checks. They will be accepted at the banks for deposit only and will be payable at New York national banks, through the New York clearing house. The local banks will commence to issue this medium on Saturday, when they will give manufacturers and other of their customers half currency and the rest in certified checks. The checks, which will be issued in denominations of $1, $2 and $5, will be given to employes for wages, and it is estimated that $30,000 will be given out in this local currency Saturday. Merchants have agreed to receive the checks the same as money, and it is expected that the plan will be effectual in tiding over one of the tightest conditions that ever existed in the local money market.

Enlisted in the Regular Army and Soon After Deserts.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 10.—The present business depression, throwing a great many men out of work, has induced the United States army authorities to establish a recruiting station in this city, under charge of First Lieutenant G. F. G. Havison, from Fort Adams, R. I. A few recruits have been enlisted and yesterday Michael Brewer, a blacksmith who works for the Pope Manufacturing company, was enlisted. A few hours later he repented and did not report to be sent to Fort Adams. A regular army detail is now looking for Brewer to arrest him for desertion.

Forty-six Cents Per Day for Rations.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 10.—Commissary General Jamieson has notified the members of the C. N. G. that $2.75 per week, or 46 cents per day—one-half the contract cost to the state—will be deducted from their pay for rations at Camp [illegible], August 21-26. Officers may mess with the men at full rates. Sergeant J. P. Condit, Battery H, First United States artillery, has been detailed from Fort Columbus, New York harbor, to instruct the Connecticut troops in heavy artillery drill at the encampment.

Death of a Prominent New Haven Man.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 10.—James J. Coogan, assistant superintendent of the local almshouse for twelve years, died at 6 o'clock this morning.

The funeral will be held Saturday at 1 p. m., conducted by the A. O. H. society, to which Mr. Coogan belonged.

Money Lenders Buying Up Bank Books.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 10.—A number of local money lenders are buying up bank books for 75 or 80 per cent., of their face value for cash and doing considerable business in that way. The rule put into effect by the local banks preventing the drawing of any deposit on less than ninety days' notice makes it impossible for many people to draw cash as they need it and the buyers are taking advantage of their extremity.

BREAK IN SILVER FORCES REPORTED

Western Silver Producers Advocating a Compromise Measure

ON A RATIO OF 20 TO 1.

Populists Say It is an Abandonment of Original Plan.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—George F. Washburn, chairman of the western division of the national committee of the people's party, stated tonight that a break in the silver forces had occurred.

The cause of the trouble is that some of the silver producers of the west are advocating a compromise measure on a ratio of 20 to 1, which the populists claim is an abandonment of the original plan for selfish ends.

Mr. Washburn said: Our fight is for free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold on a ratio of 16 to 1, because it is the money of the contract on which our bonds are issued. Twenty to 1 would hold the silver producers alone. A ratio of 20 to 1 would increase the debts of our country fully one-fourth. At a conference today, the populists decided to stand for 16 to 1 to the end.

Runs on Nashville Banks.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 10.—The suspension of the First National bank last evening was followed today by the suspension of payment by the American National bank, one of the largest and strongest in the city. The bank has a capital stock of $1,000,000 and a surplus fund of $110,000. When the bank opened for business at the usual hour there were many depositors about its doors and soon a run was made. The crowd was very orderly and was paid as rapidly as possible. Meanwhile a run began on the Fourth National bank, which has a capital stock of $1,000,000 and a surplus fund of $300,000.

NORWICH AND VICINITY.

Peach Yellows at Work.

The "yellows" have played havoc with the orchard of the Connecticut Valley Orchard company at Deep River this season. More than 4 800 peach trees have been cut down and burned at that place within the last month. Some of the trees had as many as seven bushels of fruit on them. The company calculate that the loss to them from that cause alone will be at least $13,000. The crop, however, will be very large, notwithstanding; in fact a much larger yield is looked for than in any previous year.

Patent for a Novel Bicycle.

Local bicyclists will be interested in the description of an innovation in the wheel line, invented by G. P. Blevin of Hartford, who is summering in Saybrook, who has just received the patent papers. It is a bicycle of ordinary appearance, but the motive power is furnished by compressed air contained in two small cylinders, giving a pressure of 300 pounds to the square inch.

With one filling a distance of ten miles can be covered, and by the use of a pump the cylinders can be quickly refilled, or when going down hill, by opening a valve, they fill themselves. A company with $300,000 capital is being formed to put the new wheel on the market. They will retail at $300.

More Like Ocean Liners.

It is noticeable that several of the newest of the giant steamboats built for the Long Island sound service have abandoned the time-honored side wheels for twin propellers. It looks as if the older methods of propulsion were doomed, at least for the larger type of vessels navigating exposed waters. The change works a decided improvement in the appearance of the steamers which have adopted it, and it must increase their seagoing abilities. There is no very great difference in external aspect between such a craft as the City of Lowell, now building at Bath, and the modern ocean liner.—[Boston Journal.

AUGUST METEORS.

Heavenly Pyrotechnics Which Repay Star Gazers These Nights.

The earth is now passing through the August meteor zone.

The August meteors, according to astronomical authority, belong to a gigantic meteor zone whose perihelion point is within the earth's orbit, and whose aphelion is far beyond the orbit of Neptune. This meteor stream is in some mysterious way connected with the comet of 1862. The meteors which constitute this stream seem to be quite uniformly distributed throughout the orbit, and about the 9th and 10th of every August there is a shower continuing for two or three nights. The luminous appearance is caused by the meteoric bodies impinging upon our atmosphere with great velocity and becoming vaporized.

Saturday is to be devoted to a consideration of Sunday school work at the Willimantic camp ground. The exercises will be in charge of the Connecticut Sunday School association. There will be three sessions, at 10 30 a. m., at 2 and 7 30 p. m. Addresses will be made by Rev. J. B Robinson of Andover, C B. Foote of North Haven, Mrs. E L. Ely of Windham, Rev. J. H. Taber of South Manchester, Rev O A. Scott of Willimantic, H. P Topliff of South Coventry and W. H. Hall of West Hartford. Rev. W C Newell of Moodus and Rev. W. I. Ward of Niantic, are also expected to participate in the exercises. In the evening there will be an illustrated presentation of Connecticut Sunday school work. About fifty stereopticon views will be shown by Rev. E Atwood, chaplain of the state prison at Wethersfield, and explained by State Secretary Hall.

APPALLING DISASTERS.

Horace Johnson Around Once with Dire Prognostications.

Horace Johnson, the Middle Haddam weather prophet, has vouchsafed two predictions, which, if true, will bring consternation to a large portion of this continent. He says that we shall pass into a highly charged electrical atmosphere and also into a tornado belt. Be prepared for appalling disasters. Another disturbance, due to the peculiar distribution of the planets, will be experienced from the 5th to the 18th of September. The storm will commence at Galveston and come north, accompanied by a tidal wave.

The cities of New York and Boston may expected to be submerged along their water fronts. There may be a shaking of buildings in Chicago. Mr. Johnson is not prepared to say at what point the storm will be the most severe, but he is positive of disaster and destruction.

He would like to utilize government aid in establishing stations at a distance of from 300 to 500 miles apart to mark the progress of the storm and give warnings of its advance.

MAY ENTAIL SUFFERING.

Undertakers Find Cause for Dissatisfaction in the Amended Laws.

The undertakers about the state express some dissatisfaction at the following extracts from the amended law of the January session of the general assembly of 1893:

"Every person having in charge and preparing for burial the body of any deceased person who shall have died from cholera, yellow fever, diphtheria, membraneous croup, typhus fever, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, measles, leprosy, small pox, or other pestilential disease, shall, where the same has not already been done, disinfect said body in accordance with the method which may be, from time to time, prescribed by the state board of health, and inclose it in an airtight coffin or case, hermetically sealed, and shall give to said registrar a certificate signed and sworn to by him, stating that said body has been disinfected and inclosed as herein provided."

At a meeting of the state board of health, held July 5, it was voted that the body of any person who died of one of the diseases mentioned in the amendment to section 104 of the general statutes, shall be prepared for burial by the person having it in charge, by wrapping it in several thicknesses of cloth, wrung out of a solution made by dissolving 60 grains of corrosive sublimate and two tablespoonfuls of salt in one gallon of hot water, or out of a solution made by dissolving six ounces of carbolic acid (not the commercial, colored, impure acid), in a gallon of hot water.

In addition to this the undertaker is required to affirm by oath that he has performed the duties required by law and by the health board.

Many children of poor people die of diphtheria, membraneous croup, scarlet fever and measles. The cost of hermetically sealing a casket and disinfecting a body is no trifling sum, and the law will therefore entail suffering on the poor.

CALLED TO HARTFORD.

Danielsonville Loses a Valued Citizen and Clergyman.

The Rev. Cornelius G. Bristol, who will assume his duties as rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd of Hartford on September 17, is the second clergyman called to that city from St. Alban's church of Danielsonville. The Rev. Mr. Bristol's predecessor at St. Alban's was the Rev. George R. Warner, now rector of St. Thomas church. The Rev. Mr. Warner's connection with the Danielsonville church ended May 12, 1889.

The Rev. Mr. Bristol is secretary and treasurer of the Windham County Sunday School union and holds the same positions in the Yale Alumni Association of Eastern Connecticut. He is a contributor to several religious papers, and for two years conducted The St. Alban's Record. As a citizen of Danielsonville he was universally popular and took a commendable interest in the welfare of the town. Last year he delivered the Memorial day address there.

Mr. Bristol was married on January 28, 1891, at Plainfield, N. J., to Miss Caroline E. Lowrie, the eldest daughter of Dr. H. H. Lowrie. At the ceremony eight clergymen, classmates of Mr. Bristol, were ushers. The couple have one son. Last summer Mr. Bristol made a trip to England and the continent, visiting six countries. He is a member of the Connecticut Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, the Masons and the Royal Arcanum.

The Rev. Mr. Bristol took charge of St. Alban's church in May, 1889, and began active work in the following August. In April, 1890, he began the work of establishing a new church fund, and by July, 1891, the fund reached $10,000. The cost of the structure was something over $10 000. Mr. Bristol opened and preached the first sermon in the new church on Sunday, April 17, 1892, Easter day.

Bible Conference at Willimantic.

A three days' meeting in the interest of bible study opened on Tuesday evening at Willimantic camp ground. Rev. J. H. Allen of this city in a graceful speech stated the object of the conference, and introduced as the speaker of the evening the Rev. W. R. Newhall, principal of Wilbraham academy. The subject of the lecture was "The Bible," and in the judgment of the 300 listeners it was one of the finest addresses ever heard at the camp.

On Wednesday morning, Aug. 9, "The Book of Acts" was the subject of the Rev. J. H. Allen's address at the opening hour of the conference. This was followed, after a recess of half an hour, by "The Reign of Ahab," a lecture by Dr. Harris of Stafford Springs. This hour would have been relished, aside from its contribution to Bible knowledge, for its dramatic and oratoric effects.

The afternoon was given to a symposium on "How I Study the Bible," by Revs. T. J. Everett, L. S. Codding and O. W. Scott, and a scholarly paper by L. W. Bacon, D. D., on "The Spiritual Value of Historical Details in Scripture."

TELEPHONE TALK.

What the Southern New England Company is Doing Hereabouts.

The Southern New England Telephone company is somewhat hampered just now be two odd facts, the resignation of girl operators and the shut down of some iron shops and wire mills.

"Well, well," said General Superintendent Ellis B. Baker to a New Haven reporter, "we have lost seven girls in the local office within a very short time on account of marriage, sickness and other causes, but the chief one has been marriage. Fine looking girls. Good telephone operators. The seven we have just lost were all first class in the service. Their places have been filled with recruits, who, of course, are not up to the standard of their experienced predecessors.

"The other cause by which we are hampered is the shutting down of the shops that make iron braces, copper wire and crossarms. We get our wire from New Jersey, our crossarms from western New York and the iron braces from Pittsburg.

"We have only 5,000 pairs of these braces and we need 10 000 more, but the Pittsburg shop has shut down for six weeks. We order our copper wire in lengths of 600 miles. We have just received 600 miles, but when we can get any more is a matter of uncertainty, for the wire shops are now likely to shut down any day or run on short time.

"This relaxation of business is especially bothersome to us at this time on account of the great pressure of improvements. Besides putting metallic circuits in Norwich and New Britain we are stringing four new wires from New Haven to Middletown, three more from Essex to New London, two from Middletown to Essex, four from Willimantic to Norwich and three from Middletown to Norwich. The old wires are all retained and the new ones are additional to the usual supply lines.

"Now, as Middletown is 23 miles from New Haven, the four new wires require an aggregate length of 92 miles. Essex and New London are 18 miles apart, so the three wires between these places will be altogether 54 miles long. Middletown is 25 miles from Essex, making 50 miles from the two intermediate wires. The four wires between Willimantic and Norwich—towns 15 miles apart—will be 60 miles long. Middletown is 36 miles from Norwich, making 144 miles for the four wires we are stretching across the intervening distance. We must thus use 400 miles of wire on our trunk line alone.

"About seventy five men are doing the work. We also keep seven others employed in the construction and repair service in this city and a corps in every other city solely for such local work. All these men are daily at work and so you see that 600 miles of wire don't make a big supply. We need new supplies of wire constantly and also iron braces and wooden cross arms for new poles and new lines.

"So you can readily see that the shutting down of the wire mills and the brace shops or the shortening of their time is bound to cause us inconvenience. The demand for increased telephone facilities is steadily increasing and we must keep pace with the demand. We would like, for the sake of the workmen employed in the mills and shops, and for our own sake, to have all the mills and shops running full time."

TOWN EXPENSES.

Eighteenth Century Accounts—"Powder and Bullits an Shoes."

It is interesting to contrast the lengthy list of items of town expenses of Norwich at the present day, with the list of town debts for the year ending Dec. 30, 1718, which record has preserved as follows:

	£	s.	d.
To John Tracy for killing 4 snakes.	0	0	8
Th. Leffingwell, Jr., 5 do	0	1	0
Elisha Waterman, 57 birds	0	2	9½
John Hood, 24 do	0	1	0
Jacob Hide, 8 snakes	0	0	16
Th. Bingham, 4 snakes and drumming	1	0	0
Th. Leffingwell, Jr., one day to meet New London committee	0	5	0
Joseph Reynolds, for a plank	0	1	0
Solomon Tracy, one day on committee	0	5	0
Charges about Preston Line	0	12	10
Several persons for perambulating at 5 s. per day each.

The heaviest items were generally for perambulating and stating bounds, laying out highways, plank for bridges, and the bounty on killing birds and snakes. Exclusive of this last item the annual demands upon the treasury frequently fell below £10.

Occasionally there were expenses arising out of difficulties on account of boundaries. Sometimes, too, we find a town expenditure for military equipments and for "ammunition, with the charge of bringing it up from New London."

In 1720 the town went to the unusual expense of hiring John and Simon Tracy "to make search for Towne Armes, with their magazine of ammunition and other accoutrements for war, injoyned by law." As a result of their commission they made the following interesting report:

At Lieut. Tracy's two Guns and two pair of Snoe shoes.

At Samuel Fales one gun and at Lieut. Bushnells one Barril of Pouder and one gun and 77 pound of Led.

At Lieut. Backuses 344 pound of bullets.

At Ens. Leffingwell one Barril of Pouder.

At Deacon Simon Huntingtons one half Barril of Pouder and 81 pound of bullets and 400 flints.

At Simon Tracys one pair of Snoe shoes, and 4 pair of maugosins—we were also informed yt there was formerly Lent to Mr. John Leffingwell pr Lieut. Bushnell 71 pound of Led which sd Leffingwell was obliged to pay in bullits ye same quantity.

All ye Led and Bullits 333 pound.

The economy and conscientiousness with which bills against the town were made out astonish one in these days of "rings" and "boodle."

In 1723 Benajah Bushnell went as town agent to the legislature respecting the dispute concerning town boundaries. He was gone twelve days and charged the town £3 10s.

The following is a sample of the bills sent in in those days:

"Dec. 16 day 1745. The town is Dr. to me Jacob Hide for 208 feet of 3 inch plank improved to make and mend bridges by order of the surveyor of highways. The price of said 208 feet of plank I think must be about 20s. more or less as the town thinks fit."

The sequel also appears in the records in the single line:

"Voted, that the selectmen pay Jacob Hide what is just."

Parents of three children in Ware county, Ga., have not as yet named their offspring, as they intend allowing them to make their own selection when they become old enough to choose.

PLAN OF CAMPAIGN

Sought by the Democratic Caucus Committee.

ABSOLUTE CONTROL IS DESIRED.

Republican Intervention Not Relished—Rules Under Discussion.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Both house and senate will probably adjourn at the close of today's session until Monday for a breathing spell, and to make some further efforts to determine "where they are at" by caucusing and private consultation.

The understanding was late last night that Mr. Bland would be ready to introduce in the house today his silver bill, and that the speaker had agreed to recognize him for that purpose. Mr. Bland's intended bill, it is said, puts first the free coinage of silver at a ratio which is left blank, to be determined later, and provides in the second section for the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act. It has not developed thus far whether Mr. Bland will carry out this arrangement. Everything is so complicated in the ranks of the silver men that prearranged plans are Liable to Be Upset at the Last Moment.

The committee appointed by the chairman of the house silver caucus yesterday, arranged to meet this morning in the judiciary committee room to carry out their instructions and frame a bill and outline a plan of campaign. Practically the bill was defined in advance by the caucus resolution, saving the ratio, and it is this detail that must receive attention. There being no rules in the house at present, the silver men intend to get their bill in as early as possible, so as to secure whatever advantage may follow from being first on the list of measures before the house.

The length and character of the proceedings in the senate today will depend largely upon the action of the Democratic caucus committee, which is trying to formulate a plan to insure the control of the business by the majority

Free From Republican Intervention.

The probabilities at present are that the committee will be unable to complete its work this morning, and will try to secure an early adjournment, or else interpose some innocuous subject, like the northwestern election cases, between Mr. Hale's motion and themselves.

The president's desk is piled up nearly a foot high with nominations to be sent into the senate for offices to which the president made appointments during recess. Each nomination is laid before the senate on a separate sheet, so that, in the one matter of presidential postmasters alone, the 150 or 200 appointments that have been made will make a formidable bundle. And the postmasters form only a small part of the executive patronage. There are all the diplomatic and consular changes made since the close of the extra session of the senate, which have also to be acted upon in executive session.

Crisp and Carlisle Confer.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Speaker Crisp and Secretary Carlisle were in close consultation at the treasury department this morning on the rules to be adopted for the government of the house of representatives. EARLY VERMONT FRUIT.

Quantity Is Fair, But Quality Is Far Below the Average.

RUTLAND, Vt., Aug. 10.—Early Vermont fruit—apples, pears and plums—is now in the market, and the reports are that while the quantity is fair the quality is far below the average. Late frosts, followed by cold winds, especially along this side of the Green mountains, injured the apples much, causing many to grow imperfectly or fall from the trees when partially grown. Then what is known as the "plum blight" has injured the plums a good deal, particularly the late plums, which are shriveled or have large "blight spots," which make them valueless in the market. The crop of early pears is fair, but the yield of many orchards has been seriously cut down by frosts and the drouth, which prevailed several weeks.

The lake towns of Addison and Chittenden counties have many large apple orchards, the clay soil being especially suitable to fruit culture, and the crop is a large item with the average farmer there. In this section, particularly in Ferrisburgh, the apple and pear crop is good, but on the east side of the two counties, under the mountains, the apple crop is largely a failure, and the entire crop of a good many orchards will be made into cider or fed to stock. This section will depend on the lake shore towns for its winter supply of food apples, pears and plums, and this will make the fruit trade this fall largely a home trade.

In Rutland and Bennington counties the pear crop is just fair, while the apples and pears are small and unfit for city markets. An occasional orchard, protected from blasting winds, will yield a good crop, but the crop as a whole is unusually poor.

The fruit trade in this city is largely retail, and dealers have little trouble in getting a supply, but the usual large foreign demand on Vermont, especially for winter apples, cannot be met.

Hoskins, Vice Admiral Sir Frederick Richards, Rear Admiral John A. Fisher, Rear Admiral Lord Walter Talbot Kerr, all of whom are lords commissioners of the admiralty; Marquis of Ripon, secretary of state for the colonies; Earl of Northbrook, formerly first lord of the admiralty and subsequently governor general of India; Lord George Hamilton, also a former first lord of the admiralty; Lord Houghton, viceroy of Ireland; Sir George Otto Trevelyan, an expert lord of the admiralty; Sir Reginald Earle Welby, Lieutenant General Sir Redvers Henry Buller, Admiral Sir John Edmund Commerell, Admiral Colcomb, Admiral Bridge, Captain Richard H. Hammond and Hon. Thomas A. Brassey, formerly a civil lord of the admiralty.

After the dinner Lady Spencer held a reception in honor of Admiral Erben. Two hundred and fifty guests attended.

SMALL SILVER SCARCE.

Italy to Issue Bronze Coin to Supply the Deficiency.

ROME, Aug. 10.—There is a great scarcity of small silver in Italy, owing to the rise in the rate of exchange. The continual illegal exportation of silver to France and Switzerland has induced the firm of Gavazzi in Milan to coin tokens which are generally adopted. Other merchants use lira notes and postage stamps.

With a view of remedying this evil, Sig. Gavazzi, minister of finance, has ordered the issue of bronze coins to the amount of $2,000,000, and of one-lira notes to the amount of $6,000,000.

This appears to be the only remedy, as the Latin union convention does not allow the issue of such an amount of small silver.

Cholera Infantum's Dread Record.

A Serious Time for the Little Babies.

Physicians Advise the Use of Pure Food.

Lack of Proper Knowledge Causes Suffering.

How the Health of Children May be Preserved.

Mothers of Norwich read what's here.

There is an epidemic of indigestion and cholera infantum in this and other states.

Health boards everywhere are reporting a startling fatality from cholera infantum.

Physicians say that in nearly every case the child is poorly fed and nourished, and hence the disease.

"It is absolutely certain," says a physician in one of the medical journals, speaking of the alarming summer mortality among his patients, "that the cause of this high death rate among infants is indigestion."

At the beginning of summer, the best physicians gave warning that pure food must be used for babies. That this warning did not reach every city and town in the state is evident from the high infantile death rate. But in those places where the newspapers published the discussions that were going on, large quantities of lactated food were sold and this best of diets for children was used. The result is, statistics show that fewer deaths have occurred in those towns and cities where the larger amount of lactated food was used.

Comparisons of this sort are absolutely convincing.

August is a fatal month for the little ones, and unless lactated food is used, the local physicians say that the dreadful mortality and increasing amount of sickness among children will continue.

The one safe plan is to feed infants on lactated food.

Trembling stars and golden gloom,
Larger heavens and sweeter shining—
Which is dearer, dusk or day?

Where the glory dyed the dark,
Lost in light the ruby spark,
Violet gleam and saffron splendor,
Melt and mingle into one,
When the long June day is done.
All the depths throb close and tender—
Is it day, or is it dark?

Level the long June day had life,
Silver showers and sunny strife—
Now its rosy wraith fades o'er us!
Eld's vast twilight fills our eyes,
Yet what freedom of the skies
Parts the star sown way before us—
Is it death, or is it life?
—Harriet P. Spofford in Harper's Bazar.

TALE OF CRIME.

M. Théodore, chef de surete, sat in his cabinet deeply perplexed, his two elbows on his desk, his head on his hands. He was musing.

"And was it going to last, this, which had been going on for so long awhile? And these assassins, were they going to end by beating him? Were they going to compel him by adverse public opinion to send in his resignation?

"Parbleu! It looked so, and as if they did it on purpose, passing the word from one to another to force him to get out of their way. Eight assassinations, one after another! Crimes of the worst caliber, with startling details, which peopled alike with horrifying visions the sleep of the bureaucrat and the concierge. And not an assassin, for all their skillful work, had they been able to lay their hands upon. They had fled, every man of them. They had disappeared, vanished—piff, like a puff of air. Celerity, dispatch, their motto, and to go without leaving an address behind them! Frankly, it had begun to pass the bounds of all reason.

"And now to top off these eight other crimes there was still another, a ninth one—a murder like the others, accomplished the evening before under similar conditions."

The chef de surete pulled himself together, threw back his head like a war horse sniffing battle, and—the door opened.

It was his secretary who presented himself, bearing a card in his fingers.

"A gentleman, monsieur, who insists upon seeing you. He declares," and the secretary smiled a little at the absurdity of the idea—"he declares himself in a position to furnish you with definite particulars regarding the crime of yesterday."

"Ah, the crime of yesterday!" The chief turned quickly. "Then bid him enter," said he, and while the secretary regained the anteroom to do his bidding M. Theodore cast his eye upon the card before him.

"Frederick Bouscal," he read in a half voice. "Bouscal, Bouscal. It seems to me that I know that name—that I've heard it somewhere."

He scrawled a line upon a scrap of paper and handed it to the secretary, who returned it, at the moment ushering in the visitor who had asked to see him, dismissed him with a word and was ready for the matter in hand.

M. Theodore raised his eyes. Before him was a man simply but neatly clothed, and with a frank and honest countenance, though veiled as by a cloud with sadness.

"You have particulars to give me, have you not?" questioned the chef de surete. "Particulars of the crime of yesterday?"

"I hope so, monsieur," simply responded the visitor.

"Ah, hope so! You are not sure, then?"

"It rests with you, M. le Chef, whether I am or not. All depends, in fact, upon an operation, the means of which you alone are able to furnish me."

"Explain, if you please."

"Certainly, and at once, though doubtless you have heard it spoken of, M. le Chef—a certain scientific procedure which permits, under certain conditions better even than description can do it, a reproduction of the portrait of an assassin. Briefly, behold my meaning. You know, of course," he continued, "that in the phenomenon called vision the object which we see throws, or forms, upon a screen in the eyeball itself—in plain words, upon the retina of the eye—an image which remains there until displayed by another. It has been proved also that this image continues even after death."

The door of the cabinet opened anew, and the secretary of M. Theodore re-entered, holding in his hand a roll of papers, which he laid before his chief, then turned and was gone again as quickly as he had come. M. Theodore lifted it up and ran his eye over the contents.

"You are named Frederick Bouscal, are you not, monsieur?" he demanded presently, addressing his visitor.

"Yes, M. le Chef, Frederick Bouscal"——

"Your age?"

"Fifty-eight years, M. le Chef."

"Hum-m-m!" M. Theodore rapidly twirled the sheets beside him. "Twenty-seven years," he murmured, as if thinking aloud. "So it was you then who was imprisoned two years ago and condemned for contumacy and the theft of 1,000 florins?"

A sudden flush empurpled the countenance of the visitor.

"No, monsieur," he responded, with an effort, in a dull voice. "No, it was not I—it was—my son!"

"An employee of the Credit Agricole, was he not? And—you are ignorant of what has become of him."

"Absolutely. It is 15 months that his mother and I have been without news of him."

"Pardon me, monsieur," said the chef de surete. "I have reopened a painful wound, but I listen to you—you were saying"——

The man passed his hand across his brow and eyes to clear his vision, then resumed:

"I was saying, M. le Chef, that in the case which occupies us now the reproduction of the assassin's portrait should be entirely possible. It is probable, if not sure, that the eye of the corpse now lying upon the slab of the morgue contains the exact reproduction of the features of the one you seek. With your permission I will draw it from them."

"Draw it, but how?"

"By photography—as is my business, M. le Chef. And this matter, this subject I speak of, I have studied it long and almost with passion, for I hold it to be, in case of success, one of the most useful and beautiful applications of modern science. I know it can be done. I have myself experimented, and in one instance have reproduced the lineaments of the physician who had leaned above the bed of the dying."

The man spoke with animation, and whilst speaking his voice vibrated, his eyes burned, his whole countenance was illuminated, irradiated with the light of a legitimate pride.

"Then so be it, monsieur," agreed the chef de surete. "Take your instruments to the morgue tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. I will see that the clerk is instructed. Later on I shall myself be there. I have the honor, monsieur, to wish you good morning."

In the obscure nook at the morgue where he had inclosed himself, in accordance with the arrangements made at the office of the surete, Frederick Bouscal, his body bent, his face drawn, watched anxiously the result of his last washing. The plate was there before him in its bath of quicksilver, into which he had dropped it awhile ago with such fear and infinite precaution.

Sensitized? Vitalized? At least it should be, and if the conditions of the crime were such as he supposed them, and the victim before dying had really seen her murderer's face, the portrait of the assassin would be there under that bed of gelatin en traine to melt away.

His throat closed as by a grip of iron, the operator held himself immovable, hearing only, with painful distinctness, the gurgle of the water as it dripped upon the faces of the dead in the adjoining chamber, the plunge of his blood as it throbbed and hammered through the arteries of his heart.

And at last the moment came—the moment that was to reveal to him all or nothing. He rose—that poor, trembling photographer rose, I say, took it carefully by its dripping edges, that plate upon which his fate was hanging, half closed his eyes, held it to the single ray of light that filtered through the yellow pane, to stagger back with a groan of anguish, to let it crash into a thousand pieces. His son! Good heavens! The face of the murderer, the face of the son!

Five minutes later when Frederick Bouscal, the photographer, came from his nook, and the chief de surete, awaiting him with impatience, hurried to meet him, he saw immediately by the pallor of his face, by his somber eyes that he had nothing good to announce to him.

"Well," said he, "nothing?"

"No," responded Bouscal, "nothing."

"Allons! no matter. Try it a second time. Do it again."

"Impossible! The transparency of the cornea is destroyed. I wished to wash it, and I burned it through mistake in the vials. I salute you, M. le Chef!" And Frederick Bouscal turned away.

The next morning the commissaire of the quarter of Ternes, forwarding to the prefecture his regular report, headed it with the following item:

"Today at 10 o'clock a summons to 108 Rue Laugiers. A call from the concierge, suspicious of charcoal fumes from the room of the Bouscals, man and wife, his locataires. The door by my order was forced. Too late—they were dead, both of them, side by side upon the bed, a brazier of lighted charcoal plainly indicating the manner of their death. A double suicide—poverty the cause."—Tit-Bit Prize Story From the French.

The People Who Enjoy Fun.

People so fond of humor that the ridiculous is of more importance to them than their welfare will be highly gratified by the proposition of the railroad lines east and west to run excursions to the World's fair at one fare for the round trip. The joke is as rich in quality as it is large in quantity. Thirty hours is the length of time mentioned as making the trip from New York to Chicago. No stop over checks will be allowed. No sleeping cars will be provided, no parlor cars, no chair cars. The jolly excursionist, it is supposed, will sit bolt upright in the redolent atmosphere which hangs about the day coach as the result of a long contact with tobacco, cold lunches, decayed fruit and perspiration, and for 30 hours, with no opportunity to stop off for sickness, will watch the changing landscape with open and bloodshot eyes. When he arrives at the World's fair, he will be permitted to stay one week if he is alive.

No provision is made for extending the time to persons for whom the joys of the excursion have been too poignant and who may be required to spend two or three weeks in the hospitals recovering from the delirium of insomnia or the typhoid fever which they have picked up in the holiday coach.—Chicago Herald.

The Motion of a Swimming Fish.

One of the most recent applications of chrono-photography—by which is meant photography applied by means of a series of short and rapid exposures to the representation of moving objects in successive positions—has been devised in France for the study of the swimming motions of fish. A rayfish was chosen as the subject of investigation, and the successive photographs were taken at intervals of one-tenth of a second. They show completely the movement of the fins and present a similarity to the photographs that have been obtained of the motions of the wings of a flying bird.

The swimming action begins with a lifting of the front part of the fin. This lifting motion runs rapidly backward along the fin, the front part being in the meantime depressed once more, and just before the motion ceases at the tail the movement recommences at the front end of the fin.—Youth's Companion.

On the little tideland island opposite Skamokawa, Wash., the cranes have built their nests in the big cottonwood trees, and the cries of the young birds may be heard for quite a distance.

FORECASTING STORMS

ACCURACY AND TIMELINESS IN FORECASTING WEATHER.

Remarkable Success of the United States Weather Bureau in Foretelling Sudden and Dangerous Changes in the Atmosphere in Various Sections.

The signal achievement of the government weather bureau in predicting the disastrous tornadoes in Iowa 24 hours in advance of their awful visitations brought into new prominence the remarkable accuracy with which in these days of advanced science a weather forecast can be made.

The prediction of the Iowa tornado offers a noteworthy example of the value of the government bureau and illustrates the perfection of the system it employs, but the forecast in point of accuracy is duplicated daily. It isn't every day that a tornado starts on a wild stampede, but the weather sharps are expected to keep the cities and towns of the country posted in advance in regard to the weather. The daily forecast has become an all important element in all calculations, whether of pleasure or of business, and could no more be dispensed with than the telegraph or any of the other agencies which have revolutionized affairs.

Several years ago a couple of young army lieutenants who saw tornadoes in every cloudcap kept the western farmers dodging in and out of low ground cellars until they became round shouldered and neglected their crops, but the young lieutenants' experience is now one of the amusing traditions of the office. It is told, too, possibly as a joke, that the colored janitor who had rheumatism and looked upon his left leg as a reliable gauge did the prophesying business when the lieutenants were invited to some swell function.

Things are run differently now, as the reliability of the predictions and the able administration of the bureau attest. It is doubtful, moreover, if any country on the globe has a better equipped service. This is due in some measure to the opportunities of study offered by the diverse climatic peculiarities of the United States. These peculiarities make the work of weather prophesying here a most difficult task, requiring the employment of men of wide experience and learning. It is by no means an uncommon circumstance for the weather bureau to chase half a dozen different varieties of storms over the country in a day. It may be hailing in North Dakota, a tornado may be making sad havoc in the western farming belt, a windstorm may be howling along the Atlantic coast, imperiling shipping, and four or five thunderstorms may be creating alarm in as many different sections.

With all these complications, a short, thickset man, with gray eyebrows and gray mustache, calmly looks over the maps which are made on the reports of every one of the government observers throughout the country and figures out just the kind of weather that may be expected in every state and section. This short, thickset man, with gray eyebrows and gray mustache, is the official who, on examining the maps on the night of July 5, paused for a moment, and then, to the surprise of his assistants, murmured, "This looks like a tornado."

Major Dunwoody was the officer who read the signs aright. The government observers at Sioux City, Des Moines, Keokuk and Omaha had all reported threatening atmospheric conditions, and their reports when reduced to tracings on the maps showed that the center of the atmospheric disturbances was at Cheyenne, with the winds racing from all four points of the compass toward the Wyoming capital. Major Dunwoody has had an intimate acquaintance with storms for years, and this tornado didn't fool him by pretending to rendezvous at Cheyenne. The major is an old army officer, who understands all about flank movements, and he began to figure out where the main attack might be expected.

He was sitting on a high stool in the forecasting room at the weather bureau, calculating on the tornado's probable evolution. The major read the report of the storm sentinels at Sioux City and Des Moines over again and then drew a circle, with the center at Cheyenne and the circumference toward the east, touching Davenport. The major's experience taught him that the most trouble might be expected in the southeast segment of the circle, and before 9 o'clock that night all the observers who furnished the alarming reports were instructed by wire to send out warnings to cities and towns on the respective sections, and orders were also given to employ every means to inform the country districts of the impending peril.

Hours before the storm broke with its terrible fury express trains running through the isolated communities had carried the bureau's intelligence, and those who lived far from the railroad station were warned by whistles which were blown according to an established and well understood code.

How quickly all this was accomplished illustrates the efficiency of the government system as directed by Chief Harrington. At 8 o'clock on the night of the 5th the observations were made, and an hour later Major Dunwoody, with quick judgment based on long experience, had located the storm and had sent out a forecast to the threatened community, telling of the dangers to be feared. How much greater might have been the damage to property and how much greater the loss of life but for the warnings!

The weather bureau did not announce that a tornado might be expected, as tornado predictions went out of favor with the young army lieutenants. The warning, as sent out, was to the effect that severe local thunderstorms were threatened, and the farmers knew full well what was meant. As interpreted by them it signified that a ground cellar would be a good place in which to spend July 6, 1893.—Washington Cor. New York World.

WHEN CORDAGE WENT DOWN.

"No wonder these men die early and suddenly."

The remark came from the lips of a gentleman standing by my side in the gallery of the Stock Exchange on the memorable day when Cordage dragged down men and market.

"True enough," replied his companion as he turned away with a sigh, "I wouldn't go through that strain again for a million!"

The roar of 200 voices welled up from the turbulent mass of men below. Leaning over the rail, I saw men struggling and fighting and gesticulating and shouting and wildly rushing to and fro. Flushed and white faces, arms extended toward heaven as if in despair—fists clinched in imprecation—hands clasped in entreaty. Not singly, but in scores, and in a dozen places at once. Strong men rushed upon these groups and bore down the weak, and all caught at each other's throats as if they would tear money from their vitals.

Dante must have witnessed such a scene as this when he drew his immortal picture of hell. It was as if we peered into a seething lake of fire and brimstone and witnessed the torment and heard the wail of the damned! I turned from the sight with a feeling of faintness and disgust. These were but human wolves rending each other for gold.

And I saw around me other men and women packed four deep in the great gallery. In the faces of many of these was the reflected anguish of some of those below. They clung to the rail for hours, and some had eyes bloodshot with weeping and watching and encircled with dark rings of sleepless nights. There were young men of fashion whose fortunes were involved and who stared honest work in the face as if it were disgraceful death. Tenderly nurtured women, daughters and wives and mothers, whispered excitedly in each other's ears or looked down upon the scene with drawn faces that indicated the terrible suspense.

One bejeweled woman, who had the appearance of one who had just come from some aristocratic function, sat in a chair in the otherwise empty boardroom in a state of collapse. No one paid any attention to her, and as I passed I saw her press her hot eyeballs with her bediamonded hand. And there were men here with lowering brows and revengeful looks and murder in their hearts. Some cursed the names of those who had involved them in ruin, but silent were those who were most to be pitied. These were the victims of speculation.

And many of those who thus suffered in body and mind were really uninjured by the slump in the market. But at that moment many believed this was only the beginning of the end—the forerunner of a grand panic. No man knew where it would end. When cold blooded operators on the floor lose their heads, how can it be expected that investors in the galleries could remain unconcerned? And so it came to pass that in the dread uncertainty of the hour hundreds suffered the pangs of financial ruin who eventually found that they were uninjured.—Cor. Pittsburg Dispatch.

Marriage and the Jokers.

It illustrates the degree of personal freedom that Americans enjoy that none of our comic papers has ever been enjoined from the constant publication of jokes in derogation of the married state. One of the humorous contemporaries in particular, which rarely meddles with politics and is easily the leader of the journals of its class, applies itself from January to December to illustration of its apparent belief that courtship is always mercenary and matrimony a state of uneasy bondage. The theory has been advanced that this journal kept in its pay a poor young man in love to make evil speeches about all luckier men who can afford to wed and one or two victims of matrimonial mischance to think up sharp things about marriage. It is ascertained, however, that that theory does the said contemporary injustice.

The truth is that, as happy nations have no history worth mentioning, happy marriages and smooth and felicitous courtships are comparatively barren of marketable jokes. The jokers take gloomy views of human affection before and after marriage, not because they are against the institution or are personally embittered against either sex, but because the jokes come easier that way. Any one who doubts this explanation is invited to be convinced by the simple process of taking a suitable picture from one of the humorous papers and devising new jokes to fit it. If the jokes do not come easier and better on the hypothesis of conjugal disagreement than of mere conjugal affection, this explanation is at fault.—Harper's Weekly.

Bad Manners In the Use of Words.

The laws of common courtesy hold in the use of words as well as dishes. As unconsciously as you turn the handle of the pitcher in passing it should you turn the handle of your sentence and present your thought right side up. You would not toss the book you are asked for across the floor and leave your brother to pick it up. Why toss your answer in similar hit or miss rudeness?

It is not rudeness of manner to which I refer, but the rudeness of not making your sentence at least neat. The most admirable and affectionate of persons will fill your ears with a thousand needless words that do but conceal their meaning, or make some noncommittal reply which forces you to repeat your question.

A very large part of the misunderstandings in life, with all the sin and sorrow resultant, is traceable to this same carelessness, this stupidity, these inexcusably bad manners, in the use of words.—Charlotte P. Stetson in Kate Field's Washington.

A Cheeky Customer.

"I had a unique but tantalizing experience the other day," said a clerk who works in a Kansas City hair store. "A man came into our place and asked to look at some false beards. Of course he was accommodated, and he spent over an hour going over the lot, trying them on and examining himself in a glass. He took up my time, and after he had examined everything in that line in the store he thanked me and said he was considering whether to raise a beard or not and wished to see how he would look in the different styles."—Kansas City Star.

A Connecticut Poet.

There is a movement in Connecticut to erect a monument to the memory of the poet, James Gates Percival. He was a peculiar man and had all of the poet's idiosyncrasies. On one occasion he was invited to meet a number of gentlemen in New Haven, who were in their turn notified that they were to have the pleasure of meeting the poet. He was to be, in fact, the honored guest of the evening. They were all on hand, but Percival did not put in an appearance. Allowance was made for his utter indifference to the passing of time, and up to midnight he was expected.

At last, as morning drew near, deeming it certain that the poet had forgotten the invitation, the guests went home and the host put up the bars and went to bed. At about 2 o'clock in the morning he heard some one at his front door, went down, asked the object of the call and found that it was Percival. The astonished host let the poet in, and the latter blandly said that he had inferred from what had been said that there were to be others present. The host told him that the others had all gone home. The poet expressed regret and settled himself down for a good smoke and talk, which kept up, to his host's embarrassment, till the sun rose.—Boston Transcript.

General Vallejo and Fremont.

When the destiny of the province of California hung in the balance, and England and Russia, as well as the United States, eagerly held out hands for the prize, General Vallejo unhesitatingly gave his adherence to the stars and stripes. Fremont doubted and imprisoned him, but soon set him free.

One day during that imprisonment a young American officer, doubtless a spy sent by Fremont, rode up to the family residence in Sonoma, and offering to Mrs. Vallejo an English and an American flag asked in Spanish, "Senora, which of these do you prefer?"

The lady looked at him a moment as if to read his purpose; then clasping the American flag to her bosom she kissed its folds and said: "This is the flag my husband has taught me to love. It is the one he wishes to see wave over his beloved California."

The officer smiled, and bowing gracefully to all present took his departure.

A lady who stood watching the courteous American as he rode away turned to Mrs. Vallejo and said, "No es Oso" (That is no Bear), meaning that he was not one of the Bear Flag party.—Emily B. Powell in Harper's.

DEMOCRATIC DECLARATIONS.

It is interesting to look through the democratic platform adopted in Chicago in the light of subsequent events, and compare its declarations with the conditions which confront the country today:

"Protection is a fraud!" President Cleveland looking to the republicans in congress to protect him from his party!

"McKinley Bill, the culminating atrocity!" Not a democrat in Ohio wants to run against him!

"Reciprocity a sham!" The democrats want the government to coin 60 cent dollars free and reciprocate by making them equal to gold! (If it can).

"Ten per cent. tax on state bank issues must be repealed!" Holman can't find a democrat in his district in favor of such action, and is of the opinion "the law will not be repealed!"

"We recognize in the trusts a design to enable capital to secure more than its just share of the joint product of capital and labor!" No trust everywhere—capital and labor producing nothing.

"Public office is a public trust!" A design which enables the machine politicians to secure more than their just share of the joint product of Grover and his civil-service-reform secretaries!

"We favor just and liberal pensions for all disabled union soldiers and sailors, their widows and dependents." Seven thousand pensioners ranked as imposters, crossed off the lists and challenged to prove they are not villains—their right to pensions having been proven and filed in Washington before they received their first payments!

Conclusion:—A democratic platform is something to stand on, but not to stand by!

A DEMOCRATIC DEMONSTRATION.

New York is soon to have a demonstration which it does not relish—a great parade of the unemployed. In that metropolis there are thousands of deserving working people idle and on short commons.

One able-bodied working man of sober and industrious habits, who had spent all his savings to live upon, and whose wife as well as himself had made every effort to get work without success, walked the streets Wednesday with a sign upon his back which read, "Please give me work, for I am a married man!" He asked only for work. He said when approached by a Recorder reporter "When I ask for work I get fifty cents or a dollar, but I do not want alms, I want work!" Such a man deserves to get work.

These thousands of idle men, many of whom last fall were shouting "Rah, for Grover!" and carrying banners mottoed "Protection is a fraud!" "Reciprocity is a sham!" "The laborer is worthy of his hire!" etc., will not have any of these mottoes above them now. If they carry mottoed banners they will appeal to the public eye for work, for bread, for help.

This is not the change they were promised, and they would like to have restored to them the times of 1892, when business was good and confidence in the future was firm.

It will take this country some time to rally from the bad results of the mistake made by the people last November.

KEEPING SILVER AT A PARITY WITH GOLD.

The method of the silverites for keeping silver at a parity with gold is a novel one when intrinsic value is concerned, as it proposes coinage on the ratio of 16 to 1, and then if that fails they will vote in favor of advancing ratios up to 20 to 1, when silver is at present about 28 to 1 in its relation to gold. Until there is a monetary conference between the commercial nations, and an agreement upon a ratio which is acceptable to all, it is useless to talk about keeping the two metals at a parity.

If all that is desired is to keep silver and gold of equal purchasing power in this country, if that is what the white metalists want, there is no necessity for any special legislation upon the subject, for the silver dollar of the United States, the intrinsic value of which is less than sixty cents, and twenty nickels, the intrinsic value of which is less than twenty-five cents, are, and have been, the equal or equivalent in purchasing power in all parts of this country of gold.

The idea that a coin must intrinsically represent its face value is new. The gold dollar is alloyed and contains about ninety cents worth of gold. Less nonsense talked about the intrinsic value of coins and more faith in and loyalty to the government will do more for the currency of the country than English methods.

That was a very pat suggestion, since the methods of the Bank of England have been so ardently advocated in this country, which advised substituting for the motto on the silver dollar, "In God we trust," "We trust in England."

This country will be doing better when it is ambitious of setting the pace for the world instead of tagging after a country for which no true American ought to have any affection.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Fly paper catches the fly and a good advertisement catches the trade!

It makes no difference how many mills shut down the summer girl must have her [illegible]

Currency was at a premium of four per cent. in New York on Wednesday, and was scarce at that!

An old campaign song used to run that "Grover is in clover." He'd rather be there now than in Washington.

The President's message was a good thing, but it wasn't heavy enough to anchor to. The banks still continue "to go democratic."

Some of the big democratic dailies are talking about "the blessings of hard times!" The workingmen do not see where the blessing comes in.

The Massachusetts republicans are trying to find out what issue the democratic party in that state intends to take up—Moral reform or Gas reform!

When the World's fair is over it is claimed the stockholders and the city of Chicago will have to charge a million and a half to "local pride and patriotism."

Cleveland's wild team is already out of hand and dashing along regardless of his guiding hand. He needs Gleason, the wild-horse-tamer, to bring them down for him.

If there are to be any combinations in this Congress the southern confederacy is in for winning a victory over the north. It is out of the last ditch and up on the ramparts.

Banker Benedict does not agree with the president that the Sherman bill is the principal cause of the present condition. He sees in it those twin trusts: Mistrust and distrust!

When Speaker Crisp gets his closure rules ready it will be time for Reed to call him a czar. His rules are said to be made of cast iron, and will break before they will bend.

Jerry Simpson's shaved chin and David Bennett Hill's bald head are among the attractions of the extraordinary session of congress. The wind cannot blow through Uncle Jerry's whiskers, but the flies play tag on David's cranium much to his annoyance and to the amusement of onlookers.

According to Washington dispatches Senator Hawley thinks "the Sherman bill is not to be repealed without a long and acrimonious debate, and after a long struggle a free coinage bill with an increased ratio may be passed as a substitute for the Sherman silver purchasing act." We hope he is mistaken.

This is Boston Post week on the pond in the public garden at Boston, and that paper has leased the fleet of swan boats there and is giving free rides to children under 12 years of age. Up to Wednesday evening nearly 7,000 cheerful juveniles had ridden free in the Post's boats. The children of Boston will have a pleasant recollection of The Post's generosity.

It only takes three or four millions of dollars to run a single session of Congress. It is worth the money if that august body acts promptly for the good of the country; but the congressmen who are united to promote selfish interests in opposition to the public good are cheating the government out of the money they draw from the treasury, and are a disgrace to the nation.

Oliver H. Perry, a veteran soldier of Company G., Forty-sixth Massachusetts regiment, aged 74 years, is among the suspended pensioners at Springfield. He is too feeble to do any hard work, and has been receiving $10 a month under the invalid pension act. He has been employed as a janitor by the republican club to increase his income, and it is believed that it is on account of this service that he was put on the suspended list. Mr. Perry's age ought to be enough to protect him. A pension law that would give a pension to every veteran soldier over sixty years of age, would not be an extravagant or unjust law. The old soldiers of Springfield are rightly indignant at the pauperization of such a worthy man.

VOICE OF THE PRESS.

At the Bottom of the Trouble.

The prospect of British free trade is at the bottom of all the trouble.—[New York Recorder.

It Will Try to Do It.

When the democratic row is fairly on the republican minority will have a chance to control congress for the good of the country.—[Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

Like Nebuchadnezzar.

Those democrats who expected to be in clover during Grover's regime will be eating hay if the present influence of the administration continues much longer.—[Grand Rapids Herald.

One Great Difficulty.

One great difficulty with the "change" which democratic victory has given the workingman is that it does not pass current with "the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker."—[New York Press.

Expected to Be Grateful.

Pensioners who have been suspended from the lists for no fault of theirs are expected to be duly grateful for the consideration of the bureau in extending the sixth-day limit for proving their claims.—[Boston Journal.

The Right Man.

"Larry" Neal, author of the famous Chicago tariff plank denouncing protective duties as unconstitutional, aspires to be Governor McKinley's antagonist. He ought to be nominated. It would draw the issue between protection and free trade so clearly in Ohio next fall that nobody could possibly mistake it.—[Boston Journal.

When Money is Scarce.

Men ask why banks have been failing, why merchants find it impossible to get the usual accommodation, and why scarcity of notes for payment of hands embarrass industries. A single fact explains the whole matter. A tenth of all the deposits in banks has been withdrawn, and much of the money has been hidden away and hoarded within about two months. Warrant for this statement is found in incomplete returns of the condition of national banks July 12. There are about 20,000,000 wage earners, who average more than $25,000,000 daily wages. If they have reserved about a third against future payments or needs, and have simply refrained from depositing that amount in banks, that alone accounts for a shrinkage of $50,000,000 each week. But, besides, many have withdrawn previous deposits [illegible]. The proportion of deposits withdrawn in each section is shown as follows:

	May 4.	July 12.	Decrease.	P.C.
Eastern—	$[illegible]	$770,[illegible]	$79,[illegible]	8.5
Southern—	121,[illegible]	108,[illegible]	13,066,417	10.8
Western—	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	11.5
Total—	$1,[illegible]	$1,136,[illegible]	$132,[illegible]	8.9

All the banking institutions of all kinds held about the beginning of the year $4,678,000,000 of deposits, against which they held in cash $360,000,000. While part of the shrinkage in deposits results from failures, it is easy to see that a sufficiently large amount has been actually taken out of the banks to account for a great scarcity of currency. It is further obvious that the people who have drawn out and hidden several hundred millions in currency have not done so because they feared the government would dishonor or debase the notes they hold. It is not the currency the people are afraid of when they hoard it. They fear that industries and business will be made so unprofitable by a change of national policy that neither producers nor merchants nor bankers will be able to meet obligations.—[New York Tribune.

Safe, Sure and Speedy.

No external remedy ever yet devised has so fully and unquestionably met these three prime conditions as successfully as ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. They are safe because they contain no deleterious drugs and are manufactured upon scientific principles of medicine. They are sure because nothing goes into them except ingredients which are exactly adapted to the purposes for which a plaster is required. They are speedy in their action because their medicinal qualities go right to their work of relieving pain and restoring the natural and healthy performance of the functions of muscles, nerves and skin. Do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

Castoria.

When baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Palpitation of the heart, nervousness, tremblings, nervous headache, cold hands and feet, pain in the back and other forms of weakness are relieved by Carter's Iron Pills, made specially for the blood, nerves and complexion.

MYSTERIES!

The Nervous System the Seat of Life and Mind. Recent Wonderful Discoveries.

No mystery has ever compared with that of human life. It has been the leading subject of professional research and study in all ages. But notwithstanding this fact it is not generally known that the seat of life is located in the upper part of the spinal cord, near the base of the brain, and so sensitive is this portion of the nervous system that even the prick of a needle will cause instant death.

Recent discoveries have demonstrated that all the organs of the body are under the control of the nerve centers, located in or near the base of the brain, and that when these are deranged the organs which they supply with nerve fluid are also deranged. When it is remembered that a serious injury to the spinal cord will cause paralysis of the body below the injured point, because the nerve force is prevented by the injury from reaching the paralyzed portion, it will be understood how the derangement of the nerve centers will cause the derangement of the various organs which they supply with nerve force.

Two-thirds of chronic diseases are due to the imperfect action of the nerve centers at the base of the brain, not from a derangement primarily originating in the organ itself. The great mistake of physicians in treating these diseases is that they treat the organ rather than the nerve centers which are the cause of the trouble.

DR. FRANKLIN MILES, the celebrated specialist, has profoundly studied this subject for over 20 years, and has made many important discoveries in connection with it, chief among them being the facts contained in the above statement, and that ordinary methods of treatment are wrong. All headache, dizziness, dullness, confusion, pressure, blues, mania, melancholy, insanity, epilepsy, St. Vitus dance, etc., are nervous diseases no matter how caused. The wonderful success of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is due to the fact that it is based on the foregoing principal.

DR. MILES' RESTORATIVE NERVINE is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by Dr. Miles' Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It contains neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

A BRITANNIA DAY.

Royal Boat Beats Navahoe Over Fifteen Minutes.

AMERICAN LAST AT THE FINISH.

Four Yachts in the Race—Satanita Second and Calluna Third.

RYDE, Eng., Aug. 10.—The 40-mile race of the Royal Victoria Yacht club today for the Ryde cup, was started at 10 o'clock in a club topsail breeze from the west.

It was a 20 mile course and repeat from the club house at Ryde to and around the Warner lightship, off the eastern end of the Isle of Wight, then westward to a mark boat off Cowes and back to Ryde.

There were four starters—the Navahoe, the Britannia, the Satanita and the Calluna, and they got away in pretty good shape, the Satanita leading by only one second over the Navahoe.

It was a Britannia day, apparently, for before the Warner lightship was reached the Prince of Wales' yacht, which managed to lose 24 seconds at the start and went to the front, the American boat following in pretty good shape.

Overhauled the Leaders

An hour after the start the Britannia was leading by fully half a mile, the Satanita being third and the Calluna a good fourth.

At the first round, 20 miles from the start, the Britannia was 6m. 42s. in the lead. The breeze was still holding good, and the Navahoe was sailing her best.

This was the time at the finish of the round: Britannia, 12 h. 22 m. 7 s.; Navahoe, 12 h. 28 m. 50 s.; Satanita, 12 h. 26 m. 55 s.; Calluna, 12 h. 26 m. 59 s. Then the Britannia began to gain very fast.

It was a bad day for the Navahoe, as the time at the finish shows: Britannia, 3 h. 21 m. 13 s.; Satanita, 3 h. 31 m. 14 s.; Calluna, 3 h. 35 m. 35 s. Navahoe, 3 h. 36 m. 29 s. The Valkyrie did not race. She is being dismasted for her voyage across the Atlantic.

JOHN BULL FRIGHTENED.

May Make Uncle Sam a Proposition on Silver Question.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The Sun says that several cablegrams were received in Wall street yesterday from London from banking houses of the highest repute to their correspondents here.

On the strength of the information conveyed and inquiries made by these London bankers, it can be stated that the English government has become alarmed at the prospects of the repeal of the Sherman silver law, and the members of the cabinet are discussing, possibly informally, the advisability of making a proposition to the United States that if it will continue the purchase of silver under the act of 1890, the Indian government will reopen its mints to the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 24 to 1.

Bankers familiar with the subject say that it was not conceivable that overtures of the character indicated would be encouraged. They also agreed that the significant suggestion of a new ratio by Great Britain, even for one of its colonies, should not be underestimated.

DISTILLERIES TO SHUT DOWN.

Cannot Meet Government Order to Pay Taxes in Currency.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 10.—The distilleries belonging to the whisky trust will be shut down as a result of the government order requiring payment of taxes in currency. W. N. Hobart, treasurer of the trust, has returned from Peoria, where he has been in consultation with President Greenhut. As the result of the conference the order to shut down will go forth.

"We can do nothing else," Mr. Hobart said, "the government will make no arrangements, and we cannot continue as long as the government demands that we should do something impossible. The only course left us is to shut down, and this we will have to do."

FRED DOUGLASS WROUGHT UP.

Colored Orator Makes an Impassioned Reply to Professor Weeks.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Fred Douglass, the colored orator, was greatly wrought up yesterday in the suffrage congress by Stephen B. Weeks, professor of Trinity college, North Carolina, who read a paper on negro suffrage in the south.

The professor said: "Negro suffrage is a failure. It must remain a failure as long as it is not an ally of the white vote. A large percentage of the southern people are of English descent. They will not submit to domination.

"The white man must rule, and he will rule. He seeks to secure this result by fair means. He has respect for law, and for that reason seeks to rule under the law. When he cannot do that he bulldozes and counts out. No man who has not lived in a negro land knows what negro domination is. It means the destruction of property, ruin and bankruptcy."

When Professor Weeks had finished, Mr. Douglass, who was on the platform, arose and made an impassioned speech. "You are not afraid of negro domination," he said, shaking his cane at the professor. "The negro never can rule this country. He would be outvoted by the 60,000,000 of whites and overwhelmed by your superior intelligence.

"There is no opposition to the negro in the south until he aspires to rise. So long as he is ignorant and lazy no one disturbs him. If he aspires to become a lawyer or a doctor he at once becomes an upstart." The speaker, in conclusion, told the professor to go back to his home and tell the people there that they are wrong. "Tell them," he said, "that honesty is the best policy. Tell them that some day might may be right."

Professor Weeks made no reply and the congress adjourned.

WAS ALL ONE WAY.

Dr. Robert Ambrose Returned to Parliament From West Mayo.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—An election has been held in West Mayo to fill the vacancy in the house of commons caused by the appointment of John Deasy (anti-Parnellite) to the stewardship of the Chiltern Hundreds.

At the last election, Mr. Deasy was returned by a majority of 2847, and the district is so strongly anti-Parnellite that, when a vacancy occurred, the Parnellites refused to nominate a candidate. The anti-Parnellites placed Dr. Robert Ambrose in nomination, and this was tantamount to election.

The sheriff, therefore, had only to comply with the formalities of the new law and declare Dr. Ambrose elected.

TRUTH CONCEALED.

All News Regarding Cholera is Suppressed.

HAS TERRIBLE HOLD ON NAPLES.

City Deserted by all Who Can Live Elsewhere.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The World contains a special cable from Paris today, which the Italian authorities refused to forward from Naples. It bears the date of Naples, Aug. 6, and says:

Deaths from cholera here have averaged 50 daily for more than a week past. It is impossible to learn the number of sick, because they hide themselves. The number of patients in the hospital is not published either. This is unfortunate, as those who recover in their houses spread the disease more effectively than those who die.

The authorities do not admit the existence of cholera. The United Kingdom of Italy, from the government at Rome to the small officials at Naples, is engaged in a Conspiracy to Conceal the Truth.

It has only become known through an Italian physician, who associates with Americans.

The dispatch handed in at the telegraph office by the World correspondent last Friday was returned to him by the minister of the interior at Rome.

No news concerning cholera is transmitted. Even a telegram mentioning it, sent by an agent of the North German Lloyd company was stopped, although he has every interest in minimizing the facts.

The great epidemic of 1884 broke out in April and was concealed until August. The government had hoped to conceal the present epidemic entirely. This, like all other outbreaks, had a small beginning, but the ominous fact is

That It Increases Steadily.

If it maintains its present rate of progress, it will be very serious by September.

Here is the history: A big feast occurred in the carmine district on July 14. The guests had drawn a lucky number in the lottery, and gorged themselves with bad fish and bad fruit. One man died Sunday night. Two days later the United States medical inspector of immigration, Dr. Young, heard the result of a bacteriological examination, which showed plainly that this man died of cholera.

At this season Naples is deserted by English and Americans, but swarms with Italian visitors who come to bathe.

The rumor of the truth got among them, and to allay all fears the authorities stated publicly

That There Was No Cholera.

On that very day, July 22, Prince de Turino died of the disease. Within 24 hours visitors had vanished almost entirely from Naples. It is now deserted by all who can live elsewhere. In the meantime several more deaths had occurred in the poor quarters.

The great warship Re-Umberto Dame came in on the 18th with 20 cases and five deaths. She was sent away to the quarantine station in Sardinia, ostensibly to carry the chief sanitary inspector of the kingdom, although the dispatch boat could have performed that service equally well. During the first week of the epidemic here there were 16 cases and 10 deaths.

WYOMING UNREPRESENTED.

Governor Osborne Decides Not to Appoint a United States Senator.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 10.—Governor Osborne has decided not to appoint any one to the senatorship, made vacant by the resignation of A. D. Beckwith, until the senate shall have decided the question whether or not a senator appointed after the failure of the state legislature to elect is entitled to a seat.

If the decision is favorable to seating the appointee, it is definitely settled that the governor will immediately name Revenue Collector A. L. New of the district of Colorado and Wyoming to fill the vacancy.

DIAMOND THIEF LOCATED.

"Kid" Burke, Who Shot Pollock, Is In Jail In Leadville.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—"Kid" Burke, the noted diamond thief, has been located in the jail in Leadville, having been arrested in Gilman, Colo., with a stick of dynamite and burglars' tools in his possession. He was traced there by the Pinkertons and identified as the man who on Nov. 4, 1892, shot and wounded W. G. Pollock, the travelling salesman for the diamond house of W. L. Pollock & Co., in Maiden Lane, this city, and stole $15,000 worth of diamonds from him.

Information in the possession of the Pinkerton National Detective agency shows that diamonds stolen from Mr. Pollock are still intact, and in the hands of a second person. The Pinkerton authorities claim that the thieves who planned the robbery of the diamonds will soon be in hands of the police.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Dealings In Leading Securities In Boston and New York.

BOSTON, Aug. 10.—In the outside market call money is quoted at 6 to 10 per cent, and time money is nominally 6 per cent.

The market opened quiet, with considerable strength manifested. The condition clearly proves by its fluctuations, advancing or declining at the will of the room traders, that there is no floating stock. Stocks are in loans and cannot be sold for money. Should a speculator sell, he must take a check, as no money can be had. Should he sell short he cannot borrow the stock, and must pay a daily premium for the use of the stock. Were it not for the stock clearing house, where differences are settled, no business could be done. All kinds of money are at a premium. Seven dollars and a half was offered in New York for 100,000 silver dollars yesterday without obtaining them.

Traders bid up the market. There were rumors of something to be done by congress today, and reports of further engagements of gold for today are circulated. General Electric advanced upon the completion of the syndicate. The borrowing demand for stocks this morning is considered evidence that a great deal of short stock was sold again yesterday.

Little selling is required in order to be reflected in the loaning rates. Practically the entire active list is at a premium again. Chicago, Burlington and Quincy at 1-32, Rock Island 1-64, General Electric 1-16 and Northwestern 1-32.

The bull interest was much encouraged by the vigor of the rally of yesterday. The bears placed their trust in the general situation, with some special confidence in the doings of congress and in the strained financial situation. It was admitted last night that the demand for currency was far ahead of the supply.

General Electric opened up ¼ to 41¼, and rose rapidly to 42¼; this was followed by a reaction to 41⅜. Sugar common came out off 1 point to 71, and fell to 70¼, then advanced to 73¼. Chicago, Burlington and Quincy was ⅝ better at the opening, selling at 73, and was steady at that figure. Atchison firm at 15¼. West End Railway common increased ½ to 51¼. Boston and Maine sold 1 point higher at 128. Small lots came out at 166. The London market for American securities opened irregular and soon lapsed into a state of dullness, with a tendency toward weakness.

Tyler Earl of New London received his daily letter yesterday, telling the whereabouts of his father, Ray Earl, who is footing it to Chicago with remarkable steadiness for a man of 80 years, as each day cuts off a good thirty miles of the route. Wednesday a young man by the name of Edward Looney, about 26 years of age, who worked for John Champlin on what is known as the "Hull farm," Stonington, went in bathing in Sylvia's pond, about two miles northwest of the borough.

Swimming into a deep hole he was taken with cramps. A 15-year-old son of Mr. Champlin, who was with him, went to his assistance, but was unable to aid him. The lad then ran home for help.

When he returned with several men it was too late, as Looney had drowned. The body was recovered.

Reunion at Bushy Point.

Today the survivors of the Twenty-sixth regiment hold their thirtieth annual reunion at Bushy Point. The regiment, which left Norwich for the front on Nov. 13, 1862, with about 830 men of all grades, now numbers, so far as their address can be ascertained, less than 260. The regiment was organized in this city with four companies for Norwich, one from Salem, one from Lyme, two from New London, one from Stonington and one from Groton. The commissioned field officers are all dead except Lieutenant Stephen B. Meech, adjutant, who is now cashier of the Thames National bank; B. F. Tracy, quartermaster, of Stonington, and Chaplin N. T. Allen, who is now the veteran chaplain of the Third regiment, Connecticut National Guard. Of the thirty-six commissioned line officers twenty still survive. These men are now scattered through many states, even to California and the Sandwich Islands.

NO RENT TO IDLE EMPLOYES.

The Generous Action of the Falls and Shetucket Cotton Companies.

An act of public benevolence on the part of the Falls and Shetucket Cotton companies is the granting free tenement occupation to their employes during the shut down of the mills.

The Falls mill closed Wednesday night, throwing over 500 workmen out of work, and by the idleness of the Greeneville mill 600 hands are unemployed. Seventy-five houses at Greeneville and one hundred and twenty-five at the Falls are turned over to the help without cost, and their occupants appreciate the generosity of the companies.

The plant of the Slater company at Jewett City closed for an indefinite period last night.

KILEY WILL FIGHT IT OUT.

New London's Chief Engineer to Defend His Position.

H. A. Hull represents Chief Engineer Kiley of New London in his controversy with the State Firemen's association, and will make a statement for publication shortly in his behalf.

Chief Kiley received $75 benefits from the association during sickness alleged to have been caused by attendance at or endeavoring to attend the Rosenthal fire on Bank street. The application for benefit was signed by Assistant Chief Engineer John Stanners and Foreman John White, of the F. L. Allen H. & L. company.

After two investigations the association executive committee finds Chief Kiley not to have been entitled to this benefit, and so reported to the meeting in Danbury. The result was the suspension of Chief Kiley and Assistant Stanners from membership in the association, and the determination to bring suit for recovery of benefit paid.

Mr. Hull says it is Chief Kiley's intention to fight this suit on the ground of good and sufficient testimony in his behalf.

OFF FOR NEWPORT.

New York Yacht Club Fleet Leaves New London Harbor.

New London harbor wore a most deserted aspect yesterday. Before 10 o'clock the last of the New York yacht fleet had swept out of the harbor on its cruise to Newport.

All night a heavy fog hung over the sound and in the early hours yesterday morning it looked as if the fleet would have to make Newport in a drift. Gradually the air freshened, however, and Commodore Morgan announced an early start to take advantage of it.

It was a wise decision, for by 10 o'clock a good breeze was assured, and at 11 there was no doubt whatever that the fleet would be carried along in good season with the assurance, unless the wind died out, of reaching Newport well together. Preparations for the start were made at 8 o'clock, and shortly after the fleet began to get under way, the small boats working out first, being followed by the big sloops and schooners, and later the steam crafts.

Hundreds of people on shore watched the departure from the harbor of the largest fleet that ever assembled there on the New York club cruise, and seldom has a better start been made. With just a little more wind it would have been an ideal day for the yachtsmen.

SPORTING EVENTS OF THE DAY.

Northwestern Rowing Regatta—Bicyclers at Chicago.

BASE BALL.

Race for the Goelet Cup Unfinished on Account of Fog.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 12—1.20 a. m. There is no finish tonight in Goelet cup race. The fog has set in so thick that the yachts have anchored.

NORTHWESTERN ROWING REGATTA.

The First Day's Races Rowed in Unpleasant Weather.

DETROIT, Aug. 11.—This was the first day of the Northwestern Rowing association here. It began to rain in the afternoon and soon became unpleasant. It was after 5 o'clock when the Junior single first heat was called.

Russell led all the way to the turn and had no trouble winning. Among the starters in the second was Dagwell, who rowed under protest. He took the second as well as the final in easy style.

In the junior four oars the Minnesotas won handily from the Favorites.

When the gun for the start of the gig race was fired the Wolverines were just getting out of their house and the Detroits had not got that far. The Wolverines were only two lengths behind at the turn, but poor work there on their part and the splendid turn of the Delawares settled the race. Delawares won by 20 lengths.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 11.—The four-oared crews of the Minnesotas, St. Paul, and the Argonauts of Toronto this morning rowed again in the senior four-oared race of the national regatta, unfinished yesterday owing to fouls. Minnesotas won. Time 9.23.

L. A. W. MEET.

In Five Days Zimmerman Has Been But Once Beaten in a Scratch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—A. A. Zimmerman won the first of the international championship races run during the L. A. W. meeting. Besides capturing that event, a ten kilometer dash, he reduced in the same race the six mile American competition record of 15.40 2-5 by Seeley in New York last year to 15.24 2-5. He covered the last quarter in 27 seconds. A performance that nobody except himself had ever equalled.

Kinley of Chicago, who broke the four-mile record on Wednesday to 10.12, further chopped that mark today to 10.12 1-5 in the same international race. In this race the jockeying against Zimmerman did not work. He remained well to the rear to the final lap and then followed Johnson in the latter's spurt down the stretch. Not until he reached the turn, however, did he exert himself. He was then a length behind the Minneapolis man. He passed Johnson half way down and won easily. Johnson was tired and lost second place to Bliss. The fractional time was: One mile, 2.27 2-5; two miles, 5.08; three miles, 7.40 3-5; four miles, 10.12 1-5; five miles, 12.58; six miles, 15.23 3-5; ten kilometers, 15.56¾. All the Americans except Bode finished in front. Osmonde, the Englishman, did not start.

Zimmerman also won the half mile open easily. Hoyt and Smith and Zimmerman had a walk-over in the two mile invitation team race. Zimmerman qualified for the third mile open, but did not start in the final, the event going to Tyler. In five days Zimmerman has been beaten only once in a scratch race. A. D. Kennedy of Chicago won the three mile handicap, with an allowance of 245 yards, and W. A. Rhodes of Chicago took the one mile 2.30 class. W. H. Ellithorpe of Chicago won the half mile handicap with a start of 25 yards. The attendance today was 4,000. Willie Windle has left for the east on account of illness.

AN UNNATURAL FATHER.

Constables Hunting for F. C. L. Baker, a Well-to-Do Windsor Man.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 11.—Proceedings were begun today against Frederick C. L. Baker, 53 years old, married, and the father of nine children, a well-to-do proprietor of a brick yard in Windsor, just over the Hartford line. He is charged with incestuous intercourse with his daughter Florina, 18 years old.

The girl's statement is that her father began his unnatural conduct on Columbus day, October 19, 1892, during the absence of her mother. The offence has been repeated at intervals, the man accomplishing his purpose by threatening his daughter's life. She is soon to become a mother. Last week the girl told her mother of her father's horrible conduct, and they consulted Lawyer John P. Healy of this city. He went to interview Baker, who jumped from a window and ran away.

Information was laid before Grand Juror George R. Meade of Windsor, and Justice of the Peace George H. Albee issued a warrant for Baker's arrest. Constable Berman Shannon is now hunting for Baker, who has disappeared. Mrs. Baker has attached her husband's property for $10,000 in a suit for absolute divorce.

CORRESPONDENTS FOREWARNED.

The President Returns to Gray Gables—Will Not Be Interviewed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The following statement made by the president was given out for publication this afternoon. The president has returned to Gray Gables after spending a week in Washington. Before leaving he made the following statement for publication:

"My absence from the capital at this time may excite some surprise in view of my intense interest in the subject now awaiting the determination of congress. Though my views and recommendations have already been officially submitted to that body, and though I am by no means certain I could further aid in bringing about the result which seems so necessary, it would be a great satisfaction to me if I could remain at the scene of action. But whether I am here or elsewhere I shall look with hope and confidence to the action of those upon whom the responsibility now rests of relieving our people from their present dangers and difficulties.

I am going back to my summer home at the sea shore because I am not sufficiently rested from the strain to which I have been subjected since the 4th of March to fit me to again assume the duties and labors which await me here. I have been counselled by those whose advice I cannot disregard, that the further rest I contemplate is absolutely necessary to my health and strength. I shall remain away during the month of August, and shall devote my time to rest and out-door recreation. My day's doings will be devoid of interest to the public, and I shall be exceedingly pleased if I can be free from the attentions of newspaper correspondents.

NEW HAVEN POLITICIAN DEAD.

Assistant Town Clerk Birdsey Lake Dies of Consumption.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 11.—Birdsey Lake, assistant town clerk, died this morning at the New Haven hospital of consumption, after an illness of six months. He was assistant town clerk for seven years. Before that time he was connected with The Register, News and Courier in an editorial capacity. He was deputy fire marshal of New Haven in 1878, and from 1884 to 1885 was traveling agent for the Hubbard advertising agency and the Richardson butter-coloring agency. He managed the New Haven base ball team for two seasons, in 1876-1877. He held many other positions, among them clerk of the board of supervisors. Lake place, a section now built up and one of the handsomest streets in the city, was named after his father, who owned it. Mr. Lake was a widower. His wife, who was Miss Emma Groton of Bristol, died eight years ago. They had no children. His brother, J. Levi Lake, is manager of the Waltham Watch company.

Bold Young Pirates in Jail.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 11.—Three young "pirates," who two weeks ago stole Mr. White's fast yacht and went on a raid along the Connecticut coast, were sentenced in the city court today to three months each in jail and $50 fine.

The boys are John L. Howard, Charles H. Church and W. E. Buckingham. They are tough young fellows, and all have police records, although the oldest boy is but 19. While on their cruise they looted the premises of many farmers along the shore, and also stole fruits and vegetables. They laughed at the judge when sentenced.

Visit From Krupp's Engineers.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 11.—Robert Yung, engineer in charge of Freidrich Krupp heavy ordnance department at Essen, Germany, left this city today for Hartford, where he will visit the Pratt & Whitney company's works.

Engineer Yung is the first of a corps of thirty ordnance and dynamic engineers which Krupp will send through the United States for the inspection of our iron and steel industry, particularly that in connection with the manufacture of ordnance and armor plates.

Young Horse Thief Captured.

BRANFORD, Aug. 11.—Louis Gray, the young horse thief who stole a horse and carriage from Charles Palmer Sunday night was brought here this noon for a hearing before Justice Zink. The team was stolen from the shade in the rear of the Congregational church, the owner being in the church at the time. Gray is the fellow who stole a horse from West Haven and was captured in Bridgeport Tuesday. He was tried in West Haven yesterday and bound over to the superior court. Palmer's team has been recovered in Saybrook where Gray had sold it.

Explanation of Short Time at Sargent's Factory.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 11.—Mayor Sargent today said that the main reason why Sargent & Co.'s big factory is run on half-time is the stringency of money. The firm has orders enough but cannot collect. Their pay-roll is $8,000 a day and the banks have notified them that they cannot supply them with so much currency while the present state of affairs exists. The firm therefore decided to lessen their expenses while money is at a premium.

Ethan Allen's Sword.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The sword which Ethan Allen carried at the taking of Fort Ticonderoga during the revolutionary war, has been offered to the government to be placed with similar relics in the national museum. The sword is now in the possession of Hannibal H. Hopkins of Lansing, Mich.

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Bradstreet reports 474 failures in the United States this week, against 199 in the week a year ago, and 38 in Canada, against 23 the same week last year.

The Priscilla Arrives at New York.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The Fall River steamer Priscilla, from Wilmington, in tow of two tugs, arrived here this afternoon. She was saluted by all passing vessels as she came up the bay.

English Gold for the United States.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Two hundred and sixty-five thousand pounds in gold was withdrawn from the Bank of England for shipment abroad today. Of this sum £220,000 is destined for the United States and £45,000 for Montreal. Bankers here expect that the large withdrawal of gold will cause the directors of the Bank of England to further advance the discount rate Thursday next.

THE SILVER DEBATE OPENED.

Bill Presented to Repeal a Part of the Sherman Act.

THE OPENING GUN.

Mr. Bland of Missouri Argues for the Free Coinage Side.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The house this morning was in a bustle of intense excitement. Members met in groups, talking over the situation, and the universal question was "Have the silver and anti-silver men reached an agreement?"

Silver was on every man's tongue, and silver will be on every man's tongue for the next fortnight, as the conference has practically agreed to limit the debate to that period of time, the debate to begin immediately after the reading of the journal today.

After the reading of the journal Mr. Wilson of West Virginia offered for present consideration a bill to repeal a part of the act approved July 14, 1890 (the Sherman act).

It provides that so much of the act approved July 14, 1890, as directs the secretary of the treasury to purchase from time to time silver bullion to the aggregate amount of 4,500,000 ounces, or so much thereof as may be offered in each month at the market price thereof, not exceeding $1 for 371¼ grains of pure silver, and to issue in payment for such purchase treasury notes of the United States be, and the same is hereby, repealed. But this repeal shall not impair, nor in any manner affect, the legal tender quality of the standard silver dollars heretofore coined; and the faith and credit of the United States are hereby pledged to maintain the parity of the gold and silver coin of the United States at the present legal ratio, or such other ratio as may be established by law.

Then Mr. Bland arose and desired to offer a resolution looking to the order of procedure.

Mr. Cannon wished to ask a parliamentary question. He wished to know how the bill was to be considered. Was it to be referred to a standing committee? Was it to be considered in committee of the whole? Or was it to be considered in the house as in committee of the whole?

The speaker replied that in the absence of rules it was for the house to determine the method of its consideration.

Mr. Bland then presented the following order:

"It is ordered by the house that house bill No. 1 shall be taken up for immediate consideration and, considered for 14 days. During such consideration night sessions may be held for debate only, at the request of either side, the daily sessions to commence at 11 a. m., and continue until 5 p. m. Eleven days of the debate on the bill to be given to general debate under the rules of the last house regulating general debate, the time to be equally divided between the two sides, as the speaker may direct. The last three days of debate may be devoted to the consideration of the bill and the amendments as herein provided under the usual five-minute rule of the house, as in committee of the whole house. General leave to print is hereby granted.

Mr. Bland (Mo) opened for the free coinage side. He expressed regret that a number of gentlemen, of whom the speaker who had just sat down was one of the most capable, had seen fit to change their position on this question, to abandon a large portion of the voters who had aided in giving them the places they occupy, to turn their faces to the east and their backs to the west. The Sherman law was the only law on the statute books that looked to the use of silver as money. The repeal of the Sherman act had been a part of the platform. Another part had been a declaration for the use of both gold and silver as the money of the country. He understood that the free coinage of silver, in accordance with the platform, necessarily repealed the Sherman law.

It was said that congress had met under peculiar circumstances, and in the midst of a financial crisis. Members were asked to legislate by piecemeal and take their chances in the future. It was said that a panic existed now. The great voting masses of the people might get into a panic when election day came around again. Every member would be held responsible for his vote and his speech. Mr. Bland reviewed recent silver and financial legislation and contended that it was an apprehension that the United States would repeal the Sherman law that induced the present government to recommend to the government of India the suspension of silver coinage.

I speak as a democrat, but yet as an American above democracy. [Cheers.] We do not intend that any party shall survive if we can help it that will lay its confiscating hands on America in the interest of England or Europe. That may be strong language, but speaking to you of the eastern democracy we will bid you farewell when you do it. [Applause.] Now you can take your choice of sustaining America against England, of sustaining American industries and American laborers against English industries and English laborers or of going apart.

After holding up to ridicule the promises of the democratic party to repeal the McKinley tariff, and the shifting off from that purpose to what he called the purpose of demonetizing silver, Mr. Bland said that the battle was one as to whether the world was to be put upon the gold standard or upon the double standard. The people had, he said, expected the platform of the democratic party to be carried out, and that they were to have tariff revision; but, lo and behold, they found that they were tricked, deceived [Applause on both sides of the chamber]. It was not intended by the democratic friends of tariff reform that that subject should be considered. They wanted to lay their hands upon silver and demonetize it before they approached the subject of tariff reform. And here we are. Now we know "where we are at." I tell you, we are not going to submit to it, and now you may go ahead.

Mr. Pence (Col.) was the next speaker, and he attracted the closest attention of the house. He said the democratic convention in 1884 declared its belief that gold and silver is the coinage of the constitution, and in accumulating a medium convertible into such money without loss. That meant the remonetization of silver at its old ratio. But even before Mr. Cleveland's first inauguration, that platform had been slapped in the face and spat upon. [Applause.] During the Cleveland administration there had not been (so far as the administration was concerned), one sincere effort to remonetize silver. The republican administration which followed, was no better in this respect. The industries of the people had been prostrated by the course of the past two administrations, by the base surrender of those who had been elected on a silver platform and on silver pledges.

Mr. Wheeler (democrat of Alabama), made a brief speech cautioning representatives to use cool judgment on such a momentous question, after which the house adjourned till tomorrow.

Earthquake Along the Adriatic Coast.

ROME, Aug. 11.—A severe earthquake has been felt along the Italian Adriatic coast, and it is believed that there has been a large loss of life. The shock was more severe in the southern part of the country, particularly in the province of Foggia. The telegraph wires to Rodia are down and it is as yet impossible to get details from that place. The train service is interrupted and it is conjectured that much damage to property has been done in the two towns and their neighborhood.

British Schooner Libeled.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—In the United States district court this morning a libel for the forfeiture of the British schooner George H. Trigg and her cargo of laths was begun by Assistant United States District Attorney Wyman. This vessel was the one seized by the customs house officials for not being registered and for sailing under an American flag with an English subject as captain.

Steamer Dimock Bears Marks of Collision.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Aug. 11.—Captain Golding of the schooner Acacia which vessel was sunk by an unknown steamer on the night of the 9th inst. off Chatham, has received information from New York, that steamer H. F. Dimock, which arrived at that port last night from Boston, bears marks of a collision. It is thought that this may have been the steamer which collided with and sunk the schooner.

A French Transport in Collision With a Steamer.

VIGO, Spain, Aug. 11.—The French transport Drome put into this port today in a badly damaged condition. She reports that she collided with the steamer Sevilla, bound from Penarth to Versailles, and that the steamer sank, carrying five persons down with her. The Drome picked up eighteen persons struggling in the water.

Drowned in the Connecticut.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 11.—Olaf Olsen, an employe of the Schuyler Electric Co., was drowned in the Connecticut just above Willow island on Thursday evening about 6 o'clock, in the "Blow Hole," so-called. CONTROVERSY OVER A FARE.

It Occurred a Night or Two Ago on One of the New York Steamers.

Quite a controversy occurred on one of the New York steamers a night or two ago between the ticket agent and a young man about to purchase transportation to New York. He tendered $1 for a ticket and expressed much astonishment when the agent assured him that the fare to New York was $1.40.

He showed the agent an advertisement over the company's signature which announced the fare to be reduced to $1, and was not satisfied when the agent told him that the rate advertised was that for winter business the limit of which had expired with the advent of summer.

He paid the fare under protest but not until he had obtained a receipt for that amount in case he wanted to proceed further in the matter.

TO NIANTIC, MONDAY, 21ST.

The schedule of train departures and arrivals for the transportation of the militia to Niantic has been issued from the quartermaster-general's office.

All the organizations of the Third regiment, except the third section machine gun battery, are ordered to leave New London at 9.10 a. m. on Monday, Aug. 21, from Putnam 6.45, Danielsonville 7.05, Willimantic 7.20, Norwich 8.15, Pawcatuck via Westerly 8.21. The Machine Gun battery will proceed overland.

WILLIMANTIC.

Touring on the Wheel—The Week's Manufacturing—A Water Famine.

Editor Hinman of The Journal, president of the Thread City cyclers, and Burt L. Hicks, captain of the same club, left Willimantic Friday morning for a two weeks' tour on the wheel. They will travel through Connecticut, southwestern Massachusetts, go into New York state, visit Saratoga and take a trip down the Hudson. Thomas F. O'Laughlin of the Cyclers will do the local work on The Journal during Mr. Hinman's absence.

Camp meeting commences next Monday and will continue for one week.

The employes of the Hall & Bill Printing company held their annual outing and picnic at Columbia reservoir today. G. E. Gray will cater for the party.

The people of St. Joseph's parish go on an excursion to Watch Hill today.

Here is the way the business situation stands in Willimantic this week. Among the merchants very dull. Willimantic Linen Co., five days with a prospect of four. Holland Manufacturing Co., two days. The Natchaug Silk Co., two days. Smithville Manufacturing Co., shut down for two weeks. Turner's Silk mills, shut down all the week. The W. H. & A. R. Morrison Machine Co., five days. Excelsior Web and Tape Co., shut down all the week. Some other manufacturers and minor concerns are just moving. To add to all this, money is scarce and we are in the midst of a water famine.

CHOLERA CASES AT QUARANTINE.

Five Patients Transferred to Swinburne Island.

TEN PATIENTS IN ALL.

The Steamer Massilia Discharged from Quarantine Friday.

QUARANTINE, S. I., Aug. 11.—At 9 p. m. Health Officer Jenkins issued a bulletin: At 4 p. m. three cases were transferred to Swinburne Island from Hoffman and at 7.30 p. m. two more were taken to the same place. The first three are Givanni Lauri and Fernandi Tosi, Italians, and Georges Corinn, a Greek. The others are Domenico Di Ciopho and Antonio Pistini, Italians. All showed characteristic symptoms of cholera. The bacteriological examinations of the cases removed today have not been completed as yet. The census of the hospital shows ten patients, one of whom is convalescing. In three of the ten the diagnosis of cholera has been confirmed. All are well on the Karamania. The Massilia was discharged from quarantine today, her passengers having been 19 days out from Naples, without the slightest evidence of cholera appearing.

Woman Registers as a Voter in New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 11.—Never before has such interest been taken in an approaching municipal school board election here as at the present time. Three members of the present board retire September 19, and the current topic of the day throughout the city is the means by which the most efficient successors to the retiring officials can be chosen.

No special issue is at stake, except the general effectiveness of the local schools. There is, however, a strong movement on foot to elect a woman to next year's board, something never before done in the history of the city. To this end, there is considerable agitation looking toward the registration of a large number of female voters.

The first one to register was recorded last night. She is Mrs. H. G. Newton, wife of a leading attorney, and she is the first woman in the state of Connecticut to register as a voter.

Many others are expected to follow her example.

World's Fair Rates Advanced.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—The managers of the eastern railroads have virtually ordered an advance in World's fair rates. After August 31 the present low excursion rate will be abolished. This decision was arrived at after a long and animated meeting last evening.

The Pennsylvania railroad offered the most strenuous objection to the adoption of this plan. It advocated one fare for the round trip, good on all trains, but it was outvoted at every turn, and finally had to submit to the inevitable.

CHARGES INHUMAN TREATMENT.

An Ex-Wethersfield Prisoner Attacks Deputy Warden Baisden's Methods.

Walter H. Douglass returned to this city Wednesday broken down in health and spirits, after nearly a year's confinement in the Wethersfield state prison. His pitiable condition he charges to brutalities inflicted on him while a prisoner in that institution at the hands of Deputy Warden Baisden or at the instigation of that official.

Douglass was a teamster and railroad man whose home was in Willimantic, but who worked often in this city. He was arrested for adultery last summer and sentenced last September. At that time he was a broad shouldered, rugged man, nearly six feet high and weighing over 200 pounds. Today consumption has marked him as one of its victims, and the decline of his former vigor is very marked.

Douglass' experience as told in his own words is as follows: "For the ten months I was incarcerated, I never tasted a morsel of cooked meat. Owing to an asthmatic affection, I was unable to eat beef, and asked for pork; and all that was granted me never had been near a fire. For six months I disdained to touch the uncooked flesh, but finally, tiring beyond endurance of bread and potatoes, I used to scrape off particles of the raw pork and spread it over my bread. Plead as hard as I might, I received nothing but blows and curses.

"The deputy's treatment of the prisoner was horrible. He invariably carried a heavy, hickory stick, loaded with lead at the small end, with which he seemed to take a fiendish delight in beating his defenceless charges. Time and time again I have seen it descend with fearful force on the unprotected head of some inoffensive prisoner, and as he was dragged limp and insensible to the dungeon, his life blood spurted out of the wound inflicted, until we fellow unfortunates thought he could never survive."

"Have I been beaten?" he repeated after a BULLETIN representative; "see here," and he pulled up his trousers and showed several livid scars on his shins. "My back and shoulders are covered with similar relics of my treatment, and all for nothing. I remember one time in particular. Soon after Warden Chamberlain was suspended, and while Baisden was in practical control, while I was at work in the shoe shop, a three quarter-inch wire brad was jammed into the palm of my hand by the machine I was at work on. The pain was so intense I could not endure working, and asked the deputy if I could cease for that day. 'Step out here into the hall,' he responded. As I reached the door I turned to show him the wound. 'Step along there!' he shouted, and down came his cane on my head and shoulders. Knocked almost senseless by the blow, I fell prostrate to the floor and was dragged to a dungeon. I spent over three days in the reeking, damp hole, and then my hand had swelled to such proportions that the physician ordered me to the hospital. Steward Welsey Bishop cut the brad out of my hand, and said he intended to preserve it.

"Deputy Baisden's daily routine is an unremitting series of atrocities. I remember last October a prisoner complained that his strength would not permit of the arduous labor at which he was employed. 'All right,' replied Baisden, 'into the vault you go.' And to the day I left Wethersfield the poor fellow's belongings were in his cell, proving he is still alive, but their owner never made his reappearance from his hideous confinement."

"That man is tampering with human lives," cried Douglass, hysterically. "Chamberlain is gone, but the murderer remains. Rather than serve another year I would knife him the first day and then willingly pay the penalty on the gallows. I don't expect to live," with a sob; "I don't want to live, but if I could only do something for the sufferers under this heartless tyrant."

"No one dares to speak to visitors or officials of the treatment imposed by Baisden, for all know how dear it would cost. For years he has been endeavoring to secure the wardenship of the prison and oust Gen. Chamberlain; and when The New York World made its exposure several months ago, Baisden's subordinates surreptitiously gave prisoners copies of the paper to prejudice them against Chamberlain, and persuade them that all indignities were prompted by him, and thus befool them to testify for Baisden."

Douglass was the first prisoner discharged under the new warden, ex-Chief Woodbridge of the Hartford police, and to him he confided Baisden's alleged cruelties, which were promised a thorough investigation. The man came to this city penniless and homeless, and applied to City Missionary Swan for assistance. Mr. Swan found a haven for him on Union street, and notified a physician, who pronounced the patient in a serious condition. He spits blood, and moves about with difficulty. Today Douglass will journey to the home of friends in Massachusetts. Hot tea is his only means of subsistence.

REUNION OF THE TWENTY-SIXTH.

One Hundred Members Present—Sail Down the Thames to Bushy Point—Election of Officers—Presentation of a Cane to Captain L. A. Gallup.

The thirtieth annual meeting of the Association of the Twenty-sixth Regiment Connecticut volunteers was held Friday under peculiarly pleasant circumstances. The executive committee chartered the steamer Summer Girl to make a special trip to this city in order to connect with the railroad trains from the north arriving about 9.30 a. m., in order to accommodate members from Windham county on the outward as well as on the return trip.

The departure was delayed half an hour beyond the advertised time by an overdue train. The steamer left at 10.30 with a good-sized company, stopping at Montville and New London for passengers, loading her nearly to her full capacity. Arriving at Bushy Point soon after noon, it was found by roll call that there were exactly 100 members of the old regiment present, distributed as follows: Field staff officers, 2; Company A, 4; Company B, 13; Company C, 10; Company D, 6; Company E, 4; Company F, 14; Company G, 19; Company H, 13; Company I, 10; Company K, 5.

Wives of the veterans and their friends with invited guests, swelled the number to fully 150, who sat down to a bountiful shore dinner prepared by Caterer Laffy on the Bushy Point Pavilion.

MENU.

Baked Bluefish, Fried Fritters,
Boiled Lobsters, Baked Clams,
Watermelons, Brown Bread,
Wheat Bread, Tea, Coffee,
Ice Cream.

After dinner the president of the association, Capt. L. A. Gallup, called the attention of the comrades to the fact that it was their thirtieth anniversary, and congratulated them that so many were able to be present to greet each other again in annual reunion.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary Sevin and approved.

The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $166.41, and all bills paid.

The committee on revision of by-laws reported by Lieut. George A. Hammond, that no changes were advisable, except to leave the time of annual meetings to the executive committee, at its discretion. The report was accepted and the recommendations adopted.

Corresponding Secretary Crary then read letters of regret from comrades who were unable to be present: Rev. Henry G. Gay of North Reading, Mass.; O. G. Smith of Nantucket, Mass.; Michael Shea of Albany, and others.

The committee to nominate officers for the ensuing year reported by its chairman, Colonel William H. Bently of New London, as follows: For president, Samuel K. Tillinghast, Providence, R. I.; first vice president, John G. Parker, Mystic; second vice president, William F. Gates, Willimantic; third vice president, Henry F. Royce, Willimantic; corresponding secretary, John T. Crary, Norwich; recording secretary and treasurer, N. D. Sevin, Norwich.

The report was accepted and John T. Crary was instructed to cast one ballot for the ticket, which was done and the election was declared.

After a collection amounting to $38.67 a characteristic speech was made by President-elect Tillinghast and by Colonel W. H. Bently and Chaplain N. T. Allen. A pleasant incident to the retiring president, Captain L. A. Gallup, was the presentation to him of a fine "G. A. R." cane by Corporal B. B. Champlin of New Haven.

The meeting adjourned at 3 o'clock and the steamer arrived in Norwich at 5 o'clock.

Among the guests present were General James B. Colt of Norwich, and Lieutenant Frederick Gallup, quartermaster of the Eighth Connecticut volunteers.

AT THE CAMPGROUND.

Bible Conference at Willimantic.

The Rev. J. M. Taber gave the opening address at the camp on Thursday. He first sketched the history of the English Bible as seen in the various translations from the seventh century down to the latest revision, in 1884. He then gave its history more at large, as seen in literature, in art and in reformations.

The second address of the morning, which was most admirable and greatly enjoyed by everyone, was on "The Spirit and the Word," by the Rev. G. M. Stone, D. D., of Hartford. "The Word without the Spirit," said he, "has given us cruelties and religious persecutions. The Spirit without the Word gives fanaticism. God has married the Word and the Spirit together, and they should not be separated by man. The work of the Spirit is to apply the Word. The Spirit does not speak of Himself. He speaks of Christ."

In the afternoon the gathering was held out of doors for the first time. "Baptism with the Holy Ghost" was the first subject, and it was treated in the manner of a Bible class study. The leader, Rev. G. A. Grant, made the mistake of giving the class a little too much liberty at the first of the hour. So much interest was manifested that not time enough was left to make the desired closing.

He showed from scripture that the promise of this baptism is made to sinners on condition of repentance and faith in Christ. He comes to abide in the believer as God's witness to forgiveness and adoption. This baptism is the birthright of every believer under the Christian dispensation. It is not identical with nor coincident with entire satisfaction, but is God's "earnest" or pledge that entire sanctification shall be in the case of him who walks in the spirit.

The Rev. E. P. Phreaner read a paper sent in by Presiding Elder Tirrell [who after writing it was unable to be present.] This paper was on "The Bible and Revivals of Religion," and was the strongest kind of a plea for just the class of work done by this Bible conference. He traced the Bible in the history of the past as a promoter of revivals, and affirmed that the earnest prayerful study of it had been at the foundation of all the great religious movements of the Jewish and Christian worlds. He feared that a type of revival was being fostered of late which had no vital connection with Bible truth, but depended on the eccentricity and manipulation of sensational evangelists. He pleaded for a return to sober minded and faithful study of God's word.

The Rev. J. H. Allen announced that there would be an evening service not given in the programme and that the Rev. J. W. Webb of Providence would give a lecture on "The Rational Basis for Faith."

AN ENLARGED SCOPE.

The Storrs Agricultural School Under the New Appropriation.

An outline of the revised and enlarged course of instruction at the Storrs Agricultural college has been issued. By the vote of the general assembly of the state the Storrs Agricultural school was changed to the agricultural college of the state and opened to young ladies as well as to young men. This necessitated and made possible considerable modification and improvement in the course of instruction.

In addition to what has formerly been taught in the school five new departments are to be introduced—horticulture, veterinary science, domestic science, higher English and work in wood and iron.

Those who are able to pass an examination in arithmetic, English, United States history and geography, can have the choice of a short or long course—the short covering the work of the second or third years in which the elements of the subjects will be taught, very similar to that of the school in past years, only much improved by adding horticulture, veterinary science, more training in English, etc., etc., while the long course will include all of the short, and, at present, one year in addition, the fourth of the schedule.

AFTER THE TROPHY.

America's Cup Defenders Have Initial Race.

OVER HEN AND CHICKENS' COURSE.

Jubilee and Vigilant Outclass the Others—Wind Light and Flukey.

BATEMAN'S POINT, Newport, R. I., Aug. 11.—There seemed very little prospect early this morning that a race for the Goelet cup would be sailed today. There was not a breath of air in circulation, and it was supposed that the race would, of necessity, be postponed.

But, with the usual capacity for springing surprises, the weather changed a little before 10 o'clock, and the listless condition of the atmosphere was swept away before a fresh breeze from the southwest.

The Jubilee was the first of the cup defenders to get under way. She moved down the harbor until the stiffening breeze met her at Bateman's point. Then she quickly drew away from the small craft that surrounded her and swept across the bay toward the lightship.

The Colonia was the next of the fleet ones to put in an appearance. She came around the point about five minutes after the Jubilee. Following close in the wake of the Jubilee and Colonia came the other cup defenders—the Pilgrim and the Vigilant. A thousand glasses were turned upon them from the bluffs as They Sped Away to the Lightship.

Preparatory to the calling of the race, the harbor presented a handsome spectacle. As far as the eye could reach the bosom of the bay was flecked with sails. The swelling breeze filled their canvas until their rails almost touched the water. Across the reefs the water dashed in mad disorder.

On the shores the wealth and beauty of Newport were gathered to witness the start. For miles the costly equipages lined the drives, while on the rocks and promontories back from the shore the spectators gathered in an almost endless succession of groups.

The course is that known as the Sow and Pigs course, which will be far better than the Block Island course to witness from shore. While the fleet, which had now grown to enormous proportions, was hovering about the lightship, the dynamite cruiser Vesuvius put in an appearance and sailed into the bay.

It was 11:18 when flagship May bore in sight, flying flags V L, denoting that the course No. 5 had been chosen, 38 miles in extent, and which provides for the leaving of the Vineyard sound and Hen and Chickens lightships upon the port hand in turning.

At 11:20 the May dropped anchor, and then the Sight Was a Most Magnificent One.

It was undoubtedly the largest fleet of all kinds of sailing craft ever seen off Newport. Beside the large yacht fleet there were close to 100 or 200 of small catboats from all parts of the bay, which added greatly to the scene, though from shore they appeared in so great confusion that it would seem impossible to prevent [illegible].

Shortly after the May anchored the four cup defenders prepared for positions inside the starting line, while the smaller fry, which proposed to follow the fleet, stood off to the eastward.

At 11:25 the preparatory gun was fired from the May, and its report was barely heard on shore, while the smoke from it could not be seen, owing to the great mass of canvas between it and shore. The Constellation immediately took in her forestop and worked back into position.

The Starting Gun.

At 11:35 the starting gun for sloops was fired. Almost directly what appeared to be the Jubilee, with all sail set, luffed up across the line, then her sails filled again and she was off. The Colonia and Pilgrim also followed closely, while the Vigilant did not cross until after the third gun, starter for schooners, was fired. With the port tack aboard, the sloops stood in toward Brenton's Point for about 10 minutes, then took aboard the starboard tack, which will be a long one off shore. As they started upon this tack the of the Colonia in the wind, which prevailed at the start, for it was inclined to be fluky, and not more than strong enough to keep their large spread of canvas fairly well filled. The Vigilant, while starting late, did not stand in shore, but laid off upon the starboard tack, and by keeping upon this a longer time than the others did upon the port, succeeded in working well up to the windward, and soon held second place, with Colonia third and Pilgrim fourth.

By excellent sailing the Vigilant continued to forge ahead and soon appeared to have first position. The weather conditions did not appear to improve at all, and it settled down to little more than a drifting match, the breeze at the start having quite died away.

The Pilgrim on the other hand appeared to be sailing a race by herself for she dropped the fleet, or they rather dropped her and left her to continue to work along shore in short tacks. Her progress here was so slow that her crew were sent down to the lee rail with the idea of giving her so much surface for the wind to work against as possible. On the seaward run the Vigilant appeared to outpoint the Jubilee, but because of distance and position no possible account of their work could be given.

At about 1 o'clock a thick fog set in and the position of the racers could not longer be determined.

McCREARY'S METHOD.

Would Have a Commission Inquire Into Money and Trade.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Representative McCreary of Kentucky, a member of the Brussels monetary conference, outlined to a reporter the legislation which he thinks congress should enact on the currency question. He said: "I am in favor of legislation repealing the purchasing clause of the Sherman act and recognizing silver by authorizing the secretary of the treasury, with the approval of the president, to coin each month into standard silver dollars 2,000,000 ounces of the silver bullion now in the treasury. There is about $130,000,000 in silver bullion now in the treasury.

"I am also in favor of a monetary commission, to be composed of people who have studied monetary questions closely and thoroughly. The commission should consist of three senators, to be appointed by the president of the senate, three representatives, to be appointed by the speaker of the house, and three experts to be selected by the president of the United States, with authority to determine the time and place of meeting, and take evidence in Washington or in any other city in the United States, before the whole committee or before sub-committees, and to inquire into and report:

"First, on the change which has taken place in the relative value of gold and silver, and whether the change is due to the depreciation of silver or the appreciation of gold—the cause of the change—whether permanent or temporary, and effects thereof upon finance, trade, commerce, agriculture, labor and other interests of the country, and upon the standard of value in this and other countries.

"Second, on the policy of maintaining the double standard in the United States, and what should be the legal ratio between silver and gold when coined.

"Third, on the best means of restoring confidence in commercial and financial circles, and promoting international bimetallism.

"After the purchasing clause of the Sherman law is repealed the commission, by dividing into three sub-committees, can take evidence in the east, in the west and in the south, and report to congress by Dec. 1, at the beginning of the regular session, a valuable information on the change in the relative value of gold and silver, the causes thereof, the effects on the important interests of the country, the means of restoring confidence, and the best mode of promoting international bimetallism."

DROOP AND DIE.

Mothers Have Cause to Fear This Weather.

Interviews With Local Physicians of All Schools.

Infant Mortality Credited to Improper Food.

Lactated Food the Purest and Best Diet.

Happy Norwich Mothers Whose Children Live on It.

The extraordinary mortality from various forms of infantile indigestion this summer has led to careful inquiry, and the best authorities on the subject in this city have freely expressed their opinions.

Several of the best known physicians in Norwich were interviewed yesterday, and the following question asked:

"In view of the large death rate this summer of infants in Norwich, what do you recommend?"

The general sentiment of the profession was voiced in the following statement from one of the most successful practitioners among children. He said:

"There is nothing equal to lactated food and its use is fast becoming general among the profession. We find that it is retained on the stomach where other things are not retained.

"For cholera infantum I find it most valuable, and I generally give small portions often repeated when called to attend such cases. In almost every case where mothers are unable to nurse their infants, I find that lactated food answers well."

Many happy mothers in Norwich have used lactated food successfully when everything else has failed. They say that this food has kept their children strong and well during the dangerous summer season and many of them have recommended it to friends, who have had the same happy experience.

The principal element of mother's milk is sugar of milk. This is the basis of lactated food. With it is combined the nutritious elements of the great cereals, wheat and barley, and the necessary bone-forming salts. This makes lactated food a perfect and natural substitute for mother's milk.

It must be borne in mind that lactated food is so inexpensive that it is within the reach of every family. One hundred and fifty meals can be made from a dollar package of the food, and when prepared for the use of infants it costs less than five cents a quart.

Mothers should remember that cholera infantum can be more easily prevented than cured. Simply feed the baby with pure lactated food, and the child will keep well and strong.

The Voice of the People.

Prominent Persons Speak Highly of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.

Hundreds of persons to our knowledge have voluntarily pronounced Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy successful in curing them of disease. Here are a number of statements from people of prominence, that again demonstrate the great value of this medicine.

COMMANDER JAMES S. DEAN, OF GENERAL GRANT POST, G. A. R., RONDOUT, N. Y., contracted an aggravated stomach trouble in the army, which resulted in chronic dyspepsia. He suffered untold misery until he used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. "After using it for a week, says Commander Dean, I felt better, and in a short while was entirely cured, that terrible distress and food breaking up sour in my throat had all gone. Today there isn't a healthier man on earth."

THE REV. I. W. HILL, PASTOR METHODIST CHURCH, ACCORD, N. Y. I can speak in the highest terms of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy as a blood medicine. Ten years ago I had a cancer removed from my lip. I then began the use of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and to this day no sign of the ugly thing has appeared.

THE SISTERS OF CHARITY, ST. MARY'S FEMALE HOSPITAL, BROOKLYN, N. Y., says, "that the satisfaction we realize from the use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy for surpassed all expectation."

The worst cases of eczema, salt rheum and scrofula yield to its curative power, nervousness, sleeplessness, liver and kidney complaints, and all urinary troubles are cured by its use. The demand for this valuable preparation is so great that every drug store has it on sale.

THE BOOKWORM.

The whole day long I sit and read
Of days when men were men indeed
And women knightlier far;
I fight with Joan of Arc; I fall
With Talbot; from my castle wall
I watch the guiding star.

But when at last the twilight falls
And hangs about the book lined walls
And creeps across the page,
Then the enchantment goes, and I
Close up my volumes with a sigh,
To greet a narrower age.

Home through the pearly dusk I go
And watch the London lamplight glow
Far off in wavering lines—
A pale gray world with primrose gleams,
And in the west a cloud that seems
My distant Apennines.

Oh, life! so full of truths to teach,
Of secrets I shall never reach;
Oh, world of here and now;
Forgive, forgive me, if a voice,
A ghost, a memory be my choice,
And more to me than thou!

—Mary F. Robinson in London Sun.

A TWO EDGED SECRET.

Breakfast was nearly over, and the Baron and Baronne Silber were chatting as affectionately as lovers. She had just come from her boudoir and he from his racing stables, training courses, paddocks, etc., at Viroflay. Absorbed all day long in business in Paris, he had fallen into the habit of visiting his stud of evenings, in order to be present at dawn during the speeding of his horses.

Baron Karl Silber, an Austrian banker and financier, was an unknown nobody 10 years before. Now you could not open a morning journal of commerce, sport or anything else without running across some mention of his business, his races and racers, his dinners or his wife's beauty.

Above all, his wife's beauty, for Silber, who denied himself nothing, had indulged himself at 40 in the dangerous luxury of marrying charming Marguerite de Francmont, with whom all Paris had danced during four successive seasons, but whose poverty had reserved her for a marriage of this kind.

They lived happily enough, and Silber, recognizing his wife's really uncommon intelligence, did nothing—save in matters of finance—without consulting her with a frank and tender deference.

"Then," said he presently, rolling a last strawberry in sugar, "Guerin did come?"

"Yes, last night, just after you had started for Viroflay. I saw him and explained to him fully how you were the victim of indiscretions that brought suspicions upon you. 'Everything that happens at the stable,' said I, 'is reported straightway to the bookmakers of the Rue Vivienne. They know in advance what horse will run or be withdrawn; what horse carries the stable's money or is meant to win; briefly, daily and regularly, we are betrayed by some one. But by whom? Know this we must, for they are beginning to accuse us of dishonest practices.'"

"And he said?"

"Nothing, but asked if you suspected any one of your men."

"No special one, by Jove! I simply suspect them all."

"Precisely what I told him, whereupon he took notes and his departure, assuring me that a special agent would be at once put in charge of so delicate a matter. He will report as soon as he discovers anything."

"Which will be soon, I hope. You have had no other visitor, my dear?"

"Not one. I dined alone and spent the evening with mother. But you, Karl, what did you do at Viroflay?"

"Always the same thing—audited accounts, paid out money, examined the colts, and by 6 o'clock was out with the trainers speeding the racers. Kronstadt is not doing as well as he should. We shall have a hard pull to keep him in shape for the 25th. Why, hello, it's 10 o'clock. I must go. It's time for business."

"But you look so fatigued, my poor Karl."

"Zounds! I ought to be. I was up before the sun."

"But need you go to Viroflay so often, Karl?"

"Every day if I could, my dear. 'The eye of the master,' you know—above all, in the care of race horses. And I have, praise heaven, an eye that sees clearly."

"Undoubtedly, my dear," Marguerite assented calmly, tracing the tablecloth with the tip of her rosy nail. "But Guerin, I trust, will see clearer still. It is really as amusing as a play to me, dearest, to have anything to do with a detective whom they talk so much of as they talk of this Guerin."

* * * * * *

Two hours later Karl Silber, lying back in an easy chair in his office in the Rue Richelieu, smoked with half closed eyes the purest products of the Havana tobacco fields. Near him in a chair no less luxurious and with a weed drawn from the same source between his lips, young De Payzac—with a somewhat doubtful past—lolled and talked with wide open eyes, making the most of his position of intimate friend of so rich and renowned a man as the Baron Silber.

"The fact is, baron," said he, continuing the subject upon which he was launched, "you are or ought to be the happiest man in Paris today. Just think of it, the pot of money you've made at a single stroke—more than I would need to amuse me a whole, long year."

"One would say that fact annoyed you," Silber returned lazily, without stirring himself.

"Annoyed me? Not the least in the world, baron. I'm too much your friend for that. But when I contrast our two destinies! Why, everything in the world succeeds with you. Your business, look at it. It goes like a conflagration. Your racing, too, which heaven knows why you took it into your head to try—whether your own horses win or lose, it matters not—you find a way to win with the horses of others"——

"In a word," Silber interrupted, with some show of temper, "you mean to imply, like the rest, that I purposely allow my own horses to be beaten?"

Payzac continued with an imperturbable calm and a lightly shrugged shoulder

"But all of which is as nothing," said he, "compared with the fact that not only are you the legitimate possessor of the most beautiful woman in Paris, but you also know one not less lovely who lives in a more mysterious quarter of the city"——

The same tall banker sat erect, as if pulled with a spring, and looked about him uneasily.

"Payzac," said he, "h-s-sh! You rink too much at times. You, and you only, are to know that side of my life, a secret that must not be noised abroad."

"Of course," said Payzac, "I know it, for to whom else than me do you owe the acquaintance of the fair and beautiful Wanda?"

"Also the happiness of being loved for myself alone," assented Silber gratefully. "That poor foreign girl, with her sensitive soul—positively, Payzac, she loves me like a faithful dog, though I seek always to treat her like a companion and friend. Nothing so binds women to us as letting them believe they fully share in our lives. The baronne, for instance, who thinks I tell her everything, because I've the air of deciding nothing without consulting her. The result? An occupied mind for her and an affection for me—calm, possibly, but solid and devoted."

"Who could doubt it," cried Payzac fervently, diligently blowing smoke rings above his head. "But then, as I said, baron, everything succeeds with you. Your Viroflay combination is simply a masterpiece, which, by the way, reminds me, Silber, that I've a favor to ask of you." And the needy parasite, judging the ground well prepared, came to the true object of his visit.

* * * * * * *

A fortnight later the baron and baronne were again finishing breakfast in the little breakfast room where we met them first and where, now as then, the baron had just come in from a night at his stables.

"Haven't you lost something, Karl?" demanded the baronne suddenly, at the same time drawing from her pocket a railroad pass.

"Parbleu! yes," said the baron, "and a hunt I had for it, too, last night. Where did you find it, love?"

Before the baronne could answer, the door opened and a servant entered, bearing a card on a salver.

"Ah, Guerin!" said Karl. "May he come in here, dearest? A personage so potent should be treated like a family friend."

And, madame consenting, the world famed detective was ushered in. Freshly shaven, sedately dressed, monocle in eye and portfolio in hand, he looked like the head clerk of a legal firm and beamed upon his employers with the satisfied air of a bearer of good news.

"Well, monsieur," said the baronne, in fine humor herself, "have you discovered anything?"

"Everything, madame," Guerin returned calmly, depositing his portfolio on the table. "A curious story it is, too, and with a woman in it, of course, as I thought from the start."

"Perhaps, then," said the baron, with a meaning look at his wife, "you would desire, monsieur, to be alone with me awhile?"

But Guerin, priding himself upon his skill as a raconteur and preferring two auditors to one, made signs that he could gloss over things when necessary and plunged into his story.

"The truth is, baron," said he after a little thought, "we never have had a case that gave us so much trouble as this. Usually we have to trail people who, suspecting nothing, take no precautions. Here, on the contrary, all were under cover. It took us nearly a week to learn that Wilhelm, the bookmaker of the Rue Vivienne, had a lady love, and to find out who she was took us longer still, as Wilhelm visits her very irregularly. She is a foreigner—a Polish girl—who lives a secluded life in a little gem of a house in the vicinity of La Muette"——

"The vicinity of La Muette!" mechanically repeated the baron, going red and white by turns. "La Muette—the little [illegible]"

"Yes," said Guerin, though not comprehending, "but what will interest you most of all is that Wanda—the Polish girl's name, you know—on certain evenings receives another visitor, and that he—this visitor—comes from your Viroflay stables. You see the mouse in the cheese, do you not, baron?" and Guerin smiled significantly.

"The little wretch!" cried Silber again, starting up in his chair.

"Exactly," said Guerin carelessly, "but you would see more than one of the same kind, baron, were you a week in my place. Well, it is she—this Wanda—who sells to Wilhelm—for a round sum of course—the secrets of your stables, by which every one profits but you, baron. Nothing remains to be done now but to learn the name of this man who gives this girl the information that she in turn imparts to the bookmaker"——

"Ah!" said Silber, with sudden vivacity, "you do not know his name [illegible] [illegible] monsieur," chimed in the baronne, with resentful surprise.

"On the contrary, everything is done, madame," firmly declared Guerin, pouring his demitasse of brandy into his coffee cup, and draining it at a gulp, "everything, I repeat, because you do not know my agent, Couturier. This is the way it happened, you see"——

"But we don't—we don't see, Guerin, or want to see either!" Silber cried recklessly. "We see too much already—more than is necessary."

"On the contrary, M. Guerin," Marguerite protested sweetly, "your story is most interesting; proceed if you please."

"Then, as I said," continued Guerin, "it happened in this way. They go to bed very early at Viroflay, and last night—other nights also—when all were asleep, a man slipped out of there with great precautions, went to the station, took a train for Paris and reached the La Muette house about 11 p. m. Two hours later he came out again, took a fiacre, and was driven back to Viroflay, where his absence had been noticed by no one."

"The name of this man—you do not know it, you say?" demanded the baronne, becoming thoughtful.

"Not yet, madame. But"——

"Pooh!" said Silber, "it must have been my trainer, Hawkins. He's a great hand for girls, and the only man at Viroflay rich enough to have a nest in the Muette quarter."

"And has Hawkins a railroad pass, do you know, baron, as this man last night had?" Guerin pursued eagerly.

"A pass! You are sure he had a pass, monsieur?" cried Marguerite, considering intently the great red face of her husband suddenly beaded with perspiration.

"Absolutely, for Couturier shadowed him all the way from Viroflay, trying to see his face, which he kept concealed, and heard him tell the St. Lazare officials that he had somehow misplaced it. With a detail like that to work on, it won't take long to nab the fellow"——

"M. Guerin," interrupted the baronne with sparkling eyes, "no—go no farther. We know all we need to know; we shall do the rest. Decidedly, with your assistance one can learn anything!"

"It is my trade, madame," replied Guerin modestly, "but if madame likes and has time to spare there are other details of this business that it would amuse madame greatly to hear."

"Go on—I am not at all hurried. Give us the details, monsieur," and Mme. Silber smiled invitingly, with her eyes fixed always on the baron's face with an indefinable gaze. Proud of his success and warmed by his demitasse of eau de vie, Guerin settled back in his chair and crossed his legs comfortably.

"Two words, madame," said he, "and the milk of the cocoanut is yours. That Viroflay personage, first befooled by the bookmaker and the bookmaker's lady love, is a second time befooled by his—would you guess it?—by his wife, who has a lover."

Guerin paused for the laugh that did not come.

Silber and his wife were evidently indisposed to hilarity. White as the cloth his fingers drummed on, the baronne bit her lips and gazed straight before her, and Karl, with an effort to pull himself together, called tremulously for the brandy.

"Wanda, I must tell you," continued Guerin, "for my agent watched her house, too—Wanda, of course, numbers among her other friends a certain M. Rene de Payzac"——

The Silbers started, each in a different way.

"De Payzac! He makes three, then," the baron gasped out, losing all vestige of self command.

"Oh, no, not at least as you mean, baron. Payzac is merely an old friend of Wanda's, who limits himself now to replenishing his pockets through his one time idol. Courtier overheard them one night in the garden and learned the whole story. He wanted 10 louis, and she wouldn't give them to him, and he threatened if she didn't to tell her 'friend' how she sold to the bookmaker the secrets of his stable. 'Tell him if you dare,' says she, 'and I will in turn tell him with whom his wife spends her evenings when they believe him safely engaged with his horses.'"

Guerin broke off to laugh heartily. But still no one imitated him, and vexed at this lack of interest in his amusing "details" he rose, took his hat and began a cool adieu. He was tired of talking thus to the walls.

"What do we owe you, sir?" said Silber stiffly. "It is useless to trouble you to call here again. We'll drop this business where it stands."

"A thousand francs, baron," replied the chief of the Guerin agency, "but the names of the Viroflay unknown—you still lack that."

"We do not need it, sir," growled Silber, "and a thousand francs, Guerin! You're wrong; you can't be serious! You'll surely make a reduction?"

Guerin did not at once reply. He was carefully selecting a cigar from the box before him. This done, he raised his eyes, fixed them upon the discomfited couple and read the situation.

"No," said he, firmly, "1,000 francs, baron, just as I said. And if you haven't the worth of your money at that, you are indeed hard to please!"

Whereupon Guerin, the bill buttoned safe in his pocket, smilingly bowed himself out, leaving the baron, the baronne and, unluckily for himself, De Payzac, who chanced in at the moment to explain things at their ease.—Translated For San Francisco Argonaut From the French of Leon de Tinseau by E. The Glove In History.

The glove has served many purposes, such as the award of honor, token of love, payment of service and gift of gratitude. It was once also the signal of mercy, the dropping of the royal glove before a culprit under punishment securing instantaneous release, and from early times it has also served as a challenge to deadly combat. The habit of presenting gloves was kept up even into Puritan times, and finally grew into such an extravagance that the legislature of Massachusetts took the matter up and forbade the lavish glove giving under a penalty of £50 fine. The glove has served an important part in the world's history, and many interesting facts concerning its history could be recounted if space permitted.—Washington Star.

China's Postal System.

The Chinese have no governmental postal system, and letters are transported by means of so called "letter shops." These are somewhat like our express business, as packages are also sent, and both letters and packages are insured and registered, and charges are in proportion to the distance to be carried. There are said to be nearly 200 of these letter shops in Shanghai alone, which send out employees to work up custom. Foreign letters are conveyed from China to other countries by the postal systems of the latter, consuls being considered as postmasters for their own countries.—Public Opinion.

Where the Telegraph Is Least Used.

The four countries in the world which possess the smallest telegraph facilities are Peru, Paraguay, Uruguay and Persia. In the first named there are only 56 telegraph offices in the whole country and but 1,800 miles of wire. In the territory of Paraguay there are only 510 miles of wire in operation, and the entire telegraphic service of that country requires the services of but 38 persons. One line of 360 miles, owned and operated by the government, runs from Asuncion to Paso de Patria, the limit of Paraguayan territory, and the other 150 miles by the railroad from Asuncion to Pirapo.

Owing to high water and forest fires in that country the line is often interrupted for a days at a time. At Paso de Patria the line breaks, there being no cable over the Alto Parana river, which is three miles wide. Communication is therefore by canoe, which takes messages over in the morning to the Argentine side and returns to the Paraguayan side at night. An important telegram is often delayed 10 or 15 hours.—Hartford Courant.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON VII, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 13.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xxi, 27-39—Memory Verses, 30, 31—Golden Text, Phil. i, 29—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

27. "And when the seven days were almost ended the Jews which were of Asia, when they saw him in the temple, stirred up all the people and laid hands on him." After parting with the elders of Ephesus Paul and his companions continued their voyage and in due time landed at Tyre in Syria, then on to Cæsarea, where they tarried some days with Philip and his daughters, after which they continued on to Jerusalem and were gladly received by the brethren. Then that Paul might not seem to the zealous lawkeepers to disregard any of the laws and to prevent their anger he does a questionable thing, which does not accomplish any good. Both at Tyre and at Cæsarea Paul was warned by the Holy Spirit not to go to Jerusalem (verses 4, 11), but he would not be persuaded (verse 14).

28. "Crying out, Men of Israel, help! This is the man that teacheth all men everywhere against the people, and the law, and this place." Not a word of truth in either of these charges or in the one following. So that Paul could truly say, "They laid to my charge things that I knew not."

29. "For they had seen before with him in the city Trophimus an Ephesian whom they supposed that Paul had brought into the temple." Their last charge, therefore, was grounded on mere supposition. In their fanatical zeal for God they were disobeying the very commands of God, for it is written, "Let none of you imagine evil against his brother in your heart" (Zech. vii, 10; viii, 17). They knew nothing of the love which thinketh no evil, is not easily provoked, rejoiceth in the truth, hopeth all things (I Cor. xiii, 5-7).

30. "And all the city was moved, and the people ran together, and they took Paul and drew him out of the temple, and forthwith the doors were shut." How much of the devil there may be under the cloak of religion and apparent zeal for God! What righteous indignation (?) and the whole city moved, but it is all the work of the wicked one. He saves Paul, for the unseen Almighty One careth, and legions of angels are ready to do his bidding. See II Kings vi, 16, 17; Ps. xxxiv, 7; Math. xxvi, 53.

31. "And as they went about to kill him tidings came unto the chief captain of the band that all Jerusalem was in an uproar." Death is the devil's last and worst that he can do to a child of God, but even then he is only a black servant to usher us into the presence of our Lord, who has taught us not to fear them which kill the body (Math. x, 28). He has taught us not to be offended if we are put out of the company of religious people, and even if they kill us (John xvi, 1, 2).

32. "And when they saw the chief captain and the soldiers they left beating of Paul." This was probably one of the three beatings which he speaks of in II Cor. xi, 25. His back had many a scar ere this, but he took pleasure in all distresses for Christ's sake if only the power of Christ might rest upon him (II Cor. xii, 9, 10). We do well always to consider Him that endured such contradiction of sinners against Himself lest we be wearied and faint in our minds, for not many of us have, like Paul, resisted unto blood (Heb. xii, 3, 4).

33. "Then the chief captain came near and took him and commanded him to be bound with two chains and demanded who he was and what he had done." Of these bonds also he had been forewarned (verse 11 and chapter xx, 23), but these were neither his first nor his last chains for Jesus' sake (chapter xxviii, 20; II Tim. i, 16). These chains were but for a time and for the glory of God, but we read of everlasting chains for lost spirits (Jude 6; II Pet. ii, 4). Not present suffering, but the eternal is to be feared (Math. x, 28; xxv, 30, 41; Rev. xiv, 10, 11; xx, 15; xxi, 8).

34. "And some cried one thing, some another, among the multitude, and when he could not know the certainty for the tumult he commanded him to be carried into the castle." This is very suggestive of the tumult of today among religious people. There is such a crying of one thing and another by higher and lower and so critics, by the different denominations and by the posts and press that it would almost seem impossible to know the certainty of anything, but those who cling to the book may know and will know if they only take God at His word (Isa. viii, 20, R. V.).

35. "And when he came upon the stairs so it was that he was borne of the soldiers for the violence of the people." Violence and strife in the city, sure enough (Ps. lv, 9). But the day will come when Jerusalem shall be called a city of truth; when her walls shall be salvation and her gates praise; when the work of righteousness shall be peace, and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance forever (Zech. viii, 3; Isa. lx, 18; xxxii, 17).

36. "For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, Away with him!" So they cried out concerning his Master (Luke xxiii, 18; John xix, 15), and He taught us that we must expect His treatment if faithful unto Him (John xv, 20). How few of us in these days seem to be counted worthy of this honor! Is it because we are so little like Him, so unfaithful to testimony, so mixed up with the world, or is it because we fear suffering for His sake?

37. "And as Paul was to be led into the castle he said unto the chief captain, May I speak unto thee? Who said, Canst thou speak Greek?" During all this uproar and tumult Paul was doubtless communing with his unseen Friend and Master. His heart would be saying: "I am Thine, O Lord, for Thy service. What wilt Thou have me to do?" (chapter xxvii, 23; ix, 6)? Captain and soldiers and angry mob were nothing to him as compared with his own Captain.

38. "Art not thou that Egyptian which before these days madest an uproar and leddest out into the wilderness 4,000 men that were murderers?" Here is a compliment for a faithful follower of the meek and lowly Jesus. A man who preached peace and went about rescuing people from the hands of the father of all liars and murderers (John viii, 44) to be accused of being the leader of 4,000 murderers—that is a feather for your cap, Paul, more fellowship with your Master. Blessed privilege to be misunderstood and falsely accused if only for His sake.

39. "But Paul said, I am a man which am a Jew of Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city, and I beseech thee suffer me to speak unto the people." Though suffering in body from the beating and the rough handling, his heart longed to tell if possible once more the story of Jesus. The false accusation was not worth noticing, but it was worth while to get another opportunity to speak of Jesus. Fellow believer, we are citizens of no mean city. Compare Phil. iii, 20, with Rev. xxi, 2. Is your heart so stirred by this heavenly citizenship that you long above all things to speak of Him?

The last annual circle of wood leaves an accumulation of living cells upon its surface, and toward midsummer these cells produce an abundance of new ones until the aggregate is sufficient to form a new annual layer. This process on common trees requires about six weeks.—Exchange.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 13.
Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—How much have we borne for Christ? Acts xxi, 30-36; Phil. i, 29.

An incidental proof of the divinity of Jesus Christ is the character of the kingdom He founded. He was at least no impostor, for He did not found His kingdom upon promises of glory and honor, but upon a cross. "If any man will come after Me, let him take up his cross and follow Me," were His own words. He constantly emphasized the fact that if men became His disciples they might expect burdens to be borne and trials to be endured. No more practical test can be put to our religion than the question of the topic, How much have we borne for Christ? A religion that costs us nothing is usually of no very high character.

1. The necessity of having something for Christ (Acts xxi, 30-36). The very character of Christianity makes it absolutely certain that the true followers of Christ must endure hardship and persecution for Him. Christianity is opposed to the customs, beliefs and practices of the sinful heart and the evil world, and as a consequence no sooner is it presented to men than it arouses intense opposition. We see this illustrated in Paul's case at Jerusalem. Paul's preaching, the Jews claimed, was "against the people, and the law, and the place." Its tendency was to overthrow the customs and honored institutions of that people, and the natural result followed. A mob seized him, and had it not been for the speedy arrival of the chief captain they would most likely have taken his life. The character of Christianity is still the same, and it brings the same results. Are we as willing to bear for Christ as Paul was and as Christ was for us?

2. The origin of what must be borne (Phil. i, 29). These sufferings and persecutions do not come by chance. The hand of God is in them, for "unto it is given in behalf of Christ not only to believe on Him, but also to suffer for His sake." Not only does God give us our faith. He also gives us our sufferings. This is a comforting fact, and one that ought to strengthen us in the midst of all our sufferings. It teaches us that we are not at the mercy of the cruel world, but our Father's hand is guiding us even in the darkness, and that One who is our Friend is over all things. It teaches us that these sufferings must be in some way for our good, for He would not afflict us but for our profit. May the example of Paul and the fact of God's presence even in our sufferings make us willing to bear anything for Him who bore all things for us.

LOWER WAGES, OF COURSE.

The Hon. David A. Wells has been interviewed at Watch Hill and is reported as having said in reply to the question whether the reduction of the tariff schedules would tend to reduce wages: "Yes. Wages, like everything for sale, have been forced to a high standard that cannot be maintained. The reduction of wages will not decrease the comforts of the wage-earner, however. The decreased cost of necessaries and of some luxuries will maintain the equilibrium."

If this had been said to the voters in the fall of 1892 the democratic party could not have carried Connecticut or any other manufacturing state. The workingman likes good wages and he is willing to let "the equilibrium" take care of itself.

The reformers of Edward Atkinson's type estimate the increase of imports under tariff reform will be two hundred and eighty millions, and these foreign made goods will, of course, tend to lessen labor and cheapen wages in America.

The democratic workingman must feel cheerful when told tariff reform must lower his wages. That confession tells what has affected business and stagnated the markets. Wages are going to be lower and goods cheaper—a new business basis is to be established.

The manufacturers and merchants are waiting for "the equilibrium" to get into gear so they may know what wages to pay and what prices it is safe to offer for goods so that a profitable business may be carried on.

THE PARTY OF ECONOMY.

That is what the democratic party advertises itself to be, and if it could only live up to its pretences it would be. The republican party has always run this great country in the interests of the people, economically and politically, but its opponents set up the "billion-dollar-Congress" howl, and then convened a Congress themselves that could not keep to "the billion-dollar" line when the appropriations came to be footed up. Now, the democratic administration has been running the government on its own hook for five months, and the following is the comparative result:

	1892.	1893.
March	$ [illegible]	$ [illegible]
April	[illegible]	[illegible]
May	[illegible]	[illegible]
June	[illegible]	[illegible]
July	[illegible]	[illegible]
Totals	$[illegible]	$[illegible]

Excess of expenses in running the government over republican rule for five months, $7,861,443.

Grover's "wild team" promises to give the country a lively turn in the way of expenses. The democratic party does not get full control of the executive and legislative arms of the government often, but it will make the most of its opportunity during its short lease of power.

FREQUENTLY MISLED.

The present century, says Godey's Magazine for September, has demonstrated itself an era of agitation; it is essentially an age of leagues and brotherhoods and associations. Scarcely a year passes but some new prophet arises among men, denouncing or exhorting as his particular mission may demand; and as the inevitable result of his ministrations some new compact is formed, some new society organized, having for its especial object the development or the abolition—as the case may be—of some or other of the many phases of our social life.

Among such prophets there have come among us from time to time women of energy and intelligence, whose ostensible mission has been the enlightenment and emancipation of their sister women, and consequent thereon the ultimate regeneration of the whole human family. Earnest such women always are; logical, occasionally; and almost invariably more or less injudicious. The latter quality has, unfortunately, too often betrayed itself to their disadvantage; and in their laudable endeavor to achieve fame they have not infrequently chosen the swiftest and surest roads to oblivion.

CROP PROSPECTS.

The August report of the Department of Agriculture shows injury in the corn, the spring wheat, the spring rye and oats on account of drouth and variable weather.

Barley, buckwheat and potatoes show a decline, and the potato crop report for August has been lower only twice in the past ten years.

The hay crop is large and has been secured in good condition, but it is considerable less than in 1892.

The apple crop will be very light, and in several states it will be a complete failure.

The general average upon tobacco has fallen off 10 points.

There promises to be a large crop of grapes.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Congress is moving like a snail, but the hungry workingmen are hustling to get a dinner!

Mayor Harrison of Chicago is anticipating riots among the unemployed. See that they have bread and they will not become violent!

President Cleveland says: "Suddenly financial distrust and fear have sprung up on every side." Revolutionary platforms usually produce such sudden effects.

At the ratio of 26 to 1 the silver dollar intrinsically worth its face would be as large as a tea-plate. Think of carrying silver dollars in a case with strap over shoulder as the amateur photographer carries a kodak!

The scientists are trying to find out why it is that when the aurora borealis shoots up, the thermometer runs down. Perhaps it is for the same reason that when democratic sophistry gets the lead all business goes down.

Hoke Smith's democratic order to blind, aged, crippled and invalid pensioners:—"Hustle around there and prove you didn't perjure yourself and that my predecessor was not a knave within 30 days or your name is Dennis and your filed evidence a fraud."

The New York Herald wants the government to furnish work to the unemployed. If congress would vote to build a road from Calais to San Francisco and put all idle men to work upon it, it would be completed in ninety days. Perhaps this is the time to get such a highway built.

Cleveland's message hasn't cleared the atmosphere yet. It was "strong and patriotic," but it was not electrical. If he had made it thunder from Maine to California his friends in Ohio would have been more careful about their platform building. Now it is Neal, free silver and free trade.

Charles A. Dana, editor of The New York Sun, passed his seventy-fifth birthday this week. He is along in years and experience, but in editorial harness he still shows coltish qualities. With all his physical vigor and mental force he could not fill an office in Connecticut. After seventy years of age the men of Connecticut become legal imbeciles, whatever their ability, but regardless of this legal rating Connecticut has men of great minds that have passed the four-score line.

TOPICAL.

A Horse With Trunks.

The $150,000 stallion Ormonde numbers six Saratoga trunks in his travelling impediments. His linen and woolen outfits are as extensive and as elaborate as those of a Beau Brummel, and there are different rigs for every variety of climate and condition. It is a little difficult to credit the report that he eats nothing but imported hay, however. That kind of fodder is being exported instead of imported just at present, and the native article is about as likely as any brand that grows.—[Boston Herald.

Christian Unity.

The seven churches in Ashland, Kan., have settled down to a period of economy and christian unity. The experience of years had proved that whereas Ashland had seven preachers, the town virtually needed but one preacher. A few weeks ago the seven little congregations got together and took a vote to choose the most popular of the seven shepherds. Rev. Mr. Milleck of the Methodist church was elected, and hereafter he is to eschew all disputed dogmas of theology in his sermons, which will be heard by the seven congregations joined in one. The other six ministers received their discharge with good nature, and have sought greener fields for the extension of the Lord's kingdom.—[Springfield Republican.

Was Bishop Brooks a Cremationist?

It is stated in a volume on the history of the cremation movement in this country that Bishop Brooks warmly approved of the society and was its first vice president. His letter of reply to the invitation to take a part in the work is published, and it would seem as if he were one of the ardent advocates of cremation to any one who reads it. And yet, though he died of what was called a contagious disease, he was buried under the usual forms of interment, and the fact that he was a cremationist has been quietly kept out of sight by those who have stood near to him. The fact, however, is not to be denied, though it is not known that he had ever expressed a wish in regard to his own cremation.—[Boston Herald.

VOICE OF THE PRESS.

Triplets!

The three D's—democracy, distrust, destruction!—[New York Recorder.

Exasperating!

Nothing could be more exasperating than the tardiness with which congress is taking hold of the work for which it was called together.—[New York Herald.

How to Restore Confidence.

"What the country needs most in its distress is not so much the repeal of the Sherman law, but the repeal or repudiation of the Chicago platform."—[Senator Platt.

Real Supporters of the President.

The republicans in Congress are anxious to legislate at once, in harmony with the president's suggestion. It is the democrats that are making a democratic president miserable.—[The Lewiston Evening Journal.

What to Expect.

There is a peculiar free trade flavor in ex-Secretary Whitney's allusion to the "lower classes." When the free trade regime is in full swing, American farmers will probably be called "peasants."—[New York Press.

Ready for It.

Gold is coming over by the millions from abroad and new currency is coming out at the rate of six millions and a quarter a day. The great American public have their hats out and are ready for it.—[The Courant.

Mugwump Antics.

This is no time, and here no place, for mugwumpian antics. These amuse us in hours of relaxation, and speed the interlude of careless ease. We are serious now. This is an emergency in which we need the help of men of action, of common sense and courage.—[The Washington Post.

He Might Swap Places.

There is one United States senator in Washington who says he has neither read the president's message nor has he heard it read. His name is Murphy and he hails from the imperial state of New York. If this is a specimen of the interest he takes in public affairs he might swap places with some wooden Indian stationed in front of a cigar store.—[Boston Herald.

The Same Old Fraud!

Inconsistent in everything else, the democracy can always be counted on to blunder, procrastinate and attempt to shuffle out of the responsibility that rightfully belongs to it. The possession of power does not change its nature. It is the same old fraud and humbug that has stood in the way of national prosperity and progress for the past thirty years.—[New York Press.

In Madagascar a dissatisfied husband has only to give his wife a piece of money and say, "Madam, I thank you;" and, according to the laws of Madagascar, he is divorced straightaway.

Though pure and simple, and so mild
It might be used by any child
Yet SOZODONT is so swift and sure
That mouth and teeth, with wondrous speed,
From tartar and from taint are freed
Till they become sweet, white and pure.

To get relief from indigestion, biliousness, constipation or torpid liver without disturbing the stomach or purging the bowels, take a few doses of Carter's Little Liver Pills, they will please you.

Palpitation of the heart, nervousness, tremblings, nervous headache, cold hands and feet, pain in the back, and other forms of weakness are relieved by Carter's Iron Pills, made specially for the blood, nerves and complexion.

Castoria.

Castoria cures Colic, Constipation;
Sour Stomach, Diarrhœa, Eructation;

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles!

SYMPTOMS—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia.

We recommend Carter's Iron Pills to every woman who is weak, nervous and discouraged; particularly those who have thin, pale lips, cold hands and feet, and who are without strength or ambition. These are cases for which Carter's Iron Pills are specially prepared, and this class cannot use them without benefit. Valuable for men also. In metal boxes, at 50 cents. Sold by druggists or sent by mail. See advertisement elsewhere.

LINES ARE FORMING.

Senators Getting Ready for the Silver Battle.

GORMAN SEEMS TO HOLD THE KEY.

Republicans Urging the Settlement of the Points at Issue.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The brief proceedings in the senate yesterday, coming after the election of the day before, indicate that the parties in the senate are beginning to line up.

There is a slight disaffection on the Republican side on the part of a few silver men, but generally they have adopted the policy of annoying their opponents in the majority by insisting upon an immediate disposition of the silver question, and therefore resisting every motion to adjourn, and calling for the yeas and nays to put the senators on record. One of the Republican leaders in financial matters said that they would keep up this line of action until the majority was obliged to proceed to business. He insisted that the Democrats could not charge the Republicans with partisan action, inasmuch as they were simply trying to give immediate effect to the president's message.

On the other hand the Democratic senators resent the attempt of the Republicans to control the business of the senate and dictate the character of legislation that shall be attempted. They have resolved that they will not permit action until they have themselves and the conduct of the Republicans had the effect to consolidate all of the elements on the Democratic side upon this resolution.

Agreed Upon a Line of Policy,

Meanwhile, the Democratic caucus committee is in almost constant session, trying to arrange a plan of action, and the keenest parliamentarians on the Republican side are quietly conferring among themselves to devise means to carry out their ideas, so that the session in the senate promises to be interesting. Between now and Monday next, it is hoped by the friends of the administration in the senate that some possible plan of action may be agreed upon on the silver question, but there are slender grounds for confidence in the developments that have cropped out thus far.

Senator Gorman appears to hold the key to the situation. Not only is he chairman of the Democratic caucus, but he is also chairman of the "steering committee," the committee which he himself appointed under the authority of the caucus.

This Committee Is Composed Of Senator Gorman, chairman; Blackburn of Kentucky, Cockrell of Missouri, Walthall of Mississippi, Ransom of North Carolina, Vilas of Wisconsin, Gray of Delaware and White of Louisiana. Messrs. Blackburn, Cockrell, Walthall and Ransom are avowed silver men; Messrs. Vilas, Gray and White are avowedly opposed to the free coinage of silver, and stand squarely upon the president's suggestions of unconditional repeal; but where Senator Gorman stands no one but himself can tell, for he has taken no one into his confidence.

Just at this moment, however, attention is concentrated upon the struggle in the house between the silver and anti-silver delegates. Yesterday was given up to conferences and the exchange of formal propositions between the conflicting parties, and some optimistic members feel that progress was made toward an agreement.

CHARLES G. EDDY SUICIDES.

Was Vice President of Reading During McLeod's Administration.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—A special to The Sun from Chicago says: Charles G. Eddy, who was vice president of the Reading railroad during President McLeod's administration, was found dead in Washington park last evening, with a bullet hole in his head. The wound was self-inflicted.

Nearly three months ago Mr. Eddy and his wife came here from the east, taking rooms at the Metropole hotel. Two weeks ago Mrs. Eddy left the city, going to a Wisconsin summer resort. Mr. Eddy seemed to take life easily, having apparently no cares.

Yesterday at noon he left the hotel, but did not return to dinner, as was his custom. It was 8:30 o'clock when a man walking over the grass beneath the trees in Washington park stumbled over a body. It was still warm. In one hand was a revolver. Policemen were called and the body was taken to the morgue, where papers in the pocket showed the self-murderer to be Mr. Eddy. Why he killed himself no one last night could tell.

JOYOUS NEW BEDFORD.

Mills Will Start Up on Monday—Situation Much Improved.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 11.—The Wamsutta mills will start up Monday in accordance with their plan to run a week on and off, which was announced when the mills were closed last week.

The situation is so much improved, however, that it is thought that it will not be necessary to close up at the end of next week.

The week's idleness has resulted in the curtailment of 500,000 yards of cloth in these mills alone, and has eased up on the banks to the extent of $30,000, which would have been demanded in currency for the pay of the help.

In nearly all the mills in town, with the exception of the Potomska mills, work will be gradually resumed, beginning Monday.

The City Manufacturing company, manufacturers of fine yarns, employing 375 hands, have posted notices that the mill would be shut down for the rest of the week. Work will be resumed Monday.

TWO MONTHS SINCE RAIN.

Drought In Indiana Dries Up Streams and Ruins Crops.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 11.—It has now been over two months since rain has fallen in northern, central and eastern Indiana in any appreciable quantity. During that period there have been just two showers, neither of them more than enough to lay the dust for a few hours on the country roads. The precipitation at Indianapolis is the lowest ever recorded, except in 1881.

Reports from central and northern Indiana are extremely unfavorable. The corn crop will be short everywhere, and in many sections it will be an entire failure. Pastures are so dry that farmers are being compelled to feed their cattle. Potato bugs and drouth have almost ruined late potatoes in many counties. All the smaller streams have almost entirely dried up, and even the Wabash river, the largest in the state, is now nothing but a small stream, with scarcely any current.

OUTLOOK SERIOUS.

Austrian Sanitary Council Warns the People Against Cholera.

VIENNA, Aug. 11.—An official statement issued by the sanitary council of Austria declares that the condition of the country with regard to cholera is very precarious—much more serious than it was in 1892.

The home office has sent a circular to government [illegible] try enjoining the strictest precautions.

Cholera has broken out among navvies—mostly Italians and Croatians—building a railway at Marmaros, on the Galician frontier. Thirty-five have already died. One hundred have fled in the direction of their homes, without waiting for their wages.

Seven cases of cholera and two deaths have occurred at Czernawoda.

Another English Slugger Coming.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Dick Burge, the English 140-pound fighter, has deposited £500 with Sporting Life to bind the match with Jack Dempsey. The fight, which will be for $10,000 a side and the championship of the world, will take place in the United States early in December. The articles provide that the match will be under the Marquis of Queensberry rules.

Tenements Burned at Monson.

PALMER, Mass., Aug. 11.—Four tenement blocks at Monson, owned by R. M. and Theodore Reynolds, caught fire at 7 o'clock this morning. The damage by the fire was confined to two tenements. The tenants lose more by water than fire. John Lyons is the heaviest loser and is insured for $1000 in the British American. Other tenants not insured, but loss small.

Cholera at Naples.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Three deaths from cholera were reported in Naples in the last 24 hours. Cases of cholera are constantly occurring in the districts around Naples. In the 24 hours ending at noon yesterday, 36 new cases of cholera and four deaths were reported in Brabilov, and 61 new cases and 10 deaths in Soolina, Roumania.

Another Fight For Dixon.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—George Dixon said last night that he had already signed to fight Solly Smith before the Coney Island Athletic club on Sept. 25 for a $10,000 purse. Smith has not as yet placed his signature to articles of agreement, but will in all likelihood do so today. Dixon leaves for Boston this afternoon.

Has Squandered Several Fortunes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—Cashier Fred Grotenfend of the Bank of Shasta county, at Reading, Cal., is a defaulter for more $100,000. He has squandered his father's estate, amounting to $70,000, and has wasted several small estates left in his charge. All his stealings have gone in mining stock speculation.

Children Drowned While Bathing.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Edith Flay, Lizzie Pond and Ella Johnson, aged 10, 11 and 13 years, respectively, were drowned in Newark bay, while bathing off the foot of West Forty-first street, Bayonne, last evening. The bodies were recovered.

SENATOR LODGE'S VIEWS.

Majority For Repeal of Silver Law In Senate Very Narrow.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Senator Lodge, who is in town on a brief visit, gave this view of the situation to a reporter:

In the house the Democratic party, which has a majority of 92, is divided in pretty equal portions between repealers and free silver men. There can be little doubt that the practically solid Republican vote and the Democratic repealers constitute a good majority of the total membership, and that if a vote could be reached repeal would follow. But the confusion is so great, even the anti-silver Democrats quarreling among themselves, that no coherent plan of action has yet been developed.

"My own impression would be, although it is rash to make any predictions, that in the course of three weeks, and after a debate of that length, they will reach a vote in the house, and it will pass, I trust, unconditional repeal."

"How about the senate?"

"In the senate the majority for repeal, if there is one, is extremely narrow. It is impossible to reach a vote there without the assent of the silver men or closure, and at the present time there seems no indication of either."

TEMPERANCE ADVOCATES

Discuss Temperance Laws at the Point of Pines Meeting.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—The Point of Pines temperance meeting discussed today "Temperance Laws," with President E. H. Capen of Tufts college in the chair.

President Capen spoke at the opening of the necessity of enforcing reasonable temperance laws, and said that he thought a great deal of the difficulty in doing this resulted from the apathy of the churches. He thought, however, that public sentiment was growing in the right direction and that there was a growing feeling that a man should not advocate putting by his neighbor's door that which he would not have beside his own.

Ex-Governor D. H. Goodell of New Hampshire spoke of the temperance laws in his state and the result of their enforcement. He also attributed much of the failure of the law to the apathy of the churches.

CHINA ANSWERS RUSSIA.

Intends to Occupy Chinese Pamirs—Will Not Recede an Inch.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The Chinese government, replying to Russia's recent demand for an explanation of the massing of Chinese troops on the frontier of the Pamirs, says that China intends to occupy only the Chinese Pamirs, from which she will not recede an inch.

The note adds that China does not intend to interfere with Russia's occupying other parts of the Pamirs, but she hopes that Russia will confine her operations to those parts.

Another Failure Admitted.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 11.—Joseph Foster's flying machine was taken from the machine shop of Zina Goodell in Salem yesterday afternoon and conveyed to the old tannery on Mason street, where it will be allowed to be forgotten. The idea of making it fly has been given up.

TWO WEEKS HENCE.

House Vote on Silver Bill Will Be Taken.

THIS AGREED TO BY BOTH SIDES.

Representative Wilson to Introduce Bill for Repeal of Sherman Act.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The conferers in the house have agreed to ask the house to fix a date, two weeks hence, for a direct vote on the bill to repeal the Sherman law, and such amendments as the free silver people may offer. The joint conferers held a brief meeting this morning, just before the house convened, and it was soon discovered that both sides showed a disposition to take prompt action.

It was agreed that Mr. Wilson of West Virginia should introduce the bill repealing the Sherman act, and then Mr. Bland is to come forward with a special order providing that after two weeks' debate a direct vote shall be taken on the bill and amendments, and that no dilatory motions shall be entertained. This order is to be acted upon in the house

Without Any Filibustering.

If a majority of the house is prepared to adopt the order there is no reason why the Sherman law should not be repealed in the house, at least, as the friends of that measure are confident they have a good working majority in its behalf.

The anti-silver men are greatly encouraged by their preliminary advantage, for they claim that the passage of the repeal bill in the house will necessarily have a beneficial effect upon the senate.

TWO HONEST MEN

Pick Up Envelope Containing $1000 and Restore It to the Owner.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Aug. 11.—Thursday afternoon two gentlemen walking along Merrimac street picked up an envelope, which was found to contain a large roll of bills and some coin. A short distance in front of them they observed Rev. Ira A. McQuillen, and thinking that possibly he had dropped the package, hastened to him.

In response to an inquiry whether he had lost anything, he examined his pockets and excitedly informed the gentlemen that he had lost an envelope containing $1000, which he had just received from the bank. Much as he was affected by the discovery of his loss, he was even more overcome when the money was returned to him by the finders.

More Money For Brockton.

BROCKTON, Mass., Aug. 11.—The Home national bank of this city, with a capital stock of $200,000, has issued but $45,000 in its bank bills, although it is entitled to $180,000 by depositing the required amount of United States bonds. An additional $100,000 in bonds has now been sent to Washington, and in about three weeks the bank will have $90,000 in bright new bills to loan or use during the financial stringency.

Couldn't Live With His Wife.

WASHINGTON, N. J., Aug. 11.—This borough is considerably excited over the disappearance of J. Frank Tinsman, a prominent citizen and tax collector of the borough. No one knew why he left until a letter was received saying that he could not live with his wife, and that he therefore concluded to leave. He took with him a considerable sum of money and his valuable horse and wagon.

Plots and Counterplots.

PANAMA, Aug. 11.—The government claims to have discovered a general plan for a revolution, concocted by parties now in Curacao, and has arrested in Bogota Santiago, Perez Garcon, Santos Acosta and others. The opposition leaders here declare that the whole affair is an attempt to discredit them, and that no party desires or is prepared for a revolution.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Dealings In Leading Securities In Boston and New York.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—In the outside market call money is quoted at 8 to 10 per cent, and time money is nominally 6 per cent.

The situation appears to be in a more cheerful state. The market opened with prices at a higher figure, and the tendency was toward an upward movement. The news of the street is very dull. Advices from London state that the flurry in our market has little or no effect upon the valuations there. Bankers there have come to regard the silver question and the recent agitation in America as purely local affairs.

In the movement this morning Atchison came out at 16, an advance of ¾, and rose to 16⅝. Boston and Albany was firm, and there were but few bids for stock. Chicago, Burlington and Quincy opened at 75⅝ and advanced rapidly to 76⅝. General Electric was active and strong. This stock's first quotation this morning was at 45¼, a slight advance. This was followed by lively transactions which carried the price up to 47, an advance of 1⅝ per cent. A slump followed toward noon, which carried the price down 1 point to 46.

Sugar common also responded to the general tone of the market and sold at 73⅝ at the opening. There was considerable business done in this stock and the price was carried up rapidly to 75, an advance of 1⅝ per cent. This price, however, was top for the morning as sales followed which carried the price down to 73. General Electric was heavily bought yesterday by houses which were prominent sellers the day before and it was said that most of these purchases were to cover shorts.

The scarcity of currency was very great again yesterday, and the money brokers' offices were thronged with customers who were selling their boards at good premiums. It is a matter of surprise to many persons that this scarcity of currency does not show some signs of abatement in view of the great amount of gold now on its way to this country, but according to reports the premium paid for any kind of currency and for gold is higher now than at any time since the currency premium set in.

"I crossed the threshold of the exposition with respect," says the Danish commissioner general to the World's fair, "but will leave it with the greatest admiration for the American people."

In the American newspaper pavilion at the Centennial exposition in 1876 every newspaper in the United States excepting four was on file and available for any visitor who might call for it. In this particular at least 1876 was ahead of the World's fair of 1893, where nothing of the kind has been undertaken.

FIGS AND THISTLES.

Fortune smiles on the man who hopes.

It never hurts the value of gold to call it brass.

The man who would be a leader must always be the first to start.

We forget all about the roots of the tree when we are eating the fruit.

People who can talk about themselves to the satisfaction of others are very scarce.

The man who expects to bid his sins goodby one at a time will never get them all behind him.

Some preachers try so hard to feed a few worldly giraffes that they almost starve the Lord's sheep.—Ram's Horn.

And He Grew Bolder.

"Just once!" he cried, with lover's zeal,
"Dear Katie, may I plant a
Kiss upon the hand that pressed
The hand of the infanta!"

"Yes, George"—she blushed and bowed her head—
"But you must understand
I also pressed—my—lips," she said,
"To the infanta's hand."

NORWICH AND VICINITY

CITY NEWS.

An early fall is indicated in the first chip of the katydid.

Services at Christ church are discontinued during August.

Sunday the steamer Ella will go to the shore resorts as usual.

Mr. Gerard L. Parker is spending several days at Cottage City.

The city missionary is in great need of children's clothing for all ages, also sheets and pillow cases for needy families.

Miss Kathern M. Short of New York Normal college, class '96, is the guest of her friend, Miss Sara Crawford of East Broad street.

Postmasters have received orders from the post office department not to accept checks. All payments hereafter must be made in specie.

Steamer Penham, burned at her wharf at Providence this week, will be towed to Noank in a day or two, where she will be rebuilt above deck.

A front wheel on the wagon of Fellows & Rice, contractors, was wrecked in a collision with an electric car on lower Franklin street Friday afternoon.

We are glad to learn that Mr. Ralph H. Park, who has been a great sufferer from erysipelas for the last few weeks, is now convalescing and will soon be out again.

Miss Anna E. and Lizzie Fellows left on Thursday for Bethlehem, N. H. They were accompanied by Miss Edith Fellows and Miss Alice Bennett. The party went by way of Portland.

Miss Hattie Noyes, accompanied by Mrs. George Allen, Miss Minna Eaton and Miss Lottie Monroe of Fall River, left this morning to join a party of friends at the Locust cottage, Martha's Vineyard.

Grand Chancellor Lucius F. Norton, and Grand Master at Arms Williams, K. of P., of New Haven visited Gardner Lodge Friday night in their official capacity. The third degree was worked.

The Hon. John Douglas, one of the most prominent citizens of Minneapolis and managing director of the United States Savings and Loan company of St. Paul, was in town yesterday, and made brief but pleasant calls on his business friends.

One of the two steamers of the new line running north successfully this year for the first time between Boston and Winthrop—an important suburb of the Hub—is named the E. P. Shaw, in honor of the Massachusetts senator, father of Mr. E. P. Shaw, Jr., of this city. The steamer was originally built for the Haverhill and Newburyport line.

Internal Revenue Collector Hutchinson issued a circular letter Friday afternoon, announcing that the office will not hereafter accept checks or drafts in payment of revenues. Not less than 1,000 of these circulars will be sent out. It affects all merchants who are in the habit of buying stamps for tobacco, beer, cigars, cigarettes, oleomargarine and special taxes.

As a sample of the effects of the stringency, the machine manufacturing company of J. B. Marrow & Sons of Hartford, formerly of this city, which, four or five weeks ago, couldn't find room enough to accommodate their fast-increasing force of hands and rushing business, have now discharged at least half of the men.

The Clippers and Westerly ball teams meet on the Greeneville diamond today, and a hot game is expected. Driscoll and Counihan will be the home team battery, and the visitors play in the following order: O'Toole, catcher; Kennedy, pitcher; Shackley, first base; Robinson, second base; Shea, third base; Moriarty, shortstop; Tuckerman, right field and pitcher. Clancy, center field; McCarren, right field.

The Willimantic merchants' excursion Thursday was an ill-fated affair. Through some misunderstanding, the boat left Watch Hill an hour earlier than advertised and sixty or more were left who were attending a ball game near the beach. A few of the band boys were also left at Norwich, where they got off for refreshments, returning home. The unfortunate sixty took a boat to Stonington and from there went by rail to New London, where the railroad company connected a passenger car with a special freight which took them home. At just 10 o'clock the crowd marched up Railroad street, Willimantic, headed by a few members of the band who played with much unction on a few brass and tenor instruments the familiar air, "How Dry I Am."

Wholesalers Take Action.

The two wholesale butcher representative houses in this city have notified retailers that all meat purchased must be settled by the Wednesday following the week of the sale. A failure to accede to the demand, it is announced, will result in the refusal to do business further with the offending marketman.

A Valuable Ally.

Mr. J. D. Barton, assistant manager of the Walter L. Main circus, has friends in this city whose numbers swell with his every visit to these parts. He is as valuable an adjunct to any amusement organization as he has proved himself a newspaper man of uncommon capacity.

The Rev. Dr. Graves to Preach.

The Rev. Samuel Graves, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church from 1859 to 1869, is visiting in the city. For several years past Dr. Graves has been president of the Atlanta Baptist seminary and professor of theology and homiletics. Dr. and Mrs. Graves have a cottage at Vineyard Haven, where they are spending the summer. While in the city they are guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Carroll, on Broadway.

FIFTY PER CENT. WEEKLY.

The Richmond Stove Company's Original Monetary Proposition.

The Richmond Stove company have undertaken an original and at once popular method of meeting their pay roll obligations during the continuance of the business disturbance.

At noon Friday the employes in the different departments were summoned to the moulding room, where Manager W. C. Higgins in a hopeful and neatly worded speech, explained that owing to the scarcity of currency, the men were offered 50 per cent. of their weekly stipend until the commercial sky cleared, when each man will receive weekly a week and a half's pay until his balance shall have been liquidated.

The employes gratefully agreed to the proposition.

Stone for Public Buildings.

President Murphy of the Columbian Granite company, whose quarry has recently been opened, just south of Middletown, yesterday afternoon took to Secretary Hine, of the state board of education, a sample block of the stone he is getting out, and hopes the Connecticut granite may be accepted for the new State Normal school at Willimantic. The block is about 4x5 inches, and has a chiseled face on one side, on another side "pointed work" with chiseled margin, and on another the rough [illegible] face—the latter quite as good, for most public buildings, as any. The commissioners are Secretary Hine and Anthony Ames of Danielsonville.

The granite is undoubtedly as fine in grain as any in the world, and its strength is superior to that of any other granite. In hue it is a light gray, something like the white granite of the Concord quarries.

OBITUARY.

The Rev. Joseph H. Phillips.

The Rev. Joseph H. Phillips of this city, who died last Saturday, was born in the town of Lisbon in the year 1818. He was connected and united with the Methodist church when about [illegible] years of age, and had continued a faithful and acceptable member of the same until his death. A few years subsequent to his conversion he felt called upon by the Spirit of God to preach the Gospel. The church recognized the call, and he was duly licensed as a local preacher in the M. E. church, which relation he has held for the past forty years. He was the preacher in charge of the M. E. church at Canterbury and at Gardner's Lake for several years, and supplied the pulpits of the several M. E. churches in this city on various occasions.

He also supplied the pulpit of the Baptist churches for several years at Preston City and at Leffingwell Town, with great acceptance. He preached the gospel for the love of it, and continued to work at his trade as a blacksmith, to help pay expenses. He was a clear, scriptural and logical preacher, earnest in manner, impressing his hearers with the fact that he heartily believed all he preached. God gave him many souls to [illegible]. Rev. Mr. Phillips was kind and [illegible] in the family, a warm and true friend, a genial and obliging fellow workman, a faithful and devote Christian. He has "fought a good fight, kept the faith and finished his course" and now rests from his labor, but "his works do follow him." He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, who has been his partner in life for over fifty years, and four children, for whom we bespeak the prayer and sympathy of the church.

The funeral services were held in the Central M. E. church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. H. N. Brown of this city, assisted by Revs. A. W. Kingsley, A. F. Park and John Troland.

HYMENEAL FESTIVITIES.

Hallock—Billings.

Never did an August sun shine brighter upon a wedding party than on Thursday, when the marriage of Miss Anna Estella, youngest daughter of the Hon. James A. Billings, one of Ledyard's most prominent citizens, to Henry Arthur Hallock, took place at the hospitable home of the bride's parents.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Kenmouth at noon beneath a floral arch of pond lilies, the bride being attired in a beautiful white brocaded silk.

Two little nieces of the bride, Misses Mary and Grace Stoddard of Middletown, preceded the maid of honor, Miss Caroline [illegible] of Groton, as the bridal party entered the room to the music of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by another niece, Miss Mattie Gardner.

Messrs. Orrin E. Stoddard, William A. Gallup, George Spicer and Herman Hallock served as ushers. The presents were [illegible] and beautiful. More than a hundred guests were present and enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Billings. Patison of this city catered. The couple go directly to Omaha to reside, where the bridegroom is located in business.

Mrs. Hallock will be very much missed, not only by her parents, but also by the church and community, where she has been active and beloved. They departed amid a plenteous shower of rice and slippers, carrying with them the best wishes for their future happiness and success.

W. L. MAIN'S CIRCUS.

A Good Exhibition on the Old Grounds in Preston.

The Walter L. Main circus exhibited in Norwich to an admiring public Friday. The weather signified its permission by turning out a hot August day, which was marred only by intermittent afternoon showers. The show arrived from Rockville at 7 o'clock, and gave a hurried parade through the business streets at 11 o'clock. The streets were lined with people, and the lowly peanut met its fate as the string of chariots and gaily caparisoned horses trailed by, in all the glory of gold and silver, the bright sunlight glinting from polished armor and fresh varnish.

The tent in the circus lot in Preston was sparsely filled at both of the performances. The entertainment bristled with new features, and the spectators were loud in their praises of the show. Tony Lowande, of the famous family of that name, pleased the audience by his graceful and intricate evolutions on the back of his steed. He is an old favorite and proved himself still the champion. Stirk and Zanto sailed about in the air from perch to trapeze as if they were little lower than the angels in wing power, incidentally doing the double summersault aerial act which has won them fame and fortune.

The circus left for Providence last night. Eighteen cars of the show were in a smashup a few months ago on the Pennsylvania railroad and the company paid $33,000 to settle the damage.

DIED.

STAMM—In Norwich, Aug. 10th, Joseph A., son of Joseph W. and Sarah M. Stamm, aged 6 months and 3 days.

MURPHY—In this city, Aug. 11th, Mary O'Connell, wife of Dennis D. Murphy. Funeral from her late residence, No. 41 West Main street, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

AN AFTER-INVENTORY SALE.

We have just completed our Semi-Annual Inventory, and in accordance with our usual custom we will today, Aug. 12, begin our Annual Summer Clearance Sale.

We want to make a clean sweep of all our surplus summer merchandise. We prefer to sell, yes, and at a great sacrifice, too, rather than retain a dollar's worth of summer goods.

Real value don't count now. It is settled that Summer Goods must go, and the greater the quantity the lower the prices.

Read carefully the list of items and the price list. If these prices could speak they would, like Duncan's virtues plead "trumpet-tongued against the deep damnation of their taking off." Bear in mind that today, Aug. 12th, the sale will begin and it will continue until every dollar's worth of Summer Merchandise is disposed of.

$2,000,000 LOSS AT MINNEAPOLIS

200 Houses Burned—1,600 Persons Rendered Homeless

[illegible]

Alights in a Lumber Yard and Causes an Immense Loss.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 13.—Two million dollars' worth of property went up in smoke this afternoon. Two hundred houses were burned and 1,600 persons rendered homeless in the short space of two hours. A kind Providence and not the fire department saved the business and residental portion of the east side from total destruction. The fire had gained so much headway that no human agency could quench it, and only a change in the direction of the wind prevented an awful conflagration.

It was only a little after 1.30 o'clock when a watchman saw a small blaze on the river side of J. B. Clark & Co.'s box factory on the south end of Nicollet island at the head of St. Anthony's falls. An alarm, quickly followed by a second and a third, was turned in, but by the time the department had arrived the flames, fanned by a furious south wind, had gained such headway that all the firemen could do was to turn their attention to adjoining property.

Where the fire first started is a mystery, but it is thought it originated either in Lenhart's wagon works or in an ice house belonging to the Cedar Lake Ice company immediately adjoining. Nearly all the structures in the vicinity were of wood, dry as tinder and made splendid fuel for the flames. Clark's factory was doomed before even a stream of water was thrown upon it. Next to it, north, Lenhart's wagon works and the Cedar lake ice houses were wiped out of existence. Farther north were Lintjes & Downell's boiler works and here the heaviest losses took place. This firm had a stock valued at over $50,000 and not a cent of insurance. The other losses are fairly well insured.

While this fire was at its height, a spark carried high in the air alighted on Boom Island, nearly half a mile above the fire on Nicollet island. This island is occupied as a woodyard by the lumber firm of Nelson, Tenny & Co. No one noticed the spark fall, but the whole island was soon ablaze. It was this spark that caused the greatest loss. Quickly jumping across the small stretch of water to the mainland, the flames gained a footing in Nelson, Tenny & Co.'s lumber yard, where there were piled some 10,000,000 feet of lumber. The fire fairly walked through the yard and into that of W. Backus & Co., adjoining.

By this time it was impossible to stop it, even had the whole fire department been on hand. Great embers flew through the air and started fires many blocks beyond where the firemen were at work. Brick and stone structures fell before the flames as readily as the merest shells. Beyond the lumber yard were the two mills belonging to E. W. Backus & Co. Of these nothing remains except the smokestacks and a mass of twisted machinery and charred timbers. J. C. Chatterton's post mill went the way of the others, as did the sash and door factories of Fullerton & Libbey and J. W. Wilcox & Co.

At the corner of Marshall street and Thirteenth avenue, northeast, stood the mammoth brewery of the Minneapolis Brewing company. This, it seemed, must go, but at this time the wind changed, and although the brewery was surrounded by wooden buildings it was saved. It is the only structure from the river, back to Marshall street, a distance of three blocks, that escaped the fire. The big brewery in a measure protected the property to the north. Had it burned nothing could have prevented the fire from running north as far as it could find anything to burn.

Along the river were situated the sawmills and wood and lumber yards, and these too would have been consumed and nearly the entire sawmill industry of the city would have been destroyed. The change in the direction of the wind imperiled the lumber yards and mills on the west side of the river, and they were almost at the mercy of the flying sparks and embers.

The firemen were powerless to render assistance, for to reach the Plymouth and Twentieth avenue north bridges it would have been necessary to pass through a furnace. The bridges were on fire and nothing could be done until some apparatus could make a detour of three miles and reach the flames. Lines of hose were stretched around the yards and flames from across the river were quickly quenched.

Along the east bank of the river were located the mills and lumber yards which were burned, while east of them were located many stores and residences, which also were destroyed. Most of them were frame buildings, occupied by the employes of the mills and laboring men. Large numbers saved their household goods. At the brewery, where the fire was checked, the firemen were aided by citizens with garden hose and buckets.

All the available fire apparatus in the city was in use, and St. Paul sent two engine companies in response to calls for assistance. It is believed all the occupants of the houses escaped with their lives, although it is rumored that two or three men were penned in by the flames while trying to rescue their property.

Late tonight it was reported that Mrs. Thomas Salone was burned to death in her home. The charred remains of a body were found in the debris.

RUN DOWN BY AN ELECTRIC CAR.

A Carryall Containing Three Boys Struck by Car No. 90 at Fall River.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 13.—At 7.55 this evening, electric car No. 90 on the Globe street railway, under the control of Motorman Charles Russell and Conductor Gregory, was running down Fourth street at the rate of about thirteen miles an hour. Crossing Fourth street, through Wade, there were three young boys in an extension top carryall. The horse was walking and the boys had no warning until the car was directly upon them. Their horse and carriage were hit together, the horse being instantly killed.

All three boys were thrown out, and two of them were drawn beneath the brake beams. Thomas Morris, aged 13 years, a son of P. P. Morris, a well-known business man, was drawn under the fenders and lived only a few moments after being taken out. Frank Kelliher, aged 11 years, received a broken ankle and Charles Keyes, aged 11 years, residing at 89 James street, Providence, R. I., received a bad wound on the back of his skull, a broken leg and several bruises. He may be permanently injured. The car men were placed under guard. Several spectators say that no warning was given by the motorman.

GOT A FREE FARE TO AMERICA.

Story of the Fight on Board the Navahoe in English Waters.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The Sportsman says that Capt. Barr of the yacht Navahoe will return to America in a week. It is reported that the captain of the Volunteer has been cabled to to come over and take charge of the Navahoe. In the meantime she will be commanded by Captain Draper, who has piloted the Navahoe in all her races in England and who was formerly skipper of the Valkyrie.

According to The Sportsman the recent row aboard the Navahoe occurred in this way: The men were sitting at the aft rail, when an order was given which was obeyed very slowly. The last man to rise, said to be the smartest of the crew, was remonstrated with by one of the gentlemen aboard the yacht. The seaman spoke back and a long altercation ensued, resulting in the gentleman's striking the seaman in the face and cutting it open.

The boatswain was ordered to put the man below but was reluctant to carry out the order. Eventually he persuaded the man to go. The seaman refused to accept an apology from his assailant and declared his intention to prosecute him. Ultimately the gentleman who struck the seaman settled the matter by paying the man six months salary, amounting to £70 and his passage to America. The man will sail for home in a day or two.

The Goelet Schooner Cup Awarded to Schooner Lasca.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 13.—The regatta committee of the New York Yacht club has awarded the Goelet schooner cup to schooner Lasca, the second boat of the schooners to finish. The Lasca was regularly entered, while the Volunteer was not.

It is rumored tonight that Captain Brooks, owner of the Lasca, will not accept the Goelet cup under such conditions. In this case it would fall to the Ariel, and it may go begging.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 13.—Mr. Brooks, owner of schooner Lasca, will not say whether he will accept the Goelet cup or not until he is officially notified that his boat has won it.

Missing Woman Found.

CHESTER HARBOR, N. H., Aug. 14.—A man who was berrying found Mrs. Joseph Bisson this afternoon on the north side of Red mountain, five miles from her home. She has been away twenty-six days, and during her wanderings had not been near any house or had anything to eat but berries. She had been out in some of the most severest showers and had but little clothing on her. She was taken to the home of Mr. Bragg, from whence Mr. Bisson brought her home. A doctor was called and he pronounced her insane and in a very critical condition. There is but little hope of her recovery.

Numerous other small crafts are also here. What Senator White of the Steering Committee Says.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Senator White, of the steering committee of the democratic caucus, was quoted tonight as saying that the committee had come to no conclusion respecting a line of policy to be pursued by the majority of the senate. His understanding, however, was that the debate on the silver bill based on the measures already pending, Mr. Stewart's free coinage bill and Mr. Lodge's resolution to vote on the repeal of the Sherman law, on the 23d inst., would begin at once, possibly tomorrow. Senator Hoar expects to address the senate in favor of the repeal of the Sherman law Tuesday or Wednesday.

A Six-Foot Alligator Loose in Heublein's Hartford Cafe.

LOUIS NORTON MISSING.

A Well-Known New Haven Man and Member of the Grays.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 13.—A six-foot alligator had a little circus in Heublein's Opera House cafe Saturday morning. It was a few hours before noon and only a few lunchers were in the place when Charles E. Barrett, the carpenter, brought in the Florida beauty and handed it over to Fritz Barby as a present. The alligator was placed in the fountain and seemed content until he spotted three gentlemen at an adjoining table. Then he climbed out of the fountain and a moment later he bobbed up at the table. One of the gentlemen had a cocktail lifted to his lips and he suddenly put it down (on the table) and made a bee line for the door. The other two quickly followed.

Half a dozen waiters formed a squad, and at the end of a quarter of an hour they succeeded in attaching a rope to the alligator's tail. He was tied to a post and Fritz by telephone invited Mr. Barrett to take him away.

Prominent New Haven Young Man Missing.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 13.—Louis Norton, aged 23, one of the best known young men in the city, is believed to have met his death in the harbor Friday night by drowning. He hired a rowboat in the afternoon and started for a row and a swim down the harbor. His destination was the east shore, about a mile and one-half from the boat house. Nothing has been seen or heard of him since he left. Saturday morning Norton's boat was found drifting near the lighthouse, containing his wearing apparel, carefully folded and laid under the seats. Norton was a member of the New Haven Grays and for several years was in the clothing business with his father, A. O. Norton, who for years ran the clothing house known as Oak Hall.

Prominent Bridgeport Citizen Dead.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 13.—George Watson, for many years town clerk of Bridgeport and a prominent citizen, died at Kent, Conn., this morning. About one month ago he was stricken with apoplexy and has been unconscious since that time. He was 73 years old, was a member of the Fairfield county bar and was a lifelong democrat. He leaves two sons, one being Charles G. Watson, private secretary to U. S. Treasurer Morgan.

A Seaman Killed at the Union Station, New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 13.—Thomas Hester, colored, a seaman on the U. S. S. Dexter, was killed at the Union depot this morning. He had stolen a ride on the morning mail train from New York, and in attempting to jump off the train fell under the wheels and was horribly mangled. Hester's relatives reside at No. 131 South street, Providence, R. I. The body was buried this afternoon.

Cholera Bulletin Issued by Health Officer Jenkins.

QUARANTINE, Staten Island, Aug. 13.—Health Officer Jenkins at 9 p. m. issued the following bulletin:

Two suspects were isolated at Hoffman island early this morning, but owing to the rough weather in the lower bay were not removed to Swinburne island hospital. If the wind moderates they will be transferred during the night. They are both Italians aged 10 and 15.

The census of the hospital tonight shows: Cholera patients, 14; patients not having cholera, 8; convalescent, 1; suspects on Hoffman island, 2; total, 25. All the patients are improving. The disease is mild.

The steamer Fulda arrived today from Genoa. All were well on board. The vessel was disinfected and allowed to proceed after the customary inspection of the steerage passengers.

Overcome by Poisonous Gases

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Aug. 13.—Seth Haskins and Harry Cranston, while cleaning out an old well on a farm five miles south of here yesterday, were overcome by poisonous gases resulting from exploding dynamite, and both died.

IN CONGRESS.

Only a Hundred Members Present in the House Saturday.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—When the house convened Saturday morning at 11 o'clock there were not more than 100 members in attendance, and the audience in the galleries was a small one. The interest in the silver debate seemed already to be on the decline; action and not discussion being generally desired. On motion of Mr. Richardson of Tennessee (dem.) a resolution was adopted for the printing of 20,000 copies of the president's message.

The silver debate was then resumed. Mr. Wheeler (dem.) of Alabama continued his speech of yesterday against repeal. The moment the Sherman act was repealed, he said, that moment there would not be a line or word in the laws of our country recognizing the coinage of silver, and there never would be during our lives or the lives of our children.

Mr. Wheeler was followed by Mr. Morse (rep., Mass.) Mr. Morse said that the country had come to two roads. Sound finance beckoned it on to national integrity and honor; free silver beckoned it on to financial ruin and distress. He was heartily in favor of repealing the purchasing clause of the Sherman act, but the remainder of that act, declaring a parity between the two metals, was fine statesmanship and should stand. The words of the president's message as related to the currency met with his most unqualified approval. So much of the message was good republican doctrine. But while he agreed with the president on this proposition, he could not believe with the chief magistrate that the present appalling business situation was due entirely to the purchasing clause of the silver bill. It was more largely and principally due to the threatened tariff legislation which has unsettled values and paralyzed business and there would be no relief until the democratic policy in regard to the tariff was defined.

Mr. Harter (dem.) of Ohio said this was a patriotic question. If party gain was to accrue by saving the country from its present situation, he was willing that the republican party might have it all. He desired only to lift the country out of the pit into which it had fallen. He was able to say who was responsible for the present situation, but he did not think in a time like this it was the part of a patriot to call up such a question.

Continuing, Mr. Harter reviewed the history of the Sherman law, and said that while the law was not a good law, under the circumstances Senator Sherman, instead of being abused, ought to have the grateful thanks of the whole people, because he got the best there was to be obtained for the country out of a bad situation, which had been brought on by the republican platform and the election of a republican president.

He then went on to mark out his plan of procedure. He would have the congress in its extraordinary session repeal the purchasing clause of the present law, authorize national banks to issue circulation to the full extent of their bonds, and direct the secretary of the treasury to provide for the issue of gold bonds.

Mr. Harter was followed by Mr. Hendrix (dem.) of New York. He argued that congress repeal the Sherman silver law, adjourn and go home, and let the people do the rest.

Mr. Bowers (rep.) of California spoke for the free coinage of silver, and in so doing cast a slur on political platforms, declaring that no party platform amounted to anything or was intended to mean anything. The free coinage of silver would tend to relieve the present depression. Many of the banks of the United States which today had their doors closed would be glad to receive the dollar of our daddies. This nation could make its own money for its own people, and if England wanted to put up the bars, all right. Which could stand it longest? This great country, which could produce every necessity and every luxury, must not surrender to the little island which must depend upon what it could obtain from other nations. This question is not a partisan one; it was a business one, and as such it should be considered.

Delegate Rawlins (dem., Utah) lent his voice in favor of free coinage. The declaration made by the anti-silver men that the government was issuing a dollar which was worth but 50 cents was absurd. By the constitution of the United States the express power was given to congress to coin money and regulate its value. Under that power the government had declared that the silver dollar was equal in value to the gold dollar. If this congress adjourned without action there would be a depreciation in the valuation of silver that would be frightful to contemplate and would bring on a monetary panic at once.

At the conclusion of Mr. Rawlins' remarks the house at 4.30 adjourned until 11 o'clock Monday.

Light Attendance at the Fair Sunday.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—The exposition was open today, but the attendance was light. Visitors were allowed in all the buildings except the government's, but most of the exhibits were closed. The management of the fair offered no attraction of any kind. Nearly all the sightseers spent the day in the plaisance. The hope is strong among exposition officials and employes that this will be the last "open" Sunday, and by next Tuesday the Clingman injunction forbidding the closing of the gates on the first day of the week will have been dissolved.

Charged With Embezzlement.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 13.—Charles Hawkes, formerly cashier of the Seven Corners State bank, was arrested last night at the instance of Mr. Banholzer, president of the bank, who charges that Hawkes embezzled a large sum of money from the institution. Assignee's statements show that Hawkes borrowed money on the flimsiest kind of securities. The warrant of arrest makes no reference to the amount, but charges Hawkes with the direct theft of several thousand dollars.

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 13.—A Fort Townsend special says: Major Wham, U. S. A. paymaster for the department of Columbia, has been ordered by the secretary of war to be confined within the limits of the Vancouver barracks under close observation. Charges of indebtedness for large amounts of funds entrusted to Major Wham for the government have been made by the judge advocate general of the army. He will be tried by court martial, as soon as the official report is made upon his mental condition.

Monthly Meeting Massachusetts K. of L.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—The monthly meeting of the Massachusetts K. of L. alliance was held in Wells' Memorial building today. Complaints were made by a number of delegates over the employment of child labor, under the school age, in the factories in the several sections of the state. The secretary was instructed to lay the facts before Governor Russell and request that the law governing the employment of child labor be enforced.

SPECIAL.

Housekeepers Should Remember

The Government Chemists, after having analyzed all the principal brands of baking powder in the market, in their reports, placed the "Royal" at the head of the list for strength, purity and wholesomeness; and thousands of tests all over the country have further demonstrated the fact that its qualities are, in every respect unrivaled.

Avoid all baking powders sold with a gift or prize, or at a lower price than the Royal, as they invariably contain alum, lime or sulphuric acid, and render the food unwholesome.

Disemboweled Himself.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Aug. 13.—The third suicide in Pittsfield this month occurred this morning, when George W. Bradley, aged 67 years, disemboweled himself at his home, No. 58 Daniels avenue. Bradley has been a sufferer for years from ulceration of the bowels, having been confined to his bed for more than a year. Early this morning he secured possession of a sharp pocket knife and inflicted a cut three and a half inches long across his abdomen. The knife cut to the abdominal cavity and allowed his intestines to escape. When discovered at 8 o'clock his intestines lay on bed beside him and he was nearly delirious with pain. Ether was administered and the terrible wound was sewed up. The doctors found that the intestines had been cut in two places and that the wound would prove fatal. Bradley lingered until nearly noon, when death ensued. He had suffered intensely for years and no doubt his mind gave way under the strain. He leaves a wife and two grown daughters.

Connecticut Tobacco.

Reports from the World's fair concerning tobacco are that the superiority of the Connecticut leaf is acknowledged on all sides. The only possible competitor is Massachusetts, but that state is barely entitled to the honor of comparison. Of the other states making exhibits Ohio and Wisconsin rank after Connecticut and Massachusetts, but their exhibits do not compare with either of the first named states. Wisconsin, however, makes a good display of manufactured cigars.

The Norwich Packet.

A Stonington correspondent to the Westerly Tribune notes: "The writer hereof is possessed of a newspaper that was launched at Norwich in 1772, and christened The Norwich Packet. Its scope of influence was claimed in the head lines to be Connecticut, New Hampshire and Massachusetts. To accomplish this mission it had a circulation of five hundred copies. At that time the whipping post was one of the institutions of Connecticut, and a record of its use upon seven occasions, in Norwich, is chronicled. 'The Packet' made a voyage every week. The yearly subscription price was six shillings and eight pence."

Romantic Steps.

The all summer campers near the South light, Block Island, have built upon the side of a clay bluff overlooking the ocean two tiers of stairs, containing about thirty steps in all. Each step will accommodate two persons. The upper steps rent for 10 cents a sitting, while those lower down, being more remote and more desirable, bring 15. The gentleman who engages one of these pays for his own seat and the lady's, and retains it as long as he likes. Not long ago a well-known and popular young Norwich lawyer took two seats for an evening, and many from the Vaill cottages patronize the place. The proprietors assert that the scheme pays.

Peter Seeay, drunkenness, $1 and costs, $8 10. Paid.

Amateur Fireworks.

Mr. William Boardman of Providence, who is spending his vacation at the farm of R. T. Sands on Block Island, entertained quite a company Friday evening by an exhibition of fireworks made by himself during leisure moments. Although the night was not clear, owing to fog, the several pieces were displayed with good effect. Mr. Boardman is a retired landscape painter, having adopted that profession forty years ago, when Duran, Doubly and Cole were the only landscape artists in America. As a portrait painter he was also successful and required only a week to complete a painting which brought $100.

"John Bull."

A citizen, who was a passenger on a Hudson river steamer Saturday, incidentally met an Englishman, with whom he formed an acquaintance.

"Talking about the Englishman's nickname," said his friend, "my name is John Bull, and so was my father's, and my son and grandson are named after me."

Mr. Bull came to this country to visit the world's fair, and is pleased with American institutions.

DENIED BY BAISDEN.

Prison Officials Claim That W. H. Douglas Was Not Ill-Treated.

The prison officials at Wethersfield say concerning the treatment of Walter H. Douglas in that institution: "Douglas has served two terms. The second one began September 27, 1892, the sentence being for one year for adultery. The first sentence began May 30, 1885, and was for horse stealing. Douglas was released on his first sentence February 14, 1887. On the last sentence he gained fifty days for good behavior, this being the largest number that can be gained in any one year. Any punishment that occurred during the past ten months would have reduced the fifty days that were won by the prisoner. He was released August 8, with the full benefit of the time that he had gained. There has been no punishment which the man has received and the story that he was abused by Deputy Baisden since the suspension of General Chamberlain is without foundation. The man could not have been placed in the dungeon without the knowledge of General Haven, while the latter was in military command. Douglas was under the care of Dr. Thomson during a part of General Haven's administration. But about three weeks before the reinstatement of Dr Fox, Douglas confessed to Dr Thomson and Deputy Baisden that he had been eating soap and drinking kerosene to make himself sick. As the time for his release was so near at hand he said he did not want to be punished as that would take off from the number of good behavior days. He was not punished. When he went away from the prison this week he was as well as usual.

"During his first term he was in the shop under the deputy, who was then an overseer. Mr. Baisden was not appointed deputy until July 4, 1889, more than two years after Douglas' release. Deputy Towers was deputy at the time. It is not a matter of record anywhere that Douglas was punished by being placed in the dungeon or in any other way. He did hurt his hand in the tack machine while he was in the shops during the first time. Deputy Baisden recalled that circumstance today, but the overseer had no trouble with him then or afterwards.

"There is, in the opinion of Warden Woodbridge, no ground for the charge of cruelty which Douglas is said to have made. The investigation, which covered the whole of the prisoner's first term, did not bring to light the slightest fact of trouble with the prisoner, and if he had been cruelly treated then the circumstances would have been investigated."

BIRD PESTS.

In the Seventeenth Century Every Citizen Over 16 Was Obliged by Law to Kill a Dozen.

As is generally known Saybrook was the mother-town of Norwich, the inhabitants of the former settlement petitioning the general court for permission to make a new settlement in May, 1659. The assembly sanctioned the proposition by the following enactment:

"Hartford, May 20, 1659. This court haveing considered the petition presented by the inhabitants of Seabrook, doe declare yt they approve and consent to what is desired by ye petitioners, respecting Mohegin, provided yet within ye space of three years they doe effect a plantation in ye place propounded."

Local tradition has assigned as one reason for the removal the pest of crows and blackbirds which persistently destroyed the crops of the Saybrook farmers. These gormandizing fowls would come down upon the young maize, and in a few days leave the fields of a whole district in ruin.

For this reason laws were made in the different settlements rendering it obligatory upon every man to destroy during the three spring months a certain number of crows, blackbirds, woodpeckers, jays and other grain-devouring birds. A dozen was the usual number required, with a premium for all over a dozen and penalties imposed on those who fell short.

The regulation enforced in Colchester is a good example of these colonial laws:

"Voated to oblige every person in the town of 16 years of age and upwards to kill one Duson of blackbirds, or woodpeckers, or gay burds, and bring their heads to the Select Men; and what are killed in the months of march aprail or may, six shall be counted as a duson: and if any person kills more than his Duson he shall be allowed one pense pr head—and he that doth not kill his duson shall pay to the town Rate one shilling."

TRAMPS ON THE INCREASE.

Armies of Unemployed Workmen Taking to the Road These Days.

During the past week there has been a material increase in the number of tramps hereabouts, and applications for food and lodgings are being made at many houses. The same report comes from many Connecticut cities.

It is the advance guard of the great army of the unemployed, and there is every indication that it will be largely increased. Most of the men are far different from the ordinary tramp. Deprived of employment by the closing of manufactories and the stoppage of work in all kinds of industries, these men have taken to tramping through the country in search of work. They are for the most part penniless, and are forced to beg in order to obtain food. There are some very good mechanics among them. Most people can tell these new men from the ordinary tramp. The latter is a person who was was born lazy and will do no kind of work unless reduced to the verge of starvation.

There is, unhappily, a strong prospect that the tramp problem is coming to the front again, with more emphasis than ever before, and we shall be called upon to deal with it. There were numerous tramps in this vicinity years ago, but the condition of business now is such as to lead many to believe that the coming autumn and winter will bring more of this class of people to Connecticut towns than ever has been known in the past.

STOLE A BICYCLE.

A Stranger Rents a Victor Safety and Never Comes Back.

Saturday Eaton, Chase & Co recovered a valuable Victor safety bicycle which had been missing since last Tuesday. On that day a stranger leased the wheel to ride to Providence and return. Several days passed, and an effort was made to locate the man. He was traced to Providence, whither he departed by train with the wheel, and where it was found he had disposed of the machine for $35. Saturday Mr. A. H. Chase brought it back to this city.

The thief's trunk has been discovered in Worcester, and on his return after it he will be apprehended.

Connecticut Educational Exhibits.

The state board of education has just issued a catalogue of the Connecticut educational exhibit at the World's fair with diagrams and complete details of the subjects and towns exhibiting. It was prepared by S. P. Willard, the agent in charge of the exhibit. A pamphlet of suggestions for a course of study in common schools exhibits the work of children in the first school district of Windham, connected with the normal school. It is a comprehensive and valuable list of subjects for the use of educators.

BASE BALL.

Another Extra-Inning Contest—Westerly Wins from the Clippers.

It took ten innings to decide the ball game between the Clippers and the Westerly club on the Greeneville diamond Saturday afternoon. The contest was a good one, and although the Clippers did not win, they put up a fine game against a very strong team. The Westerlys brought Tuckerman, Robinson, Kennedy and Shackley with them, all old-time players. The Clippers presented their usual team.

They played a good sharp game and have no reason to be ashamed of their defeat. Counihan caught a fine game and Driscoll pitched in his usual style. Shea played second base perfectly, and Moore made a beautiful catch of a difficult liner to center. O'Brien did the best batting for the Clippers. Robinson and Shackley did the finest playing for the Westerlys. The attendance was about 400. The score:

VERY MUCH ELATED.

Friends of Repeal Think First Point Gained.

HOUSE SHOWS FIFTY MAJORITY.

Friends of the Administration Hard at Work in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The adoption of the plan agreed upon by the silver and anti-silver steering committee granting two weeks debate on the silver question to the exclusion of all other business, will enable Speaker Crisp to go ahead without interruption with the completion of the standing committees. He expressed himself as very much gratified at the understanding which had been reached. The friends of the administration, who favor the unconditional repeal of the silver purchasing act, are very much elated at the outcome of their first move. The managers who have brought this about are confident that all of the schemes of the silverites which are to be voted upon will be defeated. They expect a very strong vote on the proposition to change the ratio from 16 to 1 to 20 to 1 with free coinage, but all the others from 16 up to that figure, including the restoration of the Bland-Allison act, will be voted down. Then will come the vote on the unconditional repeal of the purchasing act.

From a canvass which has been made by the managers of the administration forces, they are assured that they will have not less than Fifty Majority in Favor of Repeal.

This was today conveyed to the president and Secretary Carlisle, both of whom were greatly pleased with such an unexpectedly prompt solution of the silver problem, as far as the house was concerned. The president and secretary were much disturbed at the situation which prevailed in the senate when the question at first took a partisan trend. The president now feels, however, that he can safely be absent from the city while this general discussion is going on.

The president's Democratic friends in the senate are at work and feel confident that they will be able to secure some legislation, coupled with the repeal proposition, which will tend to relieve the present distrust and uncertainty concerning financial matters. The scheme which is now under consideration is one which is likely to receive the full Republican strength outside of the silverites. It will also receive the support of a large majority of the conservative Democrats who are anxious to solve this problem on a plane outside of politics.

The Silverites in the Senate, however, are marshalling their forces and express their determination to resist every proposition looking to the repeal of the silver purchasing act, unless it is coupled with a clear and explicit recognition of the white metal. They claim that they have strength enough to hold their own and prolong the struggle indefinitely.

The extraordinary vigor with which the silver debate has opened in the house already raises a question of physical endurance as to whether the pace can be maintained for the 14 days prescribed by the resolutions adopted, with the existing conditions of rainless, sultry weather. Many of the new members, who desire to impress upon their constituents the idea that their representatives are taking prominent part in shaping the national policy on this momentous issue will doubtless take advantage of the opportunity afforded by the general

"Leave to Print."

In this manner they will secure the publication of their remarks in the discussion, and an authorization to print a sufficient number of copies to supply to their constituents without taking any chances by testing their undeveloped debating powers on the floor of the house. It is therefore expected that after a day or two the length of the day's session will be curtailed, and the privilege of demanding night sessions will be seldom taken advantage of, if at all.

Nevertheless, it must be borne in mind that congress under more climatic conditions has indulged in debates on the tariff and other questions far exceeding in length that prescribed for the silver question. The Bland resolution provides for about 80 one-hour speeches and about 100 five-minute speeches—or 180 opportunities of oratory to be distributed to a house of [illegible].

CANNOT BE REPEALED.

Washington Post Gives "the True Situation" on the Silver Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The Washington Post, Saturday morning, caused something of a sensation by publishing in leaded type what it terms a statement of "the true situation." After declaring its own position to be "in favor of legislation authorizing the sale of bonds to such an amount as will bring back to this country its share of the gold of the world, believing that this is the surest way of convincing Europe that we intend to stay on the same currency basis as European nations, and of bringing about an international bimetallic agreement," The Post continues:

It is best to meet the situation squarely and without evasion. The truth is not always palatable; it may not be always a politic thing to make known, and yet when the country is confronted as it is today with a condition of extreme danger, it would seem as if the time for temporizing had past.

The purchasing clause of the silver law cannot, and will not, be unconditionally repealed. This is absolutely true, so far as the United States senate is concerned. It is not so likely to prove true of the house of representatives.

It is in the senate, however, that an insurmountable barrier has been raised against unconditional repeal. With rules that allow indefinite debate, the senate is a stronghold for a determined minority. A canvass of the members of this body shows that a majority is against unconditional repeal. This is not a newspaper canvass, hastily and crudely made by representatives of the press, poorly equipped for such important work, but an inquiry instituted by senators representing all shades of belief. The silver men, nevertheless, will agree to one compromise. They ask free coinage at an increased ratio, and they propose to block the way of all other legislation.

Governor Costa predicts that the Radical triumph will be a short one, and says that in a short time there will be a revolution throughout Argentina.

RELIGIOUS FEELING HIGH.

Result Is Troops Are Massed and Guns Trained on Bombay's Streets.

BOMBAY, Aug. 13.—A number of Mohammedans and Hindoos became involved in a dispute Friday which soon led to a general riot. The Mohammedans were observing one of the festivals commanded by the koran, while the Hindoos were also taking part in celebrating a day set apart for religious observances.

The consequence was that religious feeling was high on both sides, and it took but little to cause the men who were at first involved in the dispute to come to blows.

The number of rioters grew rapidly and when some of the Mohammedans proposed to capture one of the holy Hindoo temples, they found plenty to aid them in the attempt.

Howling and yelling, the Mohammedans rushed to the temple, but the priests, aided by hundreds of Hindoos, fought desperately against the desecration of the building, and finally succeeded in driving the attackers off.

The fighting was continued in the vicinity, and finally the authorities were compelled to call out the troops to restore order, which was ultimately done after considerable trouble.

The rioting was general in the business part of the city and during its continuance traffic was entirely stopped. The feeling between the two sects has been rendered bitter by the fighting and a close watch will be kept to prevent another outbreak.

Further murderous assaults were made on the Hindoos Saturday morning.

Troops are massed in the chief native centers, and patrols are constantly on the move, with guns trained upon the principal native streets. These streets are now deserted.

MANCHESTER SUED.

Three Writs Calling For $47,000 Damages Served on Saturday.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 13.—Writs were Saturday morning served upon the city, bringing three suits in the sum of $47,000.

General Charles Williams, president of the Manchester street railway and the owner of a large track of land about lake Massabesic, which is the city's source of water supply, today brought suit for $20,000 against the city on the ground that it had caused the inundation of his land in Auburn by placing flashboards upon the dam at the outlet of the lake.

The city is summoned to answer to the writ at the October term of the supreme court at Portsmouth. General Williams also brings suit for the same amount and for the same causes before the September court for Hillsboro county, at Nashua.

The third suit was one for $7000 brought by the estate of Dr. Hiram C. Canney for injuries received by the deceased on a defective highway. The primary cause of the doctor's death was an accident which befell him on the night of April 8. He was thrown down an embankment and terribly injured.

ANOTHER POSTOFFICE ROBBED.

Safe Blown Open, Stamps and Money Stolen at South Berwick.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—Another daring postoffice robbery was reported to the postoffice inspectors Saturday morning. D. A. Hurd, the postmaster at North Berwick, Me., notified the inspectors that the office was broken into Friday night and the safe blown open. The work was evidently done by the same gang of safeblowers that have been operating all through Maine and New Hampshire this summer.

The burglars forced an entrance through a rear window some time after 9 o'clock, as the postmaster was in the office up to that time working on his books. The burglars secured stamps, money and other articles to the amount of $500 or $600. There is no clue to the perpetrators.

The Times says that M. Witte, the Russian finance minister, has issued a voluminous counter statement to Chancellor von Caprivi's, giving a detailed account of the Russo-German commercial treaty negotiations from Russia's standpoint.

The resumption of the negotiations is officially fixed for Oct. 1.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—At 9 o'clock Saturday morning the Commercial bank of Brooklyn, a state institution failed to open its doors. He said no statement would be made.

THE MAGIC MIRROR.

Dim clouds across the field there float,
And shadows slowly form, combine
And gather shape. A tiny boat
I see, tossed in the foaming brine.
O rower, wait! Brave rower, stay!
Nay, boat and rower fade away.

Again the dim clouds gather o'er
And slowly shape a battlefield,
And, dead or living, wounded sore,
One lies beside a broken shield.
O warrior, canst thou heed or hear?
Nay, for the visions disappear.

Fling down the shining surface bare.
An idle tale it tells to me.
The shadowy form I image there
I trace in earth and air and sea.
Earth, sea and air from pole to pole
The magic mirror of my soul!

A VALUABLE VALISE.

Returning from New York city by the E—— railroad a few years ago, I bought of the train boy a copy of a Cincinnati paper, in which I read a long account of the robbery of the City National bank of L——, Ky., and the sudden disappearance of its teller, Harry W. Swope. As usual in such cases, he had been a trusted employee, a member of the church and a society young man. The robbery was a particularly cool one, the gentleman having quietly slipped $90,000 in notes into a valise on the previous Saturday afternoon after bank hours and walked out into the cold world.

That was the last seen of him, and it was not until after the bank opened on Monday morning that any one suspected anything wrong. The affair created an immense sensation. "Society" was shocked, the church scandalized and the bank directors furious. The newspapers printed long stories of the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde sort of existence the young man had led for a number of years, and numerous friends of the "lately departed" knowingly shook their heads as they told the reporters that they knew something like that was sure to happen soon.

The sensation so interested me that when I reached Cincinnati I scarcely realized the express was, as usual, an hour behind time and had failed to make connection with the train to L——. I should therefore be compelled to take the last train going west that night, which would cause me to stop over night in a one horse town in Indiana that did not contain a comfortable hotel.

I knew Mr. Swope by sight, having came in contact with him on a number of occasions while doing business with the bank of which he was teller. The L—— papers I bought in the Union depot gave further details of the affair and contained also the announcement that the bank directors had offered a reward of $1,000 for Swope's capture and 10 per cent of the cash returned, which would make a total of $10,000 if the rascal was caught before he got rid of his booty.

After eating an unsatisfactory lunch I took a seat in the general waiting room of the depot and ruefully awaited my train. As I did so I noticed a young man approach my seat, and placing his valise on the floor alongside my own, to which it bore a strong resemblance, sit down while he looked cautiously around at the clock on the wall and then at the officials moving about.

How long he sat beside me I don't remember, but after a time he slowly arose and walked over to the telegraph office at the farther end of the room. Before he came back a strong lunged individual in uniform stepped up to me and bawled out the names of the towns which the train about to start was bound for. Hurriedly picking up my valise, I made straight for the gate and was soon aboard my train for the west.

The journey was made with the usual discomfort and monotony. The depot at N—— Y——, Ind., where I had to stop over from 10 p. m. till 5 the next morning, had been rebuilt since my last visit to that town, and remembering too well my hotel experience there a year before I resolved to spend one night in the depot waiting room with a few other passengers who shared my misfortune.

All that night the face of the stranger who had occupied a seat beside me in the Cincinnati depot haunted me. There was something about him that reminded me of Teller Swope. He was just his size and build. His mustache, to be sure, was wanting, but that he should shave off this appendage was to be considered a matter of course. The gold spectacles he wore very much resembled those I had associated with the face of the intellectual looking teller, and I had observed on his fingers a number of rings, jewelry that Mr. Swope was said to be very partial to. As I turned the matter over in my mind the more convinced I felt that I had lost a splendid chance of capturing the thief and securing a $10,000 reward.

When 5 o'clock at last came round, I boarded the train for L——, not in the best of humor, and two hours later arrived at home feeling very blue. After taking a slight breakfast, I went down to the office, where the big robbery was still the talk of the clerks. Each of them had a theory of his own as to where the thief had gone, and when they appealed to me for my opinion I dolefully recounted my experiences of the previous evening. Of course they unanimously agreed with me that I had very foolishly allowed the fugitive teller to slip out of my fingers.

Just before going out to lunch a messenger boy languidly entered the office and handed me a note from my wife. Thinking it was the usual commission to get a yard or two of "goods like the sample inclosed," I thrust it into my pocket and started out to dinner. I had not gone far before I suddenly stopped and took out the envelope the boy had given me, opened it and read it. At first I could not understand what it all meant; then I turned it over and went through it again. It ran as follows:

Dear George—Come home at once. In opening your valise to get your soiled linen to send it to the laundry I discovered it packed with bank notes! What does it mean? Is anything wrong? Come home at once.

My first thought was to hasten home, but upon reflection I resolved to step around to the bank and acquaint the officials there of my discovery. I found the president of the bank in his private office engaged with several lynx eyed individuals whom I suspected from their appearance to be, as it turned out they were, detectives.

When I was granted an interview and explained my discovery, it created, very naturally, a sensation. At first the old gentleman was inclined to regard me as a crank, but when I asked him to allow a clerk to accompany me home he seemed to be satisfied I was in earnest. He consented to my proposal, but after a moment's thought he said an escort was unnecessary, thinking doubtless that the handsome reward would be a sufficient inducement to insure the safe delivery of the precious valise.

As I left the bank and turned up the street in the direction of home I was joined by a young man who came running out of the bank after me, hat in hand. He said "the old man" had reconsidered the matter and sent him to accompany me back with the money. This seemed to me to be quite satisfactory, and as the fellow was a very genial young man we immediately fell to discussing the robbery of his bank. He congratulated me on my good fortune and knowingly hinted that "the old gentleman" would treat me cleverly in the way of reward.

I said this young man was a very genial fellow, but somehow I soon began to feel an instinctive distrust in him. I plied him with questions concerning the habits and business methods of the missing teller, but he returned evasive answers. In one or two little things he contradicted himself, and finally, when I unexpectedly asked him how long he had been employed in the bank, he replied, after looking at me in a dazed sort of way, "Oh, about a year or two." At once the thought came to me: What if my "escort" was one of the young men I had seen outside the president's office. Perhaps he had overheard our conversation and had planned this neat little scheme of playing the role of a clerk of the bank sent me for "protection," as he insinuatingly put it. If so, I readily saw that he intended to make an effort to get his hands on the valise and then seize the first opportunity to bid me goodby.

This theory was strengthened when I noted that my "protector" seemed gradually to become very uncommunicative, and the conversation during the rest of the journey referred to passing objects and sights. Try as hard as I could I failed to get anything satisfactory out of him concerning the robbery.

When I reached home, I politely asked the young man to take a seat in the hall while I stepped up stairs to get a glimpse of the treasure. I found my wife at the head of the stairs, very excited. In an adjoining room we examined the valise, and at a rough estimate we placed the amount at about the figure the newspapers said Swope had carried off with him—somewhere about $90,000.

I did not tell my wife of my suspicions of the young man down stairs, but I resolved at once to arm myself in order to be prepared for the worst. It is a well known fact that in Kentucky the sixth commandment has long ago been declared unconstitutional, and I quickly made up my mind that if my bodyguard showed any signs of playing me false I would let him have a dose of cold lead.

Contrary to my expectations the young fellow made no offer to carry the valise as we started on our journey back to the bank. At the end of the short street on which I lived we stopped to take a car. My friend had again become very affable, and as we stood on the corner he offered me a cigar. I took it, thanked him, and placing my valise carefully on the ground between my feet I struck a match to light it. Just as I was in the act of doing so I received a blow from the left that sent me staggering into the middle of the street. At the same moment my "protector" disappeared in the other direction.

"Look here, young man," said a gruff voiced fellow in uniform at my side as he shook me violently, "I thought you told me you were going to take the train west tonight. It has just pulled out, and you're left."

Opening my eyes I looked around the waiting room in a confused way and reached for my valise.

It was nowhere to be found!

My brusque arouser instantly took in the situation, and with a look of intense disgust on his face said as he turned away:

"I guess that studentlike sport who was sitting beside you has taken care of your baggage. He passed me a few moments ago on his way to the train with a couple of valises. Next time you go traveling, young man, you had better take some one along with you to care for you while you sleep."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Transporting Tale.

Charlie Ryan, who handles the passenger business of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad from Cincinnati, has also to handle some passenger business that requires Napoleonic genius—to wit, the pass fiends. One of these, a sleek, insinuating fellow, walked into Ryan's office one day in June.

"Ah," he said, "is this Mr. Ryan?"

Mr. Ryan didn't deny that it was.

"Ah, well, I called to see if I couldn't get transportation for myself over your road to White Sulphur."

Mr. Ryan smiled divinely.

"Certainly, sir, certainly; all you want."

"Ah, many thanks. Do I get it from you?"

"Oh, no, sir," bowed the polite Charles. "You get it at the ticket office down stairs. We don't sell tickets up here," and the man was so overcome that he went down stairs and actually bought a ticket.—Detroit Free Press.

The Convolutions of Soup Creek.

Soup creek, in McDowell county, W. Va., is a remarkable stream. The creek passes a hamlet called Vivian, and about a mile below returns, runs around a tract of land about a half mile wide, and then passes under itself. This freak is caused by the lay of the land, which dips sharply.—Exchange.

Only Healthy Persons Sneeze.

This is a point alluded to by Mr. Jonathan Hutchinson. He does not recollect himself to have seen any but fairly healthy persons sneeze. He puts the question with especial reference to the widely spread popular superstition that sneezing is a sign of health and good luck. It is possible, he thinks, that this may have had its origin in the fact that it is for the most part an act restricted to those in fair health. Taylor in his "Primitive Culture" gives interesting facts as to the prevalence of this creed and as to certain customs associated with it and traces it in part to doctrines of animism, but Mr. Hutchinson thinks the suggestion he has given may also have some value.—Sheffield Medical Journal.

THIN SHEETS OF IRON

A VERY INTERESTING COMPETITION AMONG STEEL WORKERS.

Steel Plates Rolled So Thin That 4,800 of Them Are Required to Make an Inch. How the Effort to Surpass Each Other Started Among Metallurgists.

Among the novelties introduced on the continent lately are visiting cards made of thin sheets of iron, a revival of the exhibits made at the first Universal exhibition, held in London in 1851. The French and Spanish journals have been lately treating this matter of fine rolling of sheets of iron as a novelty, but in truth the affair resulted in a competition between American and English metallurgists arising out of the exhibit of a specimen of iron paper, if it may be so termed, made in 1851 by an American firm. A lively competition in iron rolling then ensued among British manufacturers as to the thinness to which steel could be rolled cold. Mr. Gillott rolled sheets the average thickness of which was the eighteen hundredth part of an inch. In other words, 1,800 sheets piled upon each other would collectively measure an inch in thickness, while the thinnest tissue paper to be purchased in the stationers' or cigarette paper, measured the twelve hundredth part of an inch.

These very thin iron sheets are perfectly smooth and easy to write on, although porous when held up to a good light. It may not be out of place, considering the great interest that is taken by those connected with that great branch of industry, the iron trade, to give a few curious particulars as to the extent iron can be welded and the thin sheets that can be rolled out. Brother Jonathan little thought what a hubbub would be created in the old country 42 years ago, when from Pittsburg he sent that wonderful letter, written on a sheet made from iron, which took no less than 1,000 sheets to make an inch in thickness, the dimensions being 8 inches by 5½ inches, or a surface of 44 inches, and weighing 69 grains. The fact had no sooner made its appearance in print than Britain's sons began to work, and soon we heard that a sheet containing the same number of surface inches, but weighing only 46 grains, had been made at the Marshfield iron works, Llanelly, Carmarthenshire, being exactly one-third less in weight.

But soon the Welsh leek had to give way to the rose of England, for Staffordshire was anxious to take its wonted lead. The Hope iron works succeeded in making a sheet of 119 surface inches weighing but 60 grains, which, reduced to the American and Welsh standard of 44 inches, gives about 33 grains; Messrs. R. Williams & Co., 88 inches, 49 grains; reduced to the same standard, about 21 grains. For a time Staffordshire wore the belt, but Wales became very restless and anxious for the honor of St. David, so further attempts were made.

Marshfield came again into the field. They succeeded in making one sheet 8 by 5½ inches, or a surface of 44 inches, of the astounding weight of 33½ grains only, which required no less than 2,583 sheets to make 1 inch in thickness. Another sheet 8 by 6 inches, or 48 surface inches, weighed 23 grains, but brought to the standard of 44 inches, gives but 25 grains, and requires 2,950 sheets to make 1 inch in thickness. The Pontardawe tin works next came into the field with a sheet 14¼ by 7 5-16, or a surface of 115-17 inches, weighing 60 grains, but being reduced to 44 inches is 24½ grains, a trifle heavier than the Marshfield, but Pontardawe claims 3,799 sheets to make 1 inch in thickness.

We now come to the climax. The mill manager of Messrs. W. Hallam & Co. of the Upper Forest tin works, near Swansea, succeeded in making a sheet of the finest appearance and thinness that has ever yet been seen by mortal eye. The iron from which the sheet was rolled was made on the premises. It was worked in a finery with charcoal and the usual blast; afterward taken to the hammer to be formed into a regular flat bottom; from thence conveyed to the balling furnace, and when sufficiently heated taken up to the rolls, lengthened and cut by shears into proper lengths, piled up and transferred to the balling furnace again. When heated, it was passed through the rolls, back again into the balling furnace, and when duly brought to the proper pitch was taken to the rolls and made into a thoroughly good bar.

Such is the history in connection with the forge department. It was then taken to the tin mills and rolled till it was supposed to be thinner than 22 grains, afterward passed through the cold rolls to give it the necessary polish, and it stands on record as the thinnest sheet of iron ever rolled. The sheet in question was 10 by 5½ inches, or 55 inches in surface, and weighed but 20 grains, which, being brought to the standard of 8 by 5½ inches, or 44 surface inches, is but 16 grains, or 30 per cent less than any previous effort, and required at least 4,800 to make an inch in thickness.—Paper Makers' Journal.

The Kangaroo Pest.

The kangaroo pest has always been a great nuisance to the Australian squatters, for on an average these animals consume as much grass as a sheep. It is stated that on a sheep run of 60,000 to 80,000 acres 10,000 kangaroos were killed annually for six years, and yet their numbers remained very formidable in the locality. In the colony of South Australia hundreds of thousands of kangaroos are slaughtered annually for their skins and the bonus offered by the authorities. The number of these marsupials in New South Wales in 1889 was estimated to be over 4,000,000, and yet about 500,000 kangaroos and 650,000 wallabies were destroyed in the colony that year. A bonus of 10 cents for each kangaroo killed is offered in Australia; hence the colonists are gradually exterminating these native animals. Over 500,000 skins are annually shipped to England and a large number to North America to be converted into leather.—Science Gossip.

A colony of bank swallows some years ago taught a young but observing engineer how to build a tunnel which his more learned superiors had refused to undertake.

URGENT NEED OF A FAT REDUCER.

The Owner of a Very Fine Dog Has Resolved to Purchase a Bicycle.

Smith gave Brown a fine pup a year ago, and the other day the two men met.

"How's the dog?" asked Smith.

"He's the handsomest dog in New York," answered Brown proudly. "Everybody who sees him falls in love with him. Dozens of people have tried to buy him from me. He has been stolen twice, but I got him back both times. He's a fine dog. You ought to see him now, but"—and he gave a sigh.

"But what?"

"Oh, he's a good dog, a beautiful dog—there's none better. I wouldn't part with him for the world, but"——

"Well, what about it?"

"You see he requires a good deal of exercise; in fact, no end of exercise. He gets so fat, you know."

"Why don't you diet him?"

"Oh, I've dieted him. I turned him loose to run. I got him to chase a baseball. I taught him to swim into the river after sticks, and I lamed my arm throwing sticks for him so that I could hardly use it. I've encouraged him to chase cows, dogs, chickens, everything, so as to get exercise, but he will get fat."

"Why don't you try going on long walks with him?"

"Long walks? Man alive, I've walked all over Long Island with that dog. I got in such fine training that I could walk 25 miles and never feel it. But you see the trouble is he's lazy. He just trots along behind me comfortably, and he doesn't get a bit thinner. That dog's a caution for taking on fat."

"What are you going to do about it?"

"Well, you see," said Brown, with a bright smile of hope, "the dog needs so much exercise that I have studied the subject carefully. Now I'm going to get a bicycle and ride several miles a day. I'll hit it up as fast as I can go, and he'll have to keep a pretty lively gait to follow me. I'm sure that will keep his fat down. Anyway I'm going to try it. Don't you think," he asked with warmth, "that it's a good idea?"

"It seems to be," said the former owner of the dog. "But how about you? Do you like bicycle riding?"

"No—er—I can't say that I do, but it will be good for the dog. You see he's a wonder for taking on fat. I'm pretty thin myself, and this exercise is making me thinner. I suppose the bicycle riding will reduce my weight still further, but if it will help the dog—well, I'll be satisfied; wouldn't you?"

"Um—perhaps so."

"But say," said Brown when they were parting, "I wish you could see him now. He's the best dog on Long Island," he added with a confident smile. "I wouldn't part with him for anything."—New York Tribune.

A Royal Reception For Patti.

Mme. Patti had arranged to sing at Bucharest on a certain date, but could not be persuaded to leave Vienna owing to the inclemency of the weather. So M. Schumann, who was in despair, telegraphed to his agent in the Roumanian capital to the effect that the diva must at all hazards be met at the station at Bucharest by a deputation of Roumanian nobles and ordered him to send a telegram to the following effect: "Members of the Italian and Roumanian aristocracy preparing magnificent reception for Patti. Cabinet represented. Torchlight processions, military bands. Wire hour of arrival."

The telegram duly arrived and was shown to Mme. Patti, who was enchanted and at once made ready to start. As the train steamed into Bucharest next evening the scene was truly imposing—flags were flying, bands playing and torches flaring. The diva was escorted to her hotel by an enthusiastic crowd, and as they entered the door M. Schumann signed to his agent to accompany him. The latter, however, refused, promising an explanation next morning.

It turned out that he had hired a gang of loafers and vagabonds and dressed them up for the occasion, securing a choice selection of aristocrats for the modest sum of about £13. But he naturally was loath to leave them for a moment until the show was over, as they would otherwise have infallibly decamped with their hired costumes.—"Etoiles en Voyage."

Tenement and Apartment.

The distinction between an apartment house and a tenement house is somewhat hazy until the etymology of the two words is considered. "Tenement" is derived from the Latin verb "tenere" (to hold) and is the name properly given to a building that is designed to hold or to give shelter to the largest possible number of persons at the least possible cost to each individual tenant. "Apartment," however, is an anglicized derivation of another Latin verb, "partere" (to divide), and with equal propriety is applied to a dwelling house, of which the structural and social intent is to separate family from family and to gratify the desire for privacy that every household naturally feels, at the same time reducing the expense of that gratification to a low estimate that is practicable only through co-operation in the fixed charges of domestic management. Economy, therefore, is the purpose of the tenement—comfort, that of the apartment.—Cosmopolitan.

The Hidden Life of a Man.

The young man who made an unhappy marriage and was divorced was for years a mystery to his creditors, because he did not pay his debts, though he worked hard day and night. His reputation in that time suffered terribly, and he lost caste with many people who had formerly admired him. When the woman from whom he had been divorced died some time later from an excruciatingly painful disease, he began to pay his debts. There are exceedingly few people who know that all the money which he could earn he gave to make her life less miserable.—New York Tribune.

Fitted For the Post.

Hotel Proprietor—Yes, I want a clerk at once. What do you know about hotel keeping?

Applicant—Know? See here! Unless you've got four or five years to spare for a little chat, ask me what I don't know. It'll take less time. What do I know about hotel keeping? Well, I should smile. I know it all—more than all. I could run 40 hotels and play 10 games of chess blindfolded. Why, man, I used to be a commercial traveler.

Ivory Billiard Balls Stained With Blood.

The globe of ivory which is knocked about a table in a game of billiards costs, if of good quality, at least $10. This represents its cost in money. There is, however, a far more important and formidable element in the price which has been paid for it. The billiard ball of pure ivory represents as it lies white and glistening upon the cloth an expenditure of human lifeblood as well as of money.

Elephants' tusks are brought down to the African coasts by caravans generally in charge of Arabs, which have been trading in the interior. Very often they have picked up slaves as well as ivory. But this phase of the matter may be left out of the account.

It is estimated that every large caravan bringing ivory to the coast has cost more than 100 human lives through fights and murders in the course of the expedition. Thirty more men are likely to have succumbed to fevers or other diseases and the fatigues of the march.

The hunting of the elephants and the capture of the ivory are very likely to have caused the death of 10 men altogether. Such casualties are the rule in elephant hunting rather than the exception.

An average tusk does not furnish more than enough material for two good billiard balls. Of course the remainder of the ivory in each tusk is made use of in other ways. A perfectly cut billiard ball requires special quality or so called "nerve," which is found only in one part of the tusk.

The chances are that a billiard ball of the first quality has cost at least one human life, and there is not one such ball which may not truly be said to be stained with human blood. They can hardly be considered, therefore, a cheerful accompaniment to a sensitive person's diversions.—Youth's Companion.

An Anecdote of Justice Fuller.

The chairman of the lecture committee in Oldtown, Me., told me that he once belonged to a debating club of which the chief justice, when a boy, was a member. One evening "Capital Punishment" was the subject debated. The deacon of the church and two clergymen were for hanging. Young Fuller was opposed.

Said the deacon, quoting from the Mosaic law, "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man his blood shall be shed." Thinking this to be a bombshell to his opponents, he dwelt upon it till his time had expired, when the boy sprang to his feet and said:

"Supposing we take the law which the gentleman has quoted and see what the logical deduction would come to. For example, one man kills another; another man kills him, and so on until we come to the last man on earth. Who's going to kill him? He dare not commit suicide, for the same law forbids it. Now, deacon," continued the boy, "what are you going to do with the last man?" [Laughter.]

The boy's logic called out rounds of applause and vanquished the deacon.—New York Advertiser.

A Theatrical Dresser.

There is one difference between American and European theaters as marked as their schedule of prices and their ushering system, and that is in the matter of "dressers." The European manager employs about half a dozen dressers who act as body servants of the leading actors in his company and a regular employees of the house, like gas men, cleaners and scene shifters. The American actor, however, dresses himself or else hires a man to assist him. When he does hire a man, it is usually a fellow player who is "doing" small parts and is glad of the chance to increase his $10 wages by $5 from the leading or heavy man or first comedian.

The dresser has not only to assist in changing his master's costume, a performance requiring great expedition, but makes repairs, folds and puts away the clothing, packs and unpacks the trunks and sees that the dressing table is supplied with paints, wigs, combs and other needful articles. In the European theaters the dresser seldom or never acts, though he is often an actor who has been forced off from the stage by illness, lameness or loss of voice. He is generally prompt, quiet, a little obsequious and hopeful of tips at the end of a run or of a season.—New York Sun.

They Did Not Go to Sleep.

"The itinerary of a Methodist minister may have its unpleasant features," remarked a well known divine to a newspaper man yesterday, "but it has its advantages too.

"There is one little dried up Scotchman who used to be on the southern Ohio conference list who never failed to get even with his congregation. At one station he fared badly, and on the last evening he addressed the church he began, as all settled back to listen with ease:

"'Now, brethren,' he said, 'it is not fair to go asleep as ye always ha' done until I get alang wi' my sermon. This is my last one—so wait a wee till I get alang, and then if I'm nat worth hearing sleep awa' wi' ye, and I will not care, but dinnat go before I ha' commenced. Gi' me this one chance!'

"And they were all pretty well awake by that time, so he went on:

"'I shall take for my last text amang ye the two strong words "Know thyself," but I will say before I begin the main discourse that I would nat advise this congregation to make many such profitless acquaintances!'

"You may believe that there was not a snore or a nod in the house that evening."—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Prompt and Effective.

Detroit has a bachelor of the compulsory sort, but Detroit won't have him long. He has been disappointed so many times that lately he has been almost impetuous in his attentions. She is a widow and an improvement on all her predecessors in his heart. The matter was settled a week ago in a rather roundabout way. They had been talking on woman in general.

"So you think," he said, "that woman is prone to jump at a conclusion?"

"I certainly do," she responded earnestly.

"And you are like all the others?"

"I hope so."

A great thought came to him then. "Would I were a conclusion," he sighed, with such a sigh that within five minutes two hearts were consolidated.—Detroit Free Press.

THE NATIONAL CROQUET MEET.

Norwich will welcome during the next two days the best croquet players of the country. By repeated visits they have become almost as well known as residents. They have a large number of friends and acquaintances outside of croquet circles, and the social attractions here have become a strong incentive to the annual visit, as well as the prize contest.

The game is a gentlemanly diversion, and the character of the men it calls to "the Rose of New England" is such that the National Association's tournament is hailed with pleasure.

The grounds will be more attractive than usual this year, and the best players of the country will take part, as usual, in the championship games. Those who like to see scientific croquet play, or who desire to become more familiar with the game, will find it profitable to visit the grounds often this week. All well-behaved persons are welcomed to the grounds in the day or evening, and the number of visitors this year, undoubtedly, will be larger than ever.

CAMP MEETING WEEK.

With the Methodists of the Norwich district this is camp meeting week, and they will gather in large numbers in the pretty grove at Willimantic to worship God in the open air. They have occupied this place of meeting in August for more than a quarter of a century, and many of the meetings there have been made memorable by the results of christian work. The place has become a popular summer resort for Methodists and their friends, and from May until September some of the cottages in the grove are occupied.

During the week THE BULLETIN will have a representative on the grounds, and will publish a daily letter for the edification of those readers who are unable to be present but who find entertainment and pleasure in reading what is going on there from day to day.

May the Methodists be favored with bright and breezy weather and a series of successful meetings.

CONGRESSMAN RUSSELL'S VIEWS.

Congressman Russell of this district has written a letter expressing his views upon the situation and the president's message. He does not think that the repeal of the Sherman silver purchasing law is the panacea for present ills. The money stringency he regards as a sequence to the failures and shut downs in different parts of the country.

Commenting upon President Cleveland's message he says: "Whatever of light and promise the message may have given to the monetary situation is darkened at the end by the cloud of tariff revision which it casts over the industrial situation. 'The near future' and 'every effort of the present administration' for protective tariff smashing are President Cleveland's threats to the industries of the land. That tariff paragraph of the message awakens and increases the industrial apprehension of danger. All the conditions of manufacture and trade are threatened with a change. Awaiting the realization of that threat manufacture and trade must continue idle or in further curtailment.

"It's a long course, but it's the only sure one to the overthrow of this fear and distrust and to the return of confidence and to the revival of industry—it's the course which stretches away to the polls for the congressional elections of 1894 and the national election of 1896."

Congressman Russell thinks that the workingmen will have ample opportunity to take "object lessons" as to the effects of free trade theories between now and the relieving elections of 1894 and 1896, and then he thinks they will not follow the free trade banners.

THE LEGAL ISSUE.

Yale college on Wednesday of last week by counsel took the last step in the Storrs college issue over the "Agricultural college fund" by applying to the United States court for a permanent injunction against State Treasurer Sanger, and securing a temporary injunction to prevent him from paying over to Storrs school the money until the case is decided.

Counsellor Ingersoll's brief makes the following allegations: That Treasurer Sanger has received this money and "in derogation and violence of the rights of Yale college, and of the acts of congress and of the contracts and agreements now in full force existing, and in breach on the trust imposed upon said funds or sums of money and upon all persons having the same in charge, refuses to pay over said fund or sums of money to this complainant," and intends and threatens to pay it or the principal part of it to other persons and for other purposes than the support of Yale, and "particularly that he will pay over said money to persons claiming to be a board of trustees of the Storrs Agricultural college," that Mr. Sanger "pretends that he was justified" by the recent act of the legislature, which, however, is declared to be void and of no effect, therefore the court is urged to perpetually enjoin and restrain Sanger from paying or in any manner transferring any of this money to Storrs, that Yale may be declared entitled to the money and Sanger be ordered to pay over such money to Yale, and that until the hearing of this suit a temporary injunction be granted restraining Sanger, and that he be subpoenaed to appear at a certain day in court.

The case will come before the United States court for a hearing on September 19. Col. C. M. Joslyn is counsel for the state.

CLEVELAND WISHES TO BE LET ALONE.

President Cleveland has left Washington and gone to his summer cottage on Buzzard's bay, and desires to be let alone. His health is poor and his patience, undoubtedly, is nearly exhausted, for with a national platform which he could not endorse, an army of office-hunters he could not satisfy, a free coinage wing to his party that he could not lop off, and a secretary of the interior who has no better opinion of pensioners than Satan has of holy water, and who is weakening his party every day, he is handicapped as few presidents before him have been. He has not power to harmonize the discordant factions of his party.

In his message President Cleveland could have frankly told the nation what it could have expected of him with the veto power in any emergency which threatened the vital interests of the country. He could have talked like a president whose country and its prosperity were of more importance to him than the approval of any party, and he could have strengthened the people in their faith in the chief executive, if he had clearly defined his own standing upon the public issues about which he knows the people are alarmed. He did not do it. He talked well within the silver-purchasing-law limit, public confidence was not strengthened, and the failures and shut-downs go steadily on.

President Cleveland should be let alone. A little quiet meditation may help him, so that when he is called upon to speak again he will speak like the ruler of a nation instead of the leader of a party which he cannot mollify and which he cannot save from the popular condemnation it invites and will receive.

BY NATURAL LAW.

The Waterbury American's prescription for the restoration of prosperity to the country is not original, but it is exceptional, in that but few papers have approved of it, for it leaves the righting of the present financial and commercial disturbances to the natural law of supply and demand. This might be well if present conditions had not been brought about in an impolitic way. The natural law of supply and demand cannot overcome panicky conditions, the causes for which are still in force.

The law of supply and demand cannot repudiate the Chicago platform of the democratic party, or compel the return to the savings banks of the country the one hundred and thirty-one millions of dollars that frightened depositors have taken from the banks and have hoarded. It cannot give assurance that tariff reform and the competition of cheap foreign goods will not disturb business and the wage earners; it cannot make democratic windbags in congress do something instead of talking for fourteen days to delay the legislation which every interest of the country demands immediately.

There is nothing which does so much to make the law of supply and demand operate satisfactorily as plenty of money at a reasonable rate of interest and good wages, and these conditions are wanting and will be wanting until the party in power does something to restore the public confidence which its revolutionary projects have destroyed.

WOMEN VOTERS REGISTERING.

New Haven is the first city in the state to have women register under the new suffrage law permitting them to vote upon school questions and for school officers. Mrs. Sarah B. Newton, the wife of a New Haven lawyer, was the first woman registered in the state under the law, and Miss Annie B. Clark, a school teacher, was the second. This is something new for the Nutmeg state, and is not looked upon with favor by all of either sex; but in states where the custom has obtained woman suffrage is commended.

Gov. Osborne of Wyoming says upon the subject of woman suffrage: "Our experience of nearly twenty-five years is highly satisfactory in every way. Not one of the objections made in the East proved true, and great good has been done in many directions by the possession of the suffrage by women."

The legislature of that state passed a resolution "urging every civilized community on earth to enfranchise its women without delay."

AS MIGHT HAVE BEEN EXPECTED.

It is reported from the western part of the state that speculators are buying up the bank books of depositors in savings banks that are enforcing the ninety day rule for 75 and 80 per cent. of their face. It is strange that depositors can be found ready to thus sacrifice their hard-earned money, and it is not at all likely that they are told the truth by men who are making such offers. Their money is bearing interest, and the books are worth their full face. Depositors approached by these people should refuse to accept their offers. Any person who is making depositors think that there is any necessity for sacrificing their deposits is a knave and ought to be treated as such.

STATE EDITORS' OPINIONS.

In no Hurry.

In neither branch of congress so far is the haste apparent that the president recommends and the country desires.—[New Britain Herald.

Bad for Bad.

The trouble with a good many congressmen is that they are disposed to be politicians first and patriots afterwards.—[Waterbury Republican.

In no Hurry to Give Once.

"He gives twice who gives quickly" quoted President Cleveland in his message urging prompt and unconditional repeal of the silver purchase law. The democratic majority in congress is not disposed to give at all. They are dilly-dallying and wrangling regardless of the condition of the country.—[Meriden Republican.

A New Phrase.

It has remained for a talented reporter of the Waterbury American to devise a new phrase to take the place of the usual expression of the reporters when a man is wounded. It has become customary and almost universal to say that the wound "bled freely." In The American we learn that the wound "bled in profuse abundance." These be days of changes, surely.—[Ansonia Sentinel.

A Heartless Ukase.

General Weaver of Iowa is displeased with Mr. Cleveland. He considers the message "a heartless ukase." He searches in vain for "a word of sympathy for the suffering millions." He is amazed at the president's coolness in asking this free country to adopt the money system of "the despots of the Old World." He exhorts the silver men to take "No Compromise" for their motto. He predicts a political revolution. He sees it—in his mind's eye, Horatio—submerging and sweeping away "the last vestige of plutocracy."—[The Courant.

The Business End of It.

The Rockville correspondent of The Hartford Courant puts the present situation in the commercial and manufacturing world very forcibly as follows:

"President Cleveland's message says that tariff matters should remain in abeyance, pending the financial question; but when reference is made to the misfortunes which have come upon the working people he says: 'He (the workingman) relies for work upon the ventures of confident and contented capital.' When the woolen manufacturers of Rockville show their samples of goods for next season's wear they are met with this remark from the former purchasers: 'We will give you our orders as usual, but you must guarantee prices.' The response is not calculated to make capital 'contented' or 'confident.'"

Now what is true of Rockville is true of every manufacturing center, and it is not possible that there should be any other feeling so long as the present condition of uncertainty continues. The buyer must know what the price will be next season or he cannot put in his order, and the manufacturer cannot tell him because he does not know how far the "reform" of the tariff will be carried.—[Bridgeport Standard.

A STRANGE CASE.

How an Enemy was Foiled.

The following graphic statement will be read with intense interest: "I cannot describe the numb, creepy sensation that existed in my arms, hands and legs. I had to rub and beat those parts until they were sore, to overcome in a measure the dead feeling that had taken possession of them. In addition, I had a strange weakness in my back and around my waist together with an indescribable 'gone' feeling in my stomach. Physicians said it was creeping paralysis, from which, according to their universal conclusion, there is no relief. Once it fastens upon a person, they say, it continues its insidious progress until it reaches a vital point and the sufferer dies. Such was my prospect. I had been doctoring a year and a half steadily, but with no particular benefit, when I saw an advertisement of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, procured a bottle and began using it. Marvelous as it may seem, but a few days had passed before every bit of that creepy feeling had left me, and there has not been even the slightest indication of its return. I now feel as well as I ever did, and have gained ten pounds in weight, though I had run down from 170 to 137. Four others have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine on my recommendation, and it has been as satisfactory in their cases as in mine."—James Kane, La Rue, O.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is free from opiates or dangerous drugs.

Before noon today nine suspects were removed to Swinburne Island for observation and treatment. The bacteriological examinations prove that all the patients removed yesterday were cholera Asiatic.

SITUATION IS IMPROVING.

Money Is Working Easier, Exchange Increasing and Currency Coming Out.

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—The Boston News Bureau says of the present financial and business situation: All eyes are turned towards Washington, and it is a matter for general congratulation that the house is getting down to business. In the meantime the financial situation is improving, money is working easier, exchange between the centers is increasing in supply, and currency is coming out.

The crop situation while not so favorable as one would like to see, is nevertheless far from being a disappointment, and in its entirety indicates at least an average yield. On the government estimates of July 1 corn shows an increase of over 200,000,000 bushels, as compared with last year.

The security markets reflect an underlying confidence and prices gain quickly on the last appearance of demand.

COULDN'T TRUST THE BANK.

Carried His Savings in His Pocket and It Was Stolen.

DOVER, N. H., Aug. 12.—Shortly after 4 o'clock Saturday morning John Collins, a well-to-do farmer of Brunswick, went to his barn to milk the cows. He removed his vest and hung it up in a small closet during his work.

When he went after it he found that some one had stolen $1700 that it contained also five bank books. The money was some that Collins had drawn from the bank at South Berwick a few days ago, thinking the bank was unsafe.

The robbery is thought to have been done by a tramp who was secreted in the barn, but as yet no trace can be found of the thief. Collins is frantic over his loss, which represents his savings for years.

Cleveland at Gray Gables.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Aug. 12.—President Cleveland arrived at Buzzard's Bay Saturday morning at 7:30 o'clock on the train which connected with the Fall River boat. He was accompanied by Dr. Bryant. The president was met at the station and conveyed in his carriage to Gray Gables. He appeared somewhat tired. He will remain until about Sept. 1, or until Mrs. Cleveland is ready to return to Washington.

Union Pacific Retrenching.

OMAHA, Aug. 12.—The Boston office of the Union Pacific was not the only one abolished for an order issued from headquarters put an end to the office at New Orleans. An edict was also issued that the entire civil engineering department of the road would cease to exist after today. The question of still further reductions in passenger service is being considered.

Spanish Duties in Gold.

MADRID, Aug. 12.—It is announced that the government intends to order that payment of customs duties be made in gold. This will be equivalent to an increase of 20 per cent in the duties. The final decision in the matter may, however, be reserved until the United States government determines what action it will take in regard to silver.

Chicago to Get Gold.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Chicago has so far ordered $3,000,000 gold direct from London and will get the first instalment Monday.

THROUGH ENGLISH EYES.

London Times Discusses the Silver Question and Congressional Action.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The Times, commenting upon the proceedings in the United States congress says:

That a parity between gold and silver must be maintained is agreed by all parties in the United States. If Mr. Wilson's bill becomes a law the thing can be done; but that it can be done if the Sherman act remains in force, or if silver be admitted to free coinage, is more than doubtful. In either case there is virtually no limit to the silver certificates or coin with which the country would be flooded. The silver men's bill and Mr. Bland's bill mention an increased ratio—whatever this vague language may mean. It may be taken as a certain ratio. It would not be high enough to be safe. If it were, it would defeat the silver men's purpose. Moreover, whatever it might be at the moment, there would be no security possible against its becoming unsafe and faulty. If Mr. Wilson's bill becomes a law, there will be no difficulty remaining which cannot easily be overcome, and credit may be expected to gradually revive. There can be no finality in such legislation as the silver men are advocating. Nor does their past record give them any claim to be heard on the currency question.

STABBING AT BROCKTON.

In a Fight Patrick Flannigan Is Cut By His Brother-in-Law.

BROCKTON, Mass., Aug. 13.—Patrick Flannagan of Brockton was stabbed by his brother in-law, Charles P. Morancy, Friday night, in a fight in front of Morancy's residence at the corner of Court and Everett streets.

Some days ago Flanigan stole a watch from some one and pawned it in Boston. To obviate impending trouble on account of this Flanigan's friends made up a purse to redeem the watch and Friday Flanigan and Morancy went to Boston for it and returned full of liquor.

In Morancy's house after his return he got into a dispute with his wife and called her a vile name. Flanigan, who is her half brother, resented the insult, and Morancy called him out of doors to fight it out.

During the fight which followed, Morancy drew his knife and stabbed Flannigan. The knife struck a rib and glanced off. The wound is not regarded as a dangerous one.

Morancy ran toward the depot and is supposed to have taken a train by which he could reach Braintree via Whitman about midnight. The knife was found by Officer Boyden, and is a pocket knife with a blade about two and one-half inches long, and with a very sharp point.

KHEDIVE QUARRELSOME.

Wishes to Discharge the Prime Minister England Forced Upon Him.

CAIRO, Aug. 12.—The return of the Khedive from his visit to the Sultan at Constantinople has been marked by a further tension in the political situation, and a cabinet crisis is now on. The Khedive has had a quarrel with his prime minister Riaz Pasha, who owes his position to English influence and wants a minister in accord with his own policy, which is well known to be a pro-French one.

It was only a few months ago that he dismissed his ministers, who were in accord with the English policy and substituted a cabinet of his own selection. Lord Cromier, the British minister, intervened, and forced the substitution of Riaz Pasha as prime minister.

The khedive is only a little over 19 years of age. He succeeded to the throne as Khedive of Egypt, Sovereign of Nubia, of the Soodan, of Kordofan and of Darfour, on the death of his father, Khedive Mahemit Tewlik on Jan. 7, 1892. His title to the throne was confirmed by a firman issued by the Sultan of Turkey on March 26, 1892.

FAVOR A PROTECTORATE.

Nicaraguans Desire to Get Under Uncle Sam's Wing.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The World's Managua (Nicaragua) special says: The prevailing opinion seems to be that the truce between the Granada and Leon factions cannot be maintained. The friends of the deposed President Sacasa desire his recall from the United States.

Many business firms are bankrupt, and money is exceedingly scarce. It is unsafe to go a league outside of the towns owing to the predatory bands of discharged soldiers.

The sentiment among the better class in favor of a United States protectorate is growing, though the English and French influences are persistently hostile to American ascendency here. The American minister is endeavoring to prevent an outbreak, but he is not seconded by other diplomats.

THE CAPTAIN'S STORY.

Steamer Straits of Gibraltar Stove In and Abandoned.

HALIFAX, Aug. 12.—Captain Peter Rose of the lost steamship Straits of Gibraltar has reached St. John's N. F. He says that his ship struck on the southern end of Belle isle at 1 o'clock Monday, July 13, and her bows were crushed in. The land being precipitous, the ship slid off again and was headed for St. John's.

The full extent of the damage was not discovered at the time of the accident. The water gained on them so rapidly about midnight that the boats were got out and she was abandoned. The men remained by the ship until Tuesday morning, and then made for land. The vessel went to the bottom soon afterward. Her crew were in boats 24 hours and suffered considerably from exposure.

Lena Knox Not Abducted.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 12.—Mrs. W. G. Tilton denies that Lena Knox has been abducted. She states that Lena with her sister Lillie, and brother Bennie, had been on a visit to this city since July 1, and that Lillie and Bennie were returned to their mother last Tuesday, while Lena, in order that she might finish out her vacation was sent on a visit to relatives. As Mrs. Knox knows the whereabouts of the girl Mrs. Tilton was not inclined to give the public this information.

THE COLONIA WON.

Drifted Over the Finish Line Ahead of Others.

RACE OFFICIAL DID NOT SEE HER.

Vigilant Came in Second, Jubilee Third—Pilgrim Gave It Up.

NEWPORT, Aug. 12.—The race for the Goelet cup finished when the Colonia passed the lightship at 1:26 a. m., Saturday morning after a race lasting almost 15 hours.

Her crossing was not noticed by the committee on the flagship, and the race was claimed by the Vigilant which finished second at 1:28 a. m. The Jubilee was third. The Pilgrim gave up the race last night.

The following is the summary for the sloops: Colonia, start, 11:34:11, finish 1:26, actual time 13:49:49; Vigilant, 11:37:39, 1:28, 14; Jubilee, 11:39:49, 2:19:35, 14:41:46.

Archibald Rogers of the Colonia came into the New York Yacht club house early Saturday morning. When asked by a reporter, on his arrival, which boat won the Goelet cup race, he said: "I think we did, as we crossed the line at 1:26. Ten minutes later another yacht crossed, and there was great cheering when she went over.

"On hearing the cheering, the Colonia was sailed over to the flagship, and I asked what yacht it was. Those on board replied: 'The Vigilant.' I then told them we passed the line 10 minutes before, and they took my statement. There can be no question but what

The Colonia Won the Cup."

"Where was the Jubilee?"

"She came in astern. I could not see her. In fact, the fog was so thick that we could make out but little."

"What were the conditions on the race home from Hen and Chickens?"

"Poor; drifting all the way in. About midnight we saw lightning, and hove to, expecting a squall. The wind came up from the north and west, just east of the lightship, and it sent us along, and we crossed the line as I stated."

What is your opinion of the comparative speed of the cup defenders?"

"I can't tell anything about it. We have not been together to form any definite opinion yet. One thing is certain—to windward; there can be no question about that. I am glad of it. General Paine has done much for yachting.

The Jubilee Is a Very Fast Boat

Mr. Rogers feels confident that the Goelet cup will be awarded to the Colonia. Forty men on his yacht, saw the time by his yacht, saw the time by his watch, but his words need no corroboration. He will sail the Colonia to Cottage City, and will be on all the runs of the cruise. He declined to say anything about the Pilgrim, except that he was somewhat surprised by her performance.

The race was a big drift in, where luck and flukes played a prominent part. The Vigilant was second over the line. The Jubilee had the poorest luck of all the sloops, and came in last. The last half of the race was a big farce. The Volunteer won in the schooner class.

Herbert Foster Otis of the Pilgrim syndicate was badly injured during the race. He fell through the manhole aft, struck on his chin and twisted his right leg badly. A physician was called and examined him, and Saturday morning he was taken ashore and carried to the Rhode Island hospital. It is not thought that his leg is broken, although it is done up in splints.

The club topsail halyards parted, and this caused the Pilgrim's trouble. A man who was on board says that the Pilgrim will show up better later on.

TROUBLE IS BREWING.

State of Cohuila Much Excited Over a Gubernatorial Campaign.

GALVESTON, Aug. 12.—A special to The News from Eagle Pass says: There is evidently trouble brewing in state of Cohuila over the gubernatorial campaign. The air is filled with rumors of uprisings, but it is impossible to verify them. It is true that Colonel Valriana Valdes was shot at San Juan Allende Thursday morning, but whether in a skirmish or in a personal difficulty it is impossible to ascertain.

The statement which bears evidence of authority declares the towns of Rio Grande City, Peyotes, Nava and San Juan Allende are in arms. Another just as reliable denies the report.

At the bridge at Piedras Negras guards are permitted to come to this side. Thursday and Friday large quantities of arms and all guns there were to be had were purchased and taken to their side. The disquietude has no national significance. It is simply an attempt upon the part of the Cardenas party to bust the Galan party, and feeling is running high.

Indigo is now made by an electrolytic process, which consists of oxidizing the yellow liquid formed from the dry plants steeped in water by passing an electric current through it from copper electrodes.

A useful application of the electric motor is that of giving easily controlled power to the invalid tricycle chair. A storage battery under the seat supplies, it is claimed, force sufficient for 50 miles, without recharging, at a speed of eight miles an hour.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Dealings in Leading Securities in Boston and New York.

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—In Congress street call money is quoted at 8 to 10 per cent, and time money is nominally 6 per cent.

The market went off somewhat this morning in anticipation of the New York bank statement. The majority of the traders found that it would be far from a good one. It is also thought that many are selling stocks on the quiet, on news of the reported failing health of President Cleveland.

The opening was without a feature and the selling was of a mild sort, and the interest does not seem to materialize. The statement that the Commercial Bank of Brooklyn had closed its doors this morning didn't tend to depress matters, and in fact was thought little of.

General Electric dropped on the first quotation to 44½, a decrease of 1¼ per cent. This was followed by a reaction, which carried the price up to 46⅝. The stock then weakened again, selling at 45. Sugar common came on at the opening at an advance of 1 per cent to 74. This security also felt the depression and sank to 72¾ with a rally to 74, then fell off to 72¾, this was followed by a decided fall of 1¼ to 1¼, with a gain of ¼ to 73.

Atchison sold at a slightly advanced price at the opening, and weakened somewhat to 18⅝. Boston and Albany came firm at 199¼, an increase of 1¼ per cent. New York and New England also advanced, selling at 19¾, which is at an advance of 1¾. West End Railway common is up 1¼ to 49¾, and Bell Telephone sold at 80, one point better. Boston and Maine advanced two points on one quotation without any further change during the market. Fitchburg preferred was off a point to 78, with nothing doing in it. There was nothing doing in Chicago, Burlington and Quincy. Westinghouse Electric sold at the close one point up at 17.

Comparing the prices of the closing today with those of last night the changes are as follows: Atchison declined ¼, Boston and Albany advanced 1¼, New York and New England advanced 1¼, West End Railway common advanced 1¼, General Electric declined 1, Boston and Maine advanced 2, Fitchburg preferred declined 1, Bell Telephone advanced 1, Western Union advanced 1.

HOW TO INJURE HEALTH.

Being irregular in all habits of sleeping and eating too much, too many kinds of food, and that which is too highly seasoned.

Wearing thin shoes and stockings on damp nights and in cool, rainy weather. Wearing insufficient clothing, especially upon the limbs and extremities.

Sleeping on feather beds in 7 by 9 bedrooms without ventilation at the top of the window, and especially with two or more persons in the same small bedroom.

Allowing the power of gain to absorb our minds so as to leave no time to attend to our health. Following an unhealthy occupation because money can be made by it.

Tempting the appetite with bitters and niceties when the stomach says no, and by forcing food into it when nature does not demand and even rejects it. Gormandizing between meals.

Neglecting to take proper care of ourselves and not applying early for medical advice when disease first appears, but by taking quack medicines to a degree of making a drugshop of the body.

Marrying in haste and getting an uncongenial companion and living the remainder of life in mental dissatisfaction, cultivating jealousies and domestic broils and always being in mental ferment.

Beginning in childhood on strong tea and coffee and going from one step to another through chewing and smoking tobacco and drinking intoxicating liquors and mental and physical excesses of other kinds.

Leading a life of unfeeling, stupid laziness and keeping the mind in an unnatural state of excitement by reading trashy novels. Going to theaters, parties and balls in all sorts of weather in thin dresses, dancing until in a complete perspiration and then going home without sufficient overgarments through the cool, damp night air. —Jenness Miller Monthly.

August has some handsome wild flowers—the scarlet lily, the meadow rue, the aster and the golden rod. The latter is the queen. Its yellow is so conspicuous that it dominates everything.

A Laurel Hill resident is annoyed by bats that get into his sleeping apartments at night, and has recently killed two of them with one broomstick. The last one was about as large as an average bat.

Gentlemen who like to make short trips down the river for fishing at different points or for a morning sea bath are finding the steamer Gypsy a great accommodation. She takes down squads of fishermen and bathers every fair morning.

During this month the 10 30 service at St. Patrick's church has been short as befits the hot weather. Yesterday was the twelfth Sunday after Pentecost, and instead of the usual sermon the gospel of the day, from Luke x, 23—37, was read by the Rev. P. M. McKeane, while the musical portion of the service was proportionally shortened.

Chief Engineer Greeneberg has received an invitation from the executive committee of the New York State Firemen's association to take part in the parade and attend the banquet of the association at Coney Island, August 18 to 20. It will be the most remarkable gathering of the fire laddies ever held in this country. It is confidently expected by the executive committee that when the grand parade occurs on Friday afternoon at least 25,000 firemen will be in line.

Mr. Arthur M. Abell, who entertained his friends in the Orpheus club and others at Mr. Wellner's rooms last week, will return to Germany at once for a three, or possibly five years' course of study with the great violinist, Halir, of Weimar. Mr. Abell has already spent four years as a pupil of this master, and his playing was a revelation to those who heard him during his stay in town.

The Willimantic Linen company put up notices in their mills at Willimantic at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon that they would hereafter pay their help in checks drawn on the Charter Oak National bank of Hartford. About 5 o'clock they were taken down again by order of President Barbour, and it was announced that the company had all the money needed.

The ball cranks of Mystic are hoping the series will be arranged between Norwich and Mystic. Mystic has played good ball this season, but the financial result of the games has not been satisfactory. With Norwich, however, big crowds would be assured, and Manager Foley is striving to bring about the series so that it can be played in the near future.

The board of water commissioners recognize the necessity for acquiring all the remaining interests in the Bog Meadow brook for the city and preparing to store water there. Found Dead in a Pasture.

Augustus Cromwell, a carpenter by trade, was found dead in a huckleberry pasture in Poquonoc about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. A person passing the lot about 1 o'clock saw him throw up his hands and fall over, but supposed it was someone drunk and paid no attention to the occurrence. His wife went in search of him two hours later and found him on the ground dead.

Coroner O. E. Miner of Noank was called in and pronounced it a case of death caused by sunstroke. Deceased was a brother of Colvin Cromwell of Mystic.

Mentally Disordered.

Thomas Wilson, a well-known colored man who for some time past has shown signs of mental derangement, was in confinement at police headquarters last night. This is the fourth time he has been locked up in a week. He roams the streets all night long, and early Sunday morning was found by Officer Toomey vigorously pounding on a Thamesville door.

The South Lyme Murder.

The murder which was committed at Giant's Neck, South Lyme, a little over a year ago, at the present time bids fair to be avenged. It will be remembered that "Italian Pete," as he was called, was foully dealt with by one or more of his companions, who were living at that time in the old building known as the Way house, which claimed to be over 100 years old, and that three Italians made their escape to New York, where for a time all traces of them were lost. They were finally traced to Italy, where one still remains in custody. Sheriff Hawkins was at Giant's Neck recently and summoned to Norwich Antonio and Randolph, two of the Italians who, it is believed, will be able to fully establish the identity of the man now restrained by the Italian government.

A Glorious Chancel Window.

Mr. Timothy Blackstone of Chicago, brother to the late Lorenzo Blackstone of this city, has presented a large circular window in stained glass to a Presbyterian church on the lake front at Chicago. The painting is nearly fifteen feet in diameter, but the window when in place will measure twenty-three feet across. A broad border of glass will frame the central wheel, carrying decorative designs suggestive of mullions, but not Gothic mullions. These leave spaces above and below for two inscriptions. That above reads, "John La Farge, Thomas Wright, Assistant;" that below, "In memory of John Crerar, who died October 19, 1889, from his friend, Timothy B. Blackstone."

The Croquet Tournament.

Messrs. Billborough, Greenalilt, Adamson and Johnson, all of Philadelphia, the advance guard of the annual company of croquet experts, arrived in town Saturday and spent the day testing the newly graded courts on the National association grounds. Most of the contestants are expected to put in an appearance today.

The tournament games in the four divisions begin at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. The association meeting for the election of officers occurs Tuesday evening.

THE WHARF MEETING.

An Address by the Rev. Dr. Bacon Under Y. M. C. A. Auspices.

The Rev. Leonard Woolsey Bacon, D. D., addressed the wharf meeting under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian association Sunday afternoon. Preceding the announcement of the speaker by Assistant Secretary McMullen, the audience joined in a service of praise, and the Rev. C. T. Weitzel invoked the Divine blessing.

Dr. Bacon chose as his text the familiar passage, "Other men have labored, and we have entered into their labors." His theme was the necessity of a useful life, lived in close relation to the Master, as the greatest gift which man can confer upon his race. As a familiar instance of that truth he cited the history of that pioneer of church worship in Connecticut, Elder William Brewster, of Captain John Mason and of Jonathan Trumbull, of the Revolutionary days, whose lives and works reflected their alliance to Christ and Christianity; and the perpetuation of whose names abides in the welfare of the community which they left to their followers. A forcible contrast was presented in the story of Benedict Arnold.

OBITUARY.

Mr. Abel Rathbone.

In the death of Mr. Abel Rathbone, at his home at the East Great Plain, Saturday noon, Norwich loses one of her oldest and most respected townsmen. Since Mr. Rathbone suffered a paralytic shock, some years ago, he has steadily failed, and was unconscious for several days preceding his death.

He was born in Salem on June 20, 1810, received a common school education, and was teacher in several district schools. Returning from a year's residence in the south, he was elected to represent Salem in the legislature, where, as in other offices of trust and responsibility, faithfulness to constituents and willingness to serve them distinguished his term of service. His residence at the East Great Plain dates from the early part of 1851.

Mr. Rathbone possessed in a remarkable degree stern integrity and grandeur of character. Through life, in all its varied relations, he was true to its teachings. He was a man of plain manners, and his few words were always those of good sense and truth. Quietly and faithfully he lived, beloved and trusted by neighbors and acquaintances, and by his death are they bereaved of a true and generous friend.

Three children survive him, Mrs. J. C. Hendrix of Brooklyn, N. Y., Miss Jennie Rathbone and Mr. John F. Rathbone, editor of The Norwich Record.

PROSPEROUS "8 BELLS."

Preparations Progressing for the Opening of the Season.

The Brothers Byrnes, now sole owners of that phenomenally successful nautical comedy, "8 Bells," will open the season in this city the latter part of this month. The members of an entirely new company, each one an artist, arrived in town Saturday and active rehearsing will begin at once.

"8 Bells" has been retouched in spots for the coming season, and the last act has been remodeled completely. The Brothers, under the guidance of Mr. John Byrnes, will introduce new and startling specialties, and altogether the outlook for a very successful season is bright.

Mr. Walter Loftus, an experienced theatrical director, and a newspaper man of some note, will act as business manager for the organization this year. He is now in town completing preparations for the launching of the show.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT NOANK.

A Shipyard Workman Falls Thirty Feet and Will Die.

Another accident, probably fatal, occurred at Noank shipyard Friday. The unfortunate victim is Edward Bradshaw, married, about thirty years old, who lives near West Mystic. On Friday afternoon he in company with some other workmen attempted to line up the heavy top plank to the side of the vessel upon which they were at work. When he got his end in the desired position, he drove two spikes to hold it, after which the men at the other end commenced to bend it to the shape of the vessel.

It seems that the two spikes were not strong enough to hold the end and it flew back, knocking Bradshaw off into the air. After turning two or three somersaults, the unfortunate man struck his back on the logs thirty feet below. After striking his body rebounded several feet in the air.

When picked up he was unconscious. He was carried into one of the neighboring buildings, and Drs O. E. Miner and Weaver summoned. His head was cut and body terribly bruised. They made the man as comfortable as possible and sewed up the cuts in his head. Late in the afternoon he was carried to his home, but was unconscious with apparently no hope for recovery.

PORTEOUS

MITCHELL.

Our Annual Clearance Sale of Summer Merchandise began Saturday, Aug. 12, and will continue all this week.

We have had similar sales every season, but never before have we had at this season of the year a sale which offers so many and such incomparable lots of desirable merchandise as are included in this sale.

Every department offers some unapproachable bargains, and the greater the lot the lower the price.

Bear in mind that when we say "bargains" we mean something out of the ordinary. We never use the word except in connection with something extra ordinary.

During former sales there have been many disappointed in getting some particular article because they waited too long before coming to see about it.

Don't let it be your lot to be among the disappointed ones. If you need anything in merchandise now is the time to most advantageously buy it.

Staple Merchandise as well as Summer Goods are included in these offerings.

Men as well as women are interested.

There is something for everybody, and the prices were never lower than now.

VIGILANT WINS IN HER CLASS.

Monday's Run from Newport the Best of the Cruise.

SCHOONER CONSTELLATION

First in, with Lasca Second and Shamrock Third.

COTTAGE CITY, Mass., Aug. 14.—Today's run from Newport was the best one thus far of the cruise of the New York Yacht club. Yachtsmen were busy last night discussing the disposition of the Goelet schooner cup, and this morning's fresh northwesterly wind was just the tonic they needed to invigorate themselves. The prospect of a rattling good run to Vineyard Haven was pleasant. Shortly after 10 o'clock, signals were set on the flagship announcing the course of the 27 mile run. It was from Brenton's reef lightship to West Chop buoy in Vineyard sound.

The Vigilant got a splendid start and sailed rapidly to the front, while the Jubilee luffed to windward in the rear, pointing higher than the Colonia to gain the desired position and carrying her sail better, although the Vigilant was outfooting both at this time. The tide was ebb and on the weather bow. While the Jubilee was working herself into the superior position, the Colonia began to outfoot the Vigilant and overtook her, but could not blanket her so as to pass her. The Jubilee began to get nearer and apparently had the race all her way. The handling of all three boats was perfection itself, and not a detail was neglected to aid their sailing.

As the yachts neared the finish the Jubilee began to crawl up, but the Vigilant crossed the line a winner.

The winners in their classes are: Schooners Constellation, Lasca and Shamrock; sloops Vigilant, Katrina, Queen Mab, Harpoon.

IN CONGRESS.

House Debate Resumed on the Silver Question—Senate Matters.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—When the house met at 11 o'clock this morning there was a larger array of members present than there was at the corresponding hour on Saturday last. After the routine business was finished the speaker announced the committee appointments.

The silver debate was then resumed.

Mr. Bowmer (dem. of Florida) was accorded the floor. He spoke from a silver standpoint and charged that the advocates of the Wilson bill—the gold men of the democratic party and of the republican party—were responsible for the excitement which has created the destruction of public confidence, and which had caused the runs upon banking institutions. They had sowed the wind and were reaping the whirlwind, and they alone were responsible for the present financial and commercial scare. He further charged that the democrats from New York and from the eastern states were not prepared to carry out all the pledges of the Chicago platform relative to the currency.

Mr. Warner (dem., N. Y.,) speaking for the democratic members of New York, pledged to carry out, and they intended to carry out every pledge made to the people.

Mr. Layton (dem., Ohio,) said he would vote for the bill under consideration for the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman bill. He would do this, however, relying upon the good faith of the democratic administration and the democratic congress that in the coming regular session some permanent legislation would be enacted that would give all our people some suitable money worth a dollar all the world round.

Mr. Patterson (dem., Tenn.,) advocated the repeal of the purchasing clause, and criticised the amendments proposed to the pending measure. If the government agreed to the free coinage of silver at the ratios of 16 to 1 it would at once and abruptly bring the country to a single silver standard.

Mr. Patterson thought the country could not afford to coin silver dollars even at the ratio of 20 to 1, as such silver dollars would be worth only 61 cents each.

Mr. Bailey, Texas, advocated the Bland free coinage substitute for the Wilson bill.

Mr. Lacey, Iowa, spoke in favor of an amendment, which he proposed to offer, providing that the Wilson act should not take effect until the silver circulation had been increased to $700,000,000.

Mr Warner, New York, said he would first vote for the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act and next he would vote for the coinage of gold and silver on a parity.

Mr. Hutchinson, Texas, spoke in favor of the free coinage of silver. Before he concluded the house adjourned.

In the Senate.

The senate has passed the house joint resolution for the payment of the session employes of the two houses at the present session. Numerous petitions on the silver question were presented and referred, and one for the annexation of the Hawaiian islands, the latter coming from the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

Senator Hill has introduced a resolution, which lies on the table, declaring the sense of the senate that nothing but financial legislation shall be undertaken during the present special session.

Senator Mitchell of Oregon introduced in the senate today a resolution in the nature of an amendment to the resolution offered by Mr. Vest last week to maintain the parity of gold and silver. The resolution declares that the American policy of protection has rapidly advanced the United States from the poorest and weakest to the richest and most powerful among civilized nations; and that the mere probability of a change in our customs revenue laws, in accordance with the declaration of the late democratic platform, has plunged the country into its present unfortunate industrial and financial condition, resulting in closing factories, stopping the wheel of industrial enterprise, ruining credit, creating financial distrust and panic, and throwing hundreds of thousands of laborers out of employment.

The national bank note bill introduced in the senate today by Senator Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee, reads as follows:

Be it enacted, etc: That upon any deposit already or hereafter made of any United States bonds bearing interest in the manner required by law, any national banking association which has made or shall hereafter make, the same shall be entitled to receive from the comptroller of the currency circulating notes of different denominations in blank, registered and countersigned as provided by law, not exceeding in the whole amount in circulating notes thus issued the par value of the bonds deposited; provided that at no time shall the total amount of such notes issued to any such association exceed the amount at such time actually paid in as its capital stock.

Mr. Gallinger gave notice of an amendment which he would offer, declaring it to be inexpedient and unwise to change the existing tariff laws prior to 1897.

Mr. Vest spoke of the Sherman act as a houseless and homeless legislative dog, with no one even to give it a bone, and without being able to find a kennel in which to hide its dishonored head. Nevertheless, he said, he would vote against its repeal without a guarantee as solemn as the great necessity of the people, that silver shall exist in the United States as a money metal. He had been known as the firm and unshrinking friend of the president of the United States and had in all his campaign speeches in Missouri declared Mr. Cleveland to be a bi-metallist like himself, and that they only differed in reference to the ratio. He had had the right to make that statement because Mr. Cleveland had accepted the nomination on a platform which pledged the democratic party to bi-metallism. It had been as well known that the democratic party stood on the doctrine of bi-metallism as that it had met in Chicago and nominated Grover Cleveland for the president. He did not undertake to say now that the president was opposed to bi-metallism or that he would not give his executive sanction to a measure to coin silver at a commercial ratio with gold; but he did undertake to say that the president's message was most significant for what it failed to say.

Mr. Vest argued against the idea that overproduction of silver in relation to gold, justified demonetization of the white metal and he quoted tables of gold and silver production in support of his argument.

Mr. Vest asserted that any discussion of the subject would be imperfect and unsatisfactory, which did not admit on both sides that if the volume of money was increased, the prices of commodities went up; and that if the volume of money was decreased, the price of commodities went down.

Mr. Hoar—I understand the senator to argue that a single gold standard increased the burdens of the debtor classes.

Mr. Vest—I do say that emphatically.

Mr. Hoar—He says that if he were an Englishman he would be in favor of the gold standard. That is an important declaration coming from a senator who has such relations to the financial policy of the country, because it is equivalent to a declaration that, under the circumstances, we will never be able to induce England to agree with other nations, for the establishment of bi-metallism.

Mr. Hoar obtained the floor and then, after a short legislative session, the senate adjourned.

BICYCLERS AT MILWAUKEE.

Zimmerman Makes a Mile in 2.19 1-5—Attendance 3,000.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 14.—There was fair sport at the National park today. The races were contested on a poor track, the only available spot for speedy work being a wide path at the pole. The speediest performance today was Zimmerman's, when he made a mile in 2.19 1 5, Bliss coming in only a foot behind. In this contest Hoyland Smith set a great pace for half a mile when Dernberger of Buffalo cut out for a quarter. Taylor led in the sprint, Zimmerman overhauling and passing him, pulling by Bliss also. Dernberger cut across Taylor's front to take the pole and was disqualified for so doing. Taylor refused to take third. Zimmerman won the half mile open. He was hard pressed by George Taylor, with Hoyland Smith third. Crooks of Buffalo and Warren of Hartford collided with Bliss and came down in a bunch in the two mile handicap. Kennedy won the race. Twenty-nine men started in this race. The 2 30 class race for a mile was interesting. Bode won it. The attendance was about 3,000.

The Britannia Wins Again.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—The Britannia sailed the first round in 3 hours, 8 minutes, 1 second; the Navahoe in 3 hours, 11 minutes, 17 seconds; the Satanita in 3 hours, 20 minutes, 4 seconds; the Calluna in 3 hours, 53 minutes, 9 seconds.

In the middle of the second round the Satanita took first place, but the Britannia soon caught up. The Navahoe, which had lagged far behind, gave up the race before reaching the west middle buoy. The Calluna went ashore near Osborne bay. Towards the finish the wind was very light. The Britannia won in 6 hours, 41 minutes, 34 seconds. The Satanita's time was 6 hours, 43 minutes, 48 seconds.

Cruelty to Girls in a Kansas Institution.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 14.—The Industrial School for Girls, situated at Beloit, is undergoing an investigation because of allegations of cruelty to inmates.

It is charged that girls have been punished by confinement in dark cells for four weeks, and that in one instance a girl had her hands tied behind her for a week and was compelled to eat her food from a plate as would a dog, and that in another instance an attendant held the head of a girl down while a second attendant whipped her bare body with a rubber band in the end of which a piece of iron had been fastened.

Many of the girls are said to be emaciated and at death's door. Tales of suffering were told by a girl who believed she was on her death bed. Mrs. Eames, president of the board, says the institution shall be thoroughly examined.

Chas. B. Bliss of Lebanon, Conn., Appointed Assistant Professor.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 14.—Charles B. Bliss of Lebanon, Conn., has been appointed assistant to the professor in charge of the department of experimental physiology at Yale. Mr. Bliss graduated from Yale in '90 and has since been a student in the post graduate department.

He first came here in 1883 as American consul and went out in 1885, and was reappointed in 1889. His remains will be taken to his former home in Belfast.

Creedon Beats Greggains.

ROBY, Ind., Aug. 14.—Dan Creedon of Australia, the middleweight champion of the colonies and possessor of the Australian belt, and Alexander Greggains of San Francisco, champion middleweight of the Pacific coast, fought tonight in the arena of the Columbian Athletic club for a purse of $5,000 and a side bet of $2,000 a man. Creedon won the fight in the fifteenth round.

Mozart gave concerts at the age of six years. Handel and Beethoven composed at 13. Dante composed verses at nine. Tasso and Marivaux at 10. Niebuhr was a thinker at 7. Goethe wrote at 10 and Victor Hugo and Fenelon at 15. On the other hand Balzac, Walter Scott, Newton, Humboldt and Wellington were considered backward pupils.

THE WILLIMANTIC CAMP MEETING.

All the Cottages Open and the People Assembling.

THE OPENING SERVICES.

An Attentive Congregation Listen to Monday's Speakers.

WILLIMANTIC CAMP GROUND, Aug. 14.—Trains from the north and south brought many visitors to the Willimantic camp ground Monday. As the newcomers drove up the hill from the station, inhaling deep breaths of piney fragrance from the dense woods, it was evident that a new spirit of activity was abroad, since an unusual stir pervaded the circular streets and was felt throughout the whole twenty-three acres of oaks and elms and chestnuts and birches which shade this delightful retreat.

This activity centered in the amphitheater of the grove, where even at an early hour of the morning earnest workers were met to make plans for the coming week, to renew old fellowships or to make new and pleasant acquaintances. It was the opening day of the Methodist camp week, and the rest and silence of the pleasant grove were effectually and not ungratefully broken.

Most of the thirty-five church houses which face the "Circle" and speakers' stand are open, their wide doors extending hospitably outward. Mrs. Eunice Fellows is in charge of the East Main street house, Mr. and Mrs. James Lathrop have opened the Norwich Town church building, with the additional help of Mr. Peter Wilson. The Rev. J. H. Allen of the East Main street church and his family are on the grounds, as are also Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bushnell of Norwich Town, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Grosser of Talman street, Mrs. A. Hinckley and daughter of Franklin street, Mr. and Mrs. John Newton of Asylum street, Mrs. Dolbeare of Laurel Hill avenue, the acting secretary of the association in the stead of Mr. Ward of Niantic, Mrs. Wm. T. Crandall and mother, Misses Ella Toomey, Amy Cilley, Naomi Fairbanks, Mrs. George Harris, and Mr. and Mrs. Costello Lippitt of Williams street, whose pretty cottage is voted the most attractive of the two hundred or more which comprise the little village.

The Rev. J. H. James and wife of Rockville, formerly of Norwich, are tarrying with Mrs. Dolbeare; the Rev. E. J. Ayres and family of Uncasville are promptly on hand; Mr. H. L. Gard and Mr. Van B. Wheeler and their families, from New London, are comfortably quartered here, as is also Mrs. Edward Luce, the prominent temperance worker of Niantic. The Rev. Joseph Jackson and wife of Jewett City are at the East Thompson house, although camp meeting work at East Dudley, Mass., will compel Mr. Jackson to leave here on Saturday.

Mr. F. H. Bushnell of Norwich Town and Mr. C. A. Gould of Brooklyn have been appointed policemen for the week, although in this peaceful gathering their duties are not taxing.

The cottagers are well posted on home news. THE BULLETIN is conspicuous on the cottage tables, and Master Lewis Dolbeare, the active BULLETIN newsboy, serves his patrons promptly and well. There are two incoming and two outgoing mails daily; so the campers may easily keep in touch with the outside world.

Few appreciate the magnitude—in a small way—of the life here. While the tiny cottages shelter for the most part tired housekeepers who have come here for a season's rest, who read, lie in shaded hammocks, and put aside the baking and brewing and general stewing of life until their domestic duties seem like playing house, and solid comfort seemed the ideal of all lives, still there is a business side to this restful existence. At the foot of the hill are the store, the restaurant, the boarding house, with facilities for feeding 3,000 of the hungry; ovens, which will bake 300 loaves of bread, or an equal number of New England indispensables—pies; boilers, which will cook at one time a barrel of beans or tongues. Almost everything required by the ordinary demands of life can be bought here, at the Willis store—where the mail comes in,—the Johnson restaurant or the Yeoman's boarding house, and at as reasonable rates as prevail at home.

There is an excellent spring of pure, cold water, and an abundance of yellow dust just now, for everybody is praying for rain. There is talk of having a watering cart from Willimantic come over to sprinkle the dry streets.

Cottages rent from $18 to $60 for the season, from May to October. Owners pay $3 and church houses $5 ground rent to Mr. R. N. Stanley of Manchester, the collector. Manager Hoxie has charge of the grounds, and an executive committee of nine, of whom Presiding Elder Eben Tirrell is president, has care of the temporal interests of the association. The annual meeting for the election of officers—three of these nine retire yearly—will be held on Wednesday.

Of the three new cottages built this year, one belongs to Mr. Morrill Currier of Chelsea, Mass., who will be remembered as of the firm of Currier Brothers, furnishers, who used to do business on Franklin square. Mr. Currier is here at present.

The opening meeting of the week was held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, and was attended by about 150 persons. After a praise service, when the choir of eighteen voices was led by Mr. Edward Wheeler of New London, Miss Williams of Worcester furnishing the organ accompaniment and Elder Tirrell presiding, the Rev. John Pearce of Old Mystic read the Scriptures, John iii., and fervent prayer was offered by the Rev. Joseph Jackson of Jewett City. On the stand with the elder were Dr. C. R. Harris of Stafford Springs, Rev. D. G. Ashley of Voluntown, Rev. E. F. Smith of Putnam, Rev. James Tregaskis of Manchester, Rev. Mr. Brayley of Glendale, Rev. Mr. Bell of Colchester, Rev. C. B. Bromley of Quarryville and the Rev. J. H. Allen of Norwich.

In the straw-strewn amphitheater, under the lofty canopy of oaks and elms, the attentive congregation then listened to the Rev. D. G. Ashley of Voluntown, whose text was: "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved," his theme, Salvation. His discourse was a graphic narration of the mission of Paul and Silas, when, in obedience to the voice of God they journeyed to Philippi, overcoming all obstacles, converting many. Salvation is experience, personal experience; not gained by hereditary tendencies, not alone the renunciation of error, not a general morality nor a loud profession, but a complete change in the individual, wrought not by human method, but by God Himself. Hence the imperativeness of belief in the supernatural in religion, as well as of immediateness in God's work of salvation. Witness the parable of the man sick with the palsy, of the lame man at the gate of the temple; the miracle following Christ's walking upon the waves. Ministerial work is divine, of God, and as such to be weighed and valued.

Elder Tirrell spoke briefly of the power of prayer, of God's answering immediately the believing petitions of his children.

The usual altar service—under the direction this week of Evangelist I. T. Johnson of Oxford, Mass.—was omitted. Benediction by Dr. Harris followed the closing hymn.

In the evening the Rev. Mr. Jackson of Jewett City preached from Matthew ix. 36: 38, on "Laborers in God's Vineyard," speaking with much fervor and power. Spirited singing was a feature of this service.

DRAGGED FROM HIS WAGON.

Attempted Highway Robbery of a Roxbury Farmer.

NEW MILFORD, Conn., Aug. 14.—Officer Place of this town is looking for John Wilson of Waterville and George Hinckey of New Milford, two young men charged with a serious crime. Saturday afternoon farmer Sidney Winters of Roxbury started to drive to New Milford, intending to make several purchases. He had with him a good-sized sum of money. When he was half way to town he was stopped in the road by Wilson and Hinckey, one of whom seized the bridle and brought the horse to a standstill. Winters was dragged from his wagon and brutally beaten. One of the highwaymen struck him over the head with his horse whip, while the other picked up a stone and beat him on the back of the head. The man demanded Winter's money, but he did not give it up, and fought the highwaymen off as best he could.

While the men were struggling in the road James Reynolds, an employe on one of the farms near the scene of the attack, happened along and the rascals fled. Reynolds drove Winters home. Yesterday afternoon Winters came to this place and obtained a warrant; charging the men with attempted highway robbery. It is thought they were under the influence of liquor at the time.

LABOR WILL HELP.

Chicago Unions to Put Their Funds Into Active Circulation.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—A most important step in the direction of relieving the financial stringency has been taken in Chicago by organized labor. An investigation recently instituted by a local newspaper disclosed the fact that there was no less than $50,000 locked up in the treasuries of the various branches of organized trades in Chicago. When this fact was brought to the attention of some of the leaders of labor a meeting was called.

Resolutions were adopted declaring that this money should be put into circulation. If the local unions approve the money will be withdrawn from safe deposit companies and invested in safe securities, and the money put into circulation. It is expected that the unions will act at once.

Shipping in the Dominion Falling Off.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 14.—The department of marine today issued its annual shipping list, giving all statistics up to December 31, 1892. The total shipping on the register books of the Dominion on that date was 7 007 vessels of 964,129 tons, valued at $28,938,870.

This was a decrease of eight vessels and 41,346 tons below 1891. The figures for the past twenty years show that Canadian shipping interests are decreasing. The highest point reached was in 1878, with 7,469 vessels and 1,333,015 tons. The figures for 1892, on the contrary, are the lowest since the full completion of confederation.

The new vessels built last year, 293, of 26,778 tons, were also of less tonnage than in any year since 1878, save in 1889. It was after 1878, the end of Canada's low-tariff term, that the new shipping launched first fell below 100,000 tons.

Lost His Arm.

PUTNAM, Aug. 14.—A sad accident occurred in the upper village today at 1.30 p. m. While Edward Lewen was in the act of lowering the wheel gates of the Putnam Manufacturing company he slipped and his left hand came in contact with the gears, terribly crushing it. He was conveyed to Dr. Russell's office, where, assisted by Dr. Kent, Dr Russell amputated Lewen's arm at the elbow. Mr. Lewen has resided in Putnam for nearly forty years. He has the sympathy of his many friends.

Thomas to Remain in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 14.—Theodore Thomas will remain in Chicago and carry out the programme of orchestral concerts arranged two years ago. Milward Adams said that the concerts would be held at the Auditorium this winter as they have been for the last two years. This will conclude the series arranged for under the contract made with Mr. Thomas, whereby the expenses were guaranteed by fifty prominent Chicagoans.

Sandbagged the Clerk.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 14.—About 6 o'clock this afternoon two men entered the jewelry store of Edmund Zernitz at State and Bishop streets. A 14-year-old son of the proprietor was in charge of the store. The men engaged the boy in conversation and finally one of them dealt him a heavy blow with a sandbag. The bag broke and the boy was only stunned for a moment. The men seeing that their plan of robbery had failed, made off. The police believe them to be two crooks. They are looking for the rascals.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE AT TOLLAND.

Young Baltimore Lady Takes Offence at Reproof.

USES A REVOLVER.

Was Attached to a Respectable Young Man of Hartford.

ROCKVILLE, Conn., Aug. 14.—The attempt of Miss Jennie L. Loomis to commit suicide at Tolland on Saturday was a sad affair and created quite a sensation in that quiet village.

Miss Loomis is only 16 years of age and is a daughter of B. T. Loomis, a well-known and wealthy resident of Baltimore. Mr. Loomis has a summer residence in Tolland, where he has been staying for a few weeks.

It appears that Miss Loomis was very much attached to Everett Bunnell, a young man residing in Hartford, who has spent some time in Tolland. It is said that Mr. Loomis did not wish his daughter to associate with the young man, although he is respected by all his acquaintances.

On Saturday Miss Loomis was engaged about the house in household duties and it is said her father, in referring to her work, told her that she would do her work much better if she was not so much in love. This remark appeared to offend her. She left the room, went up-stairs and found her father's Smith & Wesson twenty-two caliber revolver. She placed the muzzle of the revolver just over the right lung and discharged it. The report brought the people in the house to the room, who found her on the floor. Dr. Storrs of Hartford was summoned, but was unable to extricate the ball.

It was thought on Saturday that she would not recover, but this morning there were hopes that she would survive.

Commander Booth Back from England.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Commander Ballington Booth of the Salvation Army and Mrs. Booth arrived here Sunday on the Cunard steamship Aurania from Liverpool. They left here last July on the Campania, and have since then visited all the principal cities of England. At London there were two receptions given in their honor. The first, at Congress hall, was attended by over 5,000 people. The second one was given at Exeter hall by General Booth. Commander Booth reports that the condition of the Salvation Army in England is excellent. The army is doing a great social work, and is making itself of the greatest use to the poor and needy. At present it is supporting over 3,000 destitute people.

Dr. Ray of Bridgeport Killed by Falling from a Window.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 14.—Dr. George B. Ray, aged 67, one of the best-known residents of this city, died on Sunday as the result of injuries received in a peculiar manner. About five o'clock, Saturday afternoon, he went up-stairs in his residence to take a bath. After reaching the bath room he sat on the window seat for awhile, apparently to cool off. In a few minutes he fell asleep and fell out, striking on the ground thirty-eight feet below. His skull was fractured and his thigh terribly broken. The injuries were so severe that he died. Dr. Ray was a D D. as well as a M D., and was prominent in the New York East conference. In England he filled several pulpits.

Ansonia Feels the Money Stringency.

ANSONIA, Conn., Aug. 14.—One feature of the scarcity of currency in the associated villages of Ansonia, Birmingham and Shelton is that the building contractors were forced to lay off many of their men Saturday night. There is quite a building boom in these villages and the lack of money with which to pay the help has caused considerable hardship. Most of the contractors expect to be able to negotiate loans this week which will relieve them and set the men at work again.

Sanger May Never Ride Again.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—A dispatch from Milwaukee says: "Walter C. Sanger, the champion Milwaukee bicycle rider, may never appear in a wheelman's ride again in consequence of the injuries he received in Chicago. It is feared that he is hurt internally and that the injury may prove of such a character as to preclude the possibility of his ever again making any kind of speed upon his wheel. He has been taken to Waukesha for a rest and medical treatment.

Forest Fires Raging in Maine.

An Old Norwich Paper.

One of the oldest papers hereabouts is in possession of Superintendent Robert Smith of the B. & A. company, says The New London Telegraph. It is a copy of "The Norwich Packet and Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island Advertiser," of December 9, 1779—rather a long name for a newspaper and a wide territory to cover. It is a four-page, wide measure sheet with three columns to a page, set in nonpareil type and better made up and printed than most of the ancient sheets prized as relics of the past. It was printed at Norwich "by Alexander and James Robertson and John Trumbull at their printing office near the court house," and the subscription price was 6s. 8d. a year.

The Y. M. C. A. at Camp Morris.

As in former years at the Connecticut National guard camp the state Young Men's Christian association will have a reading and recreation tent on the grounds in which will be always on hand pens, ink, paper, envelopes, stamps, etc., daily, weekly and illustrated papers and magazines, army and navy journals, standard novels, etc. Quoits, punching bag, base ball and bats, foot ball and basket ball will be furnished, and crokinole, pochette, chess, checkers, dominoes, puzzles and other games, with a tank of cold water, will be on hand. To the use of the tent and all of its privileges, absolutely free of charge, a hearty invitation is extended to the members of the Connecticut National Guard while off duty.

The association, of which I. DeVer Warner of Bridgeport is chairman, S. M. Knapp of Bridgeport treasurer, and E. B. Phillips of Winsted secretary in charge, will also hold a camp fire on Monday evening, August 21, and an athletic entertainment Wednesday evening, August 23.

MGR. SATOLLI COMING.

Pope Leo's Ablegate to Visit the Connecticut Diocese.

The Catholic Standard, in a triple-leaded editorial, announces, on what is professed to be good authority, that Mgr. Satolli will visit the diocese of Hartford immediately after his return from the Pacific coast. Mgr. Satolli is expected to finish his western trip within two weeks, and it is expected that he will be in Connecticut early next month. The visit to this diocese of the distinguished representative of Pope Leo XIII will be in the nature of a tour of inspection and for the purpose of forming acquaintances among the clergymen, and not to settle differences or disputes. The relations between the various clergymen and Bishop McMahon are and have been of the pleasantest nature, without a symptom of discord, so the ablegate will have no occasion to exercise his authority as an arbitrator. Mgr. Satolli during his visit to the diocese will make his residence at the Episcopal residence, Hartford, and from there will make trips to the different parishes for inspection.

Connecticut's Educational Exhibit.

Secretary Charles D. Hine of the state board of education has issued a catalogue of the state's educational exhibit at the World's fair in the south gallery of the manufacturers and liberal arts building, east of the center. There are five alcoves, in which the exhibits are grouped by towns, as follows: I., Willimantic; II., New Britain, Middletown; III., Stamford, Torrington, Norwich, Bristol; IV., Waterbury, Saybrook, Colchester, Hartford; V., New Haven, Bridgeport.

RAIL SHOOTING.

Prospects Good for the Sport on the Connecticut River.

The Essex correspondent of The Hartford Courant writes:

The law on rail or sora bird shooting is off September 1. These birds will probably be very numerous this season on the meadows along the river front. Already a few have been seen among the blackbird oats in the North Cove bay at Walters' Brod, which is earlier than usual for them to arrive. The oats upon which the birds feed and fatten for fall shooting are more plenty and larger than has been the case for the past few years. During the shooting season a large number of New York sportsmen come here in steam yachts for the game, and Hartford and New Haven sportsmen are always well represented.

THE EIGHTEENTH REGIMENT.

Annual Reunion at Quinebaug Lake—Interesting Reminiscences.

The surviving members of the old Eighteenth Connecticut Volunteers will hold their twenty-eighth annual reunion at Quinebaug lake, about two miles from Danielsonville, Wednesday. The reunion this year will be purely of a social nature, and instead of a specially prepared banquet there will be refreshments on the basket picnic plan, for which the place of meeting is so admirably arranged, there being tables, swings and a platform for dancing. There is also a building for refuge in case of a storm. Plenty of boats are available and the lake is an elegant place for boating. The New England railroad will sell excursion tickets from its various stations to the lake at reduced rates, the Norwich & Worcester division leaving passengers close to the grounds.

The old Eighteenth Connecticut was almost entirely enlisted from Windham and New London counties, although a considerable number were drawn from Tolland county, especially from the towns bordering on the first named counties. Forty members of Company C enlisted from Lebanon. The regiment was mustered into service August 18, 1862, with Col. William G. Ely in command, and left at once for Fort McHenry and the scene of strife. At the battle of Winchester in Virginia almost the entire regiment was captured; all but the commissioned officers, however, were soon paroled and a corps of officers promoted from the ranks who did service until the close of the war. Twenty-three of the commissioned officers, however, were retained as prisoners and held as such until near the close of the war, in the following rebel prisons: Libby, 10½ months; Macon, Ga., three months; Charleston, S. C., two months; Columbia, S. C., six months. They were paroled March 1, 1865, and allowed to join the regiment a few weeks before Lee surrendered. Among those who remained the entire time in the above named prisons were First Lieutenant Andrew W. Loomis of Company H, which was raised from the town of Windham; S. A. Comins, George E. Jordan, Van B. Jordan, George W. Herrick, George W. Briggs, James Haggerty, Thomas Jordan and Dexter Spencer. Thomas Spencer, who died a few weeks ago, was also a member of the Eighteenth.

Among those who saw service in the Eighteenth now living, are Colonel William G. Ely of Norwich, Isaac H. Bromley of The New York "Tribune," Lieutenant Colonel Henry Peale of Norwich; Lieutenant Carruthers, postmaster of Norwich; Captain J. E. Woodward of Norwich, Captain George Mathewson and Lieutenant A. G. Scranton of Danielsonville. The reunion of '92 was held on the old battle field at Winchester, Va.

Artificial miniature auroras of the borealis variety have been produced by both de la Rive, the French savant, and Lemstrom, the Swedish astronomer. In Prof. Lemstrom's experiments, which were made in Finland, the peak of a high mountain was surrounded with a coil of wire, pointed at intervals with tin nibs. The wire was then charged with electricity, whereupon a brilliant aurora appeared above the mountain, in which spectroscopic analysis revealed the greenish yellow rays so characteristic in nature's display of "northern lights."

The administration of the oath, as in civil cases, is of high authority: "Then shall an oath of the Lord be between them both, that he has not put his hands into his neighbor's goods." See Exodus, xxii, 11. "Swearing on the Gospels" was first used in the year 528. The first oath administered in judicial proceedings was by the Saxons in the year 600. The words "So help me God and all the saints" concluded an oath down to 1550.

A CHICAGO HORROR.

Senate Hotel Proved Good Food for Flames.

GUESTS LIKE RATS IN A TRAP.

Escape Was Almost Impossible—Six Smothered or Burned to Death.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—A hotel fire, resulting in the death of a number of the guests, occurred this morning. The fire was in the Senate hotel, a three-story structure on Madison street, near Fifth avenue. One man jumped from a window in the top story and was killed. About half a dozen others were suffocated or burned to death. The first body to be discovered was that of Harry Godfrey, the seven-year-old son of J. Godfrey of Buchanan, Mich. The loss on the building and contents is practically total, but as the structure was old and the furnishings cheap the amount will not exceed a few thousand dollars.

A restaurant occupied the ground floor and the Senate hotel the two upper ones. It contained 25 rooms and held 37 guests when the fire broke out, shortly after 6 a. m. The rooms were separated by flimsy wooden partitions, and Proved Good Food For Fire.

The blaze started in the office on the second floor and spread rapidly through that and the upper rooms. Before the guests could be warned the flames had cut off the escape of a number from the stairways and they were caught like rats in a trap. J. Gooche is the landlord of the Senate, and J. Obren manager.

As fast as the dead bodies were taken from the ruins they were carried to the morgue. Four bodies were soon recovered. They were those of the Godfrey boy and two men and a woman. The scene during the fire was an exciting one. Mrs. Ahrens and her daughter Annie, who slept in the front part of the third floor, discovered the fire first. A moment later they and the other occupants were running about, seeking an avenue of escape. Annie and her mother groped their way through the smoke to the window and Stood Out On the Sill.

The crowd below yelled to them not to jump. With desperation the women clung to the frame work, keeping as far out as possible, while the smoke and flames burst through the windows around them. Although badly burned, they remained there until the arrival of a hook and ladder company. A ladder was raised and they were rescued.

A man whose identity is unknown, next reached the window. The flames were already scorching his almost naked body, and he jumped to the stone pavement. He was picked up in an unconscious condition. Ladders were then raised and the work of rescuing the imprisoned inmates was systematically begun.

For some, hemmed in by flames, overpowered by smoke and with all egress shut off, the rescue was too late. The firemen found dead bodies rather than living ones. The fire is said to have started from an overturned stair lamp.

The Injured.

Mattie Ahrens, 18, arms burned, will recover; F. Myer, head cut by falling glass; L. M. Rogers, burns on body and arms, serious; Grace Godfrey, 18, extensive burns, will probably die, taken to Mercy hospital; unknown man, supposed to be William Kronburg, a stage hand at the Sculliar theater, badly burned about the head and face, will probably die; unknown man taken to county hospital, is about 18 years of age and very badly burned, can scarcely recover; unknown man, about 24, terribly burned about the head and face, unconscious in the county hospital and will die; William Mullery, 37, burned about the head and arms, cut by glass in breaking window for air, will recover; Mrs. F. A. Coons, cut by glass about the head, taken to Mercy hospital, will die; Flora Coons, 15, found almost suffocated, removed to Mercy hospital.

BURGLARS AT WORK.

Railroad Station Burglarized and a Private House Ransacked.

NEWTON, Mass., Aug. 14.—The Newton Lower Falls station of the Boston and Albany railroad was entered by burglars sometime between midnight and daylight this morning. The door of the ticket office was forced in and the safe blown open and $75 stolen. The safe was blown by drilling several holes in the door, filling them with powder and then applying a [illegible].

The door was blown completely off and and the station was considerably damaged by the explosion. Windows were smashed and the woodwork of the interior badly shattered.

The house of S. B. Holden in Weston was broken into this morning between 2 and 3 o'clock and clothing and jewelry valued at $50 taken. It is thought that job was done by the same parties who broke into the depot.

BISMARCK SPEAKS.

Says German Schools Have Greatly Strengthened National Unity.

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—Prince Bismarck received at Kissengen yesterday 800 members of the Bavarian schoolmaster's league. He made a long speech, in which he said that the German school was a specific institute, like a corps of officers and could not be easily imitated. The French system would not be suitable to Germany.

France was an uncomfortable neighbor through the influence of her schools which inculcated Chauvinism, national vanity, ignorance of the geography and history of other nations. Germany should profit by the lesson and oppose her former propensity to special subjects, which divert national thoughts.

"Already," he said, "the schools have the thankful task of strengthening that feeling. We are all Germans. We have now become a great unified nation. We have founded institutions under which we live and breathe as a nation, enabling us to play a part not inferior to that of Great Britain, Russia or France, whose unity was founded earlier than ours.

"The unity of Germany is now so firm that it would be difficult to separate us, even if political errors were made. We shall go together wherever necessary, but we ought to be otherwise indulgent of peculiarities.

"The German dynasties can contribute essentially to maintain these peculiarities. Among them Bavaria has become a powerful pillar of the empire. Wherefore I ask you to join me in cheers and books for Bavaria."

The speech was received with great enthusiasm. Prince Luitpold responded.

MARCHING THE STREETS.

Workmen Laying the Gas Mains in Boston Out on a Strike.

BOSTON, Aug. 14.—The work of laying the mains and making the connections through the streets of this city for the Brookline Gas company was suddenly stopped this morning by the refusal of about 300 workmen to accept a reduction of 10 per cent in wages.

As soon as the foremen of the street men reported at the yard of Contractor Nevins on Columbus avenue this morning they were notified that all laborers under them would be required to work 10 hours per day.

This order was passed around to the men, who at once waited upon the contractor and notified him that in as much as they had agreed to do the work at nine hours as the limit of a working day, they did not feel as if it was fair to put on an extra hour.

Contractor Nevins agreed that the men should go back on the nine-hour day basis but that he would reduce their wages from $2 to $1.80 per day. This proposition did not meet with favor from the men, who decided to strike.

Those of them who happened to be in the yard at the time proceeded in a body along Columbus avenue to Concord square, thence to Washington, to Northampton, to Shawmut avenue.

Along these streets their associates were at work, apparently awaiting the result of the conference with the contractor, and upon being notified that they would have to work one hour longer or take 20 cents less per day, they immediately joined in the procession. It is estimated that there are 800 men engaged in the strike, but only about 200 were in line.

The men are under the impression that the conditions of the permit for opening the streets granted by the city government calls for nine hours at $2 a day to all laborers. A committee is to wait upon the mayor today to see if the above terms can be enforced.

GUNS FOR THE NAVY.

The New 13-inch Weapons to Be Tested at Indian Head.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—In a week or two there will be tested at the naval ordnance proving ground at Indian Head the first 13-inch gun built for the navy. There are five of these guns completed. Beyond this caliber there will be little use in going for naval purposes.

All of the guns turned out by the navy ordnance bureau have proved of excellent character. This 13-inch gun weighs 135,-600 pounds, or 60.5 tons. Its total length is 40 feet, and the greatest diameter of the gun body 49 inches. The total length of the bore is 456 inches of which 370 inches are rifled. The rifling consists of 52 grooves, each .415 inches wide and .06 inches deep. The powder chamber is 69 inches long and has a diameter of 25 inches.

The missile weighs 1100 pounds, and it will require 550 pounds of powder to discharge it at a velocity at the muzzle of 2100 feet seconds. At 2000 yards' distance, it will still be going at the rate of 1978 feet per second. The energy of the projectile at the muzzle is estimated at 33,627 foot tons, or sufficient power to lift 33,627 tons one foot in a second. It is said that the shell can perforate 27 inches of solid steel at the muzzle of the gun, and 26 inches of steel at 1500 yards distant.

In the first test Brown prismatic powder will be used and a cast iron shell fired. The carriage is nearly completed, a temporary mount being used. The permanent mounts will not be ready for some months yet.

TROOPS ON HAND.

Federal Government in Mexico Looking After Election Trouble.

GALVESTON, Tex., Aug. 14.—A special from Eagle Pass, Tex., to the News says about 200 federal troops were unloaded at Sabinas, state of Coahuila and Peyotes, on the Mexican International yesterday morning. It is reported that a train load of cavalry followed last night to be distributed along the line of the road.

Cardina's party captured Navaya and turned out the Gola officials and took charge of the offices. This places them in possession of most all the towns surrounding Piedras Negras.

What action the federal troops will take is purely surmise. About 200 of Cardina's men are camped three miles from Peyote's station, where Coherra is in command. It is not believed the federal troops will be antagonized, as both factions proclaim their adherence to the federal governments.

Cardina is a candidate for governor against Gola, the present incumbent, who herein prevented meetings in behalf of his opponents.

ARTISTS DISATISFIED.

Medals Awarded by Jury In Oil and Water Color Paintings.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Medals have been awarded by the jury selected to pass opinion upon the paintings in oils and waters at the fair to the artists of all countries except the United States, Mexico, Germany and Austria. The report will be complete in a day or two.

Artists of France, Belgium, Norway and Russia absolutely refused to be considered as competitors, and a number of German and Dutch artists declined to have their works passed upon by the jury. Great dissatisfaction was created by the fact that only one uniform honor was to be conferred.

Father and Son Drowned.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 14.—Frank Leach and his son Harry were drowned in the Ohio river at Vanport, Pa., yesterday. Harry went in bathing, and shortly afterward his father heard a cry of alarm from him. The father tried to rescue him and both were drowned.

1832—Peel's acts mitigating the punishment of theft were passed by parliament.

1830—The law terms in England fixed by statute, the courts to hold four terms of sittings in each year—the Hilary term, the Easter term, the Trinity term and the Michaelmas term.

1831—The principle established in France that a jury shall decide by a majority of two-thirds.

1832—Mode of procedure in all the English superior courts made uniform.

1836—Roger B. Taney of Maryland appointed chief justice of the United States supreme court.

1836—An act was passed repealing the law by which a murderer was executed the next day but one after his conviction.

1843—The Law Times, the first purely legal paper, was established.

1844—The English Law Amendment society was formed. Its purpose is to secure reformation of the English penal and civil codes.

1845—A series of acts passed by the English parliament looking to the removal of public nuisances.

1846—Albert J. Tirrell's trial for the murder of Maria A. Bickford. Tirrell was acquitted on the ground that the murder was done while he was in a fit of somnambulism.

1851—Laws passed in England relative to the sale of arsenic, made necessary on account of the frequent use of it by poisoners and suicides.

1861—An act passed by the British parliament for the general improvement of criminal law.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

RAILWAY RUMBLES.

Mr. Huntington has installed his nephew, H. E. Huntington, as general manager of the Southern Pacific system, though Mr. Towne retains the nominal position.

All roads entering Columbus, O., have entered into an agreement which abandons the long established practice of giving state employees a passenger rate of a cent a mile on all occasions, and hereafter they must pay full fare.

An old rule in force 30 years ago on the South Carolina road read: "In cases of dense fogs all freight trains on the road will go into the nearest turnouts and there remain until it clears off. The passenger and night express trains will in such cases run strictly within schedules."

Labor Note.

In a New York business office there was a young man who did not do much except loaf. He has, moreover, of late acquired the habit of coming into the office very late. His employer remarked to him:

"You are late again this morning."

"Yes, but it can't make much difference, as you say I don't do anything," replied the clerk.

"That's true. You do absolutely nothing, but I want you to do it in the office."—Exchange.

PEARLINE

Harmless to every thing washable—Pearline. All the harm comes from neglecting it. You can get things clean by scrubbing, but you wear them out. You can wash by main strength, but it's hard work. Pearline saves work and wear. It saves time and money is all you have to do; all you have to do is to get Pearline.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. [illegible] JAMES PYLE, N. Y. aug14dTuThFw

WHAT AILS THE BABIES?

Heat Only One Cause of the Great Mortality.

Use a Life-Saving Food for Infants During Summer Days

Keep Them Healthy by Giving the Purest and Simplest Diet.

Summer lessens a baby's appetite, hinders digestion, and exhausts nervous strength.

Under these debilitating conditions the child's life depends upon securing the purest, most sustaining, and most readily digested food.

Lactated food, which has undoubtedly saved the lives of thousands of babies and kept them well during the hot days of summer is the best possible diet. Its basis is sugar of milk, and with it is combined pure barley malt, the finest wheat gluten and the nutritious elements of the oat, and then, by thoroughly cooking the mixture by high steam heat, such changes are effected as are sufficient to make the food a new substance, which fulfils every physiological and chemical requirement. No sugar is used but the pure sugar of milk, and this in proportion to most closely represent mother's milk. It is absolutely pure.

Infants who are "run down" by the effects of hot weather at once begin to mend when fed with this food. Little ones who are nervous and fretful under the heat of the summer sun, and are with difficulty persuaded to take other food, eat lactated food with evident relish.

It is the food upon which hundreds of happy mothers have nourished their little ones. Says Mrs. H. E. Chapman, Newton Centre, Mass., in a letter to the makers of this food.

"I wish to tell you about our baby. We tried a food at first that baby did not seem to like, as he always left half his bottle. Finally he was taken very sick and the doctor advised us to use lactated food, which we did at once, and from that time until this he has cried for it every two hours, and although we always give him one and one-half cupfuls, he has never left any in his bottle. He is now a year old, and has grown to be such a fat, healthy boy."

Every mother should try lactated food. Any druggist will sell for 25 cents a package large enough to make 10 pints of nourishing food, and in large packages it is even less expensive. aug15d

PORTEOUS & MITCHELL.

PORTEOUS & MITCHELL.

Our Annual Clearance Sale of Summer Merchandise began Saturday, Aug. 12, and will continue all this week.

We have had similar sales every season, but never before have we had at this season of the year a sale which offers so many and such incomparable lots of desirable merchandise as are included in this sale.

Every department offers some unapproachable bargains, and the greater the lot the lower the price.

Bear in mind that when we say "bargains" we mean something out of the ordinary. We never use the word except in connection with something extra ordinary.

During former sales there have been many disappointed in getting some particular article because they waited too long before coming to see about it.

Don't let it be your lot to be among the disappointed ones. If you need anything in merchandise now is the time to most advantageously buy it.

Staple Merchandise as well as Summer Goods are included in these offerings.

Men as well as women are interested.

There is something for everybody, and the prices were never lower than now.

The Bulletin.

IN THE HEART OF THE ROSE.

Where lies the scent of the rose?
 In the heart of it.
'Tis a secret the butterfly knows,
 And a part of it
She whispered to me one June—
I shall not forget it soon.

There, where the petals meet,
 In the heart of it,
Lies a chalice deep and sweet,
 'Tis the part of it
Where the rose distills the dew
It gathers the warm night through.

I shall make of the rose a friend.
 In the heart of it
A message I'll send, I'll send,
 Or a part of it,
For the heart of the rose is small
And cannot contain it all.

She will pin the rose on her breast,
 And the heart of it
Will whisper my love—has she guessed
 Already a part of it?
Sweet rose, lie lightly above
The pure heart of my love.
—Meredith Rhys in Kate Field's Washington.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

THE LAST HOURS OF A GOOD AND TALENTED YOUNG WOMAN.

An Epicurean Dish of Peaches—Deed of a Rich Woman—The Happy Blond—Lady Carlisle and Her Work—Avoid Sunburn—An English Visitor in Boston.

The death of Miss Eugenie Boyd Hendren was a sad surprise and shock as well to her family as to her many friends. She had been ill with heart disease for about 10 months and had been constantly confined to her bed since January, when she returned from St. Luke's hospital in New York, where she was treated by eminent physicians for nearly six months.

She had the ablest medical attendance, but all remedies positively failed, and nothing more could be done for her. Miss Hendren was calm and resigned to the end and showed not the least fear of death.

Miss Hendren was an artist of more than ordinary ability, her water colors being gems both as to design and technique, and her exhibitions always attracted large audiences, who admired her genius. She possessed wonderful will power and energy and was ambitious to excel in her art, and it is thought that a too active mind and too great application to her work brought on the [illegible] that caused her death.

Of Eugenie Hendren it may be truthfully said that she was a woman of an unusually strong and interesting personality. Her talents were unmistakable, and her intense, earnest nature caused all who talked with her to feel themselves in a better atmosphere. Unlike many women in whom genius finds development, her nature retained all its womanly sweetness and gentleness.

The angelic fortitude with which she suffered more than a year's enforced imprisonment upon her bed, the patience with which she bore the pain which racked her body and the courage with which she hid her weariness and physical agony from those around her were all more than human and bespoke unmistakably her approaching death.

When I called to see her in the early part of the month, it required no skilled eye to see that her days on earth were very few, yet the hope that burned in her bosom was as steadfast as a beacon light to encourage faltering ones to endeavor and struggle on in the battle of life.

Each day she sent out letters to her many friends, for she was an ardent letter writer, and every sentence she penned was replete with encouragement and sympathy. So radiant was her mind with hope for the future that it seemed cruel to speak to her in any way but in words of cheer and faith in her ultimate recovery. Her plans for future work were each day brought nearer completion, and she delighted to go into the details of her intended studio in New York when health would be restored and she could take up her pen and ink work instead of the brush, which her doctors had forbidden her.

The Herald prizes which she won in contests with many gifted and clever artists were spoken of by her with childish delight.

Each day brought her a multitude of letters from men and women in all parts of the world who became interested in her through reading of her beautiful life and character. Until the week preceding her death she planned work which she might do even upon her sickbed, unable as she was to rise to a sitting position.

Her life opened like a beautiful fragrant rose, full of color and sweetness, and lying helpless upon her bed her hopeful smile was in itself a sermon more eloquent than was ever spoken from a pulpit.—Norfolk Cor. New York Herald.

Put an Awning Over Your Hammock.

Often the enjoyment of a hammock is greatly interfered with by a provoking absence of shade just when we most want it. Perhaps there is one convenient tree under which to hang the hammock, or, again, there may be two young trees whose leafage does not protect from the sun. It is an admirable plan under these circumstances to stretch an awning over the hammock, for then you can lie in the hammock at all hours in serenest comfort perfectly unconcerned, even if light showers come up. Make the awning in the form of an isosceles triangle, cutting off the acute angle at a width of 18 inches. Sew this end firmly over a rod or round stick. Put a screw eye into the middle of the rod through which to pass a rope and tie this end to a tree. The other points must have ropes sewed stoutly to them and be tied to posts, unless there is a second tree, in which fortunate event they can be tied to its branches.—House Furnishing Review.

The ubiquitous and artistically "deadly" bottle of gilding has been getting in some more of its fatal work. Think of gliding two of the 5 cent Japanese stoop mats and joining them with a ribbon bow! Yet this has been seen the past week.

Miss J. Merta Mitchell of Salem, Ind., was admitted to the bar the day after the Indiana supreme court gave its decision that Indiana women might practice law. She is a recent graduate of the law department of De Pauw.

An Epicurean Dish of Peaches.

"There are but few people who know how to serve peaches and cream in a manner worthy of that luscious luxury," observed a lady the other evening at a restaurant where the fruit had been placed before her in an altogether unattractive style. "Let me tell you," she continued, "how to present the fruit in a manner fit for the gods. To begin with, take two or three large freestone peaches, yellow ones, fair and smooth, for each guest whom you expect to serve. Place them in a vessel and pour very hot water upon them until they are entirely covered. Let them remain in the scalding water for a half or three-quarters of a minute, and then pour a covering of cold water upon them and add a lump of ice as large as a cocoanut. After they have stood in the cooling bath 10 or 15 minutes lift them out one by one and remove the skin, which can be done with surprising ease, by starting it with a knife and pulling it gently with the fingers, as one does in peeling tomatoes after similar treatment. The only difference is that the skin comes off peaches more easily than it does off tomatoes.

"When the skins are removed, put the peaches into a large earthen dish, being careful to pile them on top of one another as little as possible, and place the vessel in the refrigerator. Ten minutes before it is time to serve them lift them carefully one at a time into a large cut glass dish (a salad bowl will answer capitally) and cover them over with finely chopped ice. At the table the hostess is to serve them in flat plates, not in small, deep dishes, and for each person there must be a fork and a small fruit knife, with which the pits can be removed easily and without any 'mussiness.' Served in this way and with fine sugar and a cut glass pitcher filled with rich, golden cream, a dish of peaches becomes a beautiful, luscious, melting dream."—Exchange.

Deed of a Rich Woman.

It isn't many days since Mrs. Willie Vanderbilt was speeding through Central park, New York city, in the carriage and behind the horse made so familiar to readers by newspaper artists. An old woman sat on a bench, and a policeman was shaking her arm, while a little girl stood by crying. Mrs. Vanderbilt had her coachman pull up and learned upon investigation that the old woman was ill. That drink had nothing to do with the case seemed clear. The invalid was promptly lifted into the carriage. The little girl got in, too, and off the party went to a hospital. The case was the common one of a hard-working woman with an orphan grandchild—"the veriest rot you can read about in circulating library novels," to use the expression of a clever magazinist in a late essay. Well, the old woman is now living better than she ever did in her life probably, and the little girl has not the same cause to weep she had a month ago.

This incident well illustrates Mrs. Vanderbilt's character. Impulsive, kindly, generous, she is not like many of her relatives. Nor does she affect the elaboration so characteristic of the Vanderbilts. It is comparatively easy for any one, especially women who come upon a legitimate errand, to interview her. The great difficulty is that once a charitable act of hers like this becomes known she is besieged by hosts of applicants, worthy and unworthy, not a tithe of whose needs she could attend to, however willing.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Happy Blond.

Oh, to be a blond during the hot weather! Brunettes may be nice and sparkling and pretty in the winter, but as summer girls they are not the unqualified successes that their fair sisters are. I always thought I would rather be fair than dark, but it is only when summer comes that this thought expands into a positive conviction. I actually yearn to be a golden haired, blue eyed, fair skinned maid in hot weather. A blond may feel the heat just like other people, but she has the happy faculty of being able to conceal the fact from the world at large. She can wear a low neck dress without a fear, because she knows that no matter how much she dances her neck and face will still look as cool and white as a lily.

Now a brunette cannot exert herself the least bit without looking positively greasy, and if there is any one thing that takes the romance out of a girl's life it is a shiny nose. And the worst of it is that all the powder in the world will not help matters any. If you rub on a little, it melts like butter before the sun, and if in your desperation you apply it in wholesale quantities it cakes and gives you a complexion like the clown in a circus, and that is anything but pleasing to the girl, but very amusing to the world at large.—Philadelphia Times.

Lady Carlisle and Her Work.

Lady Carlisle, whose work in the cause of temperance and whose efforts in the interests of woman have made her widely known in the United States, after a friendly contest for some time with her amiable husband has been permitted to practice at home what she preaches abroad. At the two beautiful ancestral homes of the Carlisles—at Castle Howard and Palace Green—all the men servants have been discharged and their places filled with women and girls. The change extends even to outdoor departments, and the beautiful grounds are henceforth to be kept in order by a staff of women gardeners, who have been in training for some time for the occupation.

Lady Carlisle is now just over 50 years of age, is a fine specimen of the typical grand dame style and the daughter of the second Lord Stanley of Alderley, and full of interest in public matters of all sorts from temperance to home rule. She is happily married, her husband inheriting the easy temperament of the Carlisle branch of Howards and tolerating her activities with resignation and amusement. She holds to the firm idea that what a man can do a woman can do better, and as to some few things that naturally come to man she is no doubt quite in the right.—London Letter.

The Work of a Secretary.

Mrs. Rachael Foster Avery, who was the secretary of the recent woman's congress at Chicago, says that she sent out 8,000 personal letters in preparation for the meetings. She employed sometimes as many as [illegible] and often worked 17 hours a day.

Avoid Sunburn.

Just at this season of the year the sun plays havoc with delicate and sensitive skins. To stay indoors during this lovely weather, when one has opportunities for enjoying the air, would be almost criminal, and yet the result of basking in the sunshine is to some women positive torture.

The effect of the sunshine upon very thin and transparent skin is in many cases to cause it to peel off in flakes. In other instances the skin becomes red in patches and burns violently. Those whose skin is less sensitive experience little effect from the action of the sun, the skin simply becoming browner and darker in hue.

Upon some complexions the action of the sun causes freckles to accumulate to an alarming degree. This is due to the chemical decomposition of the iron deposit present in the secreting glands of the skin.

The skin is more likely to become tanned, freckled or bronzed at the seaside than in inland places. Any one suffering from serious skin affections should avoid the seaside, as the salt air has an exceedingly irritant effect upon the cuticle when in an unhealthy condition.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

An English Visitor In Boston.

Eager for English letters, but overflowing with love and good will for all America, Mrs. Chant came Monday with her fair young daughter. "Oh," she said, "I have a title now. They think at the west that L. Ormiston Chant means 'lady,'" and she told laughingly how, as she stood by Lady Aberdeen's side, an eager woman pushed forward, saying, "Lady Aberdeen, will you please introduce me to Lady Ormiston Chant?" And the countess, with a twinkle in her eye, did so. The merry ripple of talk sank into pathos as she spoke of a Kansas woman whom she had met on a railroad car, the first the poor woman had ever entered.

Fifteen years before she had gone in an ox team to her husband's home, and this was her first outing. "Oh! her poor hands," said Mrs. Chant; "what a story they told of ceaseless, painful labor through those weary years! Never on one of our navvies did I see such hands as those, but she was working for something that our navvies never gain. Truly, those Kansas women have earned their freedom."—Boston Woman's Journal.

The White Stocking For Large People.

Well, the white stocking has come back again. You know Hawthorne said it is much more effective than black. A lady tells me that a woman who weighs 180 or 200 pounds should choose a white stocking with a perpendicular stripe of blue or black. "The lace stripe that comes with rich white stockings," she says, "is good only for milady's parlor or a ballroom, but on the beach or in the park they invite the mosquitoes. It takes a woman with some artistic feeling to show it off just so much and not more. A white stocking should be worn by a woman with a moderate leg."

I am glad to see white skirts again. There is nothing so charming as a laced underskirt. It is the real ideal for a woman. A white skirted woman will marry sooner than a woman with a dark colored skirt.—Boston Globe.

A Suggestion About Tipping.

Katharine Bates, who wrote "A Year In the Great Republic," thinks it would be a good scheme to tip servants with gloves instead of money. "I have," she says, "such a sincere regard and admiration for America and the Americans that I hope to visit the country again before I die and shall be tempted to take a well stocked glove box with me. May I make one last suggestion to those going to Chicago this summer? Give out the gloves one at a time and let the noble democratic waiter realize that the possession of the 'fellow glove' depends upon whether his civility endures to the end.—New York Tribune.

Women In Surpliced Choirs.

Surpliced women choir singers have just been introduced into the Epiphany church choir in Washington. They wear plain gowns of white, with flowing sleeves and deep edges of black. On their heads they wear simple toques with tassel and cord. Women choir singers have been engaged for some time in a number of New York churches, as in St. George's, where they wear black robes and toques. The custom originated in Melbourne and is gradually gaining ground.

English Women Going Into Athletics.

English women are, as usual, taking the lead in athletic games and sports. At a recent archery contest at Cheltenham, one fair markswoman made 70 hits out of a possible 73. This was at a distance of 60 yards. In angling, too, the English women are very successful. Goodly numbers of them are now trout fishing in the highlands, and the other day two of them captured over 100 fish.

The Day of Resurrections.

This is the day of resurrections in the realm of fashions. Every week records the revival of some old fancy. Sedan chairs, spinning, old fashioned scents, tea caddies and a dozen other rejuvenations have been heralded, and now we are told that the bell rope is to usurp the place of electric buttons. It is to be made by hand and will become a popular piece of fancy work.—New York Sun.

Viscountess Parker and Lady Glyn have consented to become patronesses of the Robin society, which is entirely unsectarian, and which arranged meals during last Christmastide for more than 20,000 children.

Philippa Fawcett, who won such great distinction as senior wrangler at Oxford, has made her appearance on the platform. She spoke at Cambridge recently on "Home Rule."

Chemists say that it takes twice as much sugar to sweeten preserves, sauces, etc., if put in when they begin to cook as it does to sweeten them after the fruit is cooked.

The [illegible] sun beat upon his back,
 With heat like furnace fired,

 Perspired and perspired.
He turned [illegible] friend and said,

STRANGE SOUNDS.

GUNS OF BURRISAUL AND OTHER MYSTIFYING PHENOMENA.

Noises Made by Natural Causes For Which No Explanation Has Ever Been Found. Famous Sounds In Various Parts of the Earth Have Scared Many.

Of strange sounds which probably depend on meteorological or other natural causes, one of the most remarkable has long been known as "the guns of Burrisaul," but though its causes have long been debated no accurate explanation has been given, so far as we are aware, that is thoroughly satisfactory. The Sunderbunds—as the delta of the Ganges in native dialect is called—is covered with a vast and luxuriant jungle of marshy vegetation. One of the stations is named Burrisaul. From here, in the rainy season, have long been heard mysterious sounds resembling the discharge of artillery, and therefore popularly named "the guns of Burrisaul."

Only heard in the rainy season and from the southward, they have been heard 100 miles off, yet on the coast itself they appear still farther south. The sounds resemble the booming of cannon. Mussulman and Hindoo superstitions have each associated the sounds with their religious traditions. Others have thought the sounds were produced by the breaking of the sea on an island in the bay of Bengal. But where? That some atmospheric or meteorological cause is the explanation is all that can be said after hearing all arguments.

A much humbler yet ancient instance of great local interest used to exist, we believe, at Baddeley, in the New forest, in the shape of a groaning tree. Whether it still lives and groans we are uncertain, but it is said to have uttered mysterious and lugubrious sounds at certain times, probably dependent on wind or weather, but full of omen and import to past generations. Indeed in the various mysteries which, despite fin de siecle acuteness, still surround us, eerie noises have always played a most conspicuous part, whether out of doors or within ancient houses. Instances of the latter, indeed, abound. Some of the most thrilling of inexplicable ghost stories turn not on anything which has appalled the eyes, but has "distilled horror" through the ears. It is, we believe, in East Anglia that the shrieks heard from time to time round certain pits have long been a tradition in which a female phantom has part.

The "drummer of Tedworth's" phantom sounds are so well known from Aubrey and more modern describers as only to need allusion, but we may here say that, according to a communication in a popular periodical some few years back, similar sounds had recently, comparatively speaking, been heard in the locality, and by people of most practical disposition. These may be called phantom sounds. Returning again to those which hover on the border line between the natural and inexplicable, there is the wild strain as of weird music which has been heard aboard ships when getting within the circle of a Mozambique cyclone.

One of the same kind, formerly mysterious and thrilling enough, has been resolved into a natural one. Early travelers through the primeval forests of Brazil—still among the few unexplored places of the globe—were astonished and awed to hear the distant resonant sound of a bell pealing from the depths of the woods, which certainly had no building and for ages had known no human footstep. Many a legend was woven round the strange sound. Ultimately it was discovered to be the note of the bell bird.

There are, however, few mysterious sounds which have been as satisfactorily explained as this. For instance, there is the legend of the sounds heard at times on the plains of Marathon, the clash of weapons, the snorting of horses, the "shouting of the slayers and screeching of the slain," which recall to memory the famous battle that lives so much more vividly than many modern ones in the history of the world. Of course there are many instances of sounds which, at first mysterious, become so really from the distance over which they traveled, but these must be distinguished from those which are our theme.

One of the most interesting examples rests on the authority of the late Sir Edmund Head, who remembered when a boy going to church on the famous "Waterloo Sunday," June 18, 1815, at Hythe, in Kent. His father and he, on arriving at the church at 11 a. m., found to their surprise the congregation outside listening intently to the faint sound as of distant cannon coming from the east. Afterward it was ascertained that Napoleon having, on the (for him) unfortunate advice of his artillery officers, who pleaded the state of the ground, waited till 11 to commence his fire, the first French gun was fired as the Nivelles church clock struck 11. Nor was Hythe the only place where the French cannon were heard in England.

Here, however, is fact dependent on the by no means remarkable axiom that sound under certain conditions travels enormous distances. But the sounds of which we speak for the most part have puzzled all who have attempted to explain them and lie indeed in that vague region which is inexplicable. Such is the sound of the "Airlie drum," such are the wailing of the banshee in some parts of Ireland.—New York Post.

Narrow, but Useful.

The good lady was going around among a lot of poor people distributing all manner of old clothes which were gratefully received, when she met a newspaper man looking for a clew in a killing case.

"Charity covereth a multitude of sins," he said sarcastically.

"Well, that isn't what I'm looking for," she responded.

"No?" and he looked surprised.

"No," she said, "my mission is a little narrower than that. We cut it down to charity covereth a multitude of skins."—Detroit Free Press.

A Modern Adonis.

Lady—Your partner has fainted, I hear. How did that happen?

Officer—It is quite simple. I danced with her three times in succession. The great happiness was too much of a strain for her nerves! I am now taking my departure lest I should do any further damage.—Deutscher Reichsbote.

Her Sewing an Addition.

One day Paul tells his servant to sew another button on his trousers. An hour after she brings in the trousers, and with an undecided, anxious air, as if fearing the effect of her demand, says, "It is a sou."

Paul draws out a sou in silence and gives it to her. Jeannette retires on tiptoe as far as the door, thinks better of it, returns, takes up the trousers and shows the button.

"Ah, that is a fine button! (A pause.) I did not find that in my box. (Another and a longer pause.) I bought that at the grocer's. It cost a sou!"

She draws herself up anxiously. The proprietor of the trousers, still without speaking, gives a second sou.

It is clear that she has struck upon a mine of sous. Jeannette goes out and a moment after reopens the door. She has resolved on her course, and in a shrill, piercing voice, with admirable volubility, proceeds:

"I had no thread. I had to buy some thread. I used a good deal of thread—good thread too. The button won't come off. I sewed it on fast. The thread cost a sou."

Paul pushes across the table the third sou.

Two hours later Jeannette, who has been pondering on the matter, reappears. She prepares breakfast with the greatest possible care, lowers her voice, walks noiselessly and is charming in her little attentions. Then she says, putting forth all sorts of obsequious [illegible]

"I ought not to lose anything; you would not want me to lose anything. The cloth was harsh. I broke the point of my needle. I did not know it awhile ago. I have just noticed it. It cost a sou."

And that fourth sou was happily the last.—"A Tour Through the Pyrenees."

Interviewing a Lioness.

Kendsky's menagerie was a prominent feature at the fair at Como. In fulfilment of a wager, Signor Pardo, a local journalist, accompanied by the lion tamer, entered a large cage containing two young lions and a leopard. The perilous surroundings seemed to make an impression on the pressman, at least he made an effort to appear calm and even attempted to stroke the lion cubs. But at a sign from the proprietor, the young lions and the leopard were removed to the next cage, and "Paidah," a splendid lioness, appeared on the scene. She suddenly stood still and measured the intruder from head to foot with a melancholy gaze. Pardo afterward confessed that at that moment a cold shiver ran through his veins.

"Open the cage!" he cried in half stifled tones.

But the lion tamer promptly covered his mouth with his hand, while the wife of the proprietor, who was in front of the cage, laughed till the tears ran down her cheeks. This hilarity restored the journalist's drooping courage. He remained five minutes longer in the cage and then left after making a polite bow to the lioness, which she returned with a somewhat lugubrious howl. Pardo is now the "lion of the day" at Como.—Corriere di Genova.

The Danger of Too Many Discoveries.

There is something disconcerting about modern discoveries, for all their usefulness. Where are they going to stop, and what is to become of the working people when all the work does itself? Next we may hear that some meddling investigator has discovered the secret of literary style, so that by the adjustment of a simple appliance to a printing press raw facts may be fed in at one end and literature cut off at the other in lengths and qualities to suit the market. That is a more terrifying possibility than even that all the Harvard undergraduates should become proficient writers. It remains for mankind to hope that when it ceases to be possible for the multitude to make a living on earth the secret of living without food may come out, or the perfection of flying machines or something may provide means of emigration to other spheres.—Harper's Weekly.

Boys In Church Choirs.

Boy choirs, trained as such singers are trained in Great Britain and in Germany, were almost unknown in this country 10 years ago and are not common now, though there are several admirably trained boy choirs in New York. When the time comes for the choir boy's voice to change, the conscientious choirmaster bids him rest in order that his natural male voice may not be spoiled for singing. The task of teaching the lads to sing in the artificial manner required is most laborious, and the earnings of learners are trifling. Later a well trained chorister may earn from $200 to $300 per year by his Sunday work. The choir boy of the rural parish is usually an unschooled imp, chosen for his golden hair and cherubic face.—New York Sun.

Disputing Over Fruit.

Two men got into a controversy over a strange looking fruit which they saw on a stand in the Washington market. One thought it was a small citron melon, and the other believed it to be some kind of tomato. They referred the question to the dealer, who said:

"It's an alligator pear, and your dispute about it reminds me of a difference between a couple of my customers over a pumpkin. They couldn't agree that it was not a squash."—New York Times.

A Good Enough Reason.

The handsome hospital nurse who married the old wealthy man the other day was very happy in her reply to a friend who asked why she wedded such a fossil, "I thought I might as well be engaged in nursing one old man as a dozen."—Exchange.

The Mouse as a Pet.

A winsome pet is the common brown mouse, and now I fancy I hear the most vigorous protests from my readers, who, though they do not shriek and take refuge on chairs and tables like Howells' feminine characters, still have a strong feeling of distaste to him. Nothing can be imagined more dainty, graceful and altogether captivating than the tricks and manners of this humble resident within our walls.

Once allay the poor little creature's fears of his big, clumsy human persecutors, and his delightsome qualities are apparent. Frisky in movements, droll in conceits and eccentric of action, he is a never ending source of entertainment. Moreover, he is as teachable as the rat, absolutely neat in his ways and most loving to his friends.—Harper's Bazar.

"THEY KEPT THINGS AGOING!"

In a little manufacturing village near Hartford the financial stress was broken by two wise merchants who had four thousand dollars in small currency when the factory was unable to procure enough currency to pay off its help.

The merchants hearing of the fact sent the small currency to the corporation, asking that its check be given for the amount. Thus relieved the company was glad to give its check, the $4,000 in small bills went to the help, and was put at once into circulation in the village, and found its way back to the dealers.

The Courant commenting upon the matter says: "If retail dealers are piling up currency in thousand dollar packages in their own safes, this accounts in part for the scarcity in regular channels of trade. But when they begin to put it out again, as this incident illustrates, we have evidence of a healthy and hopeful change of sentiment. Nor is that the whole of it. There is something very satisfactory in their recognition of the true relation between the factory and the community. The weekly pay roll contributes the life blood to the whole local trade. The employes depend on the factory and the stores depend on the employes. People cannot live on money, only on what it will get, and the way to prosper is to keep it moving."

WIDE-TIRE ECONOMY.

The agitation for the construction of good roads which has been carried on for the past two years has led to many good suggestions with regard to improvement in highways; but we doubt if one of them is more valuable than this from The American Dairyman, which says "farmers can reduce their road tax one half by using wagons with three and a half inch tires, which is the legal tire width established by the New York legislature at its last session. The reduction of roadtax allowed is not to exceed four days; and the set of tires is estimated to cost twelve dollars. The weight of the load carried where wide tires are used may be increased sufficient to pay for the outlay in a brief period, men's tempers will not be on the ragged edge so frequently, and profanity will not be an adjunct of every load to town or station. Legislatures are not an unmixed blessing, but they sometimes do a good thing, as in this instance. Wide tires mean good roads in a little while. It looks as if the narrow tire folly had reached its limit and that its disappearance is a thing of the near future."

WILL HISTORY REPEAT ITSELF?

If the democratic administration means to interpret the result of the last election as an endorsement of the Chicago platform of its party and to carry out the revolutionary principles there declared, in the near future this country will be buying its goods abroad and American workmen will be walking the streets, idle and hungry.

In 1847 the country, under democratic management, tried a tariff for revenue only. Manufacturing was not fostered, and with abundant harvests the mechanical classes were confronted with want; and soup houses were opened in every ward in New York city. One person in every thirteen in the state became paupers.

Horace Greeley then inquired, "Why is it that the skilled laboring men, willing to work are going to the soup houses to sustain themselves and families, when we are paying ninety millions in gold to buy the goods we could produce with our own labor?"

Now the free trade, political economist philosophers estimate that under tariff reform two hundred millions in gold will go abroad to purchase goods. If their predictions are true, what is to be expected but the pauperization of the mechanics and the re-opening of the soup houses to keep them and their families alive.

THE NAVAHOE'S NEW CAPTAIN

The Navahoe's performances have puzzled Englishmen and Americans since she has been abroad, and she has been winning reputation for unreliability when the fault seems to have been with the crew. It is plain from Sunday's dispatches that there has been insubordination among the crew, and that they have not worked with promptness to show her best ability. Her sailing master, Capt. Charles Barr, of Marblehead, has been discharged, and Capt. Aubrey Crocker of Cohassett, who commanded the Puritan and the Shadow, has been invited to become her commander. He is an expert, professional yachtsman, and if Capt. Crocker goes aboard and takes command of the Navahoe she may do better than she has given promise of doing under Capt. Barr, who never before sailed a racing yacht.

PEARY AGAIN HEARD FROM.

A mail boat from Labrador has spoken the Falcon with the Peary party on board, and she does not confirm the previous reports of the disaffection among Peary's men, the killing of animals and the possible defeat of the purposes of the expedition. Peary had lost one dog, the Falcon had been storm-bound for a day or two, he had experienced some difficulty in getting Esquimaux dogs, but he turned his face toward Disco full of hope with reference to getting all the dogs he needed and other supplies. This report is what might be expected, and it shows that the party is making good progress toward Redcliffe in Greenland, where their house is to be built and their headquarters established for two winters.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

This great country has allowed the democratic party to put a check-reign upon it.

Larry Neal, the democratic candidate for governor of Ohio, is a bachelor. That goes a long way toward accounting for his opinion that "protection is a fraud!"

Massachusetts feels well. She has ex-President Harrison and President Cleveland on her coast, but she doesn't dip oceanward a bit more than if they were not there.

We should like to inquire if draw-poker is as popular as ever at Washington? If it is, it may have become one of the chucks under the wheels of national progress.

Congressman Hendrix of New York, who is a Missourian and a sound money democrat, assures the silver fanatics "they can monkey with silver but they can't monkey with facts!" The facts "are agin 'em."

If the southern congressmen join the western silver men in their opposition to the unconditional repeal of the Sherman silver bill the consequent financial stress will keep the price of cotton down and give the south small returns for her crops.

If a council of physicians should say concerning a sick patient, "we will spend two weeks in debate and then do something!" the family would instruct them to do something and talk afterwards! If Uncle Sam did not have a strong constitution he would expire before the democratic "healers" get through talking!

Democratic Workman—What are these checks that the mills are paying off in?

Republican Associate—They are promises to pay—good in town, but "no good" in Kentucky. Just like the state bank bills the democratic party want to foist upon the public, the further they stray from home the less they are worth!

Young Mr. Talmage of New York seems to be a chip of the old block. He addressed a meeting of young people in New York Sunday, and assured them "he would not give a snap of his finger for a boy or a girl who did not prefer to coast down a hill on a moonlight night rather than go and hear some of the old time ministers lecture on Jerusalem."

The Tryons must be eccentric. The vice admiral gave an order that sunk the Victoria and destroyed most of the officers and crew. Now Mrs. Tryon refuses to accept a pension of $3,000 which English admirals' widows always receive. She is aware of the responsibility of her husband for the Victoria disaster, and is unwilling to be a beneficiary of the government's bounty under such circumstances.

The free silver advocates have won over The New York Recorder. This journal has been trying to make a place for itself in the journalistic field and has won distinction as an energetic and enterprising paper. It is for free silver coinage on a safe basis. When the coinage ratio was made 16 to 1 the market price was 15½, and that was considered a safe basis. The ratio is now feverishly fitting between 27 to 1 and 28 to 1, and the safe basis is not in sight.

VOICE OF THE PRESS.

It Does, Indeed.

It does seem rather strange that democratic congressmen who voted against the Sherman law should desire its retention.—[Washington Post.

The Game Still Lives.

The opening of the twelfth annual tournament of the National Croquet association at Norwich this week shows that the game still lives and enthuses its votaries.—[Boston Herald.

Looking Backward.

According to Dr. Talmage, a panic is the dethronement of common sense. If that is correct, the country suffered one of the severest panics in its history last November.—[Kansas City Journal.

All They Have Discovered.

The anti-silver democrats at Washington are trying to discover whether Senators Hill and Gorman and Speaker Crisp are for or against them. All that they have discovered is that these democratic leaders stand unflinchingly by the Chicago platform.—[New York Press.

Potent Peace Makers.

It is much to be feared that the two 22-knot cruisers Columbia and Minneapolis, now fitting out on the Delaware, are more potent preventives of war between the United States and any European power than all the tracts and addresses which the Peace society has produced for half a century.—[Boston Journal.

Where the Responsibility Rests.

Republican senators are ready to support the president in securing a repeal of the Sherman act, but Senator Gorman, chairman of the democratic caucus, is opposing an alliance against the silver fanatics on any such lines. This fact will not escape the public scrutiny. Let the responsible democratic majority look well to its acts.—[Springfield Republican.

The Situation.

Yellow fever in Florida.
Cholera in New York.
Lunacy in congress.
Panic all over the country.
Cleveland sick.
Stevenson next in succession.
Whew!—[The Courant!

President Cleveland Can't be too Careful.

It cannot fairly be said that the president has shirked responsibility by leaving Washington for Gray Gables. The responsibility is now with congress, and while the moral effect of the president's presence at Washington might have been worth something, he is quite right in taking care of his health. When it is remembered that only his life stands between Adlai Stevenson and the presidency, it is clear that Mr. Cleveland cannot be too careful.—[Boston Journal.

A Doubtful Outlook.

The silver men at Washington have thrown down the gauntlet. The formal appeal issued by their executive committee, the speech of Mr. Bland, and the utterances of some silver senators, are significant. In substance they tell the democratic party that it will not be permitted to prostrate the silver producing states, and then use their votes to prostrate the industries of manufacturing states. If the democratic party supposes that it can first put the country on an exclusively gold basis, and then reconstruct its tariff to secure still lower prices and still lower wages for labor, Mr. Bland thinks it is mistaken. Nothing done would be a victory for the silver men. Their powers of obstruction have not been tested as yet. It would not be the strangest thing in the world if the democratic party should find itself in such a condition that united action on the tariff would be impossible.—[New York Tribune.

A Deadly Parallel.

Opening of President Harrison's message to congress, December, 1892:	Opening of President Cleveland's message to congress, eight months later, August, 1893:
"In submitting my annual message to congress I have great satisfaction in being able to say that the general conditions affecting the commercial and industrial interests of the United States are in the high est degree favorable. A comparison of the existing conditions with those of the most favored period in the history of the country will, I believe, show that so high a degree of prosperity and so general a diffusion of the comforts of life were never before enjoyed by our people."	"The existence of an alarming and extraordinary business situation, involving the welfare and prosperity of all our people, has constrained me to call together in extra session the people's representatives in congress, to the end that through a wise and patriotic exercise of the legislative duty with which they solely are charged present evils may be mitigated and dangers threatening the future may be averted."

LITTLE OR NO PART

For Republican Leaders in Silver Debate.

THEY HAVE NOTHING TO OFFER.

Doubt if This Programme Can be Carried Out.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Inquiry of leaders on the Republican side of the house elicits the statement that they expect to take little or no part in the debate now in progress.

Said one of them: "The Democrats have undertaken to control and direct the consideration of the question, and refused to give the Republicans a chance to amend the order regulating the debate. We did not believe that free silver or no silver, which are the only alternatives possible under the Bland order, were the only two possible solutions of the situation, and would have been glad of an opportunity to amend the order to secure a vote on the proposition which we believe would go farther than any other to meet and relieve the necessities of the financial situation. But this having been denied us, we do not feel that the Republicans have anything to argue, and my belief is that none of the members on this side will take formal part in the debate.

It may be doubted, however, whether this plan of reticence and reserve will be carried out. It is almost a certainty that, as the debate progresses,

A Stage Will Be Reached

where the opportunity to score a political point will prove irresistible to such aggressive leaders as Reed, Burrows, Cannon, Hopworth and Henderson. There are some of the best speakers in the democratic ranks still to be heard—Cockran and Fellows of New York, Wilson of West Virginia, Culberson of Texas, Bynum of Indiana, Bryan of Nebraska and Hatch of Missouri. It will be strange, indeed, if their remarks, divided as they will be pretty equally on both sides of the question, do not call out some pungent retorts or criticisms.

As to the exact attitude of Messrs. Burrows, Cannon and other western men on the broad question of silver coinage there is some doubt, which they will themselves take fitting opportunity to dispel.

Every indication is that an irregular debate on the silver question will be renewed in the senate at an early hour, without waiting for the Democratic "steering committee" to accomplish its apparently hopeless task of

as to how that debate shall be brought about and within what lines it shall be confined. It is easy for either the silver or anti-silver men to call up the question. They can move to take up Mr. Stewart's free coinage bill or Mr. Cabot Lodge's resolution to take a vote on the repeal of the Sherman act Aug. 28, and so attack the subject from either side. Nothing but the high privileged questions involved in the contested northwestern senatorships can shut them off.

Senator Hoar, it is known, expects to make a set speech in favor of the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law either tomorrow or Wednesday.

It is the understanding that Senator Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee will introduce either today or tomorrow a bill to authorize national banks to increase their circulation by the additional 10 per cent now held back, and that the purpose is to have this bill referred to the finance committee and reported back for action without delay.

Presidential Appointments.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The president sent to the senate the following nominations: Edward C. Butler of Massachusetts, to be secretary of legation to Mexico; Otto H. Boyesen of North Dakota, United States consul at Gothenburg, Sweden; Bradley B. Smalley, collector of customs for the district of Vermont; George W. Skinner, pension agent at Pittsburg, Penn.

More Gold to Be Coined.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The treasury department has ordered the United States mint at Philadelphia to coin $5,000,000 in gold eagles and half eagles at once. Work on coining the $2,500,000 in $5 pieces will be commenced this week. The order is issued to relieve the stringency in the money market.

Debate Resumed at the House.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—After the appointment of committees on enrolled bills, of accounts and mileage, presided over respectively by Messrs. Pearson of Ohio, Rusk and Lynch, the silver debate was resumed, Mr. Boatner of Louisiana making the initiative speech in favor of free coinage.

Tax Rate Less in Lowell.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 14.—The principal assessors announced this morning that the tax rate of this year would be $16.40 per $1000. This is 60 cents less than last year. The total valuation of the real estate and personal property is $83,549,605, an increase of $4,147,467 over last year. The number of male polls is 23,477, an increase of 510.

Revenue Collections at Portsmouth.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 14.—The collection of internal revenue for the month ending July 31 for this district, which comprises Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, was $33,983.32. This is a decrease of about $8000 compared with the receipts of the corresponding month last year.

WORLD'S PEACE CONGRESS.

Successfully Opens in Chicago Its Session of the Present Week.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—The World's fair peace congress assembled here today. It will rival in extent and interest, not alone like previous events held abroad, but any of the year's great international conventions. Josiah Quincy, assistant secretary of state, is the chairman of the congress and among its vice-presidents are Sir Joseph W. Pease, M. P., London; Frederic Passy, member of the Institute, Paris Hon. Frederick Bajer, M. P., Copenhagen the Baroness von Suttner, Vienna; Louis Ruchonnet, federal councillor, Berne Hodgson Pratt, London; the Bishop of Durham, England; Hon. Robert Treat Paine, Boston; Hon. David Dudley Field, New York.

The Universal Peace Union's American Branch Executive Committee have appointed the Rev. Amanda Deyo, William O. McDowell and 50 other delegates to represent the United States in the International congress.

The headquarters of the congress is in one of the halls of the Art palace. The place which Massachusetts and Boston men hold in this great international congress is noteworthy. From the officers in charge Boston claims the president, Hon. Robert Treat Paine, and the national secretary of the association, Dr. Benjamin F. Trueblood, who is also chairman of the committee on organization and program. On the program are found Hezekiah Butterworth of The Youth's Companion, Charles H. Walcot, president of Massachusetts state board of arbitration, and Rev. Philip S. Moxom, D. D.

The opening session today included the president's address by Hon Josiah Quincy; a poem, entitled "The White City by the Lake," by Mr. Hezekiah Butterworth, and responses by delegates from different nations.

The congress will be in session during the entire week and on the origin, principles and work of peace societies papers will be read by Dr. W. Evans Darby and William C. Braithwaite of London: "History and Work of Peace Societies in America," by Dr. Benjamin F. Trueblood, Boston; "Peace Congresses, Conferences and International Bureaus," by M. Elie Ducommun, Berne; also a poem by Marie Louise Eve of Augusta, Ga. Other topics including the "Economic Aspects of War" the "Laws of Nations," "Conflicts Between Labor and Capital" and kindred subjects will be considered by learned students of the peace question during the week.

RIOTS ARE ENDED.

Peace Reigns in Bombay and Shops Are Again Opened.

BOMBAY, Aug. 14.—The religious riots that prevailed with greater or less intensity in this city for three days past have ended. The Mohammedans and Hindoos, whose smouldering animosity was kindled into flame through religious holidays of both sects falling upon the same day, have been awed by the display of force made by the authorities and order prevails everywhere.

Troops are still stationed in various parts of the city however, but they will shortly be withdrawn. Many of the business places that were forced to close through fear of being looted by the rioters are open today, and it is thought tomorrow that everything will be going along as usual.

DEVOURING FLAMES.

Over an Acre and One-Half of Buildings at New Richmond.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 14.—A special from New Richmond says: About midnight fire was discovered in a two-story hotel here and it spread to adjoining buildings with great rapidity.

Cincinnati was called upon for assistance, and at 1 o'clock a Chesapeake and Ohio train started for the scene with a fire engine.

No particulars could be learned beyond the fact that an acre and a half had been covered by the devouring element, destroying Curry's livery stable, the Hubber residence, the Springer house and the First National bank.

Indians Ran Him Down.

OTTAWA, Aug. 14.—H. Duclos, alias Louis Samson, the Frenchman who induced several Canadian capitalists to go into a bogus gold mining scheme 500 miles north of the Canadian Pacific railroad, in the wilds of British Columbia, has been arrested by five Indians who went in pursuit of him. He has been committed to stand trial at Richville, B. C., on Sept. 22. One man in this city invested about $17,000 in his scheme, and will press a charge against him of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Throat Cut From Ear to Ear.

BOSTON, Aug. 14.—W. H. Blake, about 60 years of age, was found dead in bed bed this morning by his landlady, who went to call him, as he did not put in an appearance in time for breakfast. He was found lying on the bed with his throat cut from ear to ear, and the razor with which the deed was done was on the bed beside his lifeless body. On a table in the room was a note in which the suicide stated that he was tired of life.

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—Strict precautions have been adopted on the east Prussian frontier to prevent the importation of cholera. The whole frontier has been closed, except at two places, where all arrivals are examined and suspicious cases are subjected to a week's quarantine.

ARGENTINA'S TROUBLES

Caused by Appointment of Interventor in Buenos Ayres Affairs.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The Herald's Valparaiso correspondent says: The trouble which caused the cabinet crisis in Argentina appears to have been the appointment of Carlos Tejedor as the interventor in the settlement of the troubles in the province of Buenos Ayres.

Minister Delvalle who organized the last cabinet, asked to be appointed interventor but the president insisted upon naming Tejedor.

This caused a commotion in the cabinet, Delvalle persisted in working against Tejedor and he now accuses the president of bringing about trouble. Delvalle resigned and the other members of the cabinet went out with him.

The government of Argentina has ordered the prosecution of ex-Minister Juarez, who is charged with the embezzlement of £800,000.

The governor of Corrientes has demanded the withdrawal of the federal forces sent to that province by Uriburu.

FOR ALBERT CUP.

American and English Yachts Are Racing.

BRITANNIA WELL IN THE LEAD.

Navahoe Seems to Be Much Outclassed. Britannia Led Her 11 Minutes.

SOUTHSEA, Eng., Aug. 14.—The regatta of the Royal Albert Yacht club took place today for the Albert cup. The course was from a mark boat off Southsea, to and around the Nab beacon, then to and around the west middle buoy, and back to the mark boat. The course was sailed over twice. The starters were the Britannia, the Navahoe, the Calluna and the Satanita. Tom Diaper sailed the Navahoe.

The yachts had a clubtopsail breeze, and after they had sailed half of the first round of the course the Britannia had a lead of only 25 seconds over the Navahoe. At this point the Satanita was 1 minute 25 seconds astern of the Britannia, and the Calluna was four seconds astern of the Satanita.

During the latter part of the first round Britannia drew away fast from the Navahoe, and at the finish of the course the first time around, the Britannia led the Navahoe 11 minutes. The Satanita was 48 seconds astern of the Britannia, and the Calluna was just 4 seconds astern of the Satanita. It was a beat out, with spinnakers set for the run in.

STRUCK ONE OF THE CREW.

Then the Gentleman on the Navahoe Paid £70 to Settle It.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—The Sportsman says that Captain Barr of the yacht Navahoe will return to America in a week. It is reported that the captain of the Volunteer has been cabled for to come over and take charge of the Navahoe. In the meantime she will be commanded by Captain Draper who has piloted the Navahoe in all her races in England, and who was formerly skipper of the Valkyrie.

According to The Sportsman, the recent row aboard the Navahoe occurred in this way: The men were sitting at the aft rail, when an order was given which was executed very slowly. The last man to rise, said to be one of the smartest of the crew, was remonstrated with by one of the gentlemen aboard the yacht. The seaman spoke back, and a long altercation ensued, resulting in the gentleman striking the seaman in the face and cutting it open.

The boatswain was ordered to put the man below, but was reluctant to carry out the order. Eventually he persuaded the man to go. The seaman refused to accept an apology from his assailant, and declared his intention to prosecute him.

Ultimately the gentleman who struck the seaman settled the matter by paying the man six month's salary, amounting to £70, and his passage to America. The man will sail for home in a day or two.

OLD LADY KILLED.

While on the Way to the Cemetery to Ornament Loved Ones Grave.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 14.—Train No 64 of the Old Colony line, which leaves Providence at 9 o'clock, struck an old lady opposite the Bishops cemetery at Woodlawn this morning, killing her instantly.

She was crossing the track and while getting out of the way of a Boston passenger train No. 17, going toward Providence she stepped in front of the engine.

A basket of plants and a gardener's trowel she carried was evidence that she was on her way to ornament the grave of some dear one when the accident occurred.

She was about 70 years old, neatly attired in black, and of Irish nationality. The remains have not yet been identified.

BURIED HIS GOLD.

Now Jacob Weisman Mourns Its Loss While He Was Away.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Aug. 14.—About two weeks ago Jacob J. Weisman of 730 Osage street had $1201 in gold, which he placed in a can and buried in his cellar for safe keeping while he and his wife went to the world's fair.

He arrived home yesterday, and went to examine his money. He found the can buried just as he left it, but the gold was gone. He suspects several persons, and has searched their premises under a warrant, but has found no trace of his stolen gold.

BOSTON, Aug. 14.—Ex-President Harrison is going home. He will bid goodby to Beverly this afternoon, arriving in Boston in time to take passage by the night boat for New York. He will stay a brief period in New York and then leave for Indianapolis. His daughter, Mrs. McKee, and her two children will remain at Beverly for some time.

Found Dead With Throats Cut.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Aug. 14.—Yesterday morning Mrs. A. W. Dunham, wife of a notorious character known as "Dad" Dunham, a shipsmith, was found dead in her house with her throat cut and stabs in several places. At her side lay Dunham. His throat was cut and there were several wounds in his abdomen. Dunham had led a bad life. His wife had left him and he recently tried to have her return to him.

Death Is a Mystery.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 14.—The dead bodies of two unknown women, one aged about 60 and the other about 25, supposed to be mother and daughter, have been found under the Beck's run trestle. The bodies have not yet been recognized, and how they met death is a mystery. It is supposed they fell off the trestle, which is 35 feet high.

Yachts on Eastward Run.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 14.—The yachts of the New York Yacht club which did not go to the Vineyard on Sunday, responded to the signal from the flagship this morning and prepared for the run eastward, with but a few exceptions. The cup defender Pilgrim did not start.

The state university of Tennessee has opened its doors to women, and the women's clubs are organizing to raise money for a woman's building in the university grounds.

FIGS AND THISTLES.

A shadow is always trying its best to tell us there is light.

Every man lives in a glass house into which somebody is always looking.

No matter how good the gun is, it is wasting powder to shoot at the moon.

If our faults were written on our foreheads, all men would hang their heads.

It is folly to sit down and do nothing because we cannot do everything at once.

A dime in the pocket will buy more groceries than a dollar somebody owes you.

There is many a wife hungering for an occasional word of approval who will be buried in a rosewood casket.

When a particular man marries a poor housekeeper, it takes a good deal of love on both sides to make their home a happy one.

The Melon in the Well.

The folks keep cool in Hillville, for every blessed man
Has got a linen duster an a big palmetto fan,
An when the weather riles 'em an tries 'em for a spell
They just make the acquaintance of the melon in the well.
For the coolest dew that ever
On the pantin lilies fell
Ain't nothin to the melon—
The melon in the well!

The folks keep cool in Hillville—none of 'em dress in style—
Each more breeze in a minute than you'd run down in a mile,
An in a race with sunshine, heap quicker than you'd tell,
They'd beat it all to flinders to the melon in the well.
For the coolest breeze that ever
Blowed the dahlias in the dell
Ain't nothin to the melon—
The melon in the well!
—Atlanta Constitution.

And He Dropped Them a Line.

"Are you talking to yourself or to the fish?" inquired the man on horseback, reining up.

"To the fish," answered the sunburned man on the log, intently watching his cork. "I am trying to draw them out."—Chicago Tribune.

All Hope Gone.

"Can nothing be done for the prisoner, Mr. Brief?"

"I fear not, sir."

"The legal expedients are all exhausted, are they?"

"No. But the prisoner's money is."—Tit-Bits.

A Seaside Reverie.

It's fun to lie upon the beach
And hear the breakers roar
And see the wavelets strive to reach
A higher point on shore.

It's fun to hoist a parasol
And dawdle all day long,
Regardless of what may befall
Amid the seething throng.

And yet with deeper joy it thrills
To scatter with tireless hand
That witless wretch who comes and fills
Your bathing suit with sand.

The Safe Plan.

Traveling Man—A chop and a cup of coffee quick. My train leaves in 20 minutes.

Waiter—Yes, sah, 75 cents, sah.

"Do you want pay in advance?"

"Yes, sah. You may be gone before it's cooked, sah."—New York Weekly.

Formidable.

The following is a copy of a letter sent to a gentleman by an insurance agent:

DEAR SIR—I hope to give you a call tomorrow or Wednesday on my way to —— and shall be delighted to take your life.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Dealings in Leading Securities in Boston and New York.

BOSTON, Aug. 14.—In the outside market call money is quoted at 8 to 10 per cent, and time money is nominally 6 per cent.

The stock market opened this morning under the influence of Saturday's New York bank statement. This means that it was weak and dull, so that statement was generally regarded, despite explanations to the contrary as unexpectedly bad. Coupled with this were the uncertainties as to the situation in Washington, particularly the attitude of the senate and threats of the silver advocates in that body, and the decrease in the earnings of the reporting railroads.

Despite the dull market, the feeling on the street this morning was better. Currency was easier, and the report was current that the treasury department was to do something to relieve the stringency. This "something" takes the form of an order for the coinage of $5,000,000 gold eagles and half eagles. Further, work on $2,500,000 $5 gold pieces is to begin this week.

At the opening of the local market, Chicago Burlington and Quincy and General Electric showed the greatest weakness. General Electric opened at 43, the same as the final sale on Saturday, but dropped by half points to 41½. Burlington was down ¾ to 77½ at the opening, and sold slowly to 76¾. Atchison held steady at 16¾, while both New York and New England and Union Pacific were fractionally weaker. Of the industrials, sugar was the most active, the common fluctuating between 73 and 75, and the preferred between 75 and 76. Bay State Gas opened at 8, ½ up, but weakened at soon to 5½. West End railway opened ¾ off at 55.

A historical play founded on the life of Aaron Burr, called "An American Emperor," written by Will Wright of Minneapolis, formerly a reporter and now manager for James Whitcomb Riley, has been accepted by Richard Mansfield.

Nina Bertini-Humphreys joined Hinrich's Grand Opera company upon the disbandment of the O'Neill Opera company. She is singing very successfully in "The Huguenots," "The Bohemian Girl," "Carmen," "Maritana" and "Fra Diavolo."

Eugene Cowles, the basso, has reconsidered his determination to study for grand opera and has signed a contract for next season with the Bostonians. Jessie Bartlett Davis has also signed again, and "Fatinitza" may be produced with her in the title role.

The title selected for the new Chinese opera to be produced at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, Oct. 2 is "Shing Ching, or the Daughter of the Moon." It is described as a bit of chinaware in two pieces written by Frank Dumont, with music by Richard Stahl, author of "Said Pasha," "Sea King," "Lion Tamer," etc.

THE PROPER CAPER.

Both Scotch and Irish linens are in high vogue. The former are somewhat coarser in texture.

Flax gray, pale and deep blue, ecru and chocolate colors, are all well worn among the linens, ducks and piques of the season.

Crepons of all colors and kinds, crocodile, striped, shot, flowered, gauffered, plain and dotted, are great favorites this season and are worn alike by maid and matron.

Returned European tourists bring with them new gowns the skirts of which are flounced to the hips or the waist, 18 and even 20 flounces appearing on some dresses.

The rage for pelerines, Bretons, circular and Henry II capes will continue through the autumn and winter seasons, light and diaphanous textiles merely giving place to silk, velvet, brocade and cloth.

The new autumn color cards show very many shades in green, all of which are attractive in tint. Green will be among prominent colors for the fall and winter, brown, in rich, beautiful tones, being its close rival.

The combination of black and cream color is just now exceedingly popular and deservedly so. It is quiet and ladylike, becoming also, and by no means devoid of a certain air of refined elegance that is restful and charming when the prevailing tendency is toward excess of color.—New York Evening Post.

Empress Augusta Victoria of Germany, wife of the young kaiser, is a woman of strong personality, and it is said that the somewhat erratic ruler is frequently dissuaded from his startling projects through her advice. She is thoroughly German in her appearance and disposition.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Saved Her Sight
"My little girl Hazel two years ago had the grip, leaving her with inflamed eyes, so bad that for seven months we had to bandage them and keep her in a dark room. The family physician and an oculist said the sight of one eye was destroyed and she might lose the other. She suffered intense pain, and when light was admitted to the room would cry as if burned with a hot iron. We began giving her Hood's Sarsaparilla, and to our surprise her eyes began to improve rapidly. The sight

His Hand Jammed.

Almon Trumbull of New London, a brakeman on the New London Northern road, had his left hand jammed between "deadwoods" Monday afternoon at the West Side station. Dr. William Korn amputated part of the little finger, and expects to save the others.

She Lost Her Bathing Suit.

One evening last week a deacon of a Norwich church and the Sunday school superintendent were sitting upon the piazza of one of the Vail cottages, Block Island, when they were suddenly accosted by a lady with streaming hair and disordered dress, who cried,

"Oh! Can anybody here swim?"

The two gentlemen sprang up and followed her half a mile over rocks, seaweed and drift-wood to a spot used by the guests for bathing. Then their guide pointed out over the moon-lit waters, and exclaimed:

"Oh! I've lost my bathing suit, and I can't ever get it again."

But the hard-hearted Sunday school superintendent told her she had better advertise the missing property in the Bordeaux, France, papers, and then he and the deacon and the owner of the bathing suit went silently home to bed.

Noank's Lobster Fleet.

A few years ago Noank used to be a great rendezvous for smacks and other vessels, which were engaged in cod fishing at Cape Cod, Nantucket and Coxswain's ledge. At one time the fleet numbered as many as forty. Gradually this number has decreased until now there is not one remaining. A large number of those that have dropped out have embarked in the lobster business, and at present thirty vessels, among them four steam craft, from Noank are engaged in this pursuit. Lobsters are fairly plenty, and a ready market is found in New London, Norwich and New York.

Most of these shell fish are found in the Race and at Block Island. Great rivalry exists among the lobstermen, as to who makes the largest catch.

A PLEASANT AFFAIR.

The Engineers of the N. & W. R. R. Present Supt. P. St. M. Andrews a Gold Chain and Watch Charm.

The residence of Superintendent P. St. M. Andrews, on Huntington place, was the scene of an agreeable gathering Monday evening, and the occasion will be pleasantly remembered by the engineers of the Norwich & Worcester railroad, who called to present him a gold chain and Knight Templar's charm as an expression of their esteem.

As Supt. Andrews entered the parlor he was greeted by Engineer Henry J. Adams, who as speaker for the company, informed him of the object of the visit, and in an appropriate and complimentary address voiced the regard in which he was held by the engineers of the road all through the long term of his service and through many administrations, and of the anxiety with which they all waited for the announcement that he was to be retained, and the pleasure and confidence which such information always brought to them all. His voluntary retirement had brought to a conclusion that old relation but it had not ended the attachment which had grown with years.

There had always existed between the superintendent and the engineers the utmost confidence, and the loyalty of the engineers to the road had been increased by the confidence which he always reposed in them. He hoped the chain and charm would be accepted in the spirit in which it was given, and cherished not for its intrinsic value but for the expression of regard it symbolized, a friendship which needed no cementing, which he hoped would be continued, as pure as the metal of which the testimonial was composed.

Superintendent Andrews, with a noticeable manifestation of feeling, accepted the chain and charm as a symbol of the pleasant relations which had always existed between himself and the engineers, every one of whom had grown up with the road and been faithful to its interests. There had been many changes, and with each change peculiarities which had not in any instance proven to be disagreeable. He hoped the men would continue the same promptness in obedience of orders and the same loyalty to the new superintendent which they had always shown under him.

Mrs. Andrews was presented to the visitors and a short time was spent in social chat.

The gift was a heavy golden-linked watch chain with a Knights Templar charm attached, the letters upon the keystone being of gold upon a circle of white enamel. It was inscribed as follows on the arms of the Maltese cross: "Presented to P. St. M. Andrews by the engineers of the N. & W. R. R." Upon the reverse side, upon a background of black enamel, were the cross, crown and crossed swords, the crown and sword-hilts being set with diamonds and the cross with two rows of rubies. The charm is an elegant piece of workmanship.

The men were subsequently ushered to the dining room by Mr. Henry L. Bennett, and refreshments were served by Benjamin.

Two hours were pleasurably spent, at the close of which the men bade good-night to Superintendent Andrews and wife, expressing their best wishes for their future welfare and happiness.

SLOOP YACHT ASHORE.

Narrow Escape in a Heavy Squall Off Fishers Island.

Joseph S. Boss' sloop yacht Barbara of New London went ashore in a heavy squall on West Clump, near the North Dumpling, about 10 o'clock Saturday night. The Barbara left Newport at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, bound to New London, but the wind was light and baffling and she did little more than drift.

When the squall struck her she missayed and drove ashore. She was thrown nearly on her beam ends by the squall, and it came so suddenly and without warning that the sail could not be hauled down. Quite a heavy sea began running and the Barbara lay on West Clump thumping and pounding all night long with every sea making a clean breach over her.

In the morning Mr. Boss was enabled to reach Fishers island and telephoned from the Munnatawket hotel to Wrecker Scott of New London, who came to his assistance with a tug. The Barbara was hauled off and was leaking so fast that the pumps were just able to keep her afloat. Captain Scott towed the sloop to the sound flats near Shaw's cove. Luckily there were no ladies aboard.

CHAMPIONS CONGREGATING.

The National Association Tournament Opens on the Rockwell Lot Today—Preparations for the Meet.

The annual meeting of the National Croquet association opens today on the grounds in this city, and bright and early the members will begin to roll the balls in the opening games of the twelfth tournament. Eight courts are in complete readiness. They are constructed in the most scientific way, with beds as hard as marble and elastic cushions.

Reports show that the old clubs have made an increase in membership the past year, and interest in the game is on the increase. Among the new clubs to enter are Washington, Wilmington and Leominster, Mass.

This year the prizes will consist of gold medals, suitably engraved, one for the first and one for the second man in each of the four divisions. Prior to last year they consisted, generally, of handsome mallets, but as the Van Wickle badge and the Spalding time medal were then offered, it was thought better to make all the prizes uniform.

Charles Smith of Cottage City, the youngest championship winner, being only 19 years old, will not be in attendance this year.

Willie Knecht of Keyport, N. J., is a young phenomenon. Two years ago he captured the first prize in the third division without a defeat, and last year walked off with the prize in the second division. Now he is in the first class.

Willie Andrew of this city, the boy player, has decided not to enter the lists this year.

On Saturday will be played the contests for the Van Wickle medal and the Horsman mallet. Prof. Jacobus wrested the Van Wickle medal from Champion Johnson last year, and Strong and Johnson will contend with Jacobus this year for its possession. The Horsman mallet is now the property of the New York club, defended by Germond, although the New York club put forward Fay to defend it against Apgar of Trenton, last fall. The contest was not ended when the play closed, each player having won two games. It is proposed now that the contest between Fay and Apgar be played to determine whether New York retain or Trenton secure it. This will also take place Saturday.

The committee of arrangements have scheduled the following games for this morning:

First division—Bishop and Germond, Jacobus and Knecht, Greenslit and Strong, Dickey and Johnson.

Second division—E. C. Butler and Fay, D. D. Butler and Baldwin.

Third division—Jobes and Crawford, Davenport and Dr. Knecht, Mansfield and Barrett.

Fourth division—Farnsworth and Smith, Adamson and Holden.

Gus Maurer of Keyport, N. J., a famous miracle of delicate play, will not participate in this year's tournament.

The following delegates had arrived last night: H. T. Crawford, G. W. Mansfield, Asbury Grove, Mass.; F. S. Farnsworth, William Holden, Charles Jobes, Leominster, Mass.; E. S. Barrett, Dr. Davenport, Northampton, Mass.; Charles Jacobus, Springfield, Mass.; the Rev. Phillip Germond, Tarrytown, N. Y.; H. G. Fay, Cottage City, Mass.; Dr. Knecht, Mattawan, N. J.; D. D. Butler, E. S. Butler, Mr. Smith, Middletown, Conn.; George W. Johnson, Charles Greenslit, Joseph Bilbrough, William Adamson, Philadelphia, Pa.; E. S. Barnum, S. A. Baldwin, Danbury. Expected this morning are Willie Knecht, W. H. Apgar of Trenton, N. J.; Messrs. Strong, Sisson and Cady of New London, and three representatives from the Wilmington club.

There was exhibition playing on the grounds last night under six electric arc lights, and during the tournament, championship games will be played after nightfall.
